

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

THE Publishers' Weekly

OFFICIAL ORGAN OF THE PUBLISHERS' BOARD OF TRADE AND THE AM. BOOK TRADE ASSOCIATION.

F. LEYPOLDT, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER, 37 PARK ROW, NEW-YORK.

WHOLE No. 207.

APPLETONS' JOURNAL.

A Household Weekly Magazine,

DEVOTED TO POPULAR LITERATURE, AND ALL MATTERS OF TASTE AND CULTURE.

NUMBER FOR JANUARY 1 CONTAINS THE FIRST CHAPTERS OF

"THE MILL OF ST. HERBOT." By Mrs. MACQUOID, author of
"Patty," "My Story," etc., etc.

FIRST INSTALLMENT (IN FOUR PARTS) OF

"A JOURNEY TO THE UNKNOWN." By JULIAN HAWTHORNE (Who will write exclusively for APPLETONS' JOURNAL during 1876).

THE OPENING CHAPTERS OF

"GATHERINGS FROM AN ARTIST'S PORTFOLIO." By JAMES E. FREEMAN.

Mr. FREEMAN, an American artist who has resided for thirty years in Rome, and during that time met many of the most distinguished men and women of the period, will give, under the above title, his reminiscences and experiences, which are of the most entertaining character.

And also many other papers of interest. The JOURNAL appears in new type, and with other improvements.

D. APPLETON & CO., New-York.

Subscription Price, $4 per annum; or 10 cents per number.

JAMES R. OSGOOD & CO.'S New Books.

GOD AND THE BIBLE.

A Review of Objections to "Literature and Dogma."
By MATTHEW ARNOLD. 1 vol., 16mo. Uniform with "Literature and Dogma." $1.50.

In this book Mr. Arnold treats, with much force and with the literary skill for which he is distinguished, the various criticisms made upon his previous remarkable volume, "Literature and Dogma." Like that, it is written not to destroy religion, but to build it up, on what Mr. Arnold considers more permanent and immovable foundations. Both volumes are peculiarly significant of the transition now going on in the realm of theology, and merit the most careful reading.

SONGS OF THREE CENTURIES.

Selected by JOHN G. WHITTIER, with Introductory Essay. HOUSEHOLD EDITION, 12mo, $2. HOLI-DAY EDITION, elegantly bound, $3.50.

A choice collection of the poetry that Mr. Whittier likes best of all that has been written by English and American poets within the last three hundred years.

LITTLE CLASSICS.

Comprising 12 volumes of the best Short Stories, 3 volumes of the best Short Poems, in the whole range of English Literature, and 1 volume of Biographical Sketches of all the Authors represented in the Series. $1 a volume; the set in box, $16.

"It is a fortunate circumstance that the very charming series of volumes edited by ROSSITER JOHNSON, which OSGOOD & Co. have published under the designation of 'Little Classics,' should be completed in good season for the holiday trade. . . . The variety and interest of whose contents, taken in connection with its external attractions, make it one of the prettiest and most desirable ever brought to the attention of book-lovers and book-buyers."—Boston Journal.

A FARMER'S VACATION.

By GEORGE E. WARING, Jr., of "Ogden Farm," author of "Whip and Spur." Beautifully and copiously illustrated. 1 vol., 8vo, $5.

A very entertaining and instructive book, containing Col. WARING's observations among the farmers of Holland, Normandy, Brittany, and the Channel Islands. The illustrations are numerous and unusually excellent.

HINTS ON HOUSEHOLD TASTE.

By C. L. EASTLAKE. Edited by C. C. PERKINS.
New and cheaper edition. Finely illustrated. 8vo,
$3.50.

THE SURVIVORS of the CHANCELLOR

By JULES VERNE. Holiday Edition. 8vo, fully illustrated. $3.

THE BOOK of AMERICAN INTERIORS

By CHARLES W. ELLIOTT. Containing views of twenty-four striking interiors, now existing in this country; and about thirty smaller illustrations.
With descriptive letter-press and Essays on the Library and Dining Room. Quarto, $10.

LETTERS AND SOCIAL AIMS.

By RALPH WALDO EMERSON. $2. Contents:
Poetry and Imagination—Social Aims—Eloquence —Resources—The Comic—Quotation and Originality—Progress of Culture—Persian Poetry—Inspiration—Greatness—Immortality.

One of the noblest volumes Mr. Emerson has ever written.

SAXON STUDIES.

By JULIAN HAWTHORNE. 1 vol., 12mo, $2.

"Marvelous pieces of writing, filled with his peculiar humor, and displaying gleams of insight that positively startle."—London Spectator.

THE INN ALBUM.

By ROBERT BROWNING. 1 vol., 16mo, beveled edges, $1.50.

"Painful the tale is, as always is fit subject for a tragedy. But it is powerfully told. We rank 'The Inn Album' beyond any thing Mr. Browning has written of late. To us it seems almost equal to 'Pippa Passes'—equal, perhaps, it would be if we knew it equally well. Mr. Browning is reverting to his original simplicity, and with it his old strength is once more fully showing itself."—London Athenæum.

THE VEST-POCKET SERIES.

1. SNOW-BOUND. By JOHN G. WHITTIER. Illustrated.
2. EVANGELINE. By H. W. LONGFELLOW. Illustrated.
3. POWER, WEALTH, ILLUSIONS. By R. W. EMERSON.
4. CULTURE, BEHAVIOR, BEAUTY. By R. W. EMERSON.

Neatly bound in cloth. 50c. each.

Like the "LITTLE CLASSICS," only smaller, these miniature volumes are beautiful in typography, paper and binding; and the standard and popular character of their contents, can not fail to gain for them a general welcome.

FAMOUS PAINTERS and PAINTINGS.

By Mrs. JULIA A. SHEDD. Illustrated with Heliotypes of Engravings after Raphael, Correggio, Titian, Copley, Reynolds, Murillo, and other celebrated painters. 1 vol., 8vo, red edges, $5.

A valuable, convenient, and beautiful compendium of information, concerning the most eminent artists and their works.

"Nothing could exceed its neatness, daintiness, and convenience."—Appleton's Journal.

JESUS OF NAZARETH:

HIS LIFE FOR THE YOUNG.

By JOSEPH P. THOMPSON, D.D. 52 full-page engravings. 8vo, red edges, $5.

Dr. Thompson has told anew the story of the life, times, circumstances, incidents, wonderful accompaniments, and divine work of Jesus of Nazareth so as to enlist the eager attention of all sincere readers, old or young. The fresh and attractive treatment, the rare literary skill, and the profound sincerity of the work give a peculiar value.

REGGIO, COPLEY, REYNOLDS, GREUZE, LAW-RENCE, LANDSEER, MURILLO, RAPHAEL, and other celebrated painters,—forming a series of charming pictures of children and child-life.
Quarto, $10.

A beautiful holiday book.

ENGRAVINGS FROM LANDSEER.

Twenty-four Heliotype Plates, reproducing with entire fidelity some of the most famous of LAND-SEER's works, including The Challenge, Chilling-ham Red Deer, The King of the Forest, The Monarch of the Glen, High Life, Low Life, Laying Down the Law, Shoeing the Bay Mare, and others of equal beauty, with a full account of LANDSEER's Life and Works. Quarto, $10.

NOTES IN SEASON.

WE call attention to the Messrs. Roberts' pleasant announcement elsewhere of their "campaign for 1876." The books they have left over to the New Year are such as better claim attention in these more quiet times after the holiday hurry, and they are likely to receive it. Mr. Hamerton's "Etching and Etchers" is republished in response to a positive demand, and the twelve etchings, which are mostly new, have been made in Paris under Mr. Hamerton's own eye. His "Round my Home," uniform with "The Intellectual Life," is very lovely writing. Mr. Quincy's volume of papers on political reform are very timely. There are also a cheaper edition of Morris' translation of Virgil, a new one of Harriet Martineau's "East-ern Life," and a second of Mrs. Preston's poems.

BOOKSELLERS will please note the reduction of prices announced for the New Year by J. B. Lippincott & Co. These include three several lines: the "Don Quixote" and like standards, which fall from $1.50 to $1; more modern books in the same series, such as Kingston's and Ballantyne's, which go to $1.25; and a few popular poets, which fall from $4 to $3, deep.

BROWNING's and Matthew Arnold's new works are of course the salient points at present in the Messrs. Osgood's latest books, and these command attention from readers. Jules Verne's new book, "The Survivors of the Chancellor," a Munchausen work of Arctic adventure, we hear, is as superbly illustrated as previous volumes, and the excellent sale of his "Mysterious Island" proves that the Verne excitement has not altogether subsided, after all. This house also adds a new novel, "With Harp and Crown," by the authors of "Ready Money Mortiboy," to their library of fiction, and one of the "Twice-Told Tales" volumes to their "Little Classic Hawthorne."

A NEW phase in Shakespearean literature will be illustrated in a forthcoming work by Mr. James Rees, promised shortly by Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger. The subject will be "Shakespeare and the Bible," viewing the stage from a scriptural point, and showing Shakespeare's use of the name of the Deity in his poems, with some discussion of the old mysteries and moralities which preceded the legitimate English drama. The same house has recently published the first volume of the Swedenborg Library, "Death, Resurrection, and the Judgment," an edition edited by B. F. Barrett.

SEVERAL books of interest are scheduled for probable publication during January at the Harpers'. Mr. Vincent's "Through and Through the Tropics" may be ready during that month, and possibly "The Squire's Legacy," by Miss Hay, and "Halves," by James Payn. They have in press, also, for immediate publication, "The Devil's Chain," by the author of "Ginx's Baby," and the first volume of "Life and Letters of Lord Macaulay."

THE Index for Volume VIII. of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, July-December, 1875, is now in preparation, and will probably be furnished with our next number (for January 8th).

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

A PAPER by Frances Power Cobbe, on the influence of mediævalism on modern thought, will appear in the London New Quarterly, under the striking title of "Backward Ho!"

ROBERT BUCHANAN's new prose romance opens in the January Gentleman's. It is the story of a native of Brittany, in the days of Napoleon the First, who, hating war, naturally has a hard time of it.

ANOTHER literary review is to appear in Paris, under the name of "La République des Lettres." It will be edited by M. Catulle Mendès, and will start as a monthly. Derenne is the publisher.

As the January number of The North-American Review will be the Centennial number, the leading article will be most appropriately devoted to the history of America during the past hundred years, showing whether the century has been one of progress or retrogression. Prof. J. L. Diman, of Brown University, will discuss "Religion," and Prof. Sumner, of Yale, "Politics," leaving "Abstract Science" to Prof. Simon Newcomb, of the U. S. Naval Observatory. The other papers will be one on "Education," by Prof. Gilman, on "Law," by S. T. Bispham, and "Economic Science," by Prof. Dunbar, of Harvard. A number more than usually marked by the strength of its contributors.

"If you buy what you do not intend to read, your library is no better than a curiosity shop. A library is nothing unless the owner be a living catalogue to it."—Dilke.

COPYRIGHT NOTES.

In the case of Banks vs. McDivitt, recently decided by Judge Shipman, the doctrine is announced that, however ordinary and commonplace the matter protected by a copyright, and however slender the originality, an infringement will be checked. Banks published a book entitled "General Rules of Practice of the Courts of Record of the State of New-York." It contained annotations and references, but no matter other than such as pertained to it as a manual. McDivitt published a similar work under the title, "New Rules of the Courts," etc., and made use of certain parts of Banks' publication, copying them literally without change. The parts copied were the rules of court, certain of the notes and citations, and parts of the index. It is to be deduced from the facts that McDivitt's only purpose was to "save time," the substance of the matter used being open to the public, and its arrangement alone within the scope of the copyright. He doubtless reasoned that the mere alteration of the order of citations, division of paragraphs, etc., was at best the function of a scribe, and to save a scribe's wages used the matter at hand as arranged by Banks.

But the court ruled, and with manifest propriety, that, whatever the nature of the notes, if they were produced by their author, they were within the copyright law, and could not be appropriated by the defendant. The lesson of the case lies on its surface.—Contributed by Rowland Cox, Esq.

THE latest copyright intelligence in England is the decision of Mr. Charles Reade's suit against the Glasgow Herald, in his favor. His story of "A Hero and a Martyr" was published in the Pall Mall Gazette as well as in the New-York Tribune, and thence copied into the Glasgow Herald. Mr. Reade had, however, retained the copyright, and sued the Herald for infringement. The defendants maintained that publication in a newspaper entitled them to copy, but the court held not.

THE Athenaeum states that "in response to the invitation of Mr. Charles Reade, an influential section of American authors, headed by the venerable poet, William Cullen Bryant, have offered themselves as members of the Association to Protect the Rights of Authors. A special meeting of the Committee of the Association has therefore been convened on this subject." This, says the Tribune, doubtless refers to a series of signatures to a paper in favor of international copyright procured by Mrs. Fanny Barrow, the sister of Mr. Richard Grant White, shortly after the publication of Mr. Reade's letters on International Copyright in the Tribune.

OBITUARY.

At a meeting of the Booksellers' Association of Washington and Georgetown, December 25th, the following resolutions were adopted, touching the death of Mr. O. H. Morrison, of Washington, its late secretary:

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God in his Divine wisdom to call from among us our esteemed friend, Obadiah H. Morrison, we do sincerely regret his demise, which has taken from our midst one whom, in all business and friendly relations, we have ever found to be most pleasant and honorable, and whose memory we shall ever hold dear; therefore Resolved, That to his bereaved family we tender our most profound sympathy and condolence.

Resolved, That this association attend his funeral in a body.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased, and also that they be published in the daily papers of this city.

THE NEW YEAR.

WE give our readers greeting at this opening of the Centennial year—a happy new century to them, and their descendants!

And, taking their good nature for granted on this "auspicious occasion," we shall ask liberty to say something of and for ourselves. With 1876, the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY enters on the fifth year of its existence as a weekly, and a word with its patrons is properly in order.

The WEEKLY has at least, by general consent, proved its right to live, and demonstrated the possibility of an independent representative of the book trade, published with sufficient frequency to make it timely and useful. In these respects it is surpassed only by the German trade organ, published daily; but this makes no pretensions to give editorial discussions or more than bare items in reading matter, so that the WEEKLY may lay claim to be the most complete book-trade paper published anywhere. That it is capable of great improvement, none know better than the proprietor, and with the continued and increasing support for which he believes he may hope, that improvement is only a question of time.

It was so long ago as 1863, that, without thought of himself ever taking part in the work, the proprietor of this journal, in a letter to the February issue of the American Publishers' Circular, then published monthly in New-York by Mr. Chas. R. Rode, advocated a weekly trade paper, and pointed out the "deficiency of the bookseller's most indispensable tools—a well-supported central organ and good catalogues." The Circular was itself started as a weekly, but, failing of support, became with 1863 a monthly, and in May was purchased by Mr. Childs and removed to Philadelphia.

During the connection of the proprietor of the present WEEKLY with the house of Leypoldt & Holt, a little bulletin of foreign literature was started, and supplied to the trade with imprints. From this grew the idea of the Literary Bulletin, which was commenced as an imprint circular for booksellers, with a Christmas number for 1868. This Bulletin, started as a means of communication between book-publishers and book-buyers through the booksellers, proved the need of a medium between publishers and the booksellers themselves more complete and enterprising than any existing. Accordingly that portion of the edition of the Literary Bulletin sent for direct use by the trade was modified into the Trade Circular, with distinctive trade features, in September, 1869.

Although the interests of the publishing house which issued the Trade Circular were not allowed any prominence or influence in the journal above those of other houses, the editor found that serious objections were made, especially by the larger houses, to the full support of a trade journal not absolutely independent, in name as well as fact, of any special interest. The desire to make the journal thus independent was a leading cause of the change of partnership in April, 1871, when the proprietor of the WEEKLY began to devote himself exclusively to the general interests of the trade, in the publication of the trade journal and of other trade helps. The encouragement held out to him by a general desire for a trade weekly, whose lists and information should be so frequent as to supply, with enterprise and timeliness, the practical needs of the bookseller, as a less frequent issue could not do, caused him to enter upon the publication of The Weekly Trade Circular, with January 18th, 1872.

The demand for a journal entirely independent of any one house, and of frequent issue, having thus been supplied, the proprietor found himself met by the objection that his own venture could not be given the full support it needed, because of the existence of other trade publications, which, although acknowledged less valuable to the trade, served to divide the patronage of the publishers, and thus prevent the full development of this journal. With faith in the future of an independent weekly, fully representative of the trade (although the immediate return was inadequate), The American Literary Gazette and Publishers' Circular was purchased from Mr. Childs at a considerable cost, and early in the year incorporated with the Weekly Trade Circular. At the beginning of 1873 the name was changed to THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, under which title this journal hopes to serve the American book trade for many years.

The proprietor may frankly say, in this free talk with his readers, that the WEEKLY has not been the source of extravagant income. In its early years it was a hard burden to carry, and a great deal of work had to be done for very little money and by few hands. Nevertheless, the kindly words of encouragement accorded to him from many quarters were an inspiration to continued faith in the ultimate success of a work which, it seemed to him, was of considerable importance—the cultivation, through a fully representative trade journal, of such high standards and friendly relations, and the supply of such educational and professional tools, throughout the American book trade, as should give it rank where it properly belonged, second only to the learned professions. The more practical encouragement of pecuniary support has also been steadily on the increase, and the WEEKLY, which sank capital for some time after the start, has now attained the “reasonable living profit” which it has been advocating for the trade, so that it is fairly to be hoped that the brighter years of the immediate future will make return for the original capital so long lost sight of. If, in some few instances, endeavors to serve the trade, at no exorbitant return for the service rendered, have been misapprehended or unappreciated, these exceptions have not been many, and in the long run are sure to be corrected. For all this the proprietor has reason to be sincerely grateful.

So much for the past of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. We wish now to say a word upon its present and future. The WEEKLY now reaches, on paid subscriptions, all the important houses of the American book trade, we think we may say without exception, and is therefore looked to as the trade authority in at least nine-tenths of the book business done in this country. Its subscription list is also steadily increasing among the minor book agencies, as better conditions of trade make it possible for the smaller men to study and cultivate their business. But there are few journals in existence that can depend chiefly upon their subscriptions, and a book-trade journal in particular must look to the direct support of the publishers as the means of its development. We have never yet been able to print all the matter of value to the trade at our command, and which our plans cover. These plans are becoming wider and more comprehensive as experience gives suggestions, and we hope to present many improvements of value during the present year. Some of these will be introduced during the present month. We are also desirous of making our present features more complete. Whether we may do so or not depends directly upon the patronage of the trade, for since the WEEKLY has no other interests behind it, it must stand or fall by itself, on its own merits.

We have left ourselves little space to speak of the general system of trade helps of which the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the centre. It has long been the aim of its proprietor to furnish to the trade a consistent and complete series of trade tools. With the completion of the long-hoped-for and long-promised “American Catalogue,” on which we are now actively engaged, the foundation of this series will be laid. Its system will be carried out in annual or biennial supplements; if the latter, in connection with the Uniform Trade-List Annual, which we propose to publish after this year only every other year, alternating with it “The Stationers' Handbook,” of which the first issue will be made this spring, and which will perform a like service for the stationery branch of our trade. Our Educational, and such other special lists as we are supported in publishing, will be additional parts of the same system. For distribution by booksellers among their customers, we offer our Literary News (of whose Christmas number 33,000 were issued directly with imprints, and 25,000 more through a special channel), as by far the most effective and thus cheapest publication. We have in preparation another very useful help to the retail bookseller, now in general use in Germany. Thus the publications of this office propose to meet every need of the book trade in these particulars, so that each one helps the other, and if we receive, in the brighter years before the trade, the support which we hope for from the book and stationery trades, we shall give them reason to be satisfied with the returns for their confidence and investments.

WE can not give the proper space in this number to the discussion of the relations between publisher and jobber as to underselling which is suggested by the Messrs. Roberts' letter. But we may say now that so long as the publisher says it is not he but the jobber who is responsible, and the jobber says it is not he but the publisher, we may wait till doomsday before anything is accomplished. We think both publishers and jobbers, and both alike, are unwise in encouraging undersellers, but that one side makes a mistake is poor reason for the other's doing so. Somebody must go ahead, else nobody gets started. We regret that the Messrs. Roberts should regard our discussion of a question most important to the trade as an attempt to “taboo” anybody: our spirit is quite different. But all this must wait a more full opportunity.

MR. HADLEY writes from Chicago to say that the ambiguity he complained of in the retail price rule centres chiefly on the indefiniteness of the phrase, “large buyers.” It was proposed in the Committee at Niagara that this should be made definite, by stating limits; but at the urgent representations of the President of the Association and other experienced dealers, who urged that there should be some flexibility in the rule, and that the flexibility should be here, the definition was left to the agreement of local trade associations or to the discretion of the individual dealers. We have always agreed with Mr. Hadley that this indefiniteness was a mistake, but there is something to be said on the other side, as to the difference between city and country standards in this respect. Mr. Hadley's original letter was nevertheless too sweeping, it seems to us.

THE Messrs. Lippincott have made a move in the right direction. They have reduced the prices of three lines of standard books—lines which have in rival editions been staple stock at the undersellers' and dollar stores—so that the bookseller who is desirous of maintaining retail prices can also have a chance. The trade should not forget that small discounts and full prices are better than the biggest discounts and no prices at all, whenever reduction of prices is accompanied by reduction of discounts. Now, who will follow with juveniles of the 50 off sort?

OUR number for January 22d will serve as a supplement to the "Trade-List Annual." We shall mass in that the advertising lists of books published during 1875, instead of distributing them through the January issues, that they may be more handy for reference; and there will be an Index, supplementary to that of the Annual, of books not included in the catalogues of the latter. These lists are requested at the earliest convenience of publishers.

THE A. B. T. A. AT THE CENTENNIAL.

WE present herewith the elevation and plan for the proposed structure for the American Book Trade Association display at the Centennial Exhibition. The plot allotted by the Director-General is 117 feet by 32½, on the South Avenue, and at the extreme eastern end of the main building, which is the end facing Philadelphia. Several times this amount of space was applied for by members of the trade, and this structure is a device not only for better display, but for doubling the floor-space at command. It is essentially a second floor, at a height of twelve feet, supported on forty-eight iron columns, and bearing three pavilions for book-cases. It is to be made of iron, richly decorated in colors, and will cost something less than $5000. This cost it is proposed to assess equally upon those exhibiting on this second floor. Six firms—Messrs. Hurd & Houghton, Ivison, Barnes, Osgood, Lippincott, and Merriam—propose to occupy the central pavilion, and others, among them D. Appleton & Co., have arranged for place in those at the ends. The flooring will be of native woods, and the ceiling below will probably be covered with canvas, the cost of frescoing which and of the low platform on which the structure is placed it is proposed to ask from the exhibitors below. The structure is 115 feet long, the centre pavilion being 29 feet, and the others 24 feet square. The space allotted being near to the corner of the building, close under one of the lanterns, and with a fountain space at one end, on a wide aisle, and with only a display of ceramics, in cases but five feet high, between it and the wall, it is thought that there will be abundance of light for exhibitors on the main floor.

The committee in Philadelphia, composed of Messrs. Remsen, Blakiston, and Monachesi, will soon issue a circular to the trade, collating the rules for exhibitors which apply in the present case. One hundred and eight houses in the trade have applied for space, the distribution of which is in the hands of this Committee. It is proposed to arrange with a Philadelphia firm organized for this work to take charge of the exhibition, when exhibiting houses do not desire to furnish their own clerks. We shall give further information as to the work as progress is made in it.

COMMUNICATIONS.

AMBIGUITY IN THE RETAIL PRICE RULE.

CHICAGO, December 18, 1875.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

An editorial in the WEEKLY of Dec. 11th is so pointed that although I have no desire to rush into print, I am willing to write briefly.

A case was brought before me in which a rival of the complainant had sold a copy of Webster's Dictionary for $10. With so indefinite a rule as the "twenty per cent rule," the complaint sounded more like jest than earnest, and accordingly I replied in the same style. I am in earnest, however, when I say that the "twenty per cent rule" can not be understood alike by two persons, except by accident. The exceptions to this rule remind me of a saying accredited to Josh Billings. He announced that his terms for lecturing were eighty-seven dollars and ten cents per night; the eighty-seven dollars he might discount, but the ten cents he must have.

The greatest difficulty in interpreting this rule lies in the varying ideas as to what constitutes a "large buyer." I will not argue this point, but am willing to appeal to the experience of the various members of the trade for proof of my position. It is not only true that that phrase gives license for selling to any body at twenty per cent, according to the ideas of the seller, but it is also true that it is largely exercised. What is there in that rule that gives you assurance when you ask retail price of a stranger, that the same customer may not be on intimate terms with your rival and accustomed to receive twenty per cent discount? Nothing. And a large majority of those in the trade will acknowledge the truth of my statement. I have named the principal difficulty, but I should like an elucidation of the last exception—namely, "And in the case of exceptions made by the Publishers' Board of Trade for publishers only." Reader, please get the publishers' rules, read them, put them and the last exception together, and see if you do not "see through a glass darkly." I do not care to write much; I will only assert that there will never be a return to fixed prices until the Am. H. T. A. has the faith and the courage to make a rule that is unequivocal in its language. When that is done, if the rule be just, faith will take the place of distrust, and our callers will buy instead of "shop."

Very respectfully, HIRAM HADLEY.

PUBLISHERS AND JOBBERS.

BOSTON, December 20, 1875.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

"The Final Question," which you so ably argue in your last issue (thank you for the puff of "Roberts Brothers' line of juveniles," which it was the occasion of your giving), can not be settled by publishers. They are quite powerless to prevent underselling. They may, to be sure, refuse to supply the jobber who sells to an underseller, but this will not mend the matter, for there are ways that are dark, and both jobber and underseller will supply themselves if they desire to do so. The remedy must be voluntary and can not be coercive.

And is it fair to taboo a leading jobbing house in New-York City because it supplies a dry-goods dealer with books, when a leading publishing house in the same city supplies a dry-goods dealer in Boston with its publications direct?

Yours very truly,
ROBERTS BROTHERS.

A CASE IN POINT.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 21, 1875.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

While reading your editorial in PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of the 18th inst. (and which I heartily indorse), I was asked by a friend the price of "Infelice;" and telling him $2, he read me this advertisement, cut from the Nashville American:

 Infelice received at the $ Store.

This bears so directly upon your remarks that I could not refrain from sending it to you. Our copies cost us $1.34, and one of the dark and unfathomable mysteries is how they are enabled to sell it at $1.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

BABYLON AND NINEVEH, by John P. Newman, D.D. (Harper & Brothers.) Dr. Newman does not claim attention as a discoverer or explorer; his work is simply a very delightful volume of travel over a route already well and familiarly known. The only novelty is the method in which he made his transit from "sea to sea," having traversed on horseback over a thousand miles of a very dangerous country without having met with any serious encounters, though the adventures he enumerates and the dangers escaped are many. His chief interest seemed to centre in the ruins of the ancient cities, and it was to the "thrones and palaces" of Babylon and Nineveh his time and observation were mostly devoted. His descriptions of these are exceedingly vivid and minute, and bear the traces of patient research. His style is very fluent and readable, the narrative being enlivened by amusing personal adventures. The volume is very richly illustrated by wood-cuts. 8vo, cloth, $5.

WINTER SUNSHINE, by John Burroughs. (Hurd & Houghton.) Mr. Burroughs writes the most delicious, sunshiny essays about our own country and about England. Under the title of "An October Abroad," he gives some very characteristic impressions of English life and scenery as contrasted with our own, with also "A Glimpse of France." Six of the essays—"Winter Sunshine," "Exhilarations of the Road," "The Snow-Walkers," "The Fox," "A March Chronicle," and "The Apple"—are entirely American, and are pervaded by such a homely good-nature, and by such a bright, fresh, out-door atmosphere, that it is really inspiring to read them. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

LETTERS AND SOCIAL AIMS, by Ralph Waldo Emerson. (James R. Osgood & Co.) The most important essays in this volume are "Social Aims" and "Poetry and Imagination." The others are briefer and show less depth of thought than we are accustomed to from Mr. Emerson. They are named "Eloquence," "Recourses," "The Comic," "Quotation and Originality," "Progress of Culture," "Persian Poetry," "Inspiration," "Greatness," and "Immortality." They deal either with literary criticism of a higher order or with moral topics, in connection with the social aims all men have in a greater or less degree. They are marked by Mr. Emerson's best gifts of thought and expression, and will prove most delightful reading. 12mo, cloth, $2.

THRIFT, by Samuel Smiles. (Harper & Brothers.) The profound wisdom and sound, healthy common-sense which form the contents of this volume can scarcely be estimated, except through the most careful reading. The work is one which recommends itself to all—to men, to women, and to youth. It offers props to the weak and ignorant, and golden suggestions to the poor and struggling. It is designed as a sequel to "Self-Help" and "Character," though the author admits it might serve as an introduction to either of these volumes, as "thrift is the basis of self-help and the foundation of much that is excellent in character." The headings to the chapters are all suggestive; we give a few of them: "Habits of Thrift," "Improvvidence," "Means of Saving," "Methods of Economy," "Little Things," "The Art of Living," "Healthy Homes," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

HOW TO MAKE CANDY. (Dustin, Gilman & Co.) This volume of receipts for making the most popular kinds of confectionery is chiefly intended for home use, although the directions are entirely reliable and practicable for manufacturers who have had little experience. It not only gives directions for different candies, but also information about the materials used in candy-making, such as flavors, etc. 50 cents.

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE FOR 1876. (James Vick.) The first number of the "Floral Guide" comes to us in beautiful form, and considerably improved by several important changes. It contains a wonderful amount of matter, of both a pleasing and a useful character, for the price, which is really merely nominal, for when we think of giving 25 cents a year for four such elegantly gotten-up and brilliantly illustrated pamphlets as the one before us, it is simply ridiculous. All lovers of flowers should have it, as it gives the newest discoveries in the floral kingdom, with price-lists of all seeds, bulbs, etc., with brief descriptions, and best manner of growing them, etc. Published quarterly.

POEMS AND ESSAYS OF EDGAR ALLAN POE. (W. J. Widdleton.) This is a new edition of Poe's poems, with a new memoir by Mr. John H. Ingram, and with the letters, addresses, and poems read at the memorial ceremonies which took place in connection with the dedication of the monument erected on the 17th of November over Poe's neglected grave, by numerous friends and admirers; hence, the volume is to be known as the "Memorial Edition." Mr. Ingram's memoir explains and clears away many of the erroneous statements that have been made relative to this unhappy genius, and draws the veil aside so gently and kindly from his faults and weaknesses, that only pity and tender sympathy can be felt for the mistakes and misfortunes of his life. The volume contains a new portrait of Poe, said to be extremely like him, and several other illustrations. 12mo, cloth, $2.25.

SAXON STUDIES, by Julian Hawthorne. (James R. Osgood & Co.) These studies of Saxon life and character embody a good deal that is foreign to the subject in the way of thoughts and fancies that are particularly the author's own. His reflections and observations all betray a deep insight into human nature, and are marked by a dry humor that is very taking. The aspect the "studies" offer of the Saxon character is quite different from the stereotyped one, and is by no means flattering; we can well understand the indignation they created in Dresden on their first appearance. They are well known here through one of the prominent magazines, and have been largely quoted, for their graphic descriptions, and for their brightness and originality. The volume is divided into seven parts, viz.: "Dresden Environs," "Of Gambrinus," "Sidewalks and Roadways," "Stone and Plaster," "Dresden Diversions," "Types Civil and Uncivil," "Mountaineering in Miniature." 12mo, cloth, $2.

FAMILIAR LETTERS OF JOHN ADAMS AND HIS WIFE, by Charles Francis Adams. (Hurd & Houghton.) These letters of John Adams, of revolutionary fame, and Abigail his wife, form one of the numerous volumes relative to matters of one hundred years ago which our centennial is destined to call forth. As most of the letters were exchanged during the period of the revolutionary struggle, they bear no little value as historical documents, and are invested with a special interest as coming from eye-witnesses of the great events which marked our birth as a nation. A memoir of Mrs. Adams precedes the correspondence. 12mo, cloth, $2.

SCHOLAR'S HAND-BOOK (PART V.) ON THE INTERNATIONAL LESSONS FROM JANUARY TO JULY, 1876, by Rev. Edwin W. Rice. (American S. S. Union.) This little book includes studies in the life of David, and studies in the Acts. It will be found a valuable aid in the study of the Bible lessons, its price placing it within the reach of all. The series of "The Scholar's Hand-Books" is well and favorably known among Sunday-school teachers. 10 cents.

AHN'S FIRST GERMAN READER, WITH FOOTNOTES AND VOCABULARY, by Dr. P. Henn. (E. Steiger.) AHN'S FIRST GERMAN READER, WITH NOTES AND VOCABULARY, by Dr. P. Henn. (E. Steiger.) These are the first of a new series of German Readers, prepared on a simple and natural plan, and designed to furnish young learners between the ages of ten and fifteen with such available means as shall give them a fair mastery of German for the ordinary uses of life. The collection is in prose and verse, and so strictly graded that the pupil almost insensibly overcomes his difficulties. The brief conversations at the end of the lessons are particularly recommended to the attention of teachers. In ordering the books, particular care should be taken to give the title in full, as in one edition the notes, etc., are at the bottom of the page, while in the other they are at the back of the book. 16mo, boards, 60 cents each.

KEY TO AHN'S FIRST GERMAN READER, by Dr. P. Henn. (E. Steiger.) This key to the above Readers is intended to be an aid to teachers and private learners. It contains both literal and idiomatic translations of the reading lessons. 30 cents.

ON THE ROAD TO RICHES, by William H. Maher. (T. J. Brown, Eager & Co.) Business men, principals or subordinates, can not do better than buy this work and study it up for the new year. It contains hints and advice about business matters which no young business man should fail to know; if all the rules laid down in it could be adhered to, the road to riches would quickly be reached, no doubt. It is written in a clear, plain, straightforward way, that inspires confidence at once in the writer. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

ELIJAH THE PROPHET, by the Rev. William M. Taylor, D.D. (Harper & Brothers.) The favor bestowed upon Dr. Taylor's previous work, "David, King of Israel," will, we predict, be extended to the present one, as it is written in the same popular vein, and appeals strongly to the imagination of the general reader. Dr. Taylor says his aim has been, in relating the thrilling story of Elijah, to do so by the light thrown upon its prophecies by the aid of the New Testament. He has made his hero so essentially human, in the manner in which he has set forth his failings and the inspirations of his life, that one is brought by sympathy wonderfully near to him, and imbibes unconsciously the lessons to be drawn from his life. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

JOB'S COMFORTERS; or, SCIENTIFIC SYMPATHY, by Joseph Parker, D.D., with introduction and notes by George Zabriskie Gray. (A. D. F. Randolph & Co.) The author of this little tract is well known by his works, "Ecce Deus" and "The Paraclete." The little work is offered by Mr. Gray as an aid to stem the present tide of materialism. It is written in the form of a satire—Huxley, John Stuart Mill, and Tyndall figuring as Job's Comforters. 25 cents.

SAFETY BOOK-KEEPING, by H. J. Mettenheimer. (Robert Clarke & Co.) A little volume which exposes the tricks and devices dishonest book-keepers resort to, to defraud their employers. Intended for the use of business men, in the safe keeping of their accounts. 16mo, cloth. $1.

LIFE OF LORD BYRON AND OTHER SKETCHES, by Emilio Castelar, translated by Mrs. Arthur Arnold. (Harper & Brothers.) Victor Hugo, Alexandre Dumas, Emile Girardin, Daniel Ma-
nin, and Adolphe Thiers, are the other names included in this volume. The sketches are all brilliantly written, in Castelar's vivid, graphic style, but they do not give more than an outside view of their subjects. The life of Lord Byron is particularly partial, ignoring facts in the happiest manner, and offering a dazzling, flattered picture of this erratic genius. The volume will be read, however, with intense interest. Señor Castelar's style is so bold and original. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

THE GERMAN ELEMENT IN THE WAR OF AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE, by George Washington Greene, LL.D. (Hurd & Houghton.) The lives of Baron Von Steuben and General John De Kalb form the groundwork of this volume. There is also a chapter on "German Mercenaries," giving the history of those unfortunate men whose blood was shed to gratify the ambition of their sovereign. The work is a fresh contribution to the history of our country, and attribute to some of the German heroes of our war for independence. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

THE ANNUALS.

THE second "Reference Catalogue of Current Literature" (London: Joseph Whitaker) and the third "Publishers' Trade-List Annual" (New-York: F. Leypoldt) reach us together. The English volume is noticeably slenderer than its bulky predecessor, and with some surprise we look in vain for the catalogues of such houses as Blackwood, Murray, Routledge, and Williams & Norgate. In fact, there are forty fewer contributors than last year, and Mr. Whitaker announces that his next edition will not appear till 1877. He calls attention, however, to the improved character of the index, which is much fuller than last year's, and includes no fewer than 17,000 works or collections. It is this feature which for the first time distinguishes the "Trade List Annual," following the example of the "Reference Catalogue," just as the latter work was called into being by the former. Mr. Leypoldt's disparaging estimate of his own index must not be taken too literally, but indicating his consciousness of how far it falls short of ideal bibliography. His subscribers will not, we apprehend, have many reproaches to make him, even judged by this standard; but they may reasonably reproach themselves for the want of uniformity and punctuality in getting out their catalogues, which has caused him so much needless trouble and annoyance. Uniformity will, we do not doubt, be attained in time, but punctuality may prove something beyond control. In spite of all obstacles, Mr. Leypoldt reports a gain of four firms over the total representation of last year. Besides the general index, which, as compared with Mr. Whitaker's, appears to be at least one half fuller, he gives educational, law, and medical indexes, and an index of specialties in the book and stationery trade. Both these volumes are achievements of incontestable value, and must do much to improve the trade, and to aid book-buyers directly and indirectly. They ought to be accessible in every public library and in the leading bookstores of the country.—The Nation, Dec. 23, 1875.

WE know nothing which can give a more impressive idea of the extent of the book-publishing business in this country than "The Publishers' Trade-List Annual," issued by the Publishers' Weekly. . . . The number of subjects and authors mentioned in the General Index is something bewildering, and shows that of the making of books there is no end. The volume is, of course, indispensable to every bookseller.—Evening Mail, Dec. 22, 1875.

"TRADE-LIST ANNUAL" received. The index, though imperfect, is alone worth five times the cost of the book.—B. H. Owen, Clarksville, Tenn.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE New-York Times recently printed a column article on Bryant's "History of the United States," in which it says:

"The names which the title-page of this history bears—those of William Cullen Bryant and of Sydney Howard Gay—give all the assurance needed of the extensive research, the conscientious accuracy and impartiality, as well as the thorough literary finish, which will characterize the narrative. The facts in the history of our country will be narrated in a style so readable and popular that old and young alike will be charmed.

"Bryant's Popular History of the United States" was projected simply because its publishers recognized the necessity for a complete, compact, and attractive history of our country—one which should be worthy of a place in every library, however choice, and which should, at the same time, not be so extensive or costly but that every family might possess it. That the first volume should appear in the year which marks the completion of the first Centennial of our independence is a happy coincidence, upon which both the publishers and the public may be congratulated: the publishers, because at this time so much attention is given to the study of our history as a nation; and the public, because they will thus have brought within their reach a work in every respect worthy of the important subject to which it is devoted."

THE new work for churches, by Dr. George F. Root, entitled "The Choir and Congregation," embodies ideas so new and striking that it is expected to cause a pleasant revolution wherever adopted and carried out. The aim is to give something for all to do—choir and people—bringing harmony and co-operation to all concerned.

THERE is talk of organizing an exhibition in Paris which would be of great interest to book-collectors, namely, one of rare books and artistic bindings. It is to be hoped, says Appletons' Journal, that the project will not be suffered to end in talk, as the exhibition would be a very curious and instructive one in many respects.

ONE of the most important enterprises of the new year, says the Tribune, will be the "Theological and Biblical Library," under the editorship of Drs. Crooks and Hurst, announced some time ago by Nelson & Phillips. The plan of the series Dr. Hurst has been developing for ten years past. It will aim to furnish in a dozen volumes a comprehensive theological library, such as exists in this compass in no other shape. It is expected that four volumes will be issued in 1876. These will include the two introductory volumes, the "Theological Encyclopedia," including methodology and bibliography, which will be by the Rev. Albert S. Hunt, D.D., of Brooklyn, and the "Introduction to the Study of the Scriptures," by Prof. Henry M. Harman, D.D., of Dickinson College. Dr. Hunt's work will be based upon the German of Hagenbach, but its bibliography of English and American Protestant theology, which is likely to cover some 15,000 titles, and upon which he has bestowed long and severe labor, will be a new and most valuable feature. Dr. Hurst himself writes the "History of the Christian Church," in two volumes, of which one will be issued in 1876, and the first volume of the treatise of "Systematic Theology," by Bishop Foster, is also promised. The other portions of the series will be on "Bible Hermeneutics," by Prof. Henry Bannister, D.D., who occupies the chair of Exegesis in the Evanston Theological School, near Chicago; "Biblical and Christian Archæology," by Prof. Charles W. Bennett, D.D., of the chair of History and Logic at Syracuse, and the Rev. George H. Whitney, D.D., President of the Centenary Collegiate Institute, Hackettstown, N. J.; "Evidences of Christianity," by the Rev. Dr. H. B. Ridgeway, of this city; "Christian Theism and Modern Science," by Prof. Alexander Winchell, LL.D., of Syracuse and Vanderbilt Universities; and a "History of Christian Doctrine," in two volumes, by Dr. Crooks. Although undertaken by Methodists, the series is not meant to be in any way sectarian, except so far as Bishop Foster's work has especial reference to Methodist theology. By the substitution of Dr. Hodge's similar work for his, the series, for instance, will be quite as valuable to the Presbyterian denominations.

A PROSE romance, by Robert Buchanan, the poet, is to run through The Gentleman's Magazine for 1876.

MR. SWINBURNE'S new work, "Erechtheus," is just ready in England. It is a play on the Greek model, of over 1700 lines, more regular in construction than "Atalanta in Calydon."

MISS HOSMER'S new novel will be entitled "On the Loggia: A Story of Art and Rome." The Osgoods, who are to publish it, are also about issuing a second series of Prof. Agassiz' "Geological Sketches," collected and arranged by Mrs. Agassiz. The subjects embraced are: Glacial Period; The Parallel Roads of Glen Roy in Scotland; Ice Period in America; Glacial Phenomena in Maine; and Physical History of the Valley of the Amazons.

A NEW story by A. L. O. E., "The Haunted Rooms," is to be published by the Carters.

WE have received from Messrs. John Church & Co., Cincinnati, the following new music: "You are Nothing Now to Me," words by Eben E. Rexford, music by Henri Lagarde (30 c.); "The Four-Leaved Clover" (Polka), by Mrs. Clara A. Scott (30 c.); "Barney Take me Home Again," words by Arthur W. French, music by Geo. W. Persley (35 c.); and from Mr. M. Gray, San Francisco: "La Limpatia Mazurka," by A. Yufante (30 c.); "Song of the Cane" ("Princess of Trebizonde"), arranged by Ad. Dorn (20 c.); and Waltz ("Giroflé-Girofla"), arranged by Ad. Dorn (20 c.).

A SPECIMEN sheet of sizes and styles of music type used in the electrotyping and stereotyping of music-plates has been issued by Mr. J. M. Armstrong, of Philadelphia, to aid publishers and others needing music set in their orders. The sheet neatly illustrates the different types and page used in the various sized music-books, sheet-music, and the like, and a scale of "ems" is given, so that the exact measurement of the page can be furnished in applying for estimates. Those having much occasion to order music-plates will find it useful to have at hand.

THE latest Centennial publication is by Gen. James B. Fry. "A Sketch of the Adjutant-General's Department, U. S. Army, from 1775 to 1875." It has a history of the organization of the department, transcripts of orders, a register of personnel, etc., and is printed for private distribution.

M. ALPHONSE DERENNE, a Paris publisher, being desirous of showing the utmost perfection that can be realized by French typography, is about to issue a poem of a hundred verses by M. Stéphane Mallarmé, entitled "L'Après-Midi d'un Faune," printed in Elzevirian type made expressly, and on the richest paper. The illustration and artistic ornamentation are confided to M. Edouard Manet, whose designs, culs de lampe, fleurons, etc., executed in two tints, black and rose, will be done in imitation of Japanese methods not hitherto attempted in Europe. The number of copies of this literary and artistic curiosity is to be very limited.

AN autotype fac-simile edition of Milton's Commonplace Book is to be published in London from the manuscript recently discovered. The MS. is of quarto size, and consists of eighty written pages. The price will be two guineas, to subscribers only. Subscriptions should be addressed to Mr. W. S. W. Vaux, Esq., M.A., Secretary to the Royal Society of Literature, 4 St. Martin's Place, Charing Cross.

MR. GLADSTONE is busy on his new book on Homer, which will be an expansion of his Contemporary Review articles.

AN Oriental series, entitled "Bibliothèque de l'École des Langues Orientales," has just been commenced under the auspices of the French Ministry of Public Instruction, which contributes a very liberal subsidy. The publisher of the series is M. Ernest Leroux.

MR. WILLIAM F. SKENE, author of the "Four Ancient Books of Wales," has in the press a work, entitled "Celtic Scotland," to be completed in three volumes. The first volume, which will be ready shortly, treats of the History and Ethnology; the second volume, Church and Culture, and the third volume, the Land and People, are preparing for publication by Messrs. Edmonston & Douglas, of Edinburgh. —Athenæum.

MR. F. W. AYER, who has been appointed assignee of H. N. THE PUBLISHERS' TRADE-LIST ANNUAL FOR

is now ready, containing the new LISTS of one hundred and fifty-five American Publishing Houses (four more than last year), a GENERAL INDEX to the prominent books in the same, embracing about 14,000 titles, Indexes to MEDICAL and LAW BOOKS, with about eight hundred titles each, and the complete AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE, for 1875, with 7000 titles more, the series guiding the bookseller or reader to the full entries of over 22,000 books.

The addition of these Indexes makes the work absolutely indispensable to the bookseller, causing it to displace entirely the previous Annual. By keeping a copy of this work on his counter at the service of the customer, like a directory, the bookseller will do much to promote his trade. The librarian and the general reader will also find the ANNUAL most valuable in guiding them to the wide range of American literature.

The orders previous to publication day having been supplied at the usual nominal rate, the price of the work, as previously announced, is now put, to cover the cost of making the Indexes, at the following rates:

To the trade,	$2.00 per copy.
To the general public,	2.50 "

The volume being too large for the mails, directions for forwarding through jobbers or for expressage, which must be paid on delivery, must accompany each order. The volume is forwarded at our risk by express only.

The Literary News

A Monthly Journal of Current Literature.

PUBLISHED BY

(Space allotted for Dealer's Imprint.)

FEBRUARY, 1876.

TO THE RETAIL BOOK TRADE.

Retail Booksellers, News Agents, and Dealers generally, who desire a handy, cheap, and profitable advertising medium for the latest books in the market, will find the best adapted to that purpose.

This publication (now in its fifth year) has reached a circulation of over 25,000 copies, and is used by hundreds of booksellers, from Maine to California.

It will be issued as heretofore, at the beginning of every month, with not less than eight pages, embracing Editorial Notes, Literary Intelligence, a full list, compiled expressly for its columns from the records of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, containing the titles and prices of the PRINCIPAL BOOKS PUBLISHED DURING THE PREVIOUS MONTH and announcements of Forthcoming Works for the Current Month, so classified as to show at a glance all the new publications in the various departments of literature, and one page of general advertisements, which will not conflict with the interest of the trade. It will be printed on tinted paper like previous editions, but of superior quality, and being of light texture, it can be sent with any book, magazine, paper, letter, circular, etc., with a small increase of postage.

It is certain that dealers who will adopt this cheap and effective mode for advertising their establishments, will find themselves amply repaid in a short time, and we have the testimony of many dealers who have not only increased the sales from their counters, but have found the orders for books not in stock highly remunerative.

Terms for Editions with Imprint, invariably payable in advance.

250 "	:	:	:	12 00		1000 "	:	:	:	36 00

Special terms for large quantities.

As the December issue will hereafter be published as a double (Christmas) number, regular subscribers at the above rates, who fail to send their special order, will receive only one half the quantity for this month. Special terms for the Christmas number will be announced in the Publishers' Weekly during the month of November.

Extra front headings (instead of the adopted style of imprint), with special name of paper and display, for which there is space above the rules inclosing date, are charged $1 extra per edition.

Any quantity from 100 to 1000 copies will be sent post-paid, but for larger quantities, at the reduced rates, postage or expressage will be charged.

Dealers who desire an edition for trial before subscribing, can be supplied at the following rates:

100 Copies for any month except December,	$2 50		500 Copies for any month except December,	$8 00

Orders must be received by the 30th of the month previous to which the subscription begins.

No orders filled without payment in advance, as the numerous small amounts will neither bear the trouble nor expense of sending bills or of repeated statements, and collecting. Remittances should be made either by Post-Office Order, Draft on New-York, or Registered Letter.

THE NATURE OF LIGHT,

With a General Account of Physical Optics. By Dr. EUGENE LOMMEL. 1 vol., 12mo. Cloth, $2.

In the present treatise, Prof. Lommel has given an admirable outline of the Nature of Light and the Laws of Optics. Unlike most other writers on this subject, the author has, we think wisely, postponed all reference to theories of the nature of the light until the laws of reflection, refraction, and absorption, have been clearly set before the reader.

THE HISTORY OF CREATION;

Or, The Development of the Earth and its Inhabitants by the Action of Natural Causes. A Popular Exposition of the Doctrine of Evolution in general, and of that of Darwin, Goethe, and Lamarck, in particular. From the German of ERNST HAECKEL, Professor in the University of Jena. Translation revised by E. Ray Lankester. With Colored Plates and Genealogical Views of the Various Groups of both Plants and Animals. 2 vols., post 8vo. Price, $5.

"If this work had appeared before my essay had been written, I should probably never have completed it. Almost all the conclusions at which I have arrived I find confirmed by this naturalist, whose knowledge on many points is much fuller than mine."—From Preface to Darwin's "Descent of Man."

"This great work of the greatest of German naturalists is not only remarkable for its learning, and the overwhelming nature of its proofs of the 'Theory of Descent,' but it will surprise the reader is nothing more than in the popularity and agreeableness of its style. Dr. Lankester, its accomplished editor, is not only responsible for the scientific truthfulness of the English rendering, but he has done an excellent service in securing a pleasant and readable translation."—Popular Science Monthly.

"The translation we must call an exceedingly good one."—Nature.

THE COTTON STATES,

In the Spring and Summer of 1875. By CHARLES NORDHOFF, author of "California for Health," "Politics for Young Americans," etc. 1 vol., 8vo. Paper covers. Price, 50 cents.

DEDICATION.

TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES:

SIR: I respectfully offer you a report on the political and industrial condition of several of the Southern States, the result of an exploration made by me during the spring and summer of the present year, at the request of Mr. James Gordon Bennett, for the New-York Herald. The facts collected here seem to me likely to interest you, who, I sincerely believe, have failed to make the people of the Southern States contented, chiefly because, in your exalted position, it was unfortunately difficult for you to know the real condition of those States, which has rapidly and continually changed from year to year of your Administration. Had you been able to examine them for yourself in 1874-75, as you did in 1865, I can not doubt that your Southern policy would in very many particulars have been different from what it has been; for it is your duty, as it doubtless is your wish, to secure the liberties and increase the prosperity, contentment, and happiness, of all your fellow-citizens.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

CHARLES NORDHOFF.

AMONG MY BOOKS.

Second Series. By JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL. 1 vol., 12mo, $2.

CONTENTS: DANTE, SPENSER, WORDSWORTH, MILTON, KEATS.

AMONG MY BOOKS. First Series. $2.

MY STUDY WINDOWS. $2.

"To the reader of Lowell's Prose we may say what Coleridge once said to a reader of the prose of Milton: 'He must be always on his duty; he is surrounded with sense.' It will not do to skip. There is everywhere a profusion of riches of the brain; there is constant astonishment from unexpected analogies, wide-sweeping philosophical conclusions, learned allusions, and intuitions flashing to the bottom of things."—Moses Coit Tyler.

GEOLOGICAL SKETCHES.

Second Series. By LOUIS AGASSIZ. 1 vol., 16mo, $1.75.

CONTENTS: GLACIAL PERIOD, THE PARALLEL ROADS OF GLEN ROY IN SCOTLAND, ICE PERIOD IN AMERICA, GLACIAL PHENOMENA IN MAINE, PHYSICAL HISTORY OF THE VALLEY OF THE AMAZON.

GEOLOGICAL SKETCHES.

First Series. Illustrated. $2.25.

These two books comprise all the essays written by PROF. AGASSIZ in his maturer years, on Geological and Glacial Phenomena. They are of great value to all who are interested in these themes, and to all who admired the distinguished naturalist.

GOD AND THE BIBLE.

A Review of Objections to "Literature and Dogma." By MATTHEW ARNOLD. 1 vol., 16mo. Uniform with "Literature and Dogma." $1.50.

In this book Mr. Arnold treats, with much force and with the literary skill for which he is distinguished, the various criticisms made upon his previous remarkable volume, "Literature and Dogma." Like that, it is written not to destroy religion, but to build it up, on what Mr. Arnold considers more permanent and immovable foundations. Both volumes are peculiarly significant of the transition now going on in the realm of theology, and merit the most careful reading.

SONGS OF THREE CENTURIES.

Selected by JOHN G. WHITTIER, with Introductory Essay. HOUSEHOLD EDITION, 12mo, $2. HOLIDAY EDITION, elegantly bound, $3.50.

A choice collection of the poetry that Mr. Whittier likes best of all that has been written by English and American poets within the last three hundred years.

LITTLE CLASSICS.

Comprising 12 volumes of the best Short Stories, 3 volumes of the best Short Poems, in the whole range of English Literature, and 1 volume of Biographical Sketches of all the Authors represented in the Series. $1 a volume; the set in box, $16.

"It is a fortunate circumstance that the very charming series of volumes edited by ROSSITER JOHNSON, which OSGOOD & Co. have published under the designation of 'Little Classics,' should be completed in good season for the holiday trade. . . . The variety and interest of whose contents, taken in connection with its external attractions, make it one of the prettiest and most desirable ever brought to the attention of book-lovers and book-buyers."—Boston Journal.

A FARMER'S VACATION.

By GEORGE E. WARING, Jr., of "Ogden Farm," author of "Whip and Spur." Beautifully and copiously illustrated. 1 vol., 8vo, $5.

A very entertaining and instructive book, containing Col. WARING's observations among the farmers of Holland, Normandy, Brittany, and the Channel Islands. The illustrations are numerous and unusually excellent.

THE SURVIVORS of the CHANCELLOR

By JULES VERNE. Holiday Edition. 8vo, fully illustrated. $3.

THE BOOK of AMERICAN INTERIORS

One of the noblest volumes Mr. Emerson has ever written.

SAXON STUDIES.

By JULIAN HAWTHORNE. 1 vol., 12mo, $2.

"Marvelous pieces of writing, filled with his peculiar humor, and displaying gleams of insight that positively startle."—London Spectator.

THE INN ALBUM.

By ROBERT BROWNING. 1 vol., 16mo, beveled edges, $1.50.

"Painful the tale is, as always is fit subject for a tragedy. But it is powerfully told. We rank 'The Inn Album' beyond any thing Mr. Browning has written of late. To us it seems almost equal to 'Pippa Passes'—equal, perhaps, it would be if we knew it equally well. Mr. Browning is reverting to his original simplicity, and with it his old strength is once more fully showing itself."—London Athenaeum.

NEW BOOKS OF THE MONTH,

Ready January 22.

GEORGE SMITH'S LATEST WORK, THE CHALDEAN ACCOUNT OF GENESIS,

Containing the Chaldean Accounts of the Creation, the Temptation and Fall of Man, the Deluge, the Tower of Babel and Confusion of Tongues, Nimrod, etc. By GEORGE SMITH, of the British Museum, author of "Assyrian Discoveries," etc. Demy 8vo, 1 vol., numerous illustrations, cloth, $4.

Mr. Smith's first work (Assyrian Discoveries) was confined mainly to his interpretations of the cuneiform inscriptions relating to the Deluge. In this volume he not only pursues his investigations further in this same direction, but extends them to the inscriptions which describe the Creation, the Fall of Man, the building of the Tower of Babel, and the times of the Patriarchs and of Nimrod. In its array of subjects the volume is more comprehensive, and therefore more interesting, than its predecessor, while the results arrived at are even more important to all interested in Biblical research.

BY THE SAME AUTHOR, RECENTLY ISSUED :

Assyrian Explorations and Discoveries.

One vol., 8vo, cloth, with numerous Illustrations, Maps, Plans, etc., $4.

The volume exhibits Prof. M. Müller's great erudition, and is marked by all his charms of style.

By Dr. CHARLES HODGE, of Princeton Theological Seminary. In 3 vols., 8vo, with Index. The set $12.

Dr. Hodge's Systematic Theology is universally acknowledged to be the most important contribution made to this important science during the last half century. NOTES IN SEASON.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. will issue for the Lenten season, "More Helps for a Holy Lent," by Bishop Huntington, a companion volume to the "Helps" published two years ago.

A CURIOUS historical document is just issued by West, Johnston & Co., of Richmond, Va., in a fac-simile of the Virginia ordinance of secession, with all the signatures. It is a large sheet, 28 x 40, at $2.50. An important law book will also be found chronicled in our lists.

THE volumes recently published by Hurd & Houghton, and advertised elsewhere, are not only of general interest but very timely. Two of them are of Centennial bearing, the pleasing and informing letters of the Adams' during the Revolution, and Prof. Green's brilliant papers on the Germans in the War of Independence. Mr. Burroughs' "Winter Sunshine" is just the book to bring sunshine into dreary days, with its bright and lovely pictures of out-of-doors, and the present interest in Japanese art is met by Mr. Jarves' work, with its quaint illustrations.

THE second series of Lowell's "Among My Books" will be welcome to booksellers, for such a book as this brings buyers in a dull month. Its critiques treat of the greatest poets, Dante, Spenser, Wordsworth, Milton, Keats, and are a treasure-house of brilliant thought. Agassiz's posthumous volume, a second series of "Geological Sketches," is a like book to the scientist. It deals chiefly with glacial questions, in which he was facile princeps. The Messrs. Osgood also add "The Snow Image" and "Mosses from an Old Manse," in two volumes, to their Little Classic Hawthorne.

Two more of the popular "Linen Duster books!" Henry Holt & Co. publish at once in the "Leisure Hour Series," Mrs. Alexander's "Her Dearest Foe," and a cheaper edition of their clever collection of "Vers de Soci  t  ," previously published only as a holiday book. Of Mrs. Alexander's "The Wooing O't," 15,000 copies have been printed.

THE "Memoirs of Charles G. Finney, written by himself," just ready at A. S. Barnes & Co., promises to be one of the most taking books of the spring. This autobiography was begun by President Finney when he was 75 years old. He had kept no diary, or other written record, but his tenacious memory held quite fresh the incidents of his early revival work and that of the anti-slavery campaign. The book is full of vigor, very simple and quaint, and abounding in interesting incidents.

OF "The True Order of Studies," to be published immediately by G. P. Putnam's Sons, in a 12mo of 160 pages, the Tribune says that it should awaken interest among educators, since in it ex-President Hill, of Harvard, gives as the fruit of his long experience a comprehensive analysis, review, and outline of the whole educational course. The "hierarchy of sciences," adopted as the basis of his work, groups "all possible objects of human thought" under the five heads of mathematics, physics, history, psychology, and theology. These are named in what he considers their logical order in education, although they must be to some extent co-ordinate, as is shown in the tabulated curriculum at the end. The body of the book is made up of chapters on the several sub-departments of study.

HON. DAVID A. WELLS' story is likely to attract wide attention. He calls it "Robinson Crusoe's Money," and in it tells how Crusoe and Friday went into money-making, and the sad results of inflating their home-made currency. The story will be profusely illustrated by Thomas Nast, and will be issued by the Harpers early next month, in a volume of about 100 pages.

THE new "Vest-Pocket" books will be Mr. Longfellow's "Miles Standish," Mr. Tennyson's "Enoch Arden," Mr. Fields' paper on "Nathaniel Hawthorne," Mr. Howells' "A Day's Pleasure," and Mr. Lowell's "Sir Launfall."

PLON has just published in Paris a noteworthy book on "The United States To-day," by M. Claudis Jannet. It is said by a correspondent of the Post to be a very careful analysis of American institutions—political, social, and religious.

A POEM on the Holy Land, narrative and descriptive, by Herman Melville, is in press by G. P. Putnam's Sons.

A VALUABLE contribution to political literature, by an Indiana lawyer, R. W. Thompson, is in press by Harper & Bros. It deals with "Political Romanism," and gives a historical study of the interference of the Papacy with civil government in European countries. The work will make an octavo of 700 pages.

THE first volume of the "Select British Essayists" is nearly ready at the Putnams'. It will contain, besides the essays from the "Spectator," a biographical sketch of Addison, and an essay on the essayists, as a general introduction to the series, by the editor, John Habberton, literary editor of the Christian Union.

The Publishers' Weekly.

JANUARY 15, 1876.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry and for notice in "Books Received."

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries." Notes from librarians will also be gratefully received.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

PRIZE QUESTIONS.

WHICH are our standard books; or, what works and editions should form the nucleus of a well-stocked bookstore to-day? This question, of the most vital importance to every one engaged in the production and sale of books, it is proposed to put before the trade in a new department of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, for which the co-operation of all our subscribers is cordially invited. The material is so extensive that, should our plan meet with the favor of our subscribers, this department may become a permanent and not the least useful feature of the WEEKLY. The plan for the present is to elicit answers from practical and experienced members of the trade, to a series of test questions as to which are the most standard and salable books in each branch of literature. A prize of $5 will be awarded for that answer which includes the greatest number of works on which competitors generally agree, or which, in the judgment of the editor, may otherwise be most fairly representative. This list will be published in the WEEKLY, possibly with the number of concurring competitors prefixed to each book, showing thereby the comparative estimation in which each book is held. Thus, in an entertaining and interesting manner, booksellers as well as book-buyers may profit from a general exchange of opinions and comparing of notes, a method which later may be applied to other questions of interest to the book trade and associated branches. Succeeding numbers of the WEEKLY will contain new questions, and the answers to each will be published four weeks from publication of the question.

RULES FOR COMPETITORS.

1. Every subscriber, or employee of a subscriber, is entitled to compete.

2. The answers shall consist of a list of works on a given topic. The short title is sufficient, but number of volumes, size, price, and name of publisher, must be given.

3. The titles should be arranged according to the popularity each work holds in the opinion of the competitor.

4. The titles must be written legibly on one side of the paper only, each title in separate paragraph, with ample space between titles for cutting through with scissors.

5. The list must not contain a greater number of titles than is demanded in the question.

6. Each list must be headed by the number of the Prize Question, and signed with full address of competitor.

7. If several competitors should present lists of equal claim to the prize, it shall be awarded by lot.

8. The name of the successful competitor shall be published with his list, and the amount of the prize remitted immediately after publication.

9. All communications should be addressed, Editor PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, P. O. Box 4295, New-York.

These rules are subject to amendment if the Editor should find it expedient.

PRIZE QUESTION No. 1.

Which are the most salable works in biography?

Give twenty-five titles in the following shape:

Forster, J., Life of Charles Dickens. 3 vols. 12°. $6.
Lippincott.

We submit this question to our subscribers, requesting them to send in their list previous to Saturday, February 5th, for publication in our issue of the ensuing week.

THE POSTAL QUESTION.

IN a recent pamphlet Mr. Bangs, Superintendent of Railway Mail Service, and one of the best posted men in the whole department, gives facts and views as to the proposed changes in the postal rates. From this we learn that letters and postal cards yield a profit of over $4,000,000; newspapers, magazines, etc., sent to subscribers, are carried at a loss of nearly $7,000,000; and all other matter, known as "third-class," at a loss of more than $4,000,000. This third-class includes: (1) pamphlets and transient publications; (2) unsealed circulars; (3) books and book-manuscript; (4) miscellaneous matter, largely samples of merchandise. Mr. Bangs' idea (we quote the Tribune's summary) is "to restore the old rates to Nos. 1 and 2 of this third class, and leave all the rest at the present high rates. Nos. 3 and 4, he thinks, are, compared with other mail-matter, of benefit to few people, and of minor importance in the spread of intelligence. As this is not very evident in respect to books, he makes a special argument about them. It is briefly this: few books are sent by mail; the local dealer is deprived of a profit on those thus sent; changes in the rates of postage on them do not affect the prices of such books; only book publishers profit by low postage on books, and the publishers 'are not primarily governed by a desire to disseminate intelligence.' Of the portion of third-class matter which Mr. Bangs proposes to leave under the old high rate, books, etc., form about two fifths. If we assume that the same weight of merchandise, books, etc., would be sent under high rates as low ones, the saving would be about $1,500,000 a year; and in any case these goods would nearly clear the expense of their carriage."

This brings up directly a question in which the trade is generally interested. The publishers' interest and desire is unanimously, of course, toward a reduction of the rate on books to the old figures. On the other hand, the retailers would be very willing to continue the high rate on books, since it is the uniform rate by mail which gives chief facilities for the competition of the centres against the country. A third question is whether these goods ought to be carried at a loss any way. The present law, as it stands, is certainly an abomination of confusion; the question is, how to simplify it in accordance with justice both to interested classes and the tax-paying community at large.

THE report of the Librarian of Congress is not yet in printed shape, so we can give only the summary appearing in the Washington despatches. Mr. Spofford makes the usual appeal, hitherto sadly neglected, for "more room." What could we do better, as a centennial monument, than lay the corner-stone of a grand national library building?

A CORRESPONDENT makes the excellent suggestion that it would be well for all publishers and jobbers to keep their address cards permanently before the trade in the advertising columns of the WEEKLY, for the benefit of their correspondents. The usefulness of this plan, which is a usual feature of trade journalism, must be apparent, especially in the case of those who do not otherwise appear frequently in our advertising columns. We shall make another endeavor to introduce this feature, and trust our own trade will not be behind others in supplying us with their cards. Even such incidental support as this accomplishes a double purpose, by giving us in its degree further means to make the WEEKLY more useful to the trade in the completeness of its reading matter, and more what we would like to make it.

WE send out with this issue, as specimens, some sheets of the Index to the Annual, which were misprinted and withdrawn and held for this purpose, that our subscribers who have not taken the Annual may learn how useful is this feature. They will find it worth many odd dollars to them on an investment of two, a statement which the letter of a Western house elsewhere will doubly confirm. The specimen sheet will also remind publishers of the importance of the Supplementary Index of books published in 1875, which will accompany their advertising lists for that year in our issue for January 29th.

THE Messrs Dutton's letter is "right to the point." They did the right thing, and reaped evident reward. As we said in our last, if half a dozen more houses who could be named would take this position, there would be little further difficulty about underselling. Will they take it? Why not?

COMMUNICATIONS.

TO THE POINT.

NEW-YORK, January 8, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

We notice that a correspondent in your issue of to-day refers to the fact that our books, "Frisk" and "Pussy," were sold during December by a prominent underseller at $1.63 each. We did not supply the books direct, and when the fact of their being so sold was brought to our notice, we were able, by the assistance of the jobbers (who at our request declined to supply them), to prevent the house referred to from getting any further supply, and during Christmas week they could not be found there at any price.

We propose to protect the legitimate booksellers who deal in our publications, and believe that it is both possible and profitable to do so.

Yours truly,

E. P. DUTTON & Co.

A WORD OF ENCOURAGEMENT.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

The inclosed check is for renewal of subscription to PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, which should be sustained by every honest bookseller and publisher in the land. Your WEEKLY is to be commended for many things, but chiefly just now for its honest effort to disseminate the principles and enforce the rules of the A. B. T. A. Don't give up your effort. The time must come when those up-town "curiosity shops," millinery stores, and haberdashers in every thing, will not be able to slaughter Webster's Unabridged at $—, and all other books in proportion. The good time is coming, when publishers will be ashamed to have these "book butchers" handling their publications, and the "butchers" themselves, let us hope, will become ashamed of their disreputable business.

Yours,

BOOK CLERK.

THE CLEARING-OUT SALE.

CLEVELAND, O., January 5, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

We find that Messrs. Sheldon & Co. are not only sending their printed circulars announcing one third off to large libraries, but accompanying it with a written letter asking that some one come to New-York and make selections, and stating as an inducement that many of their books can be sold at a discount of 40 and even 50 per cent. The course of this house is suicidal to the interests of the Booksellers' Association.

We in Cleveland can not supply the library with a dollar's worth of books on account of the offers of this house and other offers of a similar nature from others.

BOOKSELLER.

PUBLISHERS' ADDRESSES.

DETROIT, MICH., January 7, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

We have occasional complaint that letters addressed to New-York book firms do not reach their destination; and it is a matter of surprise to us that this is not a frequent occurrence, for the greater part of such letters are simply addressed:

"Messrs. ————,
"Publishers,
"New-York City"

—without street or number.

It is impossible to remember fully the various addresses, and though careful correspondents keep a MS. address-book, in the hurry of preparing a dozen letters few care to turn over the leaves of so inconvenient a help and hunt for the proper superscription.

Why can not a page of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY be set apart for the addresses of the Eastern booksellers, stationers, etc.? Small type could be used so that a single page would contain a great many, and as changes in the addresses would not be frequent, the page could be stereotyped, and thus the cost for space, etc., divided among so many, would be but a trifle for each firm; while the saving in time, trouble, and irritation over lost letters to their correspondents, would be most valuable. The latest number of the WEEKLY is, or should be, on every bookseller's desk, and how easily one could look down the page for the proper address, and thus have the satisfaction of knowing that his letter would go where intended!

TRADE MEETINGS.

THE Committee on Assemblies of the American Book Trade Association gives notice that before fixing the place of meeting of the next Convention, which by the Constitution should open on the 11th of July, it would be glad to hear from any local trade desiring that the gathering should be held in its locality. Any invitations should state the accommodations at the hotels and for the public meetings, and what reductions can be hoped for from hotels and railroads. Suggestions from individuals will also be gratefully received. Communications should be addressed in care of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY.

THE regular meeting of the Central Booksellers' Association will be held Tuesday, February 8th, probably, by the courtesy of Mr. Geyer, at the rooms of the Stationers' Exchange, 694-6 Broadway. This is the meeting appointed by the Constitution for the annual election of officers.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

SERMONS ON THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSONS FOR 1876, by the Monday Club. (Lockwood, Brooks & Co.) The aim of the writers of these sermons has been to grasp the central thought of each lesson, to unfold and impress it with freshness and vigor, and to apply it practically. The book is not intended as a commentary, nor does it aim at criticism, its sole object being to assist Sabbath-school teachers and scholars in their studies of the lessons. We are sure the volume will be found both suggestive and helpful. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

HISTORY OF DONALDSON'S BALLOON ASCENSIONS, compiled and arranged by M. L. Amick, M.D. (Cincinnati News Co.) Lovers of the exciting will find this volume full of the most sensational reading-matter. We regret we can not say a good word for the typographical part of the book, as it is exceedingly crude, especially in its illustrations. 8vo, paper.

MACLAURIN'S PRIMARY COURSE OF PENMANSHIP. (Robert Burnet.) This new and neat and attractive course of penmanship is to be comprised in five little books—namely, A, B, C, D, and E. We have received three books, A, B, and C, of which we can speak in warm praise, both for their simplicity and the facility they offer for carrying the scholar in easy grades over the first difficulties of writing. $1.20 per set.

THE NEW ILLUSTRATED HEALTH ALMANAC, 1876. (S. R. Wells & Co.) Contains the usual amount of valuable information and special health receipts, which have always characterized this almanac. 10 cents.

RELIGION AND PROGRESS: An Essay, by Henry C. Pedder. (E. P. Dutton & Co.) Mr. Pedder gives to the word religion a newer and broader meaning. It is the name under which he gathers the highest and holiest aspirations of mankind in all ages and climes. Entering into no discussions of creeds, nor allowing theology in any way to bias him, the premise he assumes is that religion, as he defines it, is not inconsistent nor irreconcilable with the scientific discoveries of the age, or its intellectual progress. His essay is very beautiful and human, and appeals irresistibly to the sceptical mind repulsed by the coldness and hardness of infidel preachings. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

THE CHRIST OF PAUL; or, The Enigmas of Christianity, by George Reber. (Charles P. Somerby.) Mr. Reber's work professes to expose and substantiate the inconsistencies and contradictions to be found in the four Gospels; and also to prove that the Fourth Gospel was written by Irenæus, and was not the work of John in any way. Mr. Reber makes a most vigorous onslaught upon what he calls the "frauds" practised by the early churchmen, and incorporated by them into the Scriptures to aid them in promulgating their own special doctrines. 12mo, cloth, $2.

ALWYN: A ROMANCE OF STUDY, by James C. Moffat. (A. D. F. Randolph & Co.) A narrative in verse somewhat after the style of Childe Harold, relating a young man's first doubts, and the means he takes through study to dissipate them. His studies and travels through Europe are described, with the various changes his mind undergoes in its search after the truth. He in turn takes up the different sceptical views and philosophies of the day, but finally returns to the fold, and finds consolation in the doctrines of Christ. A work of considerable merit, and of a decided religious tendency. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

THE CHEVALIER CASSE-DOU, by Fortuné Du Boisgobey. Part II.: THE SEARCH FOR ANCESTORS, translated by Thomas Picton. (Robt. M. De Witt.) The readers of "The Red Camelia" will remember the little girl who spoke an unknown tongue, that the Chevalier Casse-Cou found one night at the Grand Opera. In this volume he continues his quixotic search for her ancestors, meeting the same number of strange and exciting adventures which distinguished him in the former volume. As the story is one of a good deal of intrinsic merit, although of the sensational order, it is to be regretted that it had not more justice done it in the translation, which is exceedingly crude. 12mo, paper, $1.

THE PATHWAY OF SAFETY, by the Rev. Ashton Oxenden, D.D. (James Hammond.) The object of this little book is to give to Episcopalians a sure counsellor and reliable instructor; to aid them to a perfect understanding of their religion, and to comfort them in times of affliction. 16mo, cloth, 75 cents.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS A REPUBLIC: OUR SHOW, by Daisy Shortcut and Arry O'Pagus. (Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger.) A very humorously written account of our approaching exhibition in Philadelphia in honor of the centennial year of independence. Full of jokes and amusing descriptions of the ceremonies, receptions of the foreign dignitaries, the appearance of the buildings, etc. Profusely illustrated by A. B. Frost. 8vo, paper, 50 cents.

HOW TO STUDY THE BIBLE, by D. L. Moody. (A. D. F. Randolph & Co.) One of Mr. Moody's characteristic sermons, giving some plain and practical advice relative to the best method of reading and studying the Bible. 15 cents.

THE Congregational Publishing Society, Boston, send a "Memorial of Charles Stoddard," by his daughter, Mary Stoddard Johnson, a story of a long and exemplary, though uneventful, life. 12mo, cloth, $1.75. And "The Prayer-Gauge Debate," a number of articles for and against the efficacy of prayer, called out by the paper which appeared in a London review, a few years ago: "The Prayer for the Sick: Hints towards a Serious Attempt to Estimate its Value." 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

THE ANNUALS.

Please forward, per D. Appleton & Co., ten "Trade-List Annuals." In sending this, our third order, permit us to say that we consider it one of the best advertising mediums we have. We present them to our best customers, and we assure you they appreciate their value. For instance, we gave one to Professor Earp of one of our colleges. He opened it, turned to F. W. Christern's catalogue, said it was the first catalogue of Christern's he had come across, and in a moment ordered a ten-dollar French dictionary. We intend writing to each publisher who has failed to insert his catalogue, and request a copy to paste in our own, as we did last year.

JOHN & PORTER.

AMERICAN.—If any one at the close of our first century of national independence entertains any doubts upon the literary enterprise and taste of the United States, let him just cast a cursory glance over this volume. . . . The indexes have been prepared with all the ingenuity which the scattering nature of the various catalogues would admit. . . . All the publishers and booksellers throughout the country speak in the very highest terms of this trade-list. Its usefulness to readers will be apparent.—Chicago Inter-ocean, January 1st.

THESE volumes, although of different titles, do like service for the American and English book production. . . . They are of over 1600 pages each, but the American is the more comprehensive, since it is not only of larger and more compact page, but has been steadily growing, including this year 155 publishers, while the English suffers a reduction from 148 to 92. It was estimated last year by the English editor that nearly 50,000 books were given in his collection, of which 14,000 were indexed; the index this year includes over 17,000 books or series. The American volume is indexed on a different plan: there are a general index (to miscellaneous books) of about 14,000 titles; law and medical book indexes of 800 titles each; and an educational catalogue, classifying text-books under their subjects, of above 7000 titles. These make a total of 23,000 titles; it is calculated that there are about 30,000 in the catalogues which form the body of the work. These huge volumes furnish for the first time a key to the standard and current book-production of England and America, hitherto to be found only, if at all, in a considerable collection of library and annual catalogues. Their commercial value to the book trade is very great, for they are labor-saving machines in the best sense, and they are also a welcome convenience to the general reader. In his modest preface to the American publication, the editor, Mr. F. Leypoldt, gives a very deprecatory view of his indexes, bibliographically, as no more than a makeshift until the appearance of the American catalogue (to include all books in print, by author, title, and subject), on which he is now engaged. The Indexes, indeed, follow no one bibliographical system, the plan being to make such an entry as the trade will find most readily, but their practical value is very considerable, and so modest a disclaimer would prevent bibliographical criticism, even if it were called for, which is by no means the case. On the contrary, the work of the editor evinces equal diligence, judgment, and practical skill, combined with the faithful attention to apparently unimportant details which is the corner-stone of a good book of reference.—New-York Tribune, January 7th.

THE A. B. T. A. AT THE CENTENNIAL.
CENTENNIAL COMMITTEE OF THE AMERICAN BOOK TRADE ASSOCIATION, OFFICE, 25 SOUTH
SIXTH STREET, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

January 1, 1876.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

THE large amount of exhibiting-space applied for in the Main Exhibition Building, and the comparatively small amount granted to the American Book Trade Association, renders it necessary that the greatest economy of room shall be observed, and in order, also, to give greater effect to the display made, it becomes imperative that every exhibitor or applicant for space, who has not already done so, must furnish to this Committee a scale-drawing or tracing of the show-cases, counters, or partitions, showing clearly the elevation and ground-plan of the same, and especially indicating the sides of the cases intended for inspection.

Parties not intending to erect cases, counters, or partitions must furnish a drawing or tracing in outline, showing the manner in which they propose to occupy the space applied for. Exhibitors will be promptly advised of their acceptance, or of any modifications proposed.

These drawings are absolutely necessary to insure a satisfactory location, and must be forwarded at once to insure a proper installation.

BUSINESS NOTES.

OLIVER DITSON & Co., having purchased the entire stock, plates, good will, etc., of the late firm of Lee & Walker, purpose carrying on the business in that city under the firm name of J. E. Ditson & Co., the junior partner in the house taking charge of the Philadelphia concern. The Ditsons now have establishments in Boston, New-York, Chicago, and Philadelphia.

THE Wiley firm will now be known as John Wiley & Sons, Mr. Wm. H. Wiley having been admitted January 1st. Mr. Wiley studied as a civil engineer before he came into the scientific book business, and is, therefore, doubly qualified to make a success. He has for some time been pleasantly known to the trade in connection with the house.

THE publishing and subscription-book business lately carried on by Mr. Duffield Ashmead at 711 Sansom street, Philadelphia, has been purchased by Mr. H. W. Kelley, who will continue the business at the same place.

THE firm of Williams, Sturges & Co., books, stationery, wall-paper, etc., Knoxville, Tenn., has been succeeded by W. & W. E. Williams.

THE firm of R. W. Smith & Co., binders, New-York, made an assignment for the benefit of their creditors last week.

PERSONAL NOTES.

It is said that Mrs. Augusta Evans Wilson has made $100,000 by novel-writing in the past eight years. This is a high estimate, but she has certainly made half that.

MR. T. BAILEY ALDRICH is introduced to the French public, with his "Story of a Bad Boy," in curious disguise. A prominent juvenile magazine of Paris announces, among its attractions for the coming year, "The History of an American School-boy, translated from the English of Thomas B  lay Aldrich."

PROF. MOSES COIT TYLER is at work upon his Handbook of American Literature, but it will not be ready for publication till fall. It will be especially full in its treatment of early American literature.

CHAS. S. PLUMMER, Newark, N. J., is on the road representing Bradner & Parker, successors to the Cornwell Manufacturing Co.; Schindler & French Manufacturing Co. of Meriden, Ct., manufacturers of inkstands; Ph. Hake, card stock; Shaw & Alfred, paperteries, and other specialties too numerous to mention.

MR. IRISH, of Henry Levys & Co., manufacturers of fine leather goods, will soon call on his Western friends.

MR. J. E. ZENDER is to be addressed care of A. & E. Wallach.

LIBRARY AND BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTES.

THE annual report of the Librarian of Congress, brought down to January 1st, 1876, has been presented to the Joint Committee on the Library. The Washington despatches of the dailies state that it exhibits a larger increase in the number of books added than usual, 19,350 volumes having been acquired during the year, 8000 of which were deposited under the copyright law. The whole library now numbers 293,507 volumes, besides 60,000 pamphlets. The copyright entries for the year were about 15,000, and over $12,000 in copyright fees were paid into the Treasury. The Librarian urges upon Congress the absolute and pressing necessity for providing more room for the Library and rapidly growing Copyright Department, by a new building. Over 50,000 volumes are piled upon the floors, and the books are suffering material injuries, aside from the great and growing difficulty of procuring and promptly producing them when wanted. He refers to the fact that, in every European nation, the Library of the Government has a separate building, although no similar necessity for it exists in the form of an office of Public Record or Copyright Bureau, accumulating from 25,000 to 30,000 separate articles of publication every year. An appeal is made to Congress, which last year appropriated over $500,000 for the temporary purpose of securing a creditable representation of Government Departments at the Centennial Exhibition, not to let another year pass without some provision for housing or shelving the overflowing stores of a great national library.

THE "Bibliography of Printing," some time announced by Mr. Edward C. Bigmore, of London, is now fairly under way, and its successful completion can be hoped for. Its scope is to be much wider than that of the "Typographical Bibliography" of Mr. Marthens, whose field was necessarily limited by including only the subject of typography and works in English. Mr. Bigmore expects to embrace some ten thousand titles in his list, including with typography the kindred arts of lithography and copperplate printing, and all countries will be represented, so that, as far as practicable, it will be a complete catalogue of the literature of printing. Mr. Bigmore will be glad to receive any American titles not found in Marthens' and Thomas' works,—care of Printing Times, London. His bibliography will be first run in monthly parts through the Printing Times, and afterwards put into book form. Such a work has become a real necessity, and we trust it will receive sufficient encouragement to insure its success.

By order of the Minister of Public Instruction, the directors of the different public libraries of Paris have recently published authentic statements of the books, manuscripts, etc., contained in each. We learn, therefore, that the Bibliothèque Nationale heads the list with 1,700,000 printed volumes, 80,000 manuscripts, 1,000,000 prints, maps, and engravings, and 120,000 medals. The Library of the Arsenal, which is under the charge of M. de Bornier, the author of "La Fille de Roland," contains 200,000 volumes and 8000 manuscripts. The Mazarin Library numbers 200,000 volumes, 4000 manuscripts, and 80 models, executed in relief, and representing the Pelasgic monuments of Italy, Greece, and Asia Minor. The Ste.-Geneviève Library possesses 160,000 printed works and 350,000 manuscripts. The Library of the Sorbonne contains 80,000 volumes, and that of the Medical School, 35,000. Total, 2,375,000 printed volumes, 442,000 manuscripts, and 1,120,000 prints, medals, etc.—Appletons' Journal.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

GEN. CUSTER will contribute to the Galaxy, beginning in March, some papers on his experience in the war. The papers are at the suggestion of Gen. Sherman.

THE pièce de resistance in the February Atlantic will be that on "The Currency Conflict," by the Hon. James A. Garfield, of Ohio, who argues, of course, the hard-money side. Mr Emerson's poem, read before the Ladies' Centennial Tea-Party in Boston last winter, and not hitherto printed, will appear in its revised form.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

A "COMPREHENSIVE History of Methodism," by the Rev. Dr. James Porter, will be issued shortly by the Western Book Concern.

LEE & SHEPARD have in advanced preparation a new novel by Miss Amanda M. Douglas, and the volume of Steele's hitherto uncollected papers, long since announced, "The Lover, and other Miscellanies," edited by the late J. E. Babson.

At last!—Macmillan & Co. have just received the long-promised édition de luxe of White's "Selborne." It is a most lovely book, with exquisite illustrations by Professor Delamotte, a delight of the eyes to all who can appreciate good reading and fine workmanship. The "History of Eton College," with interesting views and portraits, the new editions of Matthew Arnold's books, and other works of moment, are also to be noted on their list.

PROF. WILLIAM SWINTON has prepared for publication, by Harper & Bros., a little "Bible Word-Book," in which he gives all the words in the Bible which are now modified or obsolete, with explanations.

"THE Annual Register of Literature and Bibliography for 1875," edited by M. J. Ph. Berjeau, and to be published by Mr. Pickering, is progressing. It will contain notices of remarkable additions to public libraries, the sales by auction of books, manuscripts, and autographs, with the prices of some of the principal lots, a list of English and foreign bibliographical publications during the year, and other information of a kindred description.

PROF. MAHAFFY, says the Academy, is still occupied with "Ancient and Modern Greece."

His primer on "Life in Old Greece," in Mr. Green's series, is in the press, and he has announced a series of lectures next term on his travels in Greece, which will afterwards be published with illustrations by Messrs. Macmillan. A larger and more important work on "The Literature of Ancient Greece"—a great want—is announced as in preparation by Messrs. Longman.

AN International Literary Convention has been established between the German Empire and Belgium. The treaty is reported to be well adapted to insure the reciprocal interests of authors and publishers, and includes a scheme for the public registration of literary works.

M. LITTRÉ is revising the proofs of a new edition of his "French Dictionary."

LEE & SHEPARD promise a new novel by Amanda M. Douglas.

A. S. BARNES & Co. have in press, as a subscription book, a work on "The Battles of the Revolution," by Gen. Carrington, Senior Col. of the Regular Army. It will be of popular and military interest, and will contain plans of all the battles from surveys made by the author.

THE thirty-first thousand of Green's "Short History of the English People," with corrections and alterations, has just been published in London by Macmillan & Co.

MISS M. BETHAM EDWARDS is writing a new novel of English domestic life, entitled "A Story of Seven."

THE number for December 25th of the London Athenæum contains the usual summary of the literary production of European countries during the past year. The review for 1875 includes articles on Belgium, by MM. E. de Laveleye and Paul Frédéricq; Bohemia, by Prof. Durdik of the University of Prague; Denmark, by Ad. Hansen; France, by Gustave Masson; Germany, by Robert Zimmermann; Holland, by A. C. Loffelt; Hungary, by Prof. Vambéry; Italy, by Prof. Angelo de Gubernatis; Norway, by L. Daae; Russia, by our own countryman, Eugene Schuyler; Servia and Croatia, by A. Popovic Zub; Spain, by J. F. Riaño.

A. D. F. RANDOLPH & Co. will publish the Bampton lectures at Oxford for 1875, on "The Doctrine of Retribution." This series was delivered by the Rev. William Jackson, the author of a well-known work on the philosophy of natural theology. The recent Hulsean lectures, by the Rev. George M. Straffen, Vicar of Clifton, York, on "Sin, as set forth in Holy Scripture," will be published by E. P. Dutton & Co.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish "The Religious Sentiment: its Source and Aim," by D. G. Brinton, and a revised edition of his "Myths of the New World;" also, a new American edition of Sir H. Maine's "Village Communities," including a series of miscellaneous essays hitherto uncollected.

AN important announcement is that by Henry Holt & Co. of a work by General Francis A. Walker, on "Wages and the Wages Class," which is promised for publication this spring. General Walker has also prepared maps showing population, growth, etc., for the little "History of the United States" in Freeman's Historical Course.

NOTICE TO PUBLISHERS.

The Editor of the "PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY" begs to recall to the attention of publishers the advantage of having their advertisements, at the beginning of the new year, prepared in the form of Complete Lists of their Publications issued during the past year.

The number of the "PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY" of January 29, which will have an extra circulation, is especially set apart for these Annual Summaries, and will have the additional important feature of an Index, supplementary to and on the plan of that of the Publishers' Trade-List Annual of 1875, to include all books so advertised, and not yet entered in the Index of the Annual.

This number being kept permanently, for daily reference, on the bookseller's desk alongside of the Annual, will become specially valuable for advertising purposes.

The utility of Annual Summaries has already been recognized by the leading houses, and the facilities they afford to the dealer in taking and renewing stock, make it desirable that this practice should become a general custom.

It is an advantage both for publisher and dealer, that, in replacing stock and making out orders, the latter should be in possession of the Special Lists of the publishers from whom he orders. It will save him time and trouble, and will generally induce him to send fuller orders, on detecting at a glance the deficiencies of his stock.

Publishers are requested to furnish their advertising pages at once, that this Index may be prepared in time.

is now ready, containing the new LISTS of one hundred and fifty-five American Publishing Houses (four more than last year), a GENERAL INDEX to the prominent books in the same, embracing about 14,000 titles, Indexes to MEDICAL and LAW BOOKS, with about eight hundred titles each, and the complete AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE, for 1875, with 7000 titles more, the series guiding the bookseller or reader to the full entries of over 22,000 books.

The addition of these Indexes makes the work absolutely indispensable to the bookseller, causing it to displace entirely the previous Annual. By keeping a copy of this work on his counter at the service of the customer, like a directory, the bookseller will do much to promote his trade. The librarian and the general reader will also find the ANNUAL most valuable in guiding them to the wide range of American literature.

The orders previous to publication day having been supplied at the usual nominal rate, the price of the work, as previously announced, is now put, to cover the cost of making the Indexes, at the following rates:

To the trade,	$2.00 per copy.
To the general public,	2.50 "

The volume being too large for the mails, directions for forwarding through jobbers or for expressage, which must be paid on delivery, must accompany each order. The volume is forwarded at our risk by express only.

FAMILIAR LETTERS OF JOHN ADAMS ^{and} _{his Wife,} ABIGAIL ADAMS DURING THE REVOLUTION.

WITH A MEMOIR AND PORTRAIT OF MRS. ADAMS.

EDITED BY CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS.

Crown 8vo, cloth, $2.

The letters of Abigail Adams to her husband were first published some thirty years ago, and ran through several editions, being esteemed so pure and classic in style that they were used as a reading-book in schools. For many years they have been out of print, and their republication now in an enlarged form, and with the addition of Mr. Adams' letters, has attracted very general attention, and elicited wide notice from the press. The Publishers subjoin a few extracts from the many reviews that have appeared.

"The records of biography hardly afford a more exquisite example of Wordsworth's 'Perfect woman, nobly planned,' than this admirable matron of Massachusetts, whose name is no less conspicuous by her personal virtue than by the renown of her illustrious descendants."—New-York Tribune.

"No one can read these letters without full conviction that in the distinguished service rendered by John Adams to his country, his wife was at all times an inspiration, and frequently a counselor whose views might have given shape to questions of national importance. No portion of the great statesman's biography can be more interesting and instructive than this in which Mrs. Adams has such an intimate place."—Boston Post.

"The value attached to Mrs. Adams' letters by some of her correspondents during her life-time, is amply justified in this publication, and though her own modesty prevented her from appearing in print, the public will be glad of the opportunity to do justice to her capacity as a letter-writer, which, in its way, was certainly not inferior to that of her distinguished husband. In these letters we get an inside view of the life of our Revolutionary ancestors, learn not only their public acts, but their private thoughts and aspirations. It is pleasant to see a statesman like the elder Adams pleasantly gossiping about his eminent contemporaries, and to have him tell us what he thinks of Quincy, and Sewall, and Warren, and others; to have him write about his family and farm, and thus get a glimpse of that inner life, which reflects the man more truly than his conspicuous public career."—Boston Globe.

"The opening portions of the memoir pay a warm tribute to the value of woman's work during the Revolution, and then succeeds a brief transcript of Mrs. Adams' life, written with marked tenderness. Of the two hundred and eighty-four letters which follow—divided in about the proportion of two from John Adams to one from his wife—we need not speak in detail. They possess a charm and a worth commingled, which we might long dwell upon and still not approach their fair estimation. The womanliness and beauty of purpose and homely sweetness, joined to a mental grace which has no little of romance in its composition, which mark Mrs. Adams' letters: the devotion and manly strength of Mr. Adams' letters, will long last in the reader's thoughts; while in historical value, as pictures of stirring times and events of the greatest importance, not alone to us, but to the whole world, the letters are a noble gift to the literature of America."—Boston Traveller.

"The fact that the writers of these letters were without the slightest thought that they would ever be shown to the world, lends them their chief attraction, both in the unstudied flavor of personality and their reliability as genuine transcripts of the impression which the events of the Revolution produced on two pairs of eyes, and that, too, among the sharpest in America."—Springfield Union.

"Space will not permit us to multiply quotations from this most quotable volume, which breathes throughout the spirit of the time in which it was written, and teaches, too, a lesson of domestic virtue and constancy worthy to be conned and followed in all ages."—N. Y. World.

"The work is unique. In all the mass and variety of our literature of the Revolutionary, or indeed of any other of our epochs, we have nothing which can be put into the same class of compositions, in style, spirit, and tenor."—Boston Transcript.

THREE CAPITAL BOOKS.

A Glimpse at the Art of Japan.

BY JAMES JACKSON JARVES,

AUTHOR OF "ART THOUGHTS," "ART SKETCHES," "THE ART IDEA," ETC.

WITH THIRTY ILLUSTRATIONS IN FAC-SIMILE FROM JAPANESE DESIGNS.

Crown 8vo, cloth, $2.50. With illustrations on China paper, $3.

MR. JARVES is perhaps the foremost writer on Art in America, and in this volume he has displayed his studies in the new and fascinating subject now interesting the art public.

"In this volume there is much more than its title indicates. It is a remarkably intelligent study of a subject of which our people know very little. Not only does it reveal much that has been hidden from us, but it abounds in ideas on the general subject of the fine arts that must be new to most readers. It is long since we have met with a book so full of fresh and useful knowledge, and presenting so many interesting facts concerning the cultivation of the Japanese people."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

"In its text it is a delightfully written, instructive, and philosophical survey of art in Japan. . . . The result is a book of many attractions, not the least of which is to be found in thirty full-page illustrations, reproduced with all their grotesqueness and all their charm from the originals, by the Japanese artists."—Hartford Courant.

"A valuable feature of the present book is the reproduction, by photo-lithography, of many of the plates and pictures that belong to the galleries of Japanese masters. Altogether, it is one of the most entertaining works of the season."—Boston Post.

Winter Sunshine.

BY JOHN BURROUGHS.

16mo, cloth, $1.50.

The author of that delightful book, "Wake Robin," has here caught and preserved with raciness and humor the delights of out-of-doors in the winter. No fresher, cheerier book has been published this season than this, which so well deserves its title.

"Mr. Burroughs is one of the most delightful of American essayists, and in the description of out-door scenes, sports and observations, we know of no one who excels him. Among the topics of which he treats are observations made in both America and England. The latter have as much the merit of novelty as any we remember from a recent American traveler."—Boston Gazette.

"No one has a happier knack for discerning sunshine in winter, or making it, if it does not already exist, than Mr. Burroughs. He is a keen, watchful, and studious observer of Nature, and a very genial reporter of her moods and vagaries."—Boston Journal.

"Mr. Burroughs holds the mirror up to nature somewhat after the manner of Thoreau, whom he frequently quotes, and in the 'Snow Walkers,' 'The Fox,' 'The Apple,' and his several papers on 'An October Abroad,' his ideas are quaint, clever, and entertaining."—Boston Post.

"The general impression made is that Mr. John Burroughs is a very delightful companion, in the book form at least. We have had few better books of its class than this cheery volume of 'Winter Sunshine.'"—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The German Element

IN THE WAR OF AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE.

BY GEORGE WASHINGTON GREENE.

Crown 8vo, cloth, $1.50.

Mr. Greene, the well-known author of the "Life of General Nathaniel Greene," has sketched in this volume the brilliant and romantic stories of Steuben and De Kalb, and the dark disclosures of the German mercenaries. The volume is a perfect gem of book-making, and one of the tastiest of the recent productions of the Riverside Press.

"The volume gives, first, a history of the life of Baron Von Steuben, his services in the Revolution being especially dwelt upon, and an estimation of the solid worth of those services being made; secondly, the life of General John Kalb, a recognition of his devotion to the American cause, and his death in our service; and lastly, a paper on the subject of 'German Mercenaries' in the Revolution. The first and second papers give to the general reader a knowledge of how much we owe to these soldiers,—men who came to us with a knowledge of the art of war, who brought to the cause of freedom, ability, uncommon and much needed."—Boston Traveller.

"The style of the volume is enjoyable, the narrative clear and comprehensible, and evidence of literary culture abounds on every page."—Providence Journal.

"As historical monographs they are of rare interest and value, and we commend them as not only edifying, but decidedly interesting reading."—Boston Gazette.

The Literary News

A Monthly Journal of Current Literature.

PUBLISHED BY

(Space allotted for Dealer's Imprint.)

FEBRUARY, 1876.

TO THE RETAIL BOOK TRADE.

Retail Booksellers, News Agents, and Dealers generally, who desire a handy, cheap, and profitable advertising medium for the latest books in the market, will find the best adapted to that purpose.

This publication (now in its fifth year) has reached a circulation of over 25,000 copies, and is used by hundreds of booksellers, from Maine to California.

It will be issued as heretofore, at the beginning of every month, with not less than eight pages, embracing Editorial Notes, Literary Intelligence, a full list, compiled expressly for its columns from the records of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, containing the titles and prices of the PRINCIPAL BOOKS PUBLISHED DURING THE PREVIOUS MONTH and announcements of Forthcoming Works for the Current Month, so classified as to show at a glance all the new publications in the various departments of literature, and one page of general advertisements, which will not conflict with the interest of the trade. It will be printed on tinted paper like previous editions, but of superior quality, and being of light texture, it can be sent with any book, magazine, paper, letter, circular, etc., with a small increase of postage.

It is certain that dealers who will adopt this cheap and effective mode for advertising their establishments, will find themselves amply repaid in a short time, and we have the testimony of many dealers who have not only increased the sales from their counters, but have found the orders for books not in stock highly remunerative.

Special terms for the Christmas number will be announced in the Publishers' Weekly during the month of November.

Extra front headings (instead of the adopted style of imprint), with special name of paper and display, for which there is space above the rules inclosing date, are charged $1 extra per edition.

Any quantity from 100 to 1000 copies will be sent post-paid, but for larger quantities, at the reduced rates, postage or expressage will be charged.

Dealers who desire an edition for trial before subscribing, can be supplied at the following rates:

FOLLOW COLOR AND YOU FOLLOW SUIT!

The Globe Playing Card.

OUR Circular Playing Cards possess many advantages over the cards in common use, and are in no respect inferior. Use them enough to become familiar with them, and you will never use any other. It will require but little time to do this, and you will be a hundred fold repaid by greater ease, rapidity, and certainty in playing.

ADVANTAGES OF THE GLOBE CARD.

Great Durability; Wear Twice as Long as the Old Style. The old cards soon turn up at the corners, split, wear off, and become ragged and uneven, and in consequence handle badly, and are thrown aside and replaced by new ones, but circular cards wear equally on the edges, and last twice as long as the common cards.

More Ease in Shuffling, Dealing, and Playing. The old cards get crossed on the table, and this causes delay in arranging them relatively to their length and breadth, which retards the game; but circular cards are always right relatively to each other, and are ready for use as soon as in the hand. No vexatious delays in arranging them ready to shuffle or play. Moreover, they shuffle better than the old cards; but this cannot be demonstrated on paper; use them and see. Further, the circular cards lie more easily and naturally in the hollow of the hand.

Rapid Playing without Mistakes. We use a characteristic color to each suit. This is an important advantage; it enables a player to assort his cards, and select, at a glance, the cards of the same suit by the color alone. No need of looking at the shape of the emblem, or spot, so called, for the color indicates the suit, and the numeral, or figure, the size. This enables persons to play with rapidity and ease, and few mistakes. In fact, after a little practice, one will play by color and figure, instead of by shape and number of spots, as at present.

Using Numerals, or Figures, in Four Colors, on the Edges, to show the Size and Suit. These figures are placed at convenient distances around the edge, and are printed in the same color as the spots. The color of the figure shows the suit, and the figure itself shows the size. This enables you to hold a very large hand in a compact shape, to see your whole hand at once, and recognize every card without moving, it only being necessary to let one card overlap another enough to display the figure on the margin, and you can play with perfect ease, with rapidity, and without danger of any one seeing your hand. Prying eyes, whether innocent or dishonest, will be baffled.

A sample pack sent to any part of the United States, by mail, postpaid, on receipt of 75 cents. Dealers supplied at low terms. Wholesale Price Lists furnished on application to

In this series it is the aim of the editor to represent faithfully in spirit (though not in quantity) the best material of "The Spectator," "Tatler," "Guardian," "Rambler," "Adventurer," "Mirror," "Looker-On," etc., etc. No attempt at adaptation will be made, nor will a word of the original text be changed.

The series will be made up of complete papers, selected for their brightness, humor, strength, or other perennial qualities, and is planned to consist of half a dozen volumes, printed in the neat cabinet size of the popular series of "German Classics."

The publishers believe that in thus presenting in attractive, and at the same time economical form, the most valuable and representative portions of these Standard English Classics, they will render a service to both the student and the general reader, and that "The Select British Essayists" will form a series that "no gentleman's library should be without."

These volumes are planned to meet the desire which exists for accurate and graphic information in regard to the leaders of political action in other countries. Every Book-Store should be supplied with specimen sets or specimen volumes by which to take orders.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS, 4th Avenue and 23d Street, New-York.

BROTHER STEVENS, formerly with Wallach, is on the road seeking what he can devour, with a fine line of samples from Perry & Co. "Stick a pen here, brother S."

J. L. P. ST JOHN, with samples of papeteries from Shaw & Alfred, has returned from a short trip through the State and reports business brisk.

CHARLES T. BAINBRIDGE, of Porter & Bainbridge, has "gone West" with an abundance of good humor and a superb assortment of samples, among the newest of which are a fine line of wedding stock, embracing many new designs, menus and memorial cards. His "Carter de l'Elite" is the latest in the way of artistic stationery—a neat box containing fifty gilt-edge cards and fifty envelopes to match.

CHAMBERLIN, WHITMORE & Co., 45 Beekman street, have many new styles of papeteries just out, which are considered the ne plus ultra of this line of stationery. Their "Cream Wove," "The Ladies' Elegant Note," gilt edge, and the "Cream and Drab," gilt edge, all in boxes, are extremely stylish and are having a rapid sale. Their "Extra Superfine Laid Post," blue laid commercial note, put up in quarter-ream packages, in satin and light finish, with title cut of the Lord Mayor's day, London, Westminster Bridge and St. Paul's Cathedral, is one of the best papers in the market. Mr. Chamberlin returned on Friday from a very successful trip through the South, and reports trade looking up. His trip through Florida and Texas was one of pleasure, and he was accompanied by Mr. Peckham, of Dennison & Co., tag manufacturers, and other gentlemen from the North.

NOVELTIES.

"YE HERO OF '76."—The Orange Judd Co. are now supplying the trade with Crandall's great Centennial toy, "Ye Hero of '76." Ye Hero is a fine old Continental soldier in brilliantly colored uniform, and, to quote from Mr. Crandall's circular, "with cocked hat, flag, and staff, all so ingeniously made and put together, that you can set him in a thousand different positions, and he stays there until you change him. He is a thing of life; a real joy to all boys and girls (and older people too). He fits and also works well with all the acrobats and the menagerie." Young America is bound to have "Ye Olde Hero," and as the price is only 35 cents retail, a gross case of them will soon disappear from the dealer's store.

"HURRAH FOR OLD '76!"

CLOUGH'S CORK-HANDLE. The latest article designed for a permanent cork-handle is Clough's Cork-Handle, patented April, 1875, and sold by R. G. Hutchinson, 44 Maiden lane.

The price of this little article will ultimately insure its universal use, it being sold at $1.50 per gross for all sizes. The Ne plus ultra corkscrew is the neatest as well as the simplest, best, and cheapest article of the kind in the market. Price-list on application

ROBERT SNEIDER, 37 John street, has just introduced a new package of plain cream-laid note-paper and envelopes. It is put up in the old-fashioned style, no box, but a packet, and has a novel appearance. It is called "Ye Continental packet of old fashion note." The paper is of a good quality, resembling the Royal Irish Linen. The packet contains one quire and envelopes, and is sold at $25 per hundred; by the ream, $2.25, note size. Baronial envelopes to match, $6 per thousand, in 1/2 M boxes.

NOTES ON THE ROAD.

PROVIDENCE.

AMONG the principal stationers in the city of Providence, the following are much encouraged as regards the opening of spring trade:

MESSRS. TILLINGHAST & MASON (The Providence Book and News Co.), a branch of the New-York News Company, do a large wholesale and retail business throughout the State of Rhode Island. Every thing in the line of papers, periodicals and novels, school-books, and all varieties of stationery, notions, and fancy goods are to be found on the two floors of this establishment. Mr. Tillinghast is the manager, and purchaser of all goods.

MESSRS. BUGBEE & HALL, in their large, cheerful store, display a very fine line of elegant stationery and fancy goods. Their holiday trade was larger than ever before, and their general business in printing and all lines of commercial stationery is gradually improving. This firm are manufacturers of the celebrated Sisson's improved patent file and binder, which is used by more than half of the agency companies in the country, and with perfect satisfaction.

VALPEY, ANGELL & Co. are all young men, but well qualified in every particular to manage and conduct their business. Their "Time and Labor-saving Table for computing the Wages of Mechanics and Laborers" is having a great sale, and those who have used the same recommend it highly. The table is handsomely bound in cloth, and sold for $3.50.

TIBBITTS & RANDALL, successors to Gladding Bros. & Tibbitts, have the largest selection of books, and are the principal booksellers in the city. Their line of stationery is well selected.

C. A. PABODIE is the fashionable engraver of the city. His styles of wedding and card engraving compare favorably with any in the country.

WORCESTER.

THE city of Worcester has not yet recovered from the depression of last year. Messrs Sanford & Co. can be complimented upon their extensive and extremely fine line of books and stationery.

MESSRS. GROUT & PUTNAM were too busy to give any information as regards any thing.

GEORGE C. HOLDEN, in his little store, is an enterprising gentleman, and deserves all encouragement in his rapidly increasing business.

SPRINGFIELD.

THE largest and most elegant store in this city is that of Messrs. Gill & Hayes, near the Massasoit House. Their stock is rich and elegant, comprising an extensive line of useful and ornamental articles of every known description. Besides the fine selection of literature, their Fine Art Gallery, with choice productions of eminent artists, such as De Haas, Brown, Gaul, Sylvia, Eldred, Van Elton, and others, is one of the features of their business. Their circulating library contains over 1500 volumes of leading books.

CLARK W. BRYAN & Co., printers and stationers, occupy a fine corner brick building, and are the patentees of the metallic top for calendars, which they manufacture for printers and stationers throughout the country, and sell by millions.

MESSRS. WHITNEY & ADAMS are dealers in school-books and literature of all kinds, general line of stationery, and the largest variety of wall-paper in the retail line in the city.

THE Union Ink and Paper Co. deal in flat papers, ink, and mucilage.

HARTFORD, CONN.

MESSRS. BROWN & GROSS have the largest and best selection of books in this city. Their lines of fancy goods and stationery always embrace the latest and most desirable styles.

MESSRS. POND & HAMLIN, successors to Geer & Pond, are occupying their new store, and are enjoying a fine trade. Mr. Hamlin entered the firm on December 1st, and was formerly in the dry goods business.

S. W. BARROWS & Co. are in the store previously occupied by the late Geer & Pond near the Post-office. Books, papers, stationery, fancy goods, and blank-books are displayed to good advantage.

NEW-HAVEN.

SKINNER & SPERRY combine music with stationery, and have consequently an extensive trade with the fair ones.

JUDD & WHITE, books, stationery, etc., are quite busy, and have had a good holiday trade.

HENRY H. PECK disposed of quite a large line of gold pens before Christmas; in fact, his entire stock was removed during the night by some enterprising individual, who no doubt believed in the maxim, "That the pen was mightier than the sword." Mr. P. has been quite pen-sive since the occurrence.

IN conclusion, there is every indication of reviving trade and a more general feeling of confidence shown by nearly all in the East. It is to be sincerely hoped that this year will prove not only a prosperous one to the publisher, the manufacturer, the jobber, and the retailer, but to us poor mortals who are obliged to be on the road, far away from those who are dear to us, and who often receive unkind treatment instead of orders. C. S. P.

BUSINESS NOTES.

THE talk of the trade is the failure of A. W. Lovering, Boston, proprietor of the well-known second-hand shops, and the better, or worse, known grand gift enterprise. It had been some time in the air, but occurred on Friday, being precipitated by the suspension of other Boston firms. His indebtedness is said to be large, some of the English branch houses being chief sufferers.

THE creditors of H. N. McKinney & Co., Phila., at the last meeting, voted unanimously to accept a proposition made by the house for settlement, and Mr. Moore, of the firm, is now East getting signatures.

S. S. COLLINS, Providence, R. I., has made an assignment to Charles Kelly, of that city, for the benefit of his creditors. This is said to be another gift enterprise case.

MR. PATRICK DONAHUE, Boston, failed last week. He had never recovered, it is said, from the effects of the great fires.

A MEETING of the creditors of R. Worthington is called for the 3d of February (one o'clock), at the office of J. T. Williams, 4 Warren street, New-York, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees.

MR. F. B. PATTERSON, 32 Cedar street, New-York, has failed. His obligations are not large.

THE failure is reported of J. H. Dayton, auctioneer, who has been in the habit of conducting auction sales of books about holiday time in New-York, Brooklyn, and other cities.

THE firm of G. A. Searcy & Co., booksellers and stationers, Tuscaloosa, Ala., having been dissolved by mutual consent, Mr. Searcy will hereafter carry on the business under his own name, assuming all the liabilities of the late firm.

THE firm of Putnam & Davis has succeeded that of Grout & Putnam, booksellers, Worcester, Mass.

TIBBITS & RANDALL, Providence, have just purchased the balance of the edition of the Narragansett Club publications.

It is reported that the sale of volumes of "Appletons' Cyclopaedia" at the Boston agency already amounts to about half a million of dollars.

GILL & HAYES, Springfield, Mass., will publish and have ready February 1st a new book, called "How they made a Man of Him," by Miss Julia R. Smith, 1 vol., 8vo, $1.25. The first edition is small, and all orders must be sent early.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MESSRS. LEE & SHEPARD have engaged Mr. Samuel Carson as travelling salesman. Mr. C. will have the privilege of making one trip each year to California, on commission for other houses, as before.

A. L. O. E., the favorite writer of books for children, has gone to India to engage in Zenana mission work. This writer (Miss Tucker) is a grand-niece of Boswell, the biographer of Dr. Johnson.

PROF. HARTT, of Cornell University, writes the article "Brazil" in the forthcoming (fourth) volume of the "Encyclopedia Britannica."

REV. G. R. CROOKS, D.D., is busy on the "Life and Letters of Rev. Dr. John McClin- tock," but the work can scarcely be expected before the middle of the year.

REV. J. S. C. ABBOTT is to write another biography—probably of Franklin—to complete his series of "American Pioneers and Patriots," in twelve volumes.

MR. WILLIAM M. F. ROUND, who has recently joined the editorial staff of the Independent, has brought with him from Europe the manuscript of a new illustrated book upon the scenery and the people of Brittany, in the preparation of which he has been engaged for a little more than a year.—Boston Transcript.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

WE have to correct the report in our last issue of the merging of Oliver Optic's Magazine in St. Nicholas. Messrs. Lee & Shepard are still the owners, and hope ultimately to resume its publication.

MR. HOWELLS' policy of printing papers on opposite sides of current questions is attracting much attention to the Atlantic. Gen. Garfield's article in the February number, on the hard-money side of the currency question, will be followed in March by a plea for the inflation side, by Henry Carey Baird, under the title of "Money and its Substitutes."

THE American Architect and Building News for January 15th gives drawings of the library of Mr. C. H. Joy, Boston, with the dimensions, specifications, and description. This should be of especial interest to our readers.

A LONG letter relative to Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney, in the "Poet's Home Series," and the first of the "Behaving" papers, by the author of "The Ugly Girl Papers," are the notable features of the February Wide Awake. Music teachers of children will get some suggestive hints from the musical page of Dr. Tourjée.

GERMANY has two magazines devoted chiefly to poetry—the fortnightly Deutsche Dichterhalle and the monthly Neue Monatshefte für Dicht- kunst und Kritik, edited respectively by Ernst Eckstein and Oscar Blumenthal.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE Scribners will publish during the spring several new volumes in the "Epochs" series, which have proved so successful in London that the publishers there announce two additional series on this plan, as well as the further volumes of the "Modern History" series.

These are "Epochs of English History," edited by the Rev. M. Creighton, planned to cover the history of England from the earliest to present days, in eight volumes, and "Epochs of Ancient History," edited by the Rev. G. W. Cox and Charles Sankey, of which nine volumes are so far planned. This last series will relate chiefly to the history of Greece and Rome, and of their relations to other countries at successive epochs. Mr. Cox will himself write of "The Greeks and the Persians, with the Relations of Greece to the Older Civilizations," and of "The Athenian Empire, from the Flight of Xerxes to the Fall of Athens," and Dean Merivale will write the volume on "The Roman Triumvirates."

THE Tribune states that Mr. J. W. Schuckers is engaged on a new edition of his pamphlet on the finances (the third), which, enlarged in dimensions to 150 or 200 pages, claims to exhibit all the authorities on the subject of convertible paper-notes.

THE Publishers' Circular, London, recorded in 1875 5218 books, of which 3573 were new books, 1331 new editions, and 316 American importations. Of the months, August and September show the minimum and December the maximum production, the figures of the latter being 1102. There has been a marked increase, as compared with 1874, of works on theology, fiction, history, poetry, and art, and a decrease in educational books and juveniles. The issue of theological books was 782; educational, 343; juvenile, 219; fiction, 992; law, 135; economics, 126; art, science, and illustration works, 686; travels, 333; history and biography, 436; poetry and drama, 371; year books and bound serials, 258; medical books, 127; belles lettres, 199; unclassified, 211. The Circular says: "While all other businesses and professions shared the somewhat tame but quiescent feeling that we were doing very little, but possibly at the end of the year should pull through, the publishers must be excused if they too thought with the world. It is the thinkers who lead the world, not those who merely publish their thoughts. The publishers are not, therefore, to be blamed, nor their organ to be condemned, if they express some surprise at the business done last year, and in the fact that, in spite of all grumblings and assertions to the contrary, 1875 was a very good, in the sense of having been a very productive year, and a decided improvement on 1874."

THE "United States Official Postal Guide," published by H. O. Houghton & Co., has in its first year proved itself a great success. The January number contains the regular information which makes the periodical so valuable a hand-book to all who have occasion to make much use of the post-office. Its alphabetical list of all the post-offices in the United States is corrected to date, and the list of money-order offices is increased by the addition of all the Canadian money-order offices. The department of foreign mails contains the latest and most authentic information respecting this puzzling and variable part of post-office business, and the rulings of the Post-office Department for the last quarter answer a great number of questions which rise incidentally. The work has steadily improved since its inception.

GEORGE ELIOT's new novel, "Daniel Deronda," opens in a German gambling-saloon, whence the scene is transferred to an English country place in Wessex. The portrait of an English girl, Gwendolen Harleth, is first given, and there are indications that this character will be the chief subject of the novelist's psychological study. The hints given of her nature, as that of one of the Lamia women, a cold, strong blonde, of passionless beauty, promise one of George Eliot's most remarkable analyses of human temperament. The hero is introduced abruptly as being attracted to her face, so that the novel begins at once according to Emerson's formula: "She was beautiful and he fell in love." The first book, "A Spoiled Child," is chiefly devoted to Miss Harleth; the second is called "Meeting Streams."—Tribune.

THE official report of the "Second Church Congress" is now printing at Whittaker's, and subscriptions are solicited by the publisher in view of the fact that the edition as limited may prove unequal to a later demand. The report will contain essays and addresses on such topics as "Ultramontanism and Civil Authority," by Rev. Francis Wharton, Rev. Geo. Z. Gray, and others; "Ministration of the Church to the Working Classes," by Rev. John Vaughan, Henry Pallen, and others, and similar interesting and live topics. The price in cloth will be $1; in paper, 75 cents.

A FINE new catalogue of Hurd & Houghton's books, with full titles and critical notices, has been issued in the most tasteful style of the Riverside Press, and that is saying a great deal. An interesting sketch of the history of that Press prefaces it.

THE Evening Post, in the forty-third number of its series on "The Book-Makers," gives an interesting history of the well-known printers, 'John Wilson & Son.' They have twelve large presses, and employ about one hundred and fifty hands. They will print the new edition of Bancroft's "History of the United States." "Many years ago it was noticeable that the most carefully made books coming from the leading publishers bore upon the reverse of the title-page the name of John Wilson & Son, and amid all the improvements of the age the name has held its position in the advance."

THE Scribners have not as yet planned their full spring list, but it will include, besides George Smith's and Max Müller's new volumes, just ready, a volume of poems by Prof. Blackie, author of "Self-Culture;" a third series of Dean Stanley's "Lectures on the History of the Jewish Church;" several new volumes in the "Epochs of History" series; the new book by the author of "Mrs. Jermin's Journal," and a new edition of Headley's "Chaplains and Clergy of the Revolution."

A NEW edition of Alfred de Musset's works is announced in Paris by Alphonse Lemerre. It is to be in small-sized volumes, very elegant in paper and typography. One volume is to be issued monthly, the first to appear in February next.

WALT WHITMAN is to issue a small edition of his complete works in two volumes. "Leaves of Grass" will be one. The other, "Two Rivulets," will contain prose and verse, including much hitherto unpublished. Mr. Whitman kept a diary (from 1862 to 1865) of scenes in Virginia and Washington, and the hospitals, camps, battles, which will be given almost verbatim. Mr. Whitman will publish and sell his book himself.

ONE of the most recent and commodious of bookstores erected in London, is the establishment of Henry Sotheran & Co., of which the London Graphic, in a depreciative article on "Shop Architecture," says: "In Piccadilly, however, there is a charming book-shop, built apparently on a Dutch model for a book-shop, its carved oak galleries and shelves within being all laid out for the best accommodation of volumes."

A CURIOUS reprint of two early works on shorthand, with introduction and bibliography of shorthand, is to be issued in London. One of these is the first English stenography, "Characterie," published by Timothy Bright in 1588, "a cumbrous system of arbitrary characters." The other is Peter Bales's "Writing Schoole-master," published in 1590, containing his art of "brachygraphie."

M. VICTOR HUGO is about to publish a volume of verse entitled Les Justes Colères, which is a continuation of L'Année Terrible; and likewise a prose volume, which is said to be a very charming work, L'Art d'Etre Grand-Père.

THE Evening Post is authority for the statement that a new satirical poem, written in rhyming hexameters, and said to be of the nature of exceedingly strong vinegar, is in press with a Boston publishing house. The poem is entitled "Dulness," and has for its subject the poets of the day, to whose verse the author assigns the quality named in his title, together with certain other qualities of a kindred nature. The authorship of the satire is a profound secret, and it is the purpose of all concerned that it shall remain so. No one, except author and publisher, has been allowed to see a single line of the piece, but it is more than hinted that we shall all be greatly interested in reading it presently.

SEVERAL new series in literature are announced by Longmans & Co., London. The "London Series of French Classics" begins with the drama, four sets of six standard plays each being already announced, but will include other branches of literature, so as to cover finally the best works of French literature from the sixteenth century to the present time. The "London Series of English Classics" is a project of the new year, but twenty volumes are already announced in the prospectus. The range is wide, including a compilation by Mr. Furnivall, on "Life in Early England: a Series of Selections from Books and MSS. from the Eighth to the Fifteenth Century;" another by the Rev. Richard Morris, of "Specimens of the Early English Drama;" Ben Jonson's "Cynthia's Revels," edited by Prof. Henry Morley, and Kit Marlowe's "Doctor Faustus," edited by Prof. Wagner, of Hamburg; and a volume of selections from Fuller, as well as selections from the better known standard writers, edited by Prof. Dowden, E. E. Morris, and others. The third series is of "Annotated Poems of English Authors," to be issued in cheap shape (four or six pence), and with sketch and notes for the benefit of youthful students. Longfellow's "Evangeline" is among those announced.

A NEW work by St. George Mivart, "Lessons from Nature, as Manifested in Mind and Manner," is just ready in London.

"We advise all Americans to read it carefully, and judge for themselves if 'the future historian of our war,' of whom we have heard so much, be not already arrived in the Comte de Paris."—The Nation, New-York.

"It is so superior to all those preceding it that there is not one in America or Europe worthy to be placed in the same class."—Saturday Review, London, Eng.

SECOND EDITION NOW READY.

HISTORY

CIVIL WAR IN AMERICA.

BY

THE COMTE DE PARIS.

Translated with the approval of the author, by LOUIS F. TASISTRO. Edited by HENRY COPPÉE, LL.D. Volume I. (Embracing without abridgment, the first two volumes of the French Edition.) With Maps faithfully engraved from the originals, and printed in three colors. 8vo, cloth, $3.50; sheep, library style, $4.50; half Turkey morocco, $6.

TO BE FOLLOWED IN APRIL BY VOL. II., AND BY THE OTHERS AS THEY ISSUE IN FRANCE. TO BE COMPLETED IN FOUR VOLUMES.

"Can not but prove most valuable and interesting to the American reader. I find it very good indeed."—GEN. SHERMAN.

"It becomes continually clearer that this is destined to be the generally received history of the war. It will be deservedly so, for the author, by virtue of being a foreigner, has an impartiality which it would be hard for one of us to acquire; he has a satisfactory knowledge of both the great principles and the minutiae of the great struggle, and he spares no pains in search of thoroughness and accuracy. More than this, he is so completely master of his subject that he makes clear the most complicated campaigns, and he tells his story in the most lucid way."—ATLANTIC MONTHLY, Boston.

"In this, the first part of his great work on the American war, the head of the Orleans family has put pen to paper with excellent result. Our present impression is that it will form by far the best history of the American war."—ATHENÆUM, London, England.

"The most finished, careful, and dispassionate review of the whole contest which has yet appeared, or which is likely to appear in this generation. He has done for us in war what De Tocqueville did for us in peace."—SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN.

"His insight into American institutions is remarkable. * * * His judgments are strikingly frank and candid. * * * It makes a narrative of absorbing interest."—THE CONGREGATIONALIST, Boston.

"He pays the least possible attention to prejudices, which the American historian will not, for many years to come, venture to disregard. But these circumstances will only serve to stimulate the interests of the large audience he is destined to have in this country."—NEW-ORLEANS TIMES.

"It is undoubtedly free from all party spirit or bitterness that might creep into such a work if written by an American. We commend a perusal of this work to all."—NEW-ORLEANS BULLETIN.

"The American citizen is not yet born who is to write a just and impartial history of the war. * * * As he (the Comte de Paris) has written rather for the European than for transatlantic readers, it is evidently done with no purpose to awaken memories which should forever sleep in the grave of eternal forgetfulness, under the green mantle of universal amnesty. But for this very reason it will be read by thousands of people in this country who are capable of judging of its facts and its philosophy. His style is graceful and vigorous; his research full, and at times, exhaustive. His love of truth is not made to bear tribute to partisan ends, and we believe that the most ultra-Southern mind will review the pages with testimony to the justice of the views presented. * * * We have read the account of the battle of Bull Run again and again to discover aught set down in malice, or in an unfair spirit to either contestant. The same is true of the contents of the volume as a whole. It is honestly done. * * * The work is the best which has yet been written on the civil war, and will continue to be for a quarter of a century."—NEW-ENGLAND JOURNAL OF EDUCATION, Boston.

LECTURES DELIVERED IN AMERICA.

ANGOLA AND THE RIVER CONGO.

By JOACHIM JOHN MONTEIRO. With sixteen full-page Illustrations from Sketches taken on the spot, and a Map. 1 vol., 12mo, $2.50.

"Angola being remote from the field of British enterprise, is comparatively unknown to us. Therefore Mr. MONTEIRO's work is the more welcome, as supplying faithful descriptions of country and people. . . . It is a pleasure to find that in no instance has the author yielded to the temptation of describing sensational (and imaginary) adventures, but has given us plain, and at the same time interesting descriptions of the places and tribes which he has visited during his varied experience, extending over fifteen years; whilst from the dispassionate tone of his remarks, even when differing most widely from received ideas, we may willingly believe that he is a trustworthy guide."—Athenæum.

"The volume is full of valuable information and contains much picturesque description."—Pall Mall Gazette.

HAVE JUST PUBLISHED

THE POEMS OF GEORGE D. PRENTICE,

NOW FIRST COLLECTED,

AND

EDITED WITH A BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH.

BY JOHN JAMES PIATT.

One volume, 12mo, handsomely printed on tinted paper, with a portrait on steel. Cloth, $2.
Cloth, gilt edges, $2.50. Morocco, gilt, $5.

This volume includes the cream of all the Poems of the once-famous editor of the Louisville Journal. His reputation as a wit will remain a tradition among men generations hence, but his LASTING RECORD will be found in the many beautiful things in verse, which he wrote during his long journalistic life. Mr. J. J. PIATT (himself a Poet of reputation among the scholarly in the Old and New Worlds, for whom Mr. PRENTICE entertained the warmest friendship, and who for several years acted as his amanuensis) has compiled and edited the Poems, and added a charming biographical sketch.

"GEORGE D. PRENTICE enjoyed and produced poetry for the glow it kindles in the heart, and the elevation it gives to the mind. That he is a genuine poet, one of the favored ones whom God teaches to sing, no man who reads his book with a spark of poetic sympathy, will deny."—Cincinnati Commercial.

"Mr. PIATT has written just such a notice of Mr. PRENTICE as we knew he would write—tender, truthful and strong. . . Altogether, the book is a fitting monument of PRENTICE's genius."—Enquirer.

PEEKSKILL, NEW YORK, 1876.

In reply to numerous letters of inquiry daily received by me in reference to my "School Book Exchange," would make the following answer. I solicit from dealers and others consignments of new, shop-worn, and second-hand school-books in any quantity, large or small, with the understanding that books sent me are to be latest editions, none badly torn or defaced, freight or expressage to be prepaid, or a remittance made to cover probable cost. In exchange, I will send such school-books as may be ordered, immediately, if on hand, or as soon as I can procure them. My charge for the exchange is 10%, reckoned upon the net value of the books. When books are sent, mail an invoice, with concise directions as to what books are wanted, placing first the books most wanted. State whether you want new, shop-worn, or second-hand; if you cannot have what you prefer at once, state if any other condition will do. Be concise, but leave nothing out that may cause a misunderstanding of your wishes. Fresh stock can generally be used anywhere, and but few are sent for exchange; consequently, but little dependence can be placed upon an order for such stock in exchange for shop-worn or second-hand.

There are delays, at times, incident to this business which cannot be avoided, as second-hand school-books are not always obtainable. I have on hand at all times a large assortment of second-hand and shop-worn school-books, suitable for both common and high schools, which I will sell at very low rates, for cash. Correspondence solicited.

W. O. DAVIE & CO., BOOK AND FINE ART AUCTIONEERS, CINCINNATI, O.

The season for 1875-6 will commence Sept. 15th, and continue until June 15th, and Sales of BOOKS, STATIONERY, WORKS OF ART, etc., will be held two nights each week. Our house is established since 1841. We are constantly adding to our list of customers, and we believe that prices realized at our Sales will compare favorably with any Auction House in the East. The attention of the Trade is called to these Sales, as a good medium for the advantageous disposal of surplus stock, etc.

CONSIGNMENTS SOLICITED. ADVANCES MADE.

THE PUBLISHERS' TRADE-LIST ANNUAL FOR 1875

is now ready, containing the new LISTS of one hundred and fifty-five American Publishing Houses (four more than last year), a GENERAL INDEX to the prominent books in the same, embracing about 14,000 titles, Indexes to MEDICAL and LAW BOOKS, with about eight hundred titles each, and the complete AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE, for 1875, with 7000 titles more, the series guiding the bookseller or reader to the full entries of over 22,000 books.

The addition of these Indexes makes the work absolutely indispensable to the bookseller, causing it to displace entirely the previous Annual. By keeping a copy of this work on his counter at the service of the customer, like a directory, the bookseller will do much to promote his trade. The librarian and the general reader will also find the ANNUAL most valuable in guiding them to the wide range of American literature.

The orders previous to publication day having been supplied at the usual nominal rate, the price of the work, as previously announced, is now put, to cover the cost of making the Indexes, at the following rates:

To the trade,	$2.00 per copy.
To the general public,	2.50 "

The volume being too large for the mails, directions for forwarding through jobbers or for expressage, which must be paid on delivery, must accompany each order. The volume is forwarded at our risk by express only.

NOTES IN SEASON.

So far as the production of new books is concerned, February promises to be the most quiet month the trade has known for a long while. Sales for the new year have nevertheless been better than was expected.

LENT opens March 1st. Booksellers who have a Catholic or Episcopalian constituency should stock up.

THE Putnams will publish this month a number of books, among them several not before announced by Prof. Henry N. Day, of Yale, best known for his popular "Rhetoric." Two of these, works on "The Elements of Psychology," and "The Science of Ethics: an Elementary System of Theoretical and Practical Morality," are entirely new. The others, a "Logical Praxis," and a text-book on "The Principles of Æsthetics," were published by Mr. Chatfield, when he secured the aid of the Yale professors toward building up a publishing centre at New-Haven. The important volume on "Iron Ores of Missouri and Michigan," by Prof. Pumpelly and others, with illustrations and folio of plates, is at last to be published, and Prof. Welch's "Faith and Modern Thought," which will have an introduction by Prof. Tayler Lewis; "French Leaders," in "Brief Biographies," the first volume of the "Select British Essayists," and the Hampton "Cabin and Plantation Songs," are also about ready.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will make their first publication day about the 19th, when they expect to have ready Taine's "Ancient Régime," Brinton's "Religious Idea," and the new edition of his "Myths;" "Jonathan," by Fraser-Tytler, etc. This will be one of the most important "batches" of the spring.

HURD & HOUGHTON are to publish a new book on the culture of orchidaceous plants, by Mr. Edward Sprague Rand, Jr., entitled "Glen Ridge Orchids." It will contain valuable hints upon the cultivation of these plants, and there will be chapters upon "Cool Culture," "Growth for Market Purposes and Exhibition," and "The Construction of Orchid Houses." They also announce new editions of Mr. Rand's former works on "Flowers for the Parlor and Garden," "Garden Flowers," "Bulbs," "Rhododendrons," "Popular Flowers and how to Cultivate them," and "The Window-Gardener."

A WORK by the Rev. Edson L. Clark, on "The Arabs and the Turks," treating of their origin, history, religion, social condition, etc., in the past and the present, with chapters on the non-Christian tribes of Western Asia, will be issued this spring by the Boston (Congregational) Publishing Society.

CENTENNIAL NOTES.

THE Centennial Sub-Committee held a meeting in Philadelphia, January 26th, at which they voted to Mr. Remsen full authority to contract with Robert Woods, of Philadelphia, for iron-work, and with Benjamin Ketcham, for wood-work and foundations of pavilions, in the structure of the A. B. T. A. A large part of the money has been paid in.

The following are new rules as to exhibitors in the book department:

Exhibitors must provide all shelving, counters, show-cases, etc., subject to the approval of the Committee. No charge will be made for space occupied, but an assessment of 50 cents per square foot will be made to cover incidental expenses.

The buildings will be ready for the reception of articles on March 1st, and no articles will be received after April 10th. Space not occupied by April 1st may be reassigned by the Committee.

Circulars, business cards, samples, etc., may be placed for distribution within the space occupied by the exhibitor, but visitors shall not be solicited to take them.

Signs will not be allowed to project beyond the floor area of the space occupied. Signs made of paper or canvas will not be permitted.

The assignment of the floor space has been completed, and a general plan for the arrangement of cases on the ground floor has been prepared by Mr. Henry Reck.

MRS. ANTOINETTE BROWN BLACKWELL, M.D., has written a new volume on "The Physical Basis of Immortal Life," which takes strong ground, from the scientific standpoint, in behalf of the doctrine of immortality. It will be published by G. P. Putnam's Sons. Her books usually command attention from scientists, reaching a certain if not large constituency.

THE National Temperance Society will issue shortly, in cheap form, with an introduction by Dr. Willard Parker, the six "Cantor Lectures on Alcohol," delivered by Dr. B. W. Richardson before the Society of Arts, London. They give the latest scientific views in opposition to the use of stimulants, and have attracted general attention in England.

The Publishers' Weekly

FEBRUARY 5, 1876.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry and for notice in "Books Received."

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries." Notes from librarians will also be gratefully received.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

THE SPRING FAIR.

THE present plan of the book fairs, as modified by recent arrangements, presents several new features of interest. The dates fixed for the regular fairs, if they are to be semi-annual, are wise, since the experience of last year proved that the fair could not be wisely held in connection with the Convention. The latter part of March and the latter part of September seem to be the dates most desirable for the largest proportion of the trade.

The plan of the fairs still includes the two divisions of the management of sales and the banking department. We point out this distinction, because the dissatisfaction expressed in certain quarters of the trade with the previous workings of the system has been in criticism of the rates, or the existence, of the latter department.

The new feature as to the management of sales is the introduction of an auction at the close. This is to comprise "stereotype plates, remainders, balances of editions, clearance stock (books that the publisher does not intend to print again), etc., etc.," with the negative proviso that no books included in the auction catalogue shall be exposed for sale at the fair. This opportunity for disposing of stereotype plates is certainly desirable, and the same is to be said as to legitimate remainders and other dead stock. But the auction can only be for what is acknowledged dead stock, and we could wish the provisions had been made more positive and direct to this effect. As it goes, the character of this auction will depend directly upon the vigilance of the committee, and the practical loyalty of the managers to the principles of the Association. The trade will have little patience with its being made an opening for the re-introduction of the vicious trade-sale system, which it was a chief purpose of the Association to do away with. Therefore, no goods except those which the buyer is to offer as depreciated stock rightly come within the field of this auction. Publishers are finding out that they can not expect to sell the same goods at a regular price to the regular trade, and offer them at any price to whomsoever will buy. The commissions and catalogue rates for this sale are to be on the old trade-sale scale.

The financial features of the fair proper are considerably altered. It was found at previous fairs that sellers so largely availed themselves of the banking facilities offered by the managers that settlements were made by the latter almost wholly in cash. The old scale of charges was five per cent on sales of miscellaneous, and two and a half on educational stock, when accounts were settled in notes given by buyers with Messrs. Leavitt's indorsement, and three per cent additional for cash in thirty days. It is now proposed to merge all these in a uniform rate of seven per cent, for "rent, commission, guarantee, and discount," which, though an increase on educational, is a decrease on the general rate. Buyers paying cash in twenty days will be allowed discount at ten per cent per annum.

It will be noted that the charges on sales are for "rent and commission;" the charges for "guarantee and discount" are connected with the banking department. We have not been able to see that the old charge of five per cent for "rent, commission, and guarantee" was exorbitant, especially in these risky times, nor do we surmise that, taking into account bad debts, the managers have made overweening net commissions, although they would have been worse off under the old trade-sale system, and better off had the fair been earlier confined to members of the A. B. T. A., and such dealers as the Boston gift enterprise man ruled out. But there is a growing feeling in the trade that they would prefer to be obliged to pay the managers only the less than five per cent required for rent and commission alone, eliminating the banking charge for guarantee by dealing directly and taking their own risks. We find that this feeling, and (on the part of New-York City houses) some difficulty with the managers about holiday underselling, will keep some publishers out of the spring sale. On the other hand, large houses have already signified their intention to enter.

It should be pointed out that a main feature of the original plan of these fairs was to give extra inducements to attract buyers. It is not, therefore, in accordance with fair dealing that the five per cent, or whatever the commission proper is, should virtually be deducted from the discount offered, and goods consequently be offered by participants as low or lower at their stores. A part of this five, or now seven, per cent, as we have pointed out, is guarantee and discount; the rest is for a system of attracting customers, and those who take the benefit of the fair while evading its charges, are in a measure shirking their advertising bills. Whether this commission is too large is matter for discussion; all these points, in the experience of three fairs since the last Convention, will form a chief subject for discussion at the next general meeting, when the present committee hand in their report.

There is one matter about which there should from the start be no misunderstanding. This fair is held by the American Book Trade Association, among and for its members, and none others should be asked as sellers or admitted as buyers. It is certainly to be regretted that many publishers will sell to undersellers outside the fair, as cheaply as to dealers of good standing at the fair, as proved the case in one instance last year; but let us have things all right at the one end, and by and by they will come right at the other. At the rate undersellers have been going under for the past month, this evil will prove its own cure, by opening the publishers' eyes.

THE American News Company's journal replies to one or two points of our recent article in an editorial headed, "Who Impedes the Reform?" It says:

"Now, we are asked to believe that the breaking of retail prices on the part of publishers and jobbers has been altogether stopped, and that the only remaining thing to be done is to stop the few cheap retailers scattered through the country. . . . While any of the school-book publishers continue to ignore the existence of the retail booksellers; while any of the large Eastern publishers continue to offer their books to the libraries of the West at better terms than the local Western trade are allowed to give; while publishers and jobbers are permitted by rule to retail books to any body at a discount—we can not believe that the underselling retailers stand in the way of further reform, nor do we believe it practicable to stop them by cutting off their supplies."

We say again, quoting our very words, since the News Company only repeat their own. "Nor do we know that any one has said that 'the existence of a few retail undersellers' is 'the only thing that now stops the wheels of the reform,' or that 'the trade has reached the highest point of success possible, if the undersellers be allowed to exist.'" As to the other point, we have only to reiterate that a diversion of the issue to the school-book question, as was done previously to the Niagara Convention, is at present switching the reform off the track. The reform movement is in thorough sympathy with the desire of the jobbers and the trade at large for reform in the school-book trade, but this must come in due course. As to the chief points of our argument, and illustrations by facts within the experience of the News Company, their journal remains silent.

WE certainly should not ask the News Company to believe that the "breaking of retail prices on the part of the publishers and jobbers has been altogether stopped." We might draw a formal, but can we draw a practical line between one who undersells and one who aids and countenances the underseller? A jobbing house, though it may ask the retail price over its own counter at its down-town establishment, when it makes a practice of supplying, at bottom rates, an uptown establishment which professedly undersells every establishment in the city, may claim that there is no breaking of retail prices on its own part; but in thus breaking down the retail price through others, is it not virtually lending aid and comfort to the common enemy, the enemy of sound legitimate business? What satisfaction is it to the honest man who loses his sales, when the man who makes his sales says to him, "These few book-butchers are trivial impediments," and, "the regular trade can generally take care of the undersellers in their vicinity."

WE have another letter urging the publishers of periodicals to give some chance to the trade. We learn that a small commission is allowed by Harper & Brothers on all subscriptions sent by booksellers and newsdealers, even when the three periodicals are clubbed together at the low price of $10, the papers being then delivered by mail without cost to the dealer. It is the general policy of the publishers of periodicals to encourage subscriptions rather than individual sales. But it should not be forgotten that the sales system, which is in many respects peculiar to America, has been the chief means of building up the enormous circulation of our popular periodicals, and to ask the dealer to hand over his customer to the publisher is to ask him to give up an important hold upon purchasers of books. It is rather hard also that the very periodical which the dealer is expected to sell should contain announcements offering the goods to the retail customer cheaper than the wholesaler can himself buy them. We may suggest to dealers that they may save money by resolving themselves into "clubs," and getting periodicals free by mail at the lower rates.

SOME curious illustrations of the vagueness of trade-mark and copyright laws appear in our columns this week. In the case of Porter & Bainbridge, the Government appears to be quite uncertain whether the firm has any particular rights in their mark or not. It may be noted in this connection that Harper & Brothers have entered George Eliot's, Wilkie Collins', and Edward Jenkins' new works for copyright, on the theory that they are owners of the MSS. by purchase, and being citizens of the United States, are entitled to protection under the new law, which permits either authors or owners to claim copyright. If this view should hold, it would afford a curious accidental solution of international copyright.

WE give elsewhere the facts developed at the meeting of the creditors of Mr. Lovering. They are reprinted verbatim from the Boston Globe, lest it should be suspected we had infused malicious sarcasm into the report. As the creditors are reported not unfavorable to Mr. Lovering, it may still be pertinent to ask when his promised gift sale is to open in New York. Since the expenses of this sort of business are only about 40 to 50 per cent, it might be well to "realize" on his stock in this way, and put Mr. Lovering in charge of the interests of the creditors.

THE manufacturing stationers are making strong protest against the competition of Government with their business in furnishing stamped envelopes, with printed indorsements, virtually below cost, and transporting them without charge. The committee appointed at the meeting at the Astor House, January 13th, have presented an able memorial giving facts and figures to support their assertion that the Government, in its present rates for envelopes and postal cards, is not only giving away money, but discriminating against the business of many citizens. They ask at least that a part of the cost of the transportation of these goods should be charged—by which the department would save $750,000 a year. It is, of course, alleged that the freight companies transport these goods free of charge, but it is absurd to suppose that this free matter is not counted in when the contracts for transporting mail matter are calculated.

WE would really be obliged if all our correspondents would not sign themselves "Book-seller"—and the rest "Subscriber!" Several times we have had to take the liberty of altering such original but not distinctive noms de plume, especially since one of our correspondents has attracted no little attention to letters over the latter designation, and has therefore some right to the pseudonym. It is generally desirable that letters should be dated from the locality whence sent, and they are frequently more effective if personally signed. Upon this, however, we never insist.

PRIZE QUESTION No. 2.

Which are the most salable works on agriculture?

Give twelve titles in the following shape:

Thomas, J. J., Farm Implements and Machinery. 12°. $1.50.
Orange Judd Co.

[Look up Webster's definition of "Agriculture" and include works accordingly, exclusive of works on gardening proper, grape-culture, and horses, topics which are to form the subject of special questions.]

RULES FOR COMPETITORS.

1. The object of the questions is to elicit answers as to which books and editions have, independent of local or ephemeral interest, become standard or popular works in the American market, hence safe stock for investment.
 2. A prize of $5 will be awarded for that answer which includes the greatest number of works on which competitors generally agree, or which, in the judgment of the editor, may otherwise be most fairly representative.
 3. Every subscriber and every employee of a subscriber individually are entitled to compete.
 4. The answers shall consist of a list of works on a given topic. The short title is sufficient, but number of volumes, size, price, and name of publisher must be invariably given.
 5. The titles should be arranged according to the popularity each work holds in the opinion of the competitor.
 6. The titles must be written legibly with ink, on one side of the paper only, foolscap preferred, each title in separate paragraph, with space between titles for cutting through with scissors.
 7. The list must not contain a greater number of titles than is demanded in the question.
 8. Each list must be headed by the number of the Prize Question, and signed with full address of competitor.
 9. If several competitors should present lists of equal claim to the prize, it shall be awarded by lot.
 10. The name of the successful competitor shall be published with his list, and the amount of the prize remitted immediately after publication.
 11. The result of the answers will be published four weeks from publication of the question.
 12. All communications should be addressed, Editor PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, P. O. Box 4295, New-York.
- These rules are subject to amendment whenever the Editor finds it expedient.

COMMUNICATIONS.

RETAILING PERIODICALS.

January 29, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

Your correspondent on "Retailing Periodicals" has opened up a subject which needs reforming as much as "book publishers" and "undersellers." If it is wrong for book publishers to undersell their own publications, then it is equally wrong for newspaper publishers to undersell as they do.

Your correspondent cites Harper's as an example, and states the case from his standpoint (the city); allow me to state it from my standpoint (the country). Harper's Weekly or Bazar costs me 7½ cents per copy, or $3.90 per year; the Magazine costs 27 cents per copy, or $3.24 per year—making the three cost $11.04 and expressage from New-York. The publishers will sell the same for $10 and prepay the postage, and so take still more trade from the dealer. They send out private circulars to the postmaster, giving him 20 per cent commission on all subscriptions he takes. Why not give the newsdealer that commission?

Another example is that of the great dailies, who will send to single subscribers for $12 per year (including the Sunday edition) and prepay postage. The same papers cost us 3½ cents for the daily and 4½ cents for the Sunday edition, making the yearly cost $12.38, and we pay our own expressage.

Now it seems to me that the publishers should sell to us so that we could take subscriptions at their rates and make a fair commission; or, in other words, they should reduce the wholesale price on dailies at least ½ cent, and weeklies 1 cent per copy.

I think they can afford to do so, considering the price of printing paper, which can be bought to-day for from 6½ to 8 cents per lb..

while during the war the price was 15 to 18 cents. I will admit that "the margin between cost and retail price is very small" (as you say in answer to Retail Newsdealer, Nov. 20th, 1875) for the newsdealer. But if the publishers had any margin during the war, they must have a large margin now.

I hope the trade will agitate the question, as they have the other, until a reform is effected.

COUNTRY NEWSDEALER.

THE STATIONERS' EXCHANGE.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly :

I find a report going the rounds of the trade that the Stationers' Exchange was given up from want of money to run the institution. The truth of the matter is, that when the establishment was opened, it was intended to extend it through to Lafayette Place, but the Whiting Manufacturing Company having hired the entire building, I was unable to obtain the necessary room to make the trial as successful as desired, and acting under the advice of the occupants of the Exchange, I disposed of my lease, etc., to the Whiting Manufacturing Company, and await a more convenient season for establishing a permanent Stationers' Exchange. So far as the report of a failure financially is concerned, a visit to the Whiting Manufacturing Company, or the firms who did the work on the place, will satisfy you that the bills are all paid.

Respectfully, ANDREW GEYER.

PRIZE QUESTION A No. 1.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly :

How much money have those publishers made who sold the "great Boston underseller"?

Yours truly,

ONE WHO DON'T SELL UNDERSSELLERS.

THE BOSTON FAILURE.

A MEETING of the creditors of Mr. A. W. Lovering was held at his store, Monday forenoon. C. S. Kendall presided and A. F. Graves acted as clerk. Mr. Lovering was represented by Mr. Chick, who made a statement in effect that last July Mr. Lovering had a heavy stock of books on hand to dispose of, when he devised a system of giving prizes which necessitated an outlay of some $50,000. January, 1875, he had $19,000 in the bank; January, 1876, he had sixty-two cents and sundry bills unpaid. He had used every means available to tide over the difficulties, but was unable to do so, and when the news of the failure of Patrick Donahoe came, failure on his part was inevitable. His assets were stock on hand, $50,761.23; bills receivable, $3579.20; and sundries sufficient to make the total assets $54,765.26. The liabilities were—book liabilities, $103,976.74, and from $30,000 to $35,000 more or less indorsements for Mr. Donahoe and others. Messrs. George A. Leavitt, J. F. Dearborn, William Lee, James Robertson, and J. R. Osgood were appointed a committee to investigate the affairs of the concern and report at an adjourned meeting.—Boston Globe, Feb. 1.

The adjourned meeting was held Tuesday morning, Mr. Kendall, of Rice, Kendall & Co., acting as Chairman, and Mr. A. F. Graves as Secretary. The committee appointed Monday reported as follows :

ASSETS.

The book stock, valued by Mr. Lovering at $50,763.23, or net cash value at forced sale, the committee estimate at.....	34,000 00
Book accounts.....	1,000 00
Cash in sheriff's hands.....	394 00
Total assets at cash value.....	$35,394 00

LIABILITIES.

Direct liabilities of Mr. Lovering, his own debts from the schedule presented by him.....	$103,976 74
The committee, using such evidence as was desirable, are satisfied that Mr. Lovering's direct indebtedness, that is, his own debts, approximate to.....	114,500 00

A more thorough examination may increase this amount, but not diminish it. The contingent liabilities from indorsements are, in the present state of the case, very difficult to be ascertained, even approximately, with such investigations as the committee were able to give to the matter. The committee estimate them at $64,000, making the direct and contingent liabilities $175,500. The report further says that Mr. Lovering's sales from September 1 to January 21 amounted to $143,000, that 40 to 50 per cent of this amount was absorbed in expenses and presents, and that Mr. Lovering has paid out money as fast as he received it to reduce his indebtedness. The advice of the committee, in view of all the circumstances in the case, would be for Mr. Lovering voluntarily to take the benefit of the bankrupt act, and if he fails to do this, that he be put into bankruptcy under the involuntary process as soon as possible. On motion of R. M. Morse, Jr., it was voted that the committee of the creditors heretofore appointed be requested to represent the creditors until the election of an assignee in bankruptcy, and that the attaching creditors be requested to follow the directions of said committee as to continuing the sale of goods from the store and the payment of rent and other expenses. It was further voted that the action of this meeting shall not be construed as being unfavorable to Mr. Lovering in the matter of his making a composition with his creditors. The meeting then adjourned, subject to the call of the committee.—Boston Globe, 2d.

GOVERNMENT COMPETITION IN STATIONERY.

THE memorial prepared by the committee representing the stationery, printing, and envelope interests, shows that while (according to Mr. Geo. S. Bang's report to the Postmaster-General) there was a total profit of $4,212,390.70 on first-class mail matter, there was a loss both in the second and third classes of respectively $6,993,023.91 and $4,113,915.53, making a total deficiency of $10,000,000, a large part of which it is claimed is due to the low price asked and the free transportation of the stationery (envelopes, wrappers, cards, etc.) sold and printed by the Government. As this stationery is furnished at a price below cost, and the printing is gratuitous, the people not only have to pay for its transportation, but sell at a loss, and at the same time are entering into competition with branches of their own industry, which the memorialists claim is not only contrary to the principles of our Government, but is a competition which the Government does not enter into in any other department. The loss to the Government in the low price asked, the gratuitous printing, and the free transportation is estimated at $2,500,000 for the year 1875. In view of this it is suggested that the manufacture and sale of stamped envelopes by the Government, and the printing of address cards on the same, is not a necessity, and should be discontinued, and that there be added to price to cover a part of the cost of transportation to Post-Office Department—

$1.60 per 1000 on stamped envelopes and wrappers, 150,000,000—would give.....	$240,000
(Cost Post-Office Department 8 lbs. @ 1.14 lbs. $9.12 per 1000.)
$1.00 per 1000 on postal cards, 107,500,000—would give.....	107,500
(Cost Post-Office Department 7 lbs. @ 1.14 lbs. $7.98 per 1000.)
54,631,000 request envelopes at 50 c. per M (or half M) for extra services in Post-Office Department on orders for same—would give.	273,650

Which, if done, would increase revenue to Post-Office Department per year..... $770,650

OBITUARY.

JOHN FORSTER.

ANOTHER work is left unfinished by the sudden death of John Forster, in London, February 1st, chiefly known as the biographer of Landor and Dickens. He was born at Newcastle, in 1812. He was educated at the University of London, and studied law in that institution, publishing also with his fellow-students the London University Magazine subsequently the Englishman's Magazine. He became well known as an editor and political student, and in 1858 he published a collection of his historical and biographical essays. "The Life of Goldsmith" was issued in 1848, and reprinted in an enlarged form in 1854. His contributions to English history are, "The Arrest of the Five Members by Charles I." (1860); "Debates on the Great Remonstrance" (1860), and "Sir John Eliot, a Biography" (1864), together with the "Lives of the Statesmen of the Commonwealth." "The Life of Landor" was published in 1868, in two bulky volumes, lately abridged to one volume for the new collection of Landor's Works, which Mr. Forster edited. In 1871-4 he published "The Life of Charles Dickens," of whom he was the intimate friend and literary executor. Of his "Life of Swift" but one volume has been published, but the material for the second is probably in shape.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

THE MEDICAL JURISPRUDENCE OF INSANITY, by J. H. Balfour Browne. (Lindsay & Blakiston.) It is not only for the legal and medical profession that this work was written, though it is considered by them as a most useful textbook. It is presented in so simple and so intelligent a manner that the non-legal and non-medical mind will take great delight in perusing it. It offers an amount of curious and valuable information, illustrated by celebrated cases, on all phases of dementia, and the actual amount of responsibility the law apportions its victims, be it resulting from drunkenness or other causes. This the second edition is so greatly improved upon the first as to be almost a new book, many former propositions having been reconsidered and entirely recast, while parts of the book have been altogether rewritten and rearranged. The chapters have also been subdivided into sections, to which a very useful index and table of contents refer. Much has also been added to the work as it was first published; one feature is specially noted—the references that are made throughout to the most important cases which have been decided in England, Scotland, and America. The work is handsomely and liberally gotten up. 8vo, cloth, $5.

HOLY HOUSE OF LORETTO, by the most Rev. P. R. Kendrick. (Eugene Cumiskey.) This work was written to prove, by various testimony said to be veracious, the miraculous transportation of the house of Mary of Nazareth, in which Jesus Christ was born, to Dalmatia, and from thence to Italy, where it now stands, and is known as the "Holy House of Loretto," to which the afflicted of the Catholic faith flock in thousands, in the belief that they will be miraculously cured. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

DRIFTED ASUNDER; OR, THE TIDE OF FATE, by Amanda M. Douglas. (William F. Gill & Co.) The story of a husband and wife who are separated through the wife's unwise concealment of a secret in her former life. The scene of the story is placed in New-York, and contains some very vivid delineations of life and character. The plot is quite startling and worked out with considerable power. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

THROSTLETHWAITE, by Susan Morley. (J. B. Lippincott & Co.) A quiet, gentle, though not uninteresting story of English life. There is nothing in it of at all a sensational order, the characters and incidents being almost tame and yet it is a story which wins upon the reader, and will, once taken up, be read with pleasure to the end. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

FOOT NOTES; OR, WALKING AS A FINE ART, by Alfred Barron. (Wallingford Printing Co.) A book redolent with the fragrance of an outdoor atmosphere; full of quaint and fanciful ideas about every thing, all permeated, however, with the freshness and vigor of the pedestrian's healthy mind. These essays, first published some ten years ago, have been received with more than ordinary favor by the press. The author's style has been compared to Thoreau's, and many other encomiums of a highly complimentary nature bestowed upon him. We can only say we found his book very readable, some of the chapters being really exceedingly clever. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

VICTOR AND VANQUISHED, by Mary Cecil Hay. (Harper & Brothers.) The story opens with a young girl's coming to one of the old stately homes of England, where she is to be employed as a companion. She is wrapped in a mystery from the beginning, and we know she will turn out other than she appears. She is the "victor," and through a long and complicated succession of incidents is able to assert her claim to the grand old house of High Athelston, where we first find her. The heir of the house begins her acquaintance by persecuting her with his attentions; him too she vanquishes, but adversity seems to improve his morals, and time teaches her to look more kindly upon him—and his love. A good novel, full of incidents and characters, and with an interesting though somewhat intricate plot. 8vo, paper, 50 cents.

STATIONERY NOTES.

LIEBENROTH, VON AUW & Co. intend to place before the trade an order-book especially adapted for the use of the travelling fraternity.

MR. CHAMBERLIN, of Chamberlin, Whitmore & Co., is in Boston, doing a fine business.

W. SCOTT GLORE, of Louisville, Ky., is in town buying "base-balls."

"WOGLOM'S INK," for copying music, is especially adapted for the purpose of copying music, as it may be used without showing on opposite side of page. Wm. H. Woglom, 239 Greenwich street, is the manufacturer.

MESSRS. WILSON BROTHERS, 51 and 53 Maiden lane, have just issued some elegant new styles of papeteries, one entitled the "Royal Duchess Court," of novel construction, containing two quires of four sizes of note-paper, with envelopes to match; four tints in each box, and calendar for 1876 with blotting pad; the whole making a complete travelling companion. Patented. This same line of paper is also made up in one-gross boxes. The paper is entirely new, being a vellum finish, with delicate lines and in novel tints. This paper is also to be had in mourning of different borders. This house also have an English Grand Quadrille, superior in quality to any previously imported from France, with no increase in price. They also carry a full line of "Overland Mail," in flat folio, letter, and note.

THE "Emack" Drawing Slate is the latest in the market. It is in the shape of a desk (size, 12 inches by 12 inches), made of cherry-wood, and containing three departments for drawing paper and materials, and 16 different views for copying. The slate is detachable, and may be used for school purposes. In case of breakage, any slate 6½ by 10 will exactly fit the desk. John D. Emack is sole manufacturer.

A NEW epidemic has broken out—namely, the collecting of insurance calendars. One gentleman has thirty-three, so far, and is hungering for more.

MR. SMITH, who is purchasing agent for H. B. Nims & Co., Troy, N. Y., was in town last week. Messrs. Nims & Co. are the headquarters for the genuine soapstone pencils, and supply the jobbing trade directly from their quarries.

HENRY BAINBRIDGE & Co. have just received from Europe some new and attractive cut-glass inkstands and other novelties; also, an extensive variety of flat papers.

THOMAS LE COUNT, Esq., the resident buyer of the large and enterprising house of Le Count Brothers & Manson, San Francisco, started for California this week.

SCARCELY have the Western and Southern trade recovered from their arduous duties of the holidays, when the numerous Eastern agents in the stationery line are swooping down upon them like the last year's locusts, seeking what they can devour.

THE city for the past few days has been honored by the presence of numerous Western and Southern buyers, and there is every indication, if one may judge from the amount of goods ordered, of a large spring trade.

MESSRS. SLOTE, WOODMAN & Co. continue to supply the jobbing trade with their excellent and varied line of blank-books. Daniel Slote, Esq., is an old traveller of bygone days, and still enjoys a quiet trip among his numerous customers once or twice a year, and is always well received.

WHEN are we to have a new arrangement as regards the extra baggage business? This is not a conundrum.

MESSRS. INGALLS & Co., Newark, N. J., have a neat and elegant store a few doors from Broad street on Academy street. During the holidays their stock was of the most elegant and desirable kind, and their line of books of the finest description. They do an extensive printing and blank-book business with the principal banks and insurance companies in the city, also with the Board of Education and city government.

MARTIN R. DENNIS is an old-established house, and has a remarkably fine line of stationery and books. His wedding stock, artistic stamping, and party invitations are extremely fine. The two sons of Mr. Dennis superintend the general details of the business.

BUSINESS NOTES.

THE Supreme Court of Massachusetts, Devens J., has ordered an injunction to issue, on the suit of Lee & Shepard, for the Globe Card Co., manufacturers of the "Globe Playing Cards," against William F. Miller and Frank S. Montgomery, manufacturers, under the style of the "Globe Playing Card Co.," of the "Globe Water-proof Playing Card." In June, 1874, I. N. Richardson copyrighted the circular playing cards, having also other novel features, for which a patent was granted him in October, 1874. An edition was put in the market in December, 1874, when the defendants, after vainly endeavoring to arrange with the patentee, began the manufacture of a similar card, designated as above. The defendants showed that they entered a trade-mark in 1875, and endeavored to show priority, but the court ordered them to be restrained from using the word "Globe" in the manufacture or sale of playing cards, or else that they give a bond of $2000 to pay all damages to Lee & Shepard (which bond may be increased at the option of the court), and to report sales to the court every month. Further suits are to be brought in defence of the Richardson patent by Lee & Shepard.

THE United States Government having proposed to manufacture stamped envelopes water-marked "U. S. Centennial," for use at the Centennial Exhibition, Porter & Bainbridge entered objection at the Post-Office Department against such infringement of their copyright use of the word "Centennial" as a trade-mark for paper, envelopes, and cards, entered April 15, 1875. The opinion of the Patent-Office is thus stated: "If the word 'Centennial' be a lawful trade-mark for the purpose stated—and as at present advised it is the opinion of the office that it is—and Messrs. Porter & Bainbridge have acquired an exclusive title to said trade-mark (the fact of registration under the statute does not give such title), then the proposed use by the Post-Office Department of said mark as a trade-mark would clearly be an infringement of the rights of the registrants. It is not understood, however, that the Post-Office Department designs using the word in question as a trade-mark, since it is not to indicate where, or by, or for whom the stamped envelopes are made, but is itself a distinctive or integral part of the stamped envelopes." Dr. Macdonald, Centennial Commissioner for the Post-Office Department, in transmitting the decision, states, in substance, that he therefore understands that the Government might use the word if it wished to, but it is so long the Government doesn't wish to, and therefore it won't, and consequently Messrs. Porter & Bainbridge's "rights and privileges, real or imaginary," "are not to be disregarded, trampled upon, imperilled, or otherwise affected by the action of this department." This is really beautiful, and we trust Messrs. Porter & Bainbridge are grateful.

THE copartnership of Dodd & Mead expired by limitation January 31st. The partners, Frank H. Dodd and Edward S. Mead, have associated with them Mr. Bleecker Van Wagenen, and will continue the business in the style of Dodd, Mead & Co. We are glad to welcome the new partner into the trade.

THE Congregational Publishing Society, Boston, will hereafter appear as the Boston Publishing Society, in the imprint of books not of special denominational character.

THE interest of R. W. Smith & Co., bookbinders, in work done for different publishers, has been bought out by G. W. Alexander.

THE American News Company purchased on Saturday last the old United States Court Building on Chambers street, between Broadway and Centre street, for $180,000. This building has an interesting history: in 1842 it was Palmo's Opera-House, and in 1846 Burton's Theatre.

THE liabilities of Mr. Patrick Donahue, of Boston, are estimated by the committee of four appointed by the creditors at about $308,000, including some $50,000 or $60,000 of mutual indorsements with A. W. Lovering. The assets are rated by the committee to aggregate $216,000.

MESSRS. WILLIAM F. GILL & Co. have compromised with their creditors at fifteen cents on the dollar, cash. They inform us that "their business has not been materially interrupted by their temporary difficulties."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

MESSRS. JOHN WILEY & SONS inform us that they have now in press, and will shortly issue, two works of great practical and theoretical value; first, "Notes on the Mechanical Theory of Heat," by P. P. Poinier, Esq., of Stevens Institute, Hoboken. This work is designed as a text-book, and also for scientific reference. The theory is expanded and developed by the aid of the calculus, and is treated in the most thorough manner. The author solves and explains equations used in Rankin's Treatise, many of which have not been thoroughly understood, except among mathematicians of the higher grade. Several leading institutions have adopted the work as a text-book, in advance of its issue, on the manuscript, and there being but a limited literature on the subject of Heat, especially as solved by higher mathematics, it is safe to use, in regard to this work, the old hackneyed phrase, "it fills a gap long felt" in the province to which it appertains. It will be issued in a remarkably neat style, the printing being of a superior character, and similar to that employed in the standard English mathematical works. Second, "Architectural Iron-Work," by W. J. Fryer. This work is entirely practical, and contains the results of many years' experience. Portions of it have appeared in the Iron Age, as communications. In addition to these, the author has appended many valuable tables. The work treats of the organization and mechanical and financial management of a foundry and shops for manufacturing architectural iron-work, also giving specifications and valuable suggestions. The author has collected results, tabulated them, and now presents them in a practical and simple form, capable of being understood by any one. The work is illustrated by many designs, such as plans and elevation of an iron foundry constructed in the most economical and convenient manner, giving the best form of cupola, etc. It is intended, in a word, to give just what a practical man wants to know; such ideas and knowledge as will cut off many expenses heretofore thought essential to the proper management of this business. It will be issued at a moderate price, so that it may easily be within the grasp of the men it is designed for—namely, practical iron-workers.

A NOTABLE volume on "Contemporary Evolution," by St. George Mivart, will soon be published by King in London and the Appletons in New-York. This will be a review of the present course and tendency of philosophical speculations, scientific advance, and social and political change, in so far as they affect Christianity. It will also discuss the probable effects upon the Church and society generally of the further continuation of the process of evolution. In addition, it touches on the effect which may hereafter be produced on Christian art by the further evolution of Catholic opinion.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. are to publish a volume of papers by Dr. Samuel Osgood bearing upon the thought and life of our century, under the title, "Our Cycle: Notes of Persons and Principles."

THE Appletons' "Picturesque Europe" will be published in London in monthly parts by Messrs. Cassell, Petter & Galpin.

A VOLUME of essays by Mr. J. R. Green, author of "A Short History of the English People," which have appeared from time to time in various periodicals, will be published by Macmillan & Co., and probably by Harper & Bros. The general title of the volume, which contains papers on subjects of social, historical, and literary interest, will be "Stray Studies in Italy and England."

PROF. YONGE, of Queen's College, Belfast, has written "A Life of Marie Antoinette, Queen of France," which will be published in two volumes by Hurst & Blackett, London.

A MONOGRAPH on "Spinal Paralysis," by Rev. E. C. Seguin, is to be issued by G. P. Putnam's Sons.

A HISTORY of the Rothschilds, written by one of them, is to be published at Paris. It will contain some letters of Napoleon hitherto not printed.

ANOTHER novel, by Edgar Fawcett, called "Asses' Ears," is to be published by G. W. Carleton & Co.

A LIFE of Hans Christian Andersen is being prepared by Miss Wood, the translator of "The Dead Cities of the Zuyder Zee."

EMILE BELMONT, of the Paris Rappel, has a French translation of the dramas of Shelley nearly finished, and will now undertake his lyric works.

A DEALER who has made extensive use of our columns for procuring and exchanging books, bears cheerful testimony to their usefulness. On the last batch advertised for, he writes he had a dozen or more quotations, two the first day.

THE publication of Charles Sumner's works has come to a standstill, the fund left by him for completing the edition having been expended. Several volumes remain to be edited and printed.

The Globe Playing Card.

OUR Circular Playing Cards possess many advantages over the cards in common use, and are in no respect inferior. Use them enough to become familiar with them, and you will never use any other. It will require but little time to do this, and you will be a hundred fold repaid by greater ease, rapidity, and certainty in playing.

ADVANTAGES OF THE GLOBE CARD.

Great Durability; Wear Twice as Long as the Old Style. The old cards soon turn up at the corners, split, wear off, and become ragged and uneven, and in consequence handle badly, and are thrown aside and replaced by new ones; but circular cards wear equally on the edges, and last twice as long as the common cards.

More Ease in Shuffling, Dealing, and Playing. The old cards get crossed on the table, and this causes delay in arranging them relatively to their length and breadth, which retards the game; but circular cards are always right relatively to each other, and are ready for use as soon as in the hand. No vexatious delays in arranging them ready to shuffle or play. Moreover, they shuffle better than the old cards; but this cannot be demonstrated on paper; use them and see. Further, the circular cards lie more easily and naturally in the hollow of the hand.

Rapid Playing without Mistakes. We use a characteristic color to each suit. This is an important advantage; it enables a player to assort his cards, and select, at a glance, the cards of the same suit by the color alone. No need of looking at the shape of the emblem, or spot, so called, for the color indicates the suit, and the numeral, or figure, the size. This enables persons to play with rapidity and ease, and few mistakes. In fact, after a little practice, one will play by color and figure, instead of by shape and number of spots, as at present.

Using Numerals, or Figures, in Four Colors, on the Edges, to show the Size and Suit. These figures are placed at convenient distances around the edge, and are printed in the same color as the spots. The color of the figure shows the suit, and the figure itself shows the size. This enables you to hold a very large hand in a compact shape, to see your whole hand at once, and recognize every card without moving, it only being necessary to let one card overlap another enough to display the figure on the margin, and you can play with perfect ease, with rapidity, and without danger of any one seeing your hand. Prying eyes, whether innocent or dishonest, will be baffled.

A sample pack sent to any part of the United States, by mail, postpaid, on receipt of 75 cents. Dealers supplied at low terms. Wholesale Price Lists furnished on application to

NOTES IN SEASON.

ONE of the most important features of the spring will be the commencement of the new edition of Bancroft's great History. Mr. Bancroft has thoroughly revised the work, and recast it into six volumes for this "Centenary Edition," which Little, Brown & Co. will issue monthly from this date, at the reduced price of $2.25 per volume. Here is a good centennial investment.

The Moody & Sankey literature is still growing. A. D. F. Randolph & Co. will publish at once reports of the addresses to Christian workers at the meetings held in the Fifth Avenue Collegiate Church, preparatory to the coming of the evangelists. The volume is called, "Words in Season: For Inquirers and the Inquiry Meetings."

FROM one of those mistakes in copy, which will happen in the best-regulated families, "Dana's Text-Book on Mineralogy," in preparation by Wiley & Sons, masqueraded in their advertisement last week as a text-book on Geology.

THE first book issued by Sheldon & Co. from their new store is Justin McCarthy's novel of "Dear Lady Disdain," first published in the Galaxy. Its pictures of scenes and portraits of people in a Western University town lend an additional interest to the story.

AMONG the earliest publications of the Scribners will be the volume of poems by that fresh and wholesome writer, Prof. Blackie, Mr. W. S. Gilbert's charming plays in verse "The Wicked World," "Pygmalion and Galatea," "Charity," "The Princess," "The Palace of Truth," and "Trial by Jury," will also be reprinted by them in a neat volume. A new story,

"Miss Hitchcock's Wedding Dress," from the author of "Mrs. Jerningham's Journal," is said to be exceptionally bright. A compilation of "Plato's Best Thoughts," in Jowett's translation, compiled by Rev. C. H. A. Bulkley, is also nearly ready: it will be within the compass of one of the Dialogues volumes, and will afford to the general reader a valuable key to the riches of the larger treasure-houses.

AMONG the immediate publications of Harper & Bros. will be Prof. Swinton's "Bible Word-Book," a dictionary of archaic terms found in the Bible, in very neat shape; Mrs. Oliphant's charming new novel of "The Curate in Charge;" and another novel of Australian life, by Marcus Clark, called "His Natural Life."

WE have from the English press the interesting information that Macmillan & Co. are to issue a series of illustrations to Shakespeare's plays, engraved on steel from designs by several distinguished German artists. An explanatory letter-press, consisting of extracts selected from the writings of all the best critics of Shakespeare, has been prepared by Prof. Dowden. The work will be in one quarto volume, and there will also be an edition in folio, containing artists' proofs of the engravings.

A NEW edition of that standard work on China, "The Middle Kingdom," by Dr. S. Wells Williams, is to be published by John Wiley & Sons. They will also publish a new edition of Leed's important work on Ventilation, revised by the author.

A NEW and cheaper edition, in one volume, of Rev. Justus Doolittle's well-known work on the "Social Customs of the Chinese," which is in preparation at the Harpers', will be a curiosity in binding. The front cover will be blazoned, in Chinese characters, with the "silver rule" of Confucius in silver at the one side, and the "golden rule" of Jesus in gold at the other.

A NEW work by Rev. William M. Baker, author of "Inside," etc., is promised by Harper & Bros. It is called "Carter Quarterman."

A NEW edition of Hooker's valuable Textbook of Chemistry, revised and enlarged, is to be issued by Harper & Brothers.

THE Homeric Dictionary, prepared on the basis of Autenrieth's German work, by Rev.
 Robert J. Keep, long our Consul at Athens, is approaching publication at Harper & Bros.
 It will be a handy 12mo, of about 300 pages, and, wherever it is found useful, the word defined or explained is followed by a picture of the object, etc., making it also a pictorial handbook of Grecian antiquities. The Greek type used for the words is of a very clear and handsome face, of European make, and the book has been curiously delayed for several months because of the difficulty of finding capitals and accents needed.

AMONG several new educational books of Nelson & Phillips, the new edition of Butler's Analogy, with introduction, notes, etc., by Pres. Cummings, is especially noteworthy.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FEBRUARY 12, 1876.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry and for notice in "Books Received." The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries." Notes from librarians will also be gratefully received.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

THE PRIZE QUESTION ON BIOGRAPHY.

OUR new plan of calling out from the trade the results of their experience as to which are the most desirable books to have in stock, in the several departments of literature, has awakened more interest than we had hoped for. To the first question, "Which are the most salable books in biography?" submitted four weeks ago, we have received 23 answers, from all parts of the country, and it has been no little work to register these results for decision. We present herewith not only the successful list, but several analyses of the returns, which will be found useful as a practical guide to the trade and interesting as a literary curiosity to the general reader.

The decision was made by counting each entry of a book a vote for that book, crediting the total number of votes for each book opposite its entry in each list, and adding these to make a criterion for that list. The successful list, that of Mr. Charles E. Butler, with J. B. Lippincott & Co., to whom the prize of $5 has been forwarded, showed a total of 235, and is as follows, the numbers to the right giving the total number of lists in which the book in question was entered :

As in most of the lists, preference is here given to those editions with which the writer has local associations. That no injustice may be done to publishers of other editions, we give the statements of preference in all the lists as to the books marked with an asterisk above.

Irving's Biographies (Putnam and Lippincott), People's edition, 22 ; Knickerbocker, 13. Boswell's Johnson, 2 v., 8°, $4 (Harper), 6 ; 4 v., cr. 8°, $5 (Routledge), 4 ; 4 v., 12°, $6 (Claxton), 3. Plutarch's Lives, 5 vols., 8°, $15 (Little, Brown & Co.), 8 ; 1 v., 8°, $2 (Harper), 7. Strickland. Queens of England, 6 v., 12° (Bohn, Appleton, Lippincott), 6 ; 7 v., 8° (James Miller, Thompson, B & Co.), 3. Carlyle, Frederick the Great, 6 v., 12°, $12 (Harper), 7 ; 10 v., 16° (Lippincott, Scribner, etc.), 4. Hare's Memorials (Routledge, Randolph), both editions (1 and 2 v.), 5 each.

The list of John W. Wints, Jr., with Turnbull Bros., Baltimore, came second, with a total of 219 ; to him we have forwarded a copy of the Trade-List Annual. That of R. G. Wynkoop & Co., Syracuse, N. Y., was third, with a total of 212. The lowest count was 136.

To show how widespread has been the interest in this question, as well as acknowledgment of the efforts of our correspondents, we give a list of the other competitors, in the order received :

We shall not undertake to give hereafter these full analyses of the results, but in some cases they may be found of sufficient interest to the trade to warrant such use of space. Answers to the second question, "Which are the most salable works on agriculture?" submitted with revised rules in the last issue, and open to all subscribers or employees of subscribers to the WEEKLY, must be filed by February 26th, and the results will appear March 4th.

This system of prize lists serves a double purpose: in quickening the interest of the trade in these important questions, and especially in inducing the clerks and younger men to educate themselves as to their business, and in serving as the basis of an inclosure catalogue of the leading books in all departments, which it is our ultimate intention to prepare for the trade.

COMMUNICATIONS.

[MANY letters of interest and importance have recently been crowded out, and we have again to crave the indulgence of their writers. We trust to print most of them in our next issue.—ED.]

THE PRIZE QUESTION.

[The successful candidate for the biography prize actually browbeats us into a favorable decision by the coolness of his letter, which we reprint in turn herewith.—ED.]

PHILA., January 24, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

At your earnest solicitation (indirectly) I have complied with your wishes, and herewith send you the above, as undoubtedly the most salable works on biography at the present time ; indeed, on this point I have no shadow of a doubt, nor have I any but that it will appear published in full in the WEEKLY, as the one winning the valuable prize. Now, I take it as highly probable that you will unhesitatingly take me severely to task for so conceited a remark. I could offer many apologies, such as old age, dotage, etc., but time and space being alike valuable, I deem it best to offer none, but trust entirely to your well-known clemency, of which many instances could to your advantage be quoted. I can assure you that, immediately on the money's arrival, I will send you a receipt for the amount.

Hoping I may soon have the opportunity so to do, and that you will pardon this effusion, and wishing you success in your new undertaking, believe me, I remain,

Yours respectfully,
CHARLES E. BUTLER,
with J. B. Lippincott & Co.

[A distinguished member of the trade in Chicago, in forwarding a list, rather of standard than popular works, wrote the following interesting letter, which the trade will be glad to see.—ED.]

CHICAGO, January 21, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

You invite answers to a series of test questions which you propose to put before the trade, as to which are the standard and most salable books in each branch of literature. This will be an entertaining and exceedingly profitable method of expressing and interchanging the opinions of the trade ; and it is hoped that the "coming booksellers," the book clerks, will avail themselves of this original and most excellent idea, and send in their contributions freely.

To embrace within the limits of twenty-five titles the most salable standard works in biography, as called for in your "Prize Question, No. 1," is a difficult task, as the material is so abundant.

Prominent among the vast array of authors in Biography is the great work of Allibone, whose "Dictionary of Authors" will stand unrivalled as long as the English language is spoken. "Drake's Dictionary of American Biography" and "Appleton's Cyclopædia of Biography" are invaluable to any library, either public or private.

Under the head of General Biography, the following-named works at once suggest themselves: Campbell's "Lives of the Lord Chancellors," and his "Lives of the Chief Justices;" Mrs. Jameson's "Celebrated Female Sovereigns," Lamartine's "Celebrated Characters," Martineau's "Biographical Sketches," Parton's "Famous Americans," Plutarch's "Lives," Shel's "Sketches of the Irish Bar," Smiles' "Brief Biographies," and his "Lives of Engineers," Stoddard's "Bric-à-Brac Series," and Strickland's "Queens of England and Scotland."

In American Biography the conspicuous works are the Lives of John Q. Adams and of John Adams, Audubon's Life, Lyman Beecher's Autobiography, the Lives of Daniel Boone, Aaron Burr, Kit Carson, Rufus Choate, Henry Clay, Ben. Franklin, Horace Greeley, Nathaniel Greene, FitzGreene Halleck, William Wirt, Andrew Jackson, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln, Francis Marion, Madame Ossoli, Theodore Parker, J. K. Percival, W. H. Prescott, Josiah Quincy, Miles Standish, Joseph Story, George Washington, and Daniel Webster.

In English Biography we at once recall the lives of such men as Edmund Burke, Lord Byron, Robert Chambers, W. H. Curran, Oliver Cromwell, Charles Dickens, Oliver Goldsmith, Sir Henry Holland, Edward Irving, Samuel Johnson, Charles Lamb, John Milton, F. W. Robertson, Sir Walter Scott, William Shakespeare, Sir Philip Sydney, George and Robert Stephenson, John Wesley, and the Duke of Wellington.

In Foreign Biography the favorites are Beethoven, Beranger, Miss Bremer, Cæsar, Cicero, Dante, Goethe, Madame Guyon, Lafayette, Lamartine, Luther, Mendelssohn, Mozart, Napoleon I., Napoleon III., Niebuhr, Pascal, Madame Recamier, Richter, Schiller, Stockmar, Swedenborg, Thorwaldsen, and St. Francis Xavier.

And then comes the difficult task of selecting from so many jewels the ones most brilliant.

Yours truly, D. B. COOKE.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 28, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

In 1813 there was published at Trenton, N. J., "The New-Jersey Preacher." In the preface is a promise that "if sufficient encouragement be given, we hope at no distant period to present to the public another volume," etc. Was that second volume ever made?

"The Spirit of Masonry" was written by William Hutchinson, and published in Alexandria in 1800. Did he write any other books on that subject?

"Historical Memoirs of Stephanie Louise de Bourbon Conti." Newbern, 1801. No publisher's imprint. What Newbern is that?

On a fly-leaf of the same is the following: "The property of Edudr Mason, 9 day of April 1838:

"Stele not this Book Mi Onest Frende
Four fear the Gales Will Be yoren End
For Gesis Crist will come and say
War is that Book tha was stold away."

Why, by the way, is the fly-leaf so called?

An old gentleman stepped in to show me some of his old coins. Among others he handed out a Nova Cesarea. "Ah," said I, "an old New-Jersey cent." "No, sir," said he, "that's a furrin coin—that's a Nova Scotia cent." By the way, if you know of any magazine devoted to Numismatics, be pleased to state the address.

What book or books will give reliable information in regard to valuable old books?

I have heard that some gentleman in New-York has a copy of every edition of "Pilgrim's Progress" ever made. Can you give me his address?

Yours truly, E. VOSSELLER,
Bookseller and Stationer.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

THE TRUE ORDER OF STUDIES, by Thomas Hill. (G. P. Putnam's Sons.) We have in this work Mr. Hill's theory of study best adapted in his judgment for the best development of the intellectual faculties. He places Mathematics as the basis and Theology at the apex of his theory, the intermediate stages being Physics, History, and Psychology—these five heads embracing, in his opinion, all possible objects of human thought. He tells us he does not leave out physical training because he thinks it of any less importance than the intellectual, but he devotes himself to the latter because he has something to say about it. This "something" will be found new and refreshing and suggestive, and of great aid to educators. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

A PAYING INVESTMENT, by Anna E. Dickinson. (James R. Osgood & Co.) Miss Dickinson earnestly appeals in this little volume for a more thorough and liberal education for the masses. We Americans are so used to taking it for granted that our school system excels all other nations', and in its working reaches all classes of people, making education almost universal among us, that we can not but be a little startled by the statistics she presents us with. By these we are forced to admit how far we fall below Germany in general education, and how far below all European nations in industrial and technical schools and educational means, provided and supported by the government for training the people in the highest branches of arts and sciences. The man of general information is so common among us, and so national a type, that we are loath to recognize the importance of special training, and the great need in all industrial branches for highly educated workmen—workmen whose every faculty has been developed to the fullest, through a study of art and science. We have devoted a little more space than usual to this little volume, as it seems to us to just hit a national need, and somewhat solve the problem of how we shall diminish our great army of paupers. 12mo, cloth, $1.

THE STORY OF THE APOSTLES, by the author of "Peep of Day." (Robert Carter & Bros.) The numerous parables by which the teachings of Jesus Christ are illustrated, are treated of in this volume in a simple and pleasing style, making them eminently desirable for children's reading. They will be found both instructive and entertaining to young minds. 16mo, illustrated, $1.

THE BOOK CALLED JOB. From the Hebrew, by Oliver S. Halsted. (Jennings & Hardham.) A new translation of this grand old Hebrew poem has been made by Mr. Halsted, irrespective of all such authorities as the Douay and the King James versions of the Scriptures. To show the different renderings of passages, and where he has differed from others, he has interspersed his work with innumerable foot-notes, presenting passages as taken from the Roman Catholic Douay, the Diodati Italian, rendered into English, and as given in parts in Gesenius' Hebrew and English Lexicon. This constant comparison offers every facility for study to the student, and renders the translation of peculiar value. 12mo, cloth, $1.

VICK'S FLOWER AND VEGETABLE GARDEN. (James Vick, Rochester.) This very beautiful publication must not be confused in the reader's mind with Vick's very desirable quarterly, issued under the name of the "Floral Guide." This is a work by itself, selling for the ridiculous price of thirty-five cents, illustrated in the very finest manner by countless engravings through the text, and four full-page lithographs of flowers in their natural colors, very handsomely and brilliantly gotten up. The work is intended as a guide to the buying of seeds and the planting and making of flower and vegetable gardens. We can give no adequate idea of the wealth of its contents, it is so varied, but advise all lovers of this delightful outdoor recreation to lose no time in sending for the book.

OUR OLD HOME, by Nathaniel Hawthorne. (James R. Osgood & Co.) The last addition to the new popular edition, uniform with "Little Classics." Containing Mr. Hawthorne's account of consular experience, and his sketches of English people and scenery. $1.25.

MÉTHODE RATIONALE POUR APPRENDRE L'ANGLAIS, and RATIONAL METHOD FOR LEARNING FRENCH, First Book, by Claude Marcel. (D. Appleton & Co.) The method of this little work seems to us especially well adapted to leading the English student through his first difficulties with French, or the French student through English. The book combines two objects in a very ingenious manner—one page being English and the next French throughout—one being a literal translation of the other, except in parts of the introduction, where the word English has to be substituted for the word French. Interesting reading-matter makes up the rest of the work, the object of the author being in this the first book that the student shall master a vocabulary of words and phrases through the sight before attacking pronunciation and grammar. This is to be accomplished through constant repetitions of the same words and phrases in the reading lessons. The work, assisted by its admirable introduction, could be used without a teacher, as the author's theory is that a perfect and intelligent reading of French or English can be obtained through the organ of sight. To speak or write it, he considers a teacher indispensable, and offers other works based upon the same method to facilitate this purpose. 16mo, boards. 50 cents.

ILLUSTRATED SCHOOL HISTORY OF THE WORLD, by John D. Quackenbos, A.M., M.D. (D. Appleton & Co.) Mr. Quackenbos's work is the outgrowth of a long-felt want in schools for a history of the world which should be at the same time comprehensive in its scope and condensed within moderate limits. This work is not only this, but also fresh and attractive in its style and treatment, and very thorough and accurate. The plan he has followed gives a very clear idea of each period of history, both as to its revolutions and wars, and the intellectual development of the people. Taking great events in their chronological order, and selecting the nation most prominent as an actor in an event as a central figure, he has grouped contemporaneous nations around it, giving their respective histories together, so far as they bear upon the event in question. He has succeeded in this way in presenting a connected and very satisfactory view of general history brought down to the present time. The volume is very well illustrated by a number of maps and engravings. 12mo, cloth. $1.75.

LANGUAGE LESSONS, by Miss P. W. Sudlow and W. E. Crosby. (Day, Egbert & Fidler.) A new and revised edition of a little work that has grown in popular favor. The revision is designed to still further aid both teachers and pupils in the important work of composition in school. Boards, 35 cents.

FRENCH CHILDREN AT HOME, by Madame De Peyrac. (D. Appleton & Co.) Madame De Peyrac offers this little volume as an introduction to her former work, "Comment on parle à Paris." It is intended to be both useful and amusing—in fact, to unconsciously instruct while appearing to entertain. We find the same characters in it as in "Comment on parle à Paris," only as they appeared in the days of their childhood. The Marcel system has been followed throughout the volume. 12mo, cloth.

CHIPS FROM A GERMAN WORKSHOP, by F. Max Müller, M.A. (Scribner, Armstrong & Co.) This, the fourth volume, contains chiefly essays on the science of language, such as the "Rede Lecture on the Stratification of Language," "Lecture on the Results of the Science of Language," "Address on the Importance of Oriental Studies." There are besides his celebrated lecture "On Missions," and "On the Migration of Fables," and on "The Life of Colebrooke." The work contains also the index to vols. III. and IV. The value and importance of this collection of philological essays is too well known, we believe, to need comment. 12mo, cloth, $2.50.

HUGH CHESTON'S VOW, by Mrs. Lucy N. Spottswood. (Methodist Episcopal Book and Pub. House.) A semi-religious story for children's reading, relating how a little boy made a vow to forever hate the mother his father brings home, to replace his own mother.

His stepmother's love and forbearance finally conquer him, and his vow is relinquished. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

ELMWOOD, by Katie L. (Kelly, Piet & Co.) This is one of those stories, written by a firm adherent to the doctrines of the Roman Catholic Church, which needs unbounded faith as a foundation for its just appreciation. It is the story of a crime, related in quite a vivid manner, but interspersed with so much that is purely miraculous, that it is only adapted for the perusal of young Catholic readers. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

MY YOUNG ALCIDES, by Charlotte M. Yonge. (Macmillan & Co.) Harold Alison, the modern Hercules of this story, is the son of an Australian convict—a man of family and position who had been transported in his young days for having sympathized so far with the people as to take part in the agricultural riots. Harold comes to England with his brother, who is the heir to his grandfather's estate; he is a young man, of a powerful frame and almost gigantic height, and with almost giant passions, which have been nurtured by his rough colonial training. The Herculean tasks he sets himself and achieves in subduing his evil propensities are very thrilling and romantic, but seem most too far above mere human nature to win entire sympathy. The young man appears more like the Hercules of fable, than a flesh and blood creation of the present day. The story, however, is exceedingly interesting, and is told in Miss Yonge's best style. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

ROUND MY HOUSE, by Philip Gilbert Hamerton. (Roberts Brothers.) Mr. Hamerton's book gives fair and truthful transcripts of life in the provinces of France. He loses sight of himself entirely in his writings, showing no evidence of a desire to appear smart or witty; hence he has succeeded in giving a most dispassionate description of the French character as it is found at present in the rural districts. He writes with grace and fluency, and invests a subject that has already been much written about, with freshness and interest. Sq. 12mo, cloth, $2.

CHRISTMAS STORIES, by Charles Dickens. (Harper & Brothers.) We find in this volume all the various Christmas stories Dickens wrote: "Somebody's Luggage," "Mrs. Lirriper's Lodgings," "Mrs. Lirriper's Legacy," "Dr. Marigold," "The Boy at Mugby," etc., besides the first stories he wrote under that title and originally published together, such as "The Chimes," "The Cricket on the Hearth," "The Battle of Life," etc. A remarkably cheap and well gotten up edition of this author's works. Sq. 8vo, illustrated, cloth, $1.50; paper, $1.

THE DEVIL'S CHAIN, by Edward Jenkins, M.P. (Harper & Brothers.) Intemperance is the subject of this little book, and is the chain by which his satanic majesty encircles the whole world. The evils wrought by the demon drink in all classes of English life are set forth with terrible distinctness and a fearful realism, making the subject most repulsive reading, though there can be no doubt of the moral the work teaches in every line and page. It should be a powerful instrument in the hands of reformers, for certainly nothing could be more vivid than the picture it presents. 16mo, cloth, 75 cents; paper, 50 cents.

PERCY BYSSHE SHELLEY, AS A PHILOSOPHER AND REFORMER, by Charles Sotheran. (Charles P. Somerby.) In a little pamphlet of fifty pages, Mr. Sotheran attempts to awaken new interest and sympathy for the brief life and tragical death of Percy Bysshe Shelley, by presenting him as a liberal far in advance of his age, and as one who sacrificed life and reputation to his principles. Mr. Sotheran is an enthusiastic partisan, and has culled every thing from the writings of Shelley which can in any way support the somewhat startling theories his essay advances. The pamphlet contains an original sonnet to the memory of Shelley, by Charles W. Frederickson, and a wood-cut, giving a view of Shelley's tomb at Rome. 8vo, paper, $1; cloth, $1.25.

THE GOVERNMENT LIBRARY VOLUME.

THE work on libraries, to be issued by the Bureau of Education, will be of much wider scope than was at first contemplated. How soon the main volume will be ready is problematical, as the work has quite outgrown the calculations for it; but the manual for librarians on the cataloguing of libraries will be published as a second part at once. This will give an interesting summary of the methods and systems in use in the prominent libraries, and present a system which is intended to combine their best features. This is, of course, on the modern arrangement of the most specific divisions, arranged alphabetically to form a subject index, and not on the old plan, as set forth in Jewett's work, of preserving the general and subdivisions of a scientific analysis of knowledge, like a genealogical tree. Of the first volume, the chief feature will be the statistics of libraries in this country. These tables will include all live, growing libraries (private excepted) of 500 volumes each. The minimum of 1000 was first set, but as it was considered that a library of 500 at the time of record would have at least 1000 books by the time of publication, the limit was lowered. This will take in between 4000 and 5000 libraries, including public libraries proper and society libraries; those of law, medical, and like institutions; of colleges, academies, high-schools, and common-schools. In each case, when possible, the specialty of the library will be pointed out, as Shakespeariana at the Boston, American history at the Congressional, political science at the Sacramento Library. In the case of several leading libraries, there will be a thorough and informing analysis of their contents. A chapter on library buildings will give plans of model libraries, and other divisions of library economy will be treated of in chapters by the foremost librarians of the country, Messrs. Spofford, Winsor, Cutter, Poole, and others. The amount of labor which this undertaking has required is incalculable; the editors, Mr. Warren and Major Clark, have been steadily at work upon it for a year and a half already.—Tribune.

THE new tariff bill seems to contain no new features connected with the book or cognate trades, except that parchment is put upon the free list.

LIBRARY AND BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTES.

THE Apprentices' Library, 472 Broadway, New-York, is especially designed for the use of working boys and girls, to whom is offered a varied collection of over 54,000 volumes. It has been determined to erect a commodious building in a more central location, at a cost of $600,000. When completed, many thousand volumes will be added, and the privileges of the library extended. The Library Society is said to be the wealthiest of its kind in the United States, possessing over $900,000 in its own right. There is annually expended for its various benevolent interests $30,000, and over $8900 is paid out in pensions to the widows and children of deceased members, the balance being used for the maintenance of its library and school.

THE Trustees of the Astor Library have just presented their annual report, reporting a marked improvement in the several phases of library conditions. On the 1st of January, 1875, there were in the library 150,306 volumes. During the past year there have been added, by donation, 1739 volumes; by purchase, 401 volumes; in all, 2140 volumes—making the whole number of books in the library on the 1st of January, 1876, 152,446 volumes. Of these additions there were in bibliography, 83; education, 54; natural history, 118; medicine and surgery, 123; patents, 152; American history, 444; British history, 191; German history, 99. In 1874 127,579 volumes were delivered to 34,854 readers, and in 1875 135,065 volumes to 36,735, making the increase in books read 7486 volumes, and in readers 1881. In 1860 the number of books delivered was 59,516, showing that the increase in 16 years in books read was 75,549, or 129 per cent. The population of the city increased from 1860 to 1875 from 814,254 to 988,618, or 174,364, being only 22 per cent—showing a striking increase in the public demand for books of the character found in the library. Of the 135,065 volumes read only 5028 were novels. The property has increased from the original bequest of $400,000 by the founder of the library to $778,356.30.

THE new (fifth) volume of Freeman's "History of the Norman Conquest," nearly ready in London, is to contain a full examination of Domesday, and will prove, it is said, an invaluable addition to the early legal literature and history of England.

HARVARD College library has received $54,000 for the purchase of books during the year 1874-75. The library has at present an annual income of more than $10,000, exclusively devoted to the purchase of books. Gore Hall will no longer contain the library. Books are now piled upon the floors in many parts of the building, while the funds for buying books yield an annual income sufficient for the purchase of from 7000 to 10,000 volumes a year. The only remedy is to build a large fire-proof addition to Gore Hall on the eastern side, a serious undertaking which the corporation at last proposes to brave. As usual, for the important work of cataloguing and for running expenses, the library has no special funds.

THE Library of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin numbers, according to the new report, about 32,000 volumes, and as many pamphlets: there are 2467 newspaper volumes alone. "A set of cards of the three-card monte game, by which a passenger on the Union Pacific Railroad lost $1500," is acknowledged among the additions to the cabinet.

THE Independent pays a deserved compliment in saying that "the management of the Brooklyn Mercantile Library is in excellent hands, and the institution is rapidly and steadily becoming one of the most important collections of books in the country. It now contains 52,000 volumes, divided as follows: biography, history, travels, etc., 12,000; works of reference and bound periodicals, 9500; novels and tales, 10,000; works on philosophy, education, and the fine arts, 3200; works in foreign languages, 2100; poetry, drama, essay, etc., 4100; works on political and social science, 2500; theological works, 3900; scientific works and books on the useful arts, 4700. The admirable proportion and balance of these figures is noticeable. In the important particular of cataloguing, the Brooklyn Mercantile Library stands among the foremost, both in its general and occasional lists."

BANCROFT, the historian, says an exchange, is now in the seventy-sixth year of his age. He entered college at the early age of thirteen, and graduated four years later with the second honors of his class. His first publication was a volume of poems in 1823. He has an exceedingly valuable and extensive private library, his house being literally packed with books, pamphlets, and papers. There are about 20,000 volumes in all, comprising works in all languages, of all eras, of all branches of literature and science, from his well-thumbed Homer to Draper's last. Mr. Bancroft's library is his own selection, and has few works that are obsolete or merely ornamental. He is quite fastidious in regard to his bindings, which are of the richer materials and in exquisite taste. One of Mr. Bancroft's peculiarities is his habit of clipping newspapers. He is a great newspaper reader, and scarcely ever finishes one without finding something in its columns worthy of a place in his scrap-book. His cyclopædias are mammoth collections of newspaper articles, which are pasted in between the leaves under the topics to which they refer.

BERTHOLD AUERBACH, "the younger," will be pleasantly called to mind through his brief sojourn among us a short time back. He has been exceedingly active both as writer and publisher since his return to Germany. His "Reise wider Willen," or, as it is translated, "Involuntary Travels," is spoken of by the German critics as a charming narrative, displaying much of his father's talent in its descriptions of nature. The book is illustrated by Doré, and was published by young Auerbach himself as a Christmas volume. He has recently added to his list of American books a translation of Franklin's autobiography, with portrait, a preface by Berthold Auerbach, Sr., and an introduction by Frederick Kapp. His publications are gotten up with a great deal of taste.

WILLIAM F. GILL & Co., having resumed business, announce that they have several important books in preparation, among them a reprint of "Robert Haydon's Correspondence."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE March Harpers' will be ready about the 20th, with most or all of the second book of "Daniel Deronda," called "Meeting Streams."

A CAREFUL and very full index to the first two volumes of Scribners' Monthly is in preparation and will soon be published.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, JR., will give in the March Atlantic a chapter on the State management of railroads in Belgium and France, which is prefatory to a treatment of railroad management in the United States. Henry Carey Baird writes on the inflation side of the money question. T. S. Perry gives a critique upon Cherbulliez. The leading practical feature will be a long story in verse, after a Roman legend, by T. B. Aldrich.

MR. JAMES E. MUNSON, the well-known phonographer, 34 Park Row, will commence, March 1st, a new semi-monthly, called Munson's Phonographic News. Each number will contain eight "medium octavo" pages, all (except title-page) printed entirely in phonographic characters, reproduced by the Graphic process from short-hand manuscript written by the editor. Terms, $2 a year in advance; single numbers, 10 cents.

TRADE journalism seems to be growing in all directions. The dyers' and bleachers' organ is now to be imported, Messrs. John Wiley & Sons having assumed the agency of The Textile Colorist, the edition of the first number of which they have now just received. It will be edited by Mr. Charles O'Neill, and will represent the interests of those engaged in the dyeing, coloring, etc., of textile fabrics, and the manufacture and application of coloring matters—a sufficiently large and important trade to need and insure the success of an organ.

THE Journal of Education, hitherto issued from Brooklyn, will hereafter be published from New-York, having its office at No. 751 Broadway. This is typographically a model magazine, and its contents seem to be in keeping with its dress.

In announcing that the publication of the Overland Monthly has ceased, the San Francisco Bulletin says: "The friends of Pacific-coast literature will regret to learn that the Overland Monthly has suspended publication. It commenced its brilliant but brief career in July, 1868, under the editorial management of Bret Harte, with A. Roman & Co. as publishers. Subsequently it passed into the hands of John H. Carmany & Co., who continued to publish it up to the time of its suspension with the close of the fifteenth volume in December. Since Mr. Harte's retirement from its editorial management, the magazine has been edited in turn by W. C. Bartlett, the late Benjamin P. Avery, and Walt. M. Fisher, the latter retiring two or three months before its demise. The Overland never has been a financial success, the field for a magazine of its high literary standing being too limited to support it. It was well known and perhaps better appreciated abroad than it was at home. The suspension is not to be permanent, the publishers intending at some future day to revive it."

REV. CRAMMOND KENNEDY has obtained the prize offered last fall by the Christian Union for the best essay on "The Liberty of the Press:

its Uses and Abuses." Mr. Kennedy was, we believe, the first editor of this now famous religious weekly.

STATIONERY NOTES.

THE Spectrographic Album, just introduced by William W. Harding, Philadelphia, is a simple arrangement by which any person may copy engravings, photographs, leaves, etc. (see illustrated advertisement in this number). It is useful to the artist and amateur, and furnishes an inexhaustible source of instruction and amusement for the young. There are two sizes now ready: folio, 6½ x 9½, bound in cloth and leather, at $1.50 and $2; and a small quarto, 5 x 6½, same binding as above, at $1 and $1.50. Each Spectrographic Album is put up in a neat case with views, pencils, etc. Dealers will find this an attractive and salable article at all seasons.

THE Gem Shawl-Strap is the latest idea for a strap without buckles, tuck-straps, or loopers, for which are substituted studs and protecting caps. In using the Gem Strap, a shawl, book, or package can be done up in an instant without tucking and fussing with a buckle-tongue. The handles are beautifully finished in nickel and enamel, and also covered with leather. Parkhurst & Gridley, 267 Market street, Newark, New-Jersey, are the sole manufacturers, from whom samples may be obtained. Mr. C. S. Plummer represents the manufacturers on the road.

THE Automatic Book-clamp, lately introduced by A. J. Fisher and advertised in this number, has been pronounced by the trade the most convenient and complete article of its kind in the market.

CHARLES TABER & Co., New-Bedford, Mass., are daily adding to their fine art catalogue. Their February list contains their latest in "cut out" statuary on black and chocolate mounts.

ON THE ROAD—PHILADELPHIA.

ABOUT the same old story might be repeated as regards the general trade of this city, but there is very little of importance at present to communicate. Trade is looking up a trifle, and people are impatiently waiting and longing for the grand opening in June, when the city will overflow with strangers and their dollars, and consequently with milk and honey. Numerous new stores are being rapidly built, and Arch street, above 9th, is fast assuming a business-like appearance, which will possibly rival the main thoroughfare—Chestnut street—in a few years.

THE oldest house in the stationery and book business in the city of Philadelphia is Messrs. Sower, Potts & Co., 530 Market street. In 1743, Christopher Sower commenced business as a publisher and dealer, and issued during that year the first Bible printed in the German language, the first edition being but two thousand copies. It may be here remarked, as somewhat singular, that his first Bible in the English language was not published until 1781, and that was only a small school Bible. The present firm was organized in 1842. The business of this house has been handed down from generation to generation, and may be traced as follows to the present time: The present Mr.

Sower, as the son, his father, grandfather, great-grandfather, and great-great-grandfather, all were members of the house, a case perhaps without parallel in this country. This well-known firm do a large and constantly increasing business in every line of commercial stationery, notions, and school-books. They publish also numerous editions of books [having an extensive circulation.

MESSRS. MASON & Co., 1202 Chestnut street, engravers and stationers, are to occupy a space 15 x 15 ft. on the main avenue of the Centennial Buildings, where they intend to display an elegant and superb variety of specimens of their styles in stationery. The cases of plate-glass will rest upon an elaborately carved walnut counter, the front panels of which will be illuminated with coats of arms of the United States, England, France, Germany, and Spain, painted in oil, and blazoned in proper colors. They will also have daily upon the grounds a plate-printer, engraver, stamper, and envelope-folder, thus showing the public the process and manner of their work. For the last six months, Mr. D. L. Davis, the junior member of the firm, has been busily engaged preparing samples, etc., for the opening.

RICHARD MAGEE & SON, Philadelphia, are having a rapid sale for their Centennial Note Papeteries. The papers, different qualities and tints, are put up in neat and attractive boxes, each sheet and envelope with a fine steel engraving of the Centennial Buildings.

WM. H. SMITH, Jr., 811 Arch street, in his little bee-hive, has an attractive and extremely well selected line of fine goods. He does nearly all the stamping and embossing for the wholesale and retail stores in the city. "The Editor's Mucilage," a new article for the editorial room, counting-house, and general use, is being manufactured by him.

MESSRS. MOSS & Co. are enjoying a good opening spring trade, and report orders and collections rapidly coming in.

MESSRS. CHAS. A. DIXON & Co., 911 Arch street, may be complimented upon their very fine display in their large and massive windows. They are engaged in preparing invitations for Commencement day in the medical and law colleges, for the graduating classes.

BUSINESS NOTES.

SHELDON & Co. have removed to their new store, No. 8 Murray street, very near the new Post-Office, where they will sell hereafter only their own publications. They occupy in all four floors, three being used for the business proper, and the first floor above the street being exclusively for offices.

THE firm of Rice, McClellan & Co. has dissolved, Mr. W. E. Rice retiring from the business, having purchased the book-binding, formerly connected with the business, which he will continue at the old stand. The new firm, comprising Messrs. Jesse McClellan and R. S. Davis, will be known as McClellan & Co., and will conduct a general book and stationery business.

MR. JOHN H. THOMAS has removed from his old stand, corner of Main and Third streets, Dayton, Ohio, to No. 10 East Third street, where he has opened what is spoken of as the largest, most complete, and most elegantly appointed book establishment in the city. Mr. Thomas' long experience in the trade shows itself in the admirable arrangement of his new apartments, which allow him a sale and display capacity of twenty-five by two hundred feet on the main floor and basement. Mr. Thomas' claims to the trade's consideration are not only based upon his lengthy service as a bookseller, but also to his earnest efforts as one of the founders of the A. B. T. A.

MESSRS. D. LOTHROP & Co., publishers of Wide Awake, and of many well-known books, will shortly occupy a new, spacious, and handsome store at the corner of Franklin and Hawley streets.

WE have to record the failure of Mr. A. O. Van Lennep, 76 East 9th street, New-York, dealer chiefly in Sunday-school books and supplies.

CHARLES D. PRATT, of New-York, dealer in stationery, etc., has gone into bankruptcy. There are quantities of "accommodation paper," as usual.

W. T. BERRY & Co., Nashville, give notice of an assignment, for the benefit of creditors, of both partnership and individual effects. It is understood that the embarrassment came simply from a difficulty in realizing on property, as the senior member of the house, so long known to the trade, is reputed one of the wealthiest of the guild.

"A CIRCULAR has just been issued in relation to the affairs of Mr. Franklin Philp, stationer. Mr. Philp has been here for twenty-two years, a large part of the time at the head of the largest stationery house here. His immense residence was known as 'the Philp Mansion,' where the most prominent literary and theatrical gentlemen of the world have had nightly reunions and were participants in the most sumptuous banquets. Mr. Philp has been appointed chief clerk of the navy agent at San Francisco, at a salary of $2000 a year. His valuable residence, furniture, paintings, books, and articles of vertu have been sacrificed by him, to pay his creditors as nearly as possible in full."—Wash. Cor. Daily Bulletin.

GLEANINGS FROM THE PRESS.

A FRENCH journal has been recently busy regarding the general get-up of the better sort of gift-books so popular at this season of the year. In its opinion, two chief dangers beset the production of expensive editions—the irregular drying of the ink, which leads to mishaps in binding, and a want of uniformity of color in the toned paper employed. With regard to the first point, M. Jouast, who has just brought out a fine edition of the "Imitation of Christ," finds that, taking several pages printed on the same paper, by the same workman, with the same press and the same ink, some will be dry in a few weeks' time, while others will scarcely be so at the end of a year or even two. The celebrated bookbinder, Capé, declares that having bound a work printed three hundred years ago, and finding some ink stains produced during the binding, he took a note of the facts and found that each time he bound a copy of the same book similar stains appeared on the pages previously in fault. With respect to difficulty number two—inequality of tint—M. Jouast says that the yellowish or creamy tinge of color, so much admired by bibliophiles, being inherent in the paper, and unobtainable by the addition of any foreign substance, can not be exactly alike in different batches of the material. He therefore makes use, as far as possible, of one boiling of paper.—London Stationer.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE memoir and letters of William Godwin are just ready at Roberts Bros., in two handsome volumes, with portraits and fac-similes; they will be found especially interesting for their many references to literary and political celebrities of the past generation, among whom both Godwin and his wife were notable. A new and cheaper edition, at $2, of William Morris' translation of Virgil's Æneids is also to be noted.

A NEW novel of the popular "Odd Trump" series will be issued in early spring by Messrs. E. J. Hale & Son. New editions of "The Odd Trump," "Harwood," and "The Lacy Diamonds" are just from the press.

MR. J. W. BOUTON, of 706 Broadway, is about to publish, in connection with H. W. Sijthoff, of Leyden, Holland, the "Works of William Unger," comprising 70 etchings after the old Dutch and Flemish masters, with the text translated into English. This work will be issued in ten parts at $7 each, and is one of the most important art enterprises ever meditated in this country, both from an art and financial point of view. The text will be printed on Dutch paper, and the etchings will be mounted on heavy card-board, in the same style as the old and rare etchings, which fetch such extraordinary prices. The size will be royal folio, and the work when completed will make one of the handsomest volumes in the market. The first number will be ready early in the spring, and will be followed regularly by monthly parts.

MESSRS. SUMNER WHITNEY & Co., of San Francisco, announce a series of entertaining and useful little 12mos, to be entitled "Legal Recreations," embracing volumes on the humorous phases of the law, by Irving Brown, Esq.; "Curiosities and Law of Wills," by John Proffat, author of "Woman before the Law"; "Judicial Puzzles," by John Paget, Esq., Recorder of Thames Police Court; "The Law of the Road; or, Rights and Wrongs of a Traveller," by Robt. Rogers, Jr., of Osgoode Hall, and others not yet ready for announcement. They will be bound in neat cloth, bevelled boards, at $1.50 each.

THOSE who are seeking instruction books in drawing, especially in the higher phases, will do well to acquaint themselves with the publications of Cassell, Petter & Galpin, the list of which will be found elsewhere.

THE Centennial is beginning to "drop into poetry" the Lippincotts announce "Centennial and other Poems," by R. S. Pollard.

It is curious, says Mr. Welford in the Book-Buyer, to note the fluctuations of public taste as shown in the demand, varying at different times, for certain classes of books. A few years since travels and voyages were quite out of favor with publishers, who could hardly be got to look at any manuscript of the kind. Then came books that could not be ignored, like those of Baker, Livingstone, Stanley, etc., and they seem to have turned the tide right in an opposite direction. Every list of announcements now puts forth the titles of forthcoming works of this class in most quarters of the globe.

"BARNES' Centennial History," now in preparation, promises to be not only a very handsome work, but also a very reliable one. It is written in a popular style for general reading, and contains several features not to be found in any similar work. It is to be issued first in twelve monthly parts, sold by subscription, and afterwards in complete form. The parts will be embellished with two hundred and fifty wood-cuts and twelve steel engravings, with a centennial number to close the volume.

THE American Sunday-School Union issue a new singing book for Sunday-schools, "Calvary Songs," prepared by Rev. Chas. S. Robinson and Theodore E. Perkins, which is likely to have a considerable success.

SOWER, POTTS & Co. have ready for publication two works of special interest. "How to Write Letters" is said to be entirely different in plan and execution from any letter-writer in the market. Its rules are based entirely upon the laws and customs of society—the conventional and accepted manner of composition and punctuation, specially in addressing officers and dignitaries, civil, military, naval, and religious, being the one adopted. The other work, "Literature for Little Folks," consists of an admirable selection of the gems of child's literature, carefully arranged in lessons, followed by lessons in object teaching. This little work is designed for training children in the best methods of literary expression.

MESSRS. P. GARRETT & Co. will issue this month No. 12 of their popular "100 Choice Selection Series." This series has become very well known and is very popular, as it contains in its selections the very latest and best things adapted for recitation and declamation. "The Speaker's Garland," issued by this firm, comprises four of the little books of this series, handsomely bound in one volume in green and gold. A third volume of "The Speaker's Garland" will be published early next month.

MESSRS. S. T. GORDON & SON, New-York, have recently issued new music as follows: "Le Beau Monde" (The Fashionable World), a polka, composed by Alonzo Stones (40 cents); a song, "Who is this Little Maiden?" (words selected from the "Children's Friend,") music composed by Thomas P. Murphy (35 cents); and "Dream of the Sea," waltzes, by Willard Spenser (50 cents).

MR. SWINBURNE sends to the Academy a long letter taking issue with Mr. Furnival on the canons of arrangement of Shakespeare's plays, and announcing a contemplated work on the subject by himself. He says:

"What I desire to do and design to attempt is a work which has nothing in common with the peremptory pretensions of commentators who seek, by dint of positive assertion or endless wrangling, to establish, as matter of creed, what can never be more than matter of opinion ; it is to arrange in their several classes the plays of Shakespeare according to their order of poetry, not according to their rate of succession ; to rank them by rule of kind, not by computation of priority ; to take count of them by style and not by date. This may be a futile, an overweening, and unprofitable project ; but, rational or irrational, hopeful or hopeless, it has no more to do with questions of disputed chronology than the secret of metrical harmony or melody has to do with the casting up of figures or the counting out of syllables."

IN his letter to the Book-Buyer, Mr. Welford says of the difficulty of collecting book statistics : English business (like American) rebels against the constriction necessary for the production of exact statistics. The lists of publications in the English periodicals are furnished by clerks of the largest book-jobbing house, and simply represent the books for sale in London. Those printed in Scotland, Ireland, and English provincial towns only get represented when copies are sent up to a London agent, and many large classes, such as the issues of societies and publishing clubs, the great mass of parliamentary documents and blue-books, much of the denominational literature of religious societies, etc., produced at their own presses, privately-printed books, etc., etc., are quite ignored in the current estimates : so that it is probable an addition of at least one third to the given numbers must be made to cover all classes of printed books. In France, where not a single printed sheet can be made public without due registration, the case is entirely different ; but in England and America the fondness for uncontrolled individual freedom of action is so great that statistics lose much of their official certainty, and scarcely afford safe ground for large theoretical deductions. Enough is known, however, to prove that, though without any eminent successes, the past year has been for publishers and booksellers a moderately successful one, unmarked by any great calamities, and hopes are buoyant in anticipation of the chances for 1876.

HARDING'S SPECTROGRAPHIC ALBUM:

OR, THE DRAWING AFTER THE SHADOW.

The Spectrographic Album is a new invention, founded upon the principles of the laws of light. It enables any one, without being a professional artist, to copy Lithographs, Photographs, Engravings, and all objects of slight thickness, such as Leaves, Ferns, &c.

DIRECTIONS FOR SETTING UP AND USING THE APPARATUS.

The above figure represents the manner in which the apparatus is to be used. Place the Album, open, on a table where the light will fall upon it from the left hand side; raise the glass and fasten it in an upright position by means of the metallic hook; now place the picture or object to be copied on the left hand side of the glass, and see that the light from the window falls directly upon the object; in the same way make gas or other artificial light come from the left hand side of the apparatus, so that the object to be copied will first receive its rays.

If the operator then takes his position to the left of the glass, and looks through it, he will distinctly see the shadow of the object clearly defined on the slated surface, and with a little care the copy can then be made by tracing the outlines with a slate pencil; or, if a permanent copy is desired, all that is necessary is to lay a paper over the slated surface, when the object may be drawn with a pen or pencil.

This apparatus, when used according to the above instructions, will soon give the most unskilled person a taste for drawing, and at the same time afford an instructive and fascinating amusement for the home circle.

NELSON & PHILLIPS

HAVE JUST PUBLISHED A NEW EDITION

OF

THE ANALOGY OF RELIGION,

Natural and Revealed, to the Constitution and Course of Nature, to which are added Two Brief Dissertations of Personal Identity and the Nature of Virtue. By JOSEPH BUTLER, LL.D., Lord Bishop of Durham, with a life of the author, copious notes, and an ample index. The whole edited by Rev. Joseph Cummings, D.D., LL.D., of Wesleyan University. 12mo, $1.75.

Among many editions of Butler's Analogy, this one takes its place with claims to high estimate. The editor has long taught from the text, and has had in mind the wants of students, knowing more fully than most editors what those wants are in our day. He has been able to use all the good work of the most celebrated editors, and to add his personal quota with a large measure of experience in teaching. The text is that of Bishop Fitzgerald in the second edition; some long paragraphs have been broken up into two or more; marginal titles that make a running analysis are given; the index is full and complete; the biographical sketch is that written by Professor Henry Rogers.

This edition is specially adapted to students. The marginal paragraphing of subjects, the numerous foot-notes and exhaustive Index make it the most complete edition ever issued.

THE SCIENCE OF ELOCUTION.

With Exercises and Selections, systematically arranged for acquiring the Art of Reading and Speaking. By S. S. HAMILL, A.M., Professor of English History and Elocution, in the State University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo. 12mo, $1.75.

Professor Hamill is said to be one of the ablest teachers of Elocution now living. It has been said that he has but one rival in this country. Rev. Dr. Tappan says: "It affords me great pleasure to commend Mr. S. S. Hamill to colleges and schools as a teacher of Elocution."

THE ELEMENTS OF LOGIC.

Adapted to the Capacity of Younger Students, and designed for Academies and the Higher Classes of Common Schools. By CHARLES K. TRUE, D.D. 12mo, 80 cents.

It is clear and simple in style, attractive to the student in its arrangement, and both complete and concise in its matter.

It is well adapted to the use of seminaries and academies.

A compact and clear statement of the fundamental principles of logic. The book is well adapted for use in classes, and also for private study.

Special Announcement.

THE JOURNAL OF EDUCATION, formerly of Brooklyn, N. Y., will, with the January number, be known as THE JOURNAL OF EDUCATION of New York. It is already acknowledged to be an able and vigorous exponent of Educational interests, and will, by this change, add to its strength and usefulness. Prominent educators in this city and other sections of the country have pledged themselves to its support, and we can assure those who are already its patrons, as well as those whom we hope to add to the list, that we shall furnish them a journal that will, in every way, meet the requirements of its title.

Prof. Norman A. Calkins, well known to teachers and educators throughout the country, will contribute a series of articles embodying the substance of his normal lectures to teachers, which will be carefully enlarged and revised by him. These papers will embrace the following subjects:

OBJECT TEACHING: { 1st. On Color.
2d. On Forms.
3d. On Qualities.
4th. On Teaching Reading.
5th. On Teaching Arithmetic.
6th. On Teaching Geography.

This announcement will, no doubt, be particularly gratifying to those who are desirous of adding to their knowledge of the theory and practice of teaching.

Prof. and Mrs. Kraus Bolté will conduct a Kindergarten department. Their names in this connection will be a sufficient guaranty of its character.

Its Literary, Scientific and Art Departments will contain original and selected matter from the best source.

THE JOURNAL is published monthly; yearly subscription price $2.50; special rates to clubs. Sample copies may be had on application, by mail or personally, to CHARLES T. DODD, Business Agent, at the office of THE JOURNAL, 751 Broadway, New York.

Recommendations of the Journal.

The Journal of Education has proved itself an exceedingly valuable addition to the educational periodicals of this country. It is well conducted, and its articles abound in useful information, presented in an attractive style, and of especial value to the practical teacher. I trust that this Journal may receive an earnest and liberal support from the profession.

HENRY KIDDLE,
City Supt., New York.

I most heartily commend the Journal to all teachers and educators throughout the State. Its articles are of a high order of merit, and much above the usual school-journal literature.

E. A. SHELDON,
Supt. State Normal School, Oswego, N. Y.

I have read your Journal from its commencement, and each number with increasing interest and profit. Of the many educational magazines which I see, yours is the best; and I wish that it might be put into the hands, not only of every teacher in this county, but of every school officer and parent. It would greatly advance the cause.

AUTOMATIC BOOK-CLAMP.

The advantages of this Clamp over any others in the market are:

- 1st.—It is Self-Closing.
- 2d.—It Secures and Releases the books instantaneously.
- 3d.—It contains Pencil-Case for Penholder, Slate Pencil, and Lead Pencil.
- 4th.—It is highly Ornamental.

No. 1.—Length, 10 inch., $4 per doz. Japaned.

No. 2.—Length, 12 inch., $6 per doz. Nickel-plated.

The simplicity of the operation of this clamp commends it at once, particularly in view of the ease and facility with which the books can be secured or released. The addition of the pencil-case is a very neat contrivance, which, while it adds nothing to the weight or bulk of the clamp, it materially increases its usefulness. Its ornamental appearance is apt to create a favorable impression.—The American Stationer

The Automatic Book-Clamp is well worth the attention of buyers of school material. The handle is a metal tube securely fastened to the wooden clamp, and inclosing a steel spring, which winds up the cord, making the clamp self-closing. An easily managed slide-catch in the handle fastens the spring and securely holds the books in the clamp, and a handy case for pencils is cut into the wooden plate without adding to size or weight. The clamp is very neat in appearance, and the most convenient article of the kind we have seen.—American Bookseller's Guide.

LIFE OF GEORGE TICKNOR.

Life, Letters, and Journals of George Ticknor.

With a Heliotype Portrait of Mr. Ticknor in early manhood, a fine Steel Portrait of him in his ripe age, and a Heliotype of his Library. 2 vols., 8vo, $6.

From the New-York Evening Post.

"Osgood & Co. will publish a book next week which will, we think, attract unusual attention in the literary world. It is the 'Life, Letters, and Journals of George Ticknor,' prepared mainly under the supervision of Mr. George S. Hillard, whose fine scholarship and painstaking accuracy the reading public will be glad to welcome again to the active lists of authorship. Mr. Ticknor lived from the year 1790 to the year 1871—eighty years, including the most active period of the nineteenth century. He was enabled by culture and fortune to mingle in nearly all of its best society, both at home and in Europe, and he has preserved for us, in his journals and letters, a fresh and faithful impression of the many eminent men and women whom it was his good lot to know. We have only to mention a few of the names which appear in these pages, as the correspondents, friends, or acquaintances of Mr. Ticknor, to give the reader a glimpse of the rich treat that is in store for him. Jefferson, Roscoe, Dr. Parr, Sir Humphrey Davy, Lord Byron, Mrs. Siddons, Goethe, Von Schlegel, Humboldt, Madame De Staël, Lafayette, Talleyrand, the Bonapartes, Sir Walter Scott, Southey, Constant, Chateaubriand, Bunson, Niebuhr, Sir James Mackintosh, Brougham, Lord Holland, Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Fletcher, Wilberforce, Godwin, Manzoni, Thorwaldsen, Sismondi, Lamartine, Thierry, Hallam, Wordsworth, Daniel Webster, the Adamantes, Everett, Greenough, Macaulay, Prescott, Agassiz, Cogswell, are among the conspicuous figures which appear in his pages. In fact, scarcely a name rises above the horizon of the early part of this century with which Mr. Ticknor is not happily in some way connected. It is needless for us to say that Mr. Hillard has made the best use of his rich and interesting materials."

NOTES IN SEASON.

JANSEN, MCCLURG & Co. have nearly ready for publication Joaquin Miller's prose romance, called the "First Families of the Sierras." It is a realistic sketch of rough miner life in the early days of California. The germ of the story was contained in the sketch published some time ago in the Overland Monthly, but in its present form it is really a new book, and is issued simultaneously in London by George Routledge & Sons, and in this country by Jansen, McClurg & Co.

A RARE treat has been prepared for the literary public by Osgood & Co., who have just published the "Life, Letters, and Journals of George Ticknor," edited mainly by Mr. George S. Hillard, well known as scholar and author. There is scarcely a name of any public note in letters or politics during the past sixty years that one will not get a glimpse of in Mr. Ticknor's rarely interesting work.

THE Scribners have now ready their new and cheaper edition of Prof. Ueberweg's "History of Philosophy," translated by Prof. G. S. Morris, of Michigan University. It is in two volumes and sells at $5, in place of the $7.50 of the former edition. They also publish Prof. Blackie's "Songs of Religion and of Life," highly spoken of by the English press, which can be assured a careful attention, if only on the score of the success of "Self-Culture."

A DEFENCE of "The Similarities of Physical and Religious Knowledge" is made by James Thompson Bixby in a little book which argues strongly against the current belief of an antagonism in these two fields of thought. It will be published shortly by the Appletons, who are also about issuing a cheaper edition of Cox's "General History of Greece" ($2.50), uniform with Merivale's Rome.

By the middle of the week the Sheldons will have ready their promised "Life of Dr. Nott," for so many years, we might say, the leader of educational thought in this country, and to whose long presidency Union College owes so much of its success. It is prepared by C. Van Sartwoord, D.D., and Prof. Tayler Lewis, of Union College, and will form a large 12mo, with two steel engravings of Dr. Nott. They also publish at the same time Dr. Haven's "History of Philosophy," the completion and revision of which was Dr. Haven's last work, and which, in a compact 12mo, gives a concise history of philosophic thought for use either by the general reader or college student.

We note with pleasure the assumption on the part of the Messrs. Putnam of the American agency of the London Academy. Though among the younger of the literary weeklies, the Academy has been most fortunate in the position it has attained in London critical journalism, it displaying much enterprise and brightness in its literary intelligence, and maintaining a high standard in its reviews. It especially deserves patronage on this side of the water for the intelligent interest it shows in American literature. It should be noted that the price has been reduced from the former importing price to $6 per year.

HARPER & BROTHERS publish this week two new novels, one "The Curate in Charge," 50 cents, by Mrs. Oliphant, and "His Natural Life," 75 cents, by Marcus Clarke; also William Swinton's "Bible Word-Book," $1.

JUST as we go to press we receive from the Lippincotts their announcement of Bulwer's "Pausanias," uniform with their Lord Lytton edition, Globe edition, and Library edition.

HENRY C. LEA, Philadelphia, has just issued a new catalogue of medical, surgical, and scientific publications, embracing 68 pages, 8vo, with numerous illustrations.

LINDSAY & BLAKISTON have issued a new classified catalogue of their medical and scientific works.

STATIONERY NOTES.

WE give below an illustration of the Gem

Shawl Strap, a descriptive notice of which appeared in our last issue. The manufacturers, Messrs. Parkhurst &
 Gridley, Newark,

N. J., send samples and price-lists on application.

WILLIAM W. HARDING, Philadelphia, announces that he will shortly introduce to the trade an entirely new line of Albums that will combine extreme cheapness with strength and beauty. They will be made of the best material and in a variety of styles, including morocco and velvet, and will compete in price and quality with any line of domestic albums in the market. The unparalleled facilities of this house and its high reputation is a guarantee that these new albums will be both an attractive and profitable line of goods. Mr.
 Harding's new catalogue, containing a pricelist of his new albums, is just ready, and will be sent free to any address. Mr. Arthur E.
 Welch is the agent for this house, and will take the road in a few days with the entire line of these new and attractive samples.

SHAW & ALFRED, 29 Beekman street, certainly deserve credit for the energy and taste displayed in their business, for they are constantly supplying the trade with novelties in fine stationery. They have just issued new papeteries in a combination of Quaker drab, cold-pressed Grand Quadrille, and a pearl color 65-lb. wove paper in five different sizes and shapes. This is decidedly a very elegant papeterie and it can not fail to please. They are also making the gold and silver border papeterie in the new open-end envelopes, in two sizes, as well as the gold and blue borders in all sizes. In addition to this they are supplying the trade with the R. S. V. P. papeteries, which are certainly novel, the Continental fancy border, and Little Prussian. They have also just produced a very exquisite two-quire papeterie in an elegant box filled with new and choice papers called the "Comme il Faut," upon which they put the monogram or card of the dealer when purchasing in quantities of one hundred boxes. This papeterie, quite unlike others, is made in three sizes, the octavo and Baronial, the Alexander and square, commercial and 3 N. S. Their line of wedding stationery in point of variety of sizes, styles, and prices is certainly worthy of a much older house.

THE Morgan Envelope Company, of Springfield, Mass., have sent us their new price-list for February, gotten up in an elegant and tasteful style. It contains a full list of their finest goods, including envelopes, papeteries, papers, mucilage, and inkstands, and also a fine line of sermon and manuscript paper.

MR. D. C. PRATT, 16 New Church street, agent for the Eureka Slate Co., has been appointed sole agent of the Vermont Slate and Alum Company, of Castleton, Vt., the manufacturers of the well-known "Vermont" and "White Soapstone Pencils," a price-list of which he has now ready and will send on application.

SAMUEL RAYNOR & Co., envelope manufacturers, have issued their new price-list for 1876.
 Some of the prices are lower than last year.
 This house is constantly adding to its already large assortment of papeterie boxes.

"LOCKWOOD'S Directory of the Paper Trade," published by Howard Lockwood, No. 74 Duane street, New-York, was the first correct publication of the kind ever offered at a moderate price. To promote its further introduction to every department of the paper and stationery trades, the publisher has determined upon a marked reduction in its price, and after this date and for future editions the cost of "Lockwood's Directory of the Paper Trade" will be $2 a copy. It should be in the hands of all consumers of paper.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FEBRUARY 19, 1876.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry and for notice in "Books Received."

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries." Notes from librarians will also be gratefully received.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

THE REDUCTION OF DISCOUNTS.

THERE seems to be a growing feeling in the trade that the reduction of retail prices, by a reduction of the discounts to the trade, is becoming very desirable. This was a chief plank in the original platform of the reform movement, and although other measures have come more to the front for the time, this has generally been kept in view as a final result.

This reduction will not be because the book trade has been making too great profits. It will, in fact, be a measure to steady profits. But the adherence to retail prices, when the reform has gone into practical effect, has shown up the fictitious nature of the nominal discounts in certain lines of books. Dealers adhering to retail prices in some places refused to buy lines of juveniles, when the excessive discounts had fixed the price so high that they could not conscientiously ask it. They knew too that on these, and on the cheap poets and standards, the undersellers would always have an advantage. In fact, lines at high discounts have been becoming known as sui generis undersellers' stock, and the points developed in this regard have been important results of the retail price rule.

Such a reduction would be a considerable aid, certainly, in the campaign against the undersellers. They can not be completely met in this way, but a good part of their capital would be gone when the extreme discrepancy between the publishers' price on their favorite stock and the price they make was reduced by the reduction of the former.

But this reduction, it seems to us, is not to come by an organized agreement to put down the price of books so much per cent all around. The prices of books vary very much now, as they stand on the publishers' catalogues, both as between different publishers and as between different lines of the same publisher. The general notion that the true price of a book is based primarily on the cost of its mechanical production per copy, is a popular fallacy, radically wrong; on the contrary, it is based primarily on the demand for the book, i.e., the size of the edition, which is a very variable and uncertain quantity. Now, as a rule, books of very wide circulation are published at a higher advertised price, and books of a limited sale at a lower advertised price, than the normal rate. That is a considerable factor in the tendency of recent years to break prices, leaving to those who adhered to publishers' prices only the inadequate profits of books of small sale, that must pay heavy charges for keeping in stock.

In short, any reduction must come by general consent, but by individual action. The way in which the Philadelphia standards have been reduced is a case in point. The reform movement transformed the unwise competition as to discounts, and produced a pressure for a wiser competition in retail prices. One firm reduced certain lines; another followed in competition. The only case where we can look for concerted reduction is in the case of school-books (where it is really most needed), since in that part of the trade action is usually by all or none.

But it is very important that there should be the general consent. We could cite specific cases where attempts to carry out the policy of lower prices and smaller discounts have been met by direct loss of trade, dealers preferring light goods at a higher price (both retail and net) because the discount was greater. In order to back up publishers in any reduction of prices, the trade at large must come to a practical understanding of the fact that a real discount of 30 is better than a fictitious one of 50. The question is likely to be a prominent one at the next convention, and it is certainly of much interest and importance.

A COLLEGE student asks through our correspondence columns a number of pertinent questions. The proper authority to give official answers to questions concerning the rules of the A. B. T. A. is of course its Arbitration Committee, which has never yet made definite rulings as to the important questions of the relations of students. Our statements on this subject must therefore be provisional. Under the "retail price rule," there is mention of teachers, but not of students as such. They enter only as "professional men" or as "large buyers." In the first case, they are entitled to a reduction only on professional books, and therefore it is only students of professions—law, medicine, theology, etc.—and not general college students, who are concerned. The intentionally elastic phrase "large buyers" has been construed to mean those who buy a quantity of books either at one time or through the year. Most students who concentrate their purchases at one bookstore would come under the latter head, and might thus obtain a reduction on all sorts of books. The theory of this rule is, that as students are the chief consumers of text-books, the general price is the price for them, and this should be as low without deductions as it can rightly be put. The "discount" system has long stood in the way of any lowering of the general price. The exception made in the case of professional books is thoroughly illogical, and is simply a compromise with custom. If a medical book can be sold for $9, the doctor who is the sole purchaser should buy it at $9, and not at "$10—ten off." As to violations of this rule by the booksellers, open questions have been left to the business policy or conscience of the individual dealer until the Arbitration Committee has promulgated decisions, and although that Committee has done no little in settling local disputes, we believe it has put forth but one general decision since it was appointed at Niagara.

THE new theory of protecting reprints by the copyright claim of American publishers who have purchased advance copy, seems to be at once set aside by the last clause of the copyright act, which reads:

"Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to prohibit the printing, publishing, importation, or sale of any book . . . written, composed, or made by any person not a citizen of the United States nor resident therein."

We learn that the theory referred to had occurred or been suggested to other publishing houses at different times. The fallacy is pointed out by a "Lawyer" in the Tribune, who adds:

"But as no term of residence is prescribed to enable a foreigner, who is an author, to obtain protection of copyright in this country, the construction of our law would probably be broad enough to enable a foreigner, who resides here when any part of his work is published, to obtain such protection for that part, as the courts in England construed the English statute upon the same point, when Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes went to England."

THE remainder of the Lovering stock is being sold out in Boston at sacrifice sale—"per order of the sheriff and parties interested." But the new advertisement (Another Failure!) is not so lavish as the old one, and tells no untruths. "Instead of presents to purchasers, a more than equivalent reduction of prices has been made." Of course bona fide clearance sales, such as this, can not be done away with; but many of them would be prevented if there were more caution in selling to predestinated bankrupts.

PRIZE QUESTION No. 3.

Which are the most salable works on political economy?

Give ten titles in the following shape:

Smith, Adam, Wealth of Nations [specify edition, size, price, publisher, as usual].

RULES FOR COMPETITORS.

1. The object of the questions is to elicit answers as to which books and editions have, independent of local or ephemeral interest, become standard or popular works in the American market, hence safe stock for investment.
 2. A prize of $5 will be awarded for that answer which includes the greatest number of works on which competitors generally agree, or which, in the judgment of the editor, may otherwise be most fairly representative.
 3. Every subscriber and every employee of a subscriber individually are entitled to compete.
 4. The answers shall consist of a list of works on a given topic. The short title is sufficient, but number of volumes, size, price, and name of publisher must be invariably given.
 5. The titles should be arranged according to the popularity each work holds in the opinion of the competitor.
 6. The titles must be written legibly with ink, on one side of the paper only, foolscap preferred, each title in separate paragraph, with space between titles for cutting through with scissors.
 7. The list must not contain a greater number of titles than is demanded in the question.
 8. Each list must be headed by the number of the Prize Question, and signed with full address of competitor.
 9. If several competitors should present lists of equal claim to the prize, it shall be awarded by lot.
 10. The name of the successful competitor shall be published with his list, and the amount of the prize remitted immediately after publication.
 11. The result of the answers will be published four weeks from publication of the question.
 12. All communications should be addressed, Editor PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, P. O. Box, 4295, New-York.
- These rules are subject to amendment whenever the Editor finds it expedient.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A LIBRARIAN'S SUGGESTION.

February 3, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

It may be deemed impertinent in a landsman to make any suggestions to a sailor as to how he should sail his boat, but if one should see a favorite craft foundering among rocks and quicksands, and should say a word, his good intentions ought to pave the way to pardon.

I read weekly, with much interest, articles upon your trade troubles, and from an outside standpoint it seems to me that the "trade" have the remedy in their own hands. They can't force things into the shape they want them—efforts of that kind have always failed in all unions; but by placing the honorable dealers upon an equal footing with the butchers, they draw the sting of the latter.

Let them (the publishers) reduce the retail prices and the discounts, and underselling will itself go under. To illustrate: The retailer buys, I suppose, about 33 off; selling at retail price, he makes 50 per cent, and is bound by his honor to maintain the price. The "butcher" buys at same, but having no honor to bind him, sells at any profit from 5 to 25 per cent, and selling ten books to the other's one, laughs at him and chuckles over the "rules" which give him such an advantage. Don't you see that you are offering a premium for dishonorable dealing while you are putting shackles on the hands of every fair dealer?

It may be said that a sudden reduction in the retail prices would injuriously affect the dealers who have larger stocks on hand. Would not any disastrous effect be avoided by a general notice that at a given time such reduction would be made—thus giving opportunity to reduce their stocks? The best way to keep people honest is to keep temptation out of their way. To enable the publishers to reduce, let them keep the gilt and gaudiness off the book-backs, and give us plain, substantial bindings that won't have to be ripped off in six months for another binding. I join hands with Brother Barrett in this matter. LIBRARIAN.

THE WORK IN THE WEST.

HILLSDALE, MICH., February 3, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly :

We see so much in your valuable periodical, complaining of violations of rules of A. B. T. A., that we are forced to add a line on the other side. We were yesterday shown letters from Chicago and Detroit, written to a man near this place, who wanted to buy $50 of books for a school library. In both cases he was told that 20 per cent was the best they could do.

A tutor in Hillsdale College concluded last fall that he would go into the business of supplying his classes. We offered him 20 per cent. He wrote to Toledo, Detroit, and Chicago, and in all cases could do no better, but he finally found them East at 30 per cent. I need not add that we feel very grateful to our city friends for their decided stand in the right direction, and will add that we in the West feel that the Association has done much to make bookselling an agreeable occupation.

P. W. & Co.

AURORA, ILL., February 14.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly :

Some three weeks ago Mr. Pierce Butler came to me with a list of books wanted for Universal Sunday-school Library; a list was also sent to Jansen and Keen, Cooke & Co. Answer came, 20 off—my offer was same. A list was sent to W. H. Hill, Jr., Boston, who is now out of the trade; he handed it to Henry A. Young & Co., and they filled said order at one third and 40 off. I only write to show you who is breaking the 20 per cent rule—so our reform friends will know.

W. H. WATSON.

THE SURRENDER AT COLUMBUS.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, February 5, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly :

That the reform in the book trade is a desirable one, and that it is fast becoming a necessity to the trade, is so generally admitted on all sides, that further argument on this point seems superfluous. A careful retrospect will convince any one that a great deal has been accomplished; but it must also be apparent that considerable yet remains to be done. That its success is not yet complete and positive should not discourage us; the obstacles that have been surmounted ought to inspire the trade with renewed vigor, and this fact should not be overlooked—that the more obstinate the struggle, the more lasting its benefits.

The service of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY in this matter of reform has been invaluable, and this has been repeatedly acknowledged by the trade. Its consistency and persistency will no doubt receive additional recognition. The necessity of the unanimous action of the trade has been so often and so ably urged by it, that at least the retailers ought to profit by this advice and act accordingly. Has it been done?

It is a rather unpleasant thing to say that in one case at least it has been disregarded. Early in January the Board of Education of this place selected a list of books for the Public School Library, amounting at retail to fully $843. This list was circulated among the booksellers, who were asked to give the lowest price at which they were willing to furnish the list. On the 31st of January the bids were opened, and herewith is a list of them:

I. C. Aston.....	25 per cent from retail prices.
Uhlmann & Glock.....	net $641.95
Synold & Son.....	" 625.00
Elliot Jones & Co.....	" 577.10
Randall & Co.....	" 623.70
Geo. W. Gleason, 20 per cent.....	" 674.44

These bids are in the hands of Mr. R. W. Stevenson, Supt. Public Schools of Columbus, and these facts can be ascertained from him.

Further comment seems hardly necessary. Here was a rare chance to test the practical working of the reform; but the members of the trade wavered, and at last yielded in favor of present profit and sacrificed principle. Even the so-called "Father of the Reform" (Mr. I. C. Aston) failed at the critical moment. Had the trade of this city stood firm—as they should have done, and as all but two firms (that of Geo. W. Gleason, whose bid was 20 per cent, and Elliot Jones & Co., who were awarded the bid) will now regret that they did not stand—the influence would have been immense. It is not the first time that a short-sighted policy has been adopted, and will probably not be the last time. But it shows that weakness still exists, and that a principle, once adopted by the trade, must be strictly adhered to, if any advantage is to be derived from it. Experience may teach in this case, as it has in many another, what theory fails to prove. H.

A PLAINT FROM THE SOUTH.

ATHENS, GA., Jan 28, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly :

I inclose an advertisement cut from the February number of a popular magazine, which is quite refreshing to the retail book trade. Think of a popular New-York semi-weekly paper, the subscription price of which is $3 per annum, being offered for one year, with a copy of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary (a $12 book), for $10! A weekly paper published at Louisville, Ky., sends the publications of a well-known Boston house to its subscribers at about one third off, and pays the postage. Comment unnecessary.

I was glad to see the card of my old friend Goodenough, of the Providence Book-Trade Association. The evils he complains of are grievous and ought to be abated in some way; but if he will come out to Georgia again and try the book business, he will find that his troubles are insignificant. There is one of the largest cities in this State where they never think of asking the retail price, and are content to take any thing above bare cost, rather than lose a sale. We who try to do a legitimate business, if we ask the retail price for a book, are coolly informed that it can be bought in Atlanta for from 20 to 25 per cent less. Is there no remedy for all this? What with dollar-stores, newspapers, and unscrupulous retail dealers, the business is rapidly going to the dogs.

A RETAIL BOOKSELLER.

REDUCTIONS TO STUDENTS.

NEW-YORK, Jan. 31, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

Will you, for the information of many of your readers, kindly insert the following questions into your valuable paper, with definite and authoritative answers to the same? They seem to me to be of great importance, and have, I believe, as yet not been satisfactorily settled.

1. Are students, as such, entitled to a discount of 20 per cent on all miscellaneous book-purchases?

2. Are they entitled to this discount on what might be called "collateral reading text-books," such as standard works on history, on ancient classics, philosophy, etc., etc.?

3. Are they entitled to this discount aforesaid on their text-books proper?

4. Does any bookseller who sells to students any or all of the books mentioned, at the discount price, violate the express rules of the A. B. T. A.?

The answer to No. 4 of course depends on the answers to the others. I await your reply with interest, and may take the liberty of enlarging on these points some other time in your valued columns.

Very truly yours, F. W. H.

STATIONERS' LABELS: A GOOD IDEA.

HUNTINGDON, February 5, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

Won't some enterprising blank-book maker get up a set of shelf-labels that would greatly help the retail stationer to keep account of stock and quickly accommodate his customer? Something after the idea of the stock drugstore label, only of a different sort. I think they should be on a strip on cardboard, about $\frac{1}{4}$ or $\frac{1}{2}$ inches wide, and should have in the set, among others:

$\frac{1}{4}$ Board Broad Cop Day Book and Journals.

" " Ledger, Single Entry.

" " " Double "

" " Record Ruling.

" " Docket "

" Long Cop Ledgers.

" " Day Books.

Two third First Quality Ledger.

" " " Single List, $ and cts.

Also for time-books, miniature blanks, paper, press-board, and leather pass, etc., etc.

The set could be issued at so much per set, or as an advertising idea, by some one in the wholesale trade. Very truly,

J. C BLAIR.

A. CURIOSITY OF LITERATURE.

NEW-YORK, February 9, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

In looking over a copy of the last edition of Black's "General Atlas," bearing date of 1875, a few days since, the following curious errors were noticed in the plan of New-York City, which accompanies one of the maps. Fourth avenue, from its starting point at Sixth street to Union Square, is marked Bowery. Beyond 17th street Broadway is Bloomingdale Road; between 25th and 55th streets are several old "cowpaths" which certainly can not have been in existence for a number of years; the Crystal Palace still stands in Reservoir Park, except that it has changed places with the Reservoir and fronts Fifth avenue; and lastly, what is usually supposed to be the Fifth Avenue Hotel, is called "House of Refuge"!

Respectfully, IRVING PUTNAM.

FROM AN APPRECIATIVE DEALER.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Jan. 26, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

Inclosed please find New-York draft No. — for five dollars, for first instalment on the American Catalogue, also guarantee for remainder of subscription. I assure you that I have a much higher appreciation of your efforts in behalf of the trade (both through the columns of your valuable Weekly, and in the indispensable Annual, with its new indexes) than my negligence would suggest. I find my Annual in constant use, and much regret that I did not secure a number of copies for free distribution among my customers while they were at the low subscription price. Please allow me also to thank you for your able reply to the article in the American News Co.'s Journal. The principal newsdealer here has sold the Chatterbox at $1 and $1.25 for two years, and the "Ninety-nine Cent Store" (the remaining one has gone astray—sing!) sells Chatterbox, Nursery, Harland, Holmes, Dickens, etc., at their "popular" price. We are asked every day why we can not sell as low as they do; i.e., we should learn to buy to better advantage. "Keep the ball rolling."

Respectfully, CHARLES ANTHONY.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

MONTFORT HALL, by Mrs. Catharine A. Warfield. (T. B. Peterson & Brothers.) Mrs. Warfield scarcely displays the same power in this novel which made her "Household of Bouverie" familiar to all the novel-reading public. The story will be found readable, however, with some very strongly drawn characters in it. The scene of it is laid in Philadelphia, in the time of Nicholas Biddle and the old United States Bank; its plot is a peculiar one, and well calculated to hold the reader's interest. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

FIRST-CLASS READER FOR DISTRICT SCHOOLS: GOOD BEHAVIOR. (Cheney & Clapp.) A little treatise on good behavior, designed as a reading book for district schools. It relates not only to behavior in school, but to dress, carriage and bearing, conversation, behavior at the table, riding, walking, driving, etc. Quite a practical little work to put in the hands of young people. Boards, 16mo, 25 cents.

THE HOME COOK-BOOK. (T. J. Brown, Eager & Co.) A second edition of a most excellent cook-book, compiled from recipes furnished by the ladies of Toledo and other cities. This volume contains many new recipes not found in the first edition, and is interleaved throughout with blank pages for adding new matter, and substantially and appropriately bound in water-proof covers of oil-cloth. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

TENNYSON'S "Enoch Arden," and William D. Howell's "A Day's Pleasure," are the latest additions to the tiny "Vest-Pocket Series," published by the Osgoods. It is a very convenient little edition, and contains some old favorites in its selections, which one is only too happy to be able to carry along on a journey, for a brief snatch of reading, as is very possible in this shape. In flexible cloth covers, 50 cents each.

THE WESTERN FARMERS' ALMANAC FOR 1876. (John P. Morton & Co.) With the usual amount of humorous reading and practical receipts, chiefly interesting to farmers, this almanac contains a paper by Professor John H. Tice, of St. Louis, "Meteorological Cycles," and forecasts of the weather for the entire year, calculated by him.

RULES OF ORDER FOR DELIBERATIVE ASSEMBLIES, by Major Henry M. Robert. (S. C. Griggs & Co.) A little pocket manual containing a compendium of Parliamentary Law, based upon the rules and practice of Congress, and a concise and simple explanation of the methods of organizing and conducting the business of societies, conventions, and other deliberative assemblies. An invaluable book to any man or woman having any thing to do with any organization or society. 18mo, cloth, 75 cents.

TRUTHS FOR THE PEOPLE, by William S. Plumer, D.D. (American Tract Society.) A number of theological points are herein explained and set forth in a very simple and orthodox manner for the instruction of beginners. 12mo, cloth, $1.

ALICE GRANT, by Mrs. E. J. Richmond. (National Temperance Society.) This, like all the publications of the Temperance Society, is but another variation of the same theme, intemperance. It is a good story, and vividly portrays the horrors of drunkenness, and how social customs bring them about. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

BLENDING LIGHTS, by Rev. William Fraser, D.D. (American Tract Society.) The aim of this writer is to reconcile the conflicting issues of science and religion. The book is written in a popular style, for general readers. 12mo, cloth, $2.

MISCELLANIES, OLD AND NEW, by John Cotton Smith, D.D. (T. Whittaker.) A collection of lectures, essays, and reviews, published by the author at different times during the last seventeen years. They are entitled "Gladstone's Homer and the Homeric Age," "The Suspense and Restoration of Faith," "The Oxford Essays, and Baden Powell on Miracles," "The United States a Nation," "Evolution and a Personal Creator," "Dante." Notice is called to the binding of this volume, it being in crimson and white cloth, and quite striking. 12mo, $1.75.

INHALATION, by J. Solis Cohen, M.D. (Lindsay & Blakiston.) In this volume, the whole history of inhalation will be found—its use in the treatment of disease, and the importance it has assumed with the medical profession of late years. This volume has been for some years in the market; it comes to us now revised and enlarged, with many new illustrations. 12mo, cloth, $2.75.

PASSAGES FROM THE ENGLISH NOTE-BOOKS OF NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE. (James R. Osgood & Co.) The world is deeply indebted to Mrs. Sophia Hawthorne for these notes from the private records of her husband, as they are among his most valuable and characteristic literary efforts, offering a view of his real nature not to be obtained from his imaginative writings. The volumes belong to the new popular edition uniform with "Little Classics." 2 vols., each, $1.25.

THE TEXTILE COLORIST, edited by Charles O'Neill, F.C.S. (John Wiley & Sons.) This is the first number of a journal started in January, 1876, at Manchester, whose object is mainly to give an account of what is doing or has been done by practical or scientific men in connection with the dyeing, printing, bleaching, and finishing of textile fabrics or materials. Besides this monthly résumé of trade information, occasional articles will be given on the history and literature of dyeing, printing, and bleaching, of great interest to the general reader.

JAMES T. FIELDS' charming sketch of Hawthorne, and Longfellow's "Courtship of Miles Standish," are the latest of the Liliputian "Vest-Pocket Series" we have received from James R. Osgood & Co. In flexible covers, each 50 cents.

ITALY AND HER CHURCH, by the Right. Hon. W. E. Gladstone, M.P. (August Brentano.) The insidious encroachments Vaticanism is making upon the governments of Europe is the subject of this little pamphlet. It displays the profound wisdom and statesmanship which have characterized Mr. Gladstone's numerous essays against Vaticanism. In an able introduction by Hugh Miller Thompson, attention is called to the quiet progress "the Church" is making in America, and how she is gradually but surely becoming a power in our politics and government. 40 cents.

MONEY, CURRENCIES, AND BANKING, by Charles Moran. (A. Brentano, Union Square, N. Y.) A pamphlet aiming, by explaining the fundamental principles of finance, to show the evils an inflated and irredeemable currency has brought upon the country, and the necessity and readiest method of returning to specie payments. 8vo, paper, 40 cents.

THE STATIONERS' PRICE BOOK, for the use of the wholesale and retail trade, and for commercial traders, compiled by Andrew Geyer, editor of the American Stationer, is by far the fullest price-list of stationers' goods ever published in this country or abroad. It embraces some 662 pages, inclusive of blank pages and advertisements, and exclusive of a twelve-page index which comprises over six hundred and fifty different lines. The price-list proper is printed all through the book on the left-hand page, the opposite page being ruled for memoranda entries concerning discount, net cost, stock, etc. It is published in a portable size and shape, 4 x 8 inches, bound in leather. Its plan is entirely different from that of the forthcoming Stationers' Handbook, which chiefly consists of descriptive articles, the price lists being confined to the most popular goods in the market. Price, $2.50.

CENTENNIAL NOTES.

THE French "Cercle de la Librairie" has appointed M. Michaud, an old bookseller of Rio Janeiro, to represent its interests at the Centennial Exposition—evidently under the impression that he has been an American bookseller. They have allotted two pages of the official catalogue to each exhibitor.

THE Committee of the Dutch Book Trade has now on exhibition in the Palace of Industry the entire consignment of goods for the Philadelphia Exposition. The display will be after a plan by C. Muysken, Engineer-Architect to the General Commission of the Netherlands, designed with reference to neighboring displays, the color being light gray with dark brown panellings. The design occupies a total space of 6½ by 4 metres, in Renaissance style; a cabinet, 2 metres square and 3½ high, will enclose the art-works, and in this will stand busts of Vondel, Bilderdijk, Tollens, and Van Lennep. This so-called Kiosk has book-cases 2½ metres high on both sides, with sufficient space to move between; before these will be desks and stands to display atlases, engravings, etc., as the exhibition will include pictures, models, and other appliances of teaching. The backs of the book-cases will be hung with charts, etc. The design is slightly on all sides: at the front side are two entrances, on which is the inscription, "Netherlands Booksellers' Association"; over the entrance on the other side is written, "Collective Exposition," and two shields are placed above, bearing the motto, "In union is strength." Although the exhibition of books is confined to the publications of a few years, there will be a very creditable display, the catalogue including 2065 numbers. The books will be shelved according to the catalogue, which is on Brunet's system. This arrangement has caused much trouble, as may be seen from the titles of the divisions: 1, Encyclopedic and Bibliographical Works; 2, Theology; 3, Jurisprudence; 4, Geography and History; 5, Colonial Literature; 6, Natural Science; 7, Philosophy (Metaphysics) and Literature; 8, Fine Art; 9, Juvenile Books; 10, Education. The latter division embraces more than 840 works, and the bibliographical department is also well represented. The catalogue also includes a complete list of all the daily and weekly papers and periodicals of the Netherlands during 1875. The daily and weekly papers number 352, an increase of 68 since they were catalogued in 1872 for the London Exposition. The periodicals number 239, and show a slight decrease.

LIBRARY AND BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTES.

THE Literary World calls attention to the danger of the dispersion of the valuable Americana collection of the late Samuel J. Drake, of Boston. The library includes 9000 portraits, 15,000 bound volumes, and 30,000 pamphlets.

Among these are books and pamphlets relating to the late rebellion in unascertained number; an almost exhaustive collection of the earliest English and American periodicals; books relating to the history of Boston, with seven cases of pamphlets containing sermons, addresses, etc., of Webster, Everett, Sparks, Channing, and other famous Boston orators; 8000 pamphlets contributing to the history of New-England; 6000 bound volumes and 500 pamphlets filled exclusively with American poetry; 500 volumes of Indian history, and collections of historical societies. Samuel A. Drake, the collector's son, is now cataloguing the library with a view to its sale. It is to be hoped that some public institution may obtain it in its integrity.

MR. ARBER's great undertaking in bibliography is making quick progress. He has done two thirds of the third volume of his "Transcript of the Registers of the Stationers' Company," bringing the entries down to 1609 A.D. He will finish this and the fourth volume, extending to 1640 A.D., this year, and then go on with the compilation of his fifth volume, which will contain a list of all printed English books down to 1640 A.D., with indexes, etc., to the Transcript.

WE have proofs of the first part of the bibliography of printing to be published by Mr. Edw. C. Bigmore and Mr. C. H. Wyman, now passing through the Printing Times. The work promises to be very valuable, the titles being entered in full, with the addition of informing notes. The arrangement is alphabetical, except in the cases of, 1st, Patents, to cover Specifications of Inventions and other Publications of the English Patent-office; 2d, Periodical Publications of all Countries, arranged geographically; 3d, Societies, to cover issues of Trade and other Societies; 4th, Parliamentary Papers relating to Printing and Printers.

THE New-York Apprentices' Library now contains over 54,000 volumes, and is free to all working girls and boys, of whom 6000 now enjoy its privileges. Over 600 volumes are circulated daily.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE Public, late the Financier, states that Mr. William M. Grosvenor, having bought a controlling interest in that journal, will hereafter take charge of its editorial management. One of the chief objects of the paper will be the advocacy of a return to specie payments. Mr. Horace White, the former editor of the Chicago Tribune, is one of the many prominent names added to its list of contributors.

GLEANINGS FROM THE PRESS.

THE Literary World says of the recent failures in Boston: "The pecuniary losses resulting from these disasters are very considerable, but are of small account compared with the demoralization which is their concomitant. Confidence among members of the trade is destroyed, credits depreciated, and a universal feeling of uncertainty encouraged, which forbids a prosperous business. These untoward events go to prove that, as we have often said, the book trade, like the currency, has been too much inflated; there has been over-production, fatal rivalry, and the consequences are plain. Publishers will learn, by-and-by, that it is safer and better in all respects to issue a few good books than to exhaust their capital in the production of poor and unsalable literature, for the sake of making a show."

THE product of American poetry for the eighteenth century amounted in itself to very little. We will admit that the harvest was hardly worth reaping; but it was necessary that the share of Time should find it, turn it under, and so prepare the soil for the century to follow. Men can not work without stimulus. The want of copyright between this and the mother country was not only a confusion but a curse. It is no time for authors when one discovers 30 editions of his own work, of whose existence he had not a suspicion.—J. V. Cheney in Appleton's Journal.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Tribune writes: "In view of the fact that a large minority, if not a majority, of our citizens evince so complete an ignorance of correct financial principles, it seems to be the duty of our educators to provide the pupils of our public schools with instruction in political economy. . . . The mission of the public school is to train up good citizens, and this end will be reached much sooner by teaching our children the principles of political economy than by taxing their memories with chemical formulæ or lists of Sanskrit roots."

THE Aurora Herald has an editorial on "the booksellers' monopoly," in which it is strangely wrong alike in its facts, conclusions, and remedy for the supposed evil: "About the meanest combination that was ever formed to make money out of the long-suffering American people is that of the publishers and booksellers, who have combined, from all parts of the United States, in a union to keep up the prices of books, and keep down competition. This combination allows a publisher to fix a retail price on his books, and says they shall be sold to dealers at a discount of 30 per cent, and to all others who may want a large quantity for a library the discount shall be 20 per cent. This is an ungrateful return for the kindness shown by the people's Government, which has given copyright laws to protect writers and publishers, which virtually prohibit more than one publisher from issuing the same publication, thus giving each one a monopoly of his own productions. Not satisfied with this, they combine together to keep up each other's prices, showing themselves ungrateful and unworthy of further protection from the Government. If this combination continues, it will become the duty of the people, in self-protection, to repeal all copyright laws, and leave competition in book-making open to all. How will book-publishers relish that?" Mr. W. H. Watson has undertaken to set some of these points rightly before the public in a reply printed in the Herald.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

LOCKWOOD, BROOKS & Co., Boston, have ready a second edition of Sermons by the Monday Club. It is printed on heavy paper, and trifling alterations have been made in its binding. A number of corrections in the text have been made also. The demand for this work has been widespread, a sure index that it covered a field occupied by no other. Many inquiries have already been made about "Working People and their Employers," by Rev. Washington Gladden, in press for this same firm. The author treats his subject with vigor, and will certainly interest the reader, if not convincing.

D. VAN NOSTRAND announces for publication a work on "Roads, Streets, and Pavements," from the pen of General Q. A. Gillmore. As this subject has attracted lately a world-wide attention, the respective merits of stone, asphalt, and wooden pavements having been largely discussed by the distinguished author in the Tribune, the value and importance of the work can not fail to be recognized.

THE annual meeting for 1876 of the managers of the Methodist Book Concern was held at their publishing house in Cincinnati, commencing Wednesday, February 9th, and continuing for a few days. Reports from the different sections of the country and from the various committees were submitted, new officers elected, and the ordinary routine business transacted. As a matter of more general interest to the trade it may be noted that the report of the editors showed a large increase in the amount of business transacted and of books published, as well as advancement in character of books published, so that the Concern is acting "as a constant encouragement to the Methodist author of ability." A recommendation was made to the General Conference to fix a greater rate of discount between the two houses, and between them and their depositories; to place a narrow limit to the credits given to purchasers; to ordain new measures for the general circulation of our books and other publications through the channels of the general book trade. A further resolution, to request the next General Conference to authorize that the trade discount be allowed to the preachers who sell our books, in order that their publications might be more generally introduced throughout the country, was adopted.

COLONEL RICHARD IRVING DODGE, U.S.A., who has seen service both in the late war and on the plains, and who may be remembered as the Provost-Marshal of this city at the time of the last draft, has put his twenty years' experience of the plains and their inhabitants into book form, which the Putnams will publish here at the same time it appears in London. The three parts making up the book will discuss respectively the plains, the Indians, and the game, thus being both geographical and ethnological, with matter of interest for the sportsmen. It will form a volume of some 450 or 500 pages, and be illustrated with drawings by William Blackmoor, brother of the English novelist.

THE Academy, London, gives some interesting facts as to the value of English book exports. In 1832 it was only £93,038; in 1845, double that—£186,478; in 1870, £630,855; last year, ten times that of 40 years ago, £915,098—an increase of £10,000 over the previous year. Of these the United States absorbed in 1832, £15,866 worth; in 1845, £36,080; in 1874, £274,043—a constantly-increasing proportion.

A PROSE STORY BY THE AUTHOR OF "MRS. JERNINGHAM'S JOURNAL."

MISS HITCHCOCK'S WEDDING DRESS. In 1 vol., 12mo, with a frontispiece, and attractively bound, $1.25.

FROM THE LONDON SPECTATOR:

"We have read nothing by the author of 'Mrs. Jerneingham's Journal'—though we believe we have read all her various lively stories—which seems to us so good as this. It is not that the story is very probable; indeed, the improbability in it, which is rather considerable, was no doubt intentionally devised for the purpose of affording a good opportunity to illustrate simplicity and unconsciousness in a bright and happy girl; but we confess we care very little about improbability of incident, so long as the incident of a tale—probable or improbable—is well adapted to bring out a character that is real, fresh and charming; and no one who reads 'Miss Hitchcock's Wedding Dress,' whether man or woman, will fail, we fancy, to be charmed with Miranda, or will any man who reads it fail to fall in love with that young lady."

ALSO NEW EDITIONS OF

THE JERNINGHAM JOURNALS. (Mrs. Jerneingham's Journal and John Jerneingham's Journal.) 1 vol., 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

A VERY YOUNG COUPLE. 1 vol., 12mo, cloth, with frontispiece, $1.25.

CRITICISMS OF THE LONDON PRESS:

"His workmanship is in its way perfect; it is very sound, very even, very well sustained, and excellently balanced throughout."—Observer.

"Mr. Gilbert has done well and wisely to publish in a collected form some of his best plays. . . . 'The Palace of Truth,' and 'Pygmalion,' and 'Galatea,' may be read and enjoyed as poems by persons who have never entered the walls of a theatre."—Standard.

printing business for the railroads. They manufacture also a large line of paper-boxes, and employ about 75 hands.

One of their specialties is the manufacturing of blue and white bonnet-board, which they sell to the jobbing trade at low prices. Samples sent on application. This firm will make an attractive display of their own blank-books at the Centennial.

W. Scott Glore has a large and well-arranged line of every thing salable in the business. Mr. Glore has returned from a short trip East, where he has been buying a line of goods to establish his "Southern Base-Ball Emporium." This is on Tyler Block, a few doors from his stationery store, and elegantly fitted up with a large stock of base-ball implements, etc., and a fine reading-room and billiard-hall at the rear. Mr. Glore deserves great credit in the good taste displayed in fitting up and arranging this new enterprise.

PERSONAL NOTES.

THE names of Mr. Richard Grant White and Mr. J. Carson Brevoort are mentioned in connection with the librarianship of the Astor.

THE gentleman connected with Messrs. Turnbull Brothers, Baltimore, who stood second on the honor roll for the biographical list is Mr. John W. Winks, Jr., and not a Mr. Wints, as we had unfortunately misprinted it.

BUSINESS NOTES.

THE copartnership of Messrs. Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger, of Philadelphia, has expired by limitation, and the business will be continued at the well-known Market street establishment by Edmund Claxton and Charles C. Haffelfinger.

MESSRS. D. LOTHROP & Co., lately of Cornhill, Boston, have removed into their spacious and handsome new store, corner of Franklin and Hawley streets, in the new book centre, diagonally opposite Lee & Shepard's store. The floor is 40 by 100, and Mr. Lothrop will considerably extend his stock in entering it. He proposes that the store shall be a complete Bible repository, having the most general assortment to be found, while the stock of juveniles will also be something exceptional. He will keep also some stock of miscellaneous books, principally the new ones, and will make a specialty of the finest stationery.

MARTIN TAYLOR, of Buffalo, is effecting a settlement with his creditors, twenty per cent being reported as the basis. His chief creditors are desirous of his continuing, as they consider him too valuable a man to lose.

It is stated that the creditors of A. W. Lovering, of Boston, are compromising at fifteen cents. Mr. A. F. Graves, a veteran member of the trade, with whom there is hearty sympathy, is finding some difficulty in settling at fifty. The settlement with W. F. Gill & Co. having been opposed by large creditors, the matter has been referred back by the court to the Register in Bankruptcy.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

It is a dull spring for burglars, else they would not go into the book business. Last month burglars entered the store of Stevens & Co., Lewiston, Me., and stole $500 worth of gold pens, etc., and the next week, the book-stores of Henry T. Clauder and Schwartz & Weaver, Bethlehem, Pa., were also visited by these gentry. Mr. Clauder writes: "The robbery of a bookstore I considered of such a rare occurrence that gold pen stock was reasonably secure without special precaution to protect it. From inclosed, however, you will notice that the guild is not exempt from contributing to the assets of burglars."

MAURICE JOKAI, the eminent Hungarian writer, is about publishing a novel with the title "God is one God," which will bring out the early history of the Unitarians and the Unitarian faith in Transylvania. An English and French translation will appear simultaneously with the Hungarian original.

MESSRS. HENRY S. KING & Co., of London, have in press a translation by M. D'Anvers of M. Lesseps' work, "Letters, Journals, and Documents for a History of the Suez Canal."

MR. JAMES COLSTON, Treasurer of the city of Edinburgh, and head of the firm of Messrs. Colston & Son, of that city, is engaged on a "History of Printing in Scotland." The work will be published in a few months.

A NEW and enlarged edition of Dr. Samuel Osgood's "Hearth-Stone: Home Life in our Cities," is to be issued by E. P. Dutton & Co. This book has gone through several editions, and has been for some time out of print. The new edition will have an essay entitled "A Hundred Years of Housekeeping," with thoughts upon the tendencies of household life in America within the century.

THE first edition of the "Life of George Ticknor," says the Boston Transcript, has sold like a bewitching novel. Dr. Shelton Mackenzie seems to have hit pretty near the mark in saying that it is "about ten times as instructive and entertaining as 'Crabb Robinson's Diary,' and most readers will pleasurably remember how good that was."

A NEW volume by Miss Yonge, "The Christmas Mummings, and other Stories," has been published abroad.

THE Report of the Church Congress, held in Philadelphia last November, is now issued in a neat and attractive form by the publisher, Thomas Whittaker.

A STORY is told in the Godwin book, just published by Roberts, of Lamb's letter to Godwin, when the latter, as publisher, suggested alterations in Lamb's book: "As an author I say to you, an author, Touch not my work. As to a bookseller I say, Take the work such as it is, or refuse it. . . . As to a friend, I say, Don't plague yourself and me with nonsensical objections; I assure you I will not alter a word."

MR. EDWARD JENKINS, author of "Ginx's Baby," has at last begun the serial publication of his Coolie novel, entitled "Lutchmee and Dilloo," announced several years ago.

THE third volume of Lanfrey's "History of Napoleon the First" (in English translation) is promised by Macmillan & Co. for early issue.

The Literary News

A Monthly Journal of Current Literature.

PUBLISHED BY

(Space allotted for Dealer's Imprint.)

MARCH, 1876.

TO THE RETAIL BOOK TRADE.

Retail Booksellers, News Agents, and Dealers generally, who desire a handy, cheap, and profitable advertising medium for the latest books in the market, will find

The Literary News

the best adapted to that purpose.

This publication (now in its fifth year) has reached a circulation of over 25,000 copies, and is used by hundreds of booksellers, from Maine to California.

It will be issued as heretofore, at the beginning of every month, with not less than eight pages, embracing Editorial Notes, Literary Intelligence, a full list, compiled expressly for its columns from the records of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, containing the titles and prices of the PRINCIPAL BOOKS PUBLISHED DURING THE PREVIOUS MONTH and announcements of Forthcoming Works for the Current Month, so classified as to show at a glance all the new publications in the various departments of literature, and one page of general advertisements, which will not conflict with the interest of the trade. It will be printed on tinted paper like previous editions, but of superior quality, and being of light texture, it can be sent with any book, magazine, paper, letter, circular, etc., with a small increase of postage.

It is certain that dealers who will adopt this cheap and effective mode for advertising their establishments, will find themselves amply repaid in a short time, and we have the testimony of many dealers who have not only increased the sales from their counters, but have found the orders for books not in stock highly remunerative.

Terms for Editions with Imprint, invariably payable in advance.

100 Copies for three months,	:	:	:	$6 50	500 Copies for three months,	:	:	:	$12 00
250 " " "	:	:	:	12 00	1000 " " "	:	:	:	28 00

Special terms for large quantities.

As the December issue will hereafter be published as a double (Christmas) number, regular subscribers at the above rates, who fail to send their special order, will receive only one half the quantity for this month. Special terms for the Christmas number will be announced in the Publishers' Weekly during the month of November.

Extra front headings (instead of the adopted style of imprint), with special name of paper and display, for which there is space above the rules inclosing date, are charged $1 extra per edition.

Any quantity from 100 to 1000 copies will be sent post-paid, but for larger quantities, at the reduced rates, postage or expressage will be charged.

Dealers who desire an edition for trial before subscribing, can be supplied at the following rates:

100 Copies for any month except December,	$2 50	500 Copies for any month except December,	$8 00
250 " " "	5 00	1000 " " "	15 00

Orders must be received by the 30th of the month previous to which the subscription begins.

No orders filled without payment in advance, as the numerous small amounts will neither bear the trouble nor expense of sending bills or of repeated statements, and collecting. Remittances should be made either by Post-Office Order, Draft on New-York, or Registered Letter.

All Orders should be addressed,

RICHARD BRINCKERHOFF, Manager,

Office of PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY; or, Box 4295, New-York.

RECENT PUBLICATIONS

OF

D. APPLETON & CO.,

549 and 551 Broadway, New-York.

The Cotton States,

IN THE SPRING AND SUMMER of 1875.

By CHARLES NORDHOFF,

Author of "California for Health," "Politics for Young Americans."

1 vol., 8vo. Paper Covers, 50 cents.

"It is full, from beginning to end, of information on a most vital question, and will be read with the greatest interest."—Worcester Palladium.

"His showing is most unfavorable in many respects to the Republican politicians of the South and their administrations, but it is not more favorable to the cause and conduct of the Southern democracy."—Springfield Republican.

Geier-Wally.

A TALE OF THE TYROL.

From the German of WILHELMINA VON HILLERN.

1 vol., cloth, red edges, $1.25; paper covers, 50 cents.

"A remarkable novel is the Tyrolean story of 'Geier-Wally,' translated from the German. The scene is placed in the Tyrolean Alps, and the state of society it exhibits is something strange to our civilized conceptions. The story is told with a great deal of power, and with a womanly enthusiasm which renders it quite interesting."—New-York Sun.

THE FIFTH EDITION OF

Mrs. Limber's Raffle;

OR,

A CHURCH FAIR AND ITS VICTIMS.

A SHORT STORY.

1 vol., 18mo, paper covers, 50 cents; cloth, 75 cents.

"Not for many a day have we so enjoyed a story, as a little paper covered book published by the Appletons. The author is not named; but the work is admirable, timely, and important. It should be read by every apologist for these pious frauds, church fairs, in which games of chance are permitted."—Methodist Recorder.

NEW BOOKS FOR LEARNING FRENCH.

Rational Method,

Following Nature, Step by Step, to learn how to Read, Hear, Speak, and Write French. By CLAUDE MARCEL. 1 vol., 18mo, 50 cents.

"Rejecting traditionary routine, and following nature, step by step, this method, based upon the constitution of man and that of language, dispenses at the outset with grammar exercises, versions, dictations, mnemonics, and, in a great measure, with the use of a dictionary and the advice of a teacher. It is composed of two simple operations: familiarizing the ear and the eye with a language; then imitating correct examples, in order to learn how to speak and write it."—Extract from Preface.

French Children at Home.

An Introduction to "Comment on Parle à Paris; or, French as Spoken in Paris." By Madame de PEYRAC, author of "Comment on Parle à Paris." 1 vol., 12mo, 90 cents.

"This work we now offer our young students will, we trust, be both useful and amusing. Our object is to introduce them into the home circles of their little French friends across the great ocean.

"The Marcel system, which is now thoroughly appreciated, has been followed through these pages, which we have endeavored to render still more attractive by introducing the characters of 'Comment on Parle à Paris' in their childhood."—Extract from Preface.

IMPORTANT BOOKS ON CURRENCY AND BANKING.

Currency and Banking.

By BONAMY PRICE, Professor of Political Economy in the University of Oxford. 1 vol., 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"This work is founded on the view of Currency and Banking taken in the 'Lectures on the Principles of Currency,' delivered at Oxford. I have met with no reason which, in my opinion, requires that the views therein expressed should be altered."—From Author's Preface.

Money and the Mechanism of Exchange.

By W. STANLEY JEVONS, M.A., F.R.S., Professor of Logic and Political Economy. 1 vol., 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

Forming Vol. 17 of the International Scientific Series.

"He offers what a clear-sighted, cool-headed scientific student has to say on the nature, properties, and natural laws of money, without regard to local interest or natural bias. His work is popularly written, and every page is replete with solid information of a kind that is just now lamentably needed by multitudes of our people who are victimized by the grossest fallacies."—Popular Science Monthly.

NOW READY.*New Edition, Revised and Improved.ART:*Its Laws and the Reasons for Them.

Collected, considered, and arranged for general and educational purposes, by SAMUEL P. LONG, Counselor at Law, Student of the English Royal Academy, and Pupil of the late Gilbert Stuart Newton, Esq., R.A. 8vo, cloth, with steel plates and wood-engravings, $2.

Mr. GEO. S. HILLARD says:

"It shows a wide range of reading and observation, the fruits of which are presented with sound judgment and good taste. It has the merit of being popular, and not yet superficial, and thus is very well adapted both for purposes of education and general reading. I do not know of any work in the language that fills the place which this is intended to fill, and does it worthily and well."

From Prof. A. P. PRABODY:

"It seems to me a work of great intrinsic merit and value, and of peculiar worth to the public. . . . It shows a thorough acquaintance with the whole ground, careful reflection, discriminating taste, and a just appreciation of the wants it is designed to satisfy."

Headley's Historical Library.

By Rev. P. C. Headley. Six vols., 12mo, illustrated, per vol., $1.50.

THE ISLAND OF FIRE; or, A Thousand Years of the Old Northmen's Home, 874-1874. The annals and wonderful scenery of Iceland, including the "Millennial" Celebration of August, 1874.

"The graphic pen of the author is well adapted to the portrayal of a theme at once so rich and romantic as Iceland, and his broad range of topics, his vivid descriptions and the enthusiasm with which he devotes himself to his subject, conspire to lend to this volume far more than ordinary attractions."—New-York Evangelist.

LIFE OF NAPOLEON BONAPARTE. With portrait.

LIFE OF THE EMPRESS JOSEPHINE. With elegant steel portrait.

"This is by far the most interesting history of Josephine we have yet seen. Recourse has been had to the best sources for materials, and they are combined and put together with skill and judgment. The style is flowing, elegant, and often eloquent."—Washington Union.

LIFE OF LAFAYETTE. With portrait.

WOMEN OF THE BIBLE.

"It contains nineteen descriptive biographical sketches, arranged in chronological order, including nearly all the distinguished women of the sacred annals, and forming an outline of Scripture history. The illustrations are from original designs, and are numerous and appropriate. No ordinary powers of imagination and expression are shown in the vivid and picturesque descriptions; and the fine portraiture of character rivet the interest, and set forth the Scripture delineations in a stronger light. In this respect the book has no rival."—Home Journal, New-York.

"Call the Meeting to Order."ALWAYS CONSULT*Warrington's Manual for the information of officers and members of Legislatures, Conventions, Societies, Corporations, Orders, etc., in the practical governing and membership of all such bodies, according to the Parliamentary Law and Practice in the United States. By William S. Robinson, "Warrington," Clerk of the House of Representatives of Massachusetts, from 1862 to 1873. 75c.

Among the number of recommendations from the most distinguished men in this country, we now append the following from the late Hon. CHARLES SUMNER:

"COOLIDGE HOUSE, Nov. 24, 1873.

"Gentlemen—I have read Mr. Robinson's little book on Public Assemblies and the Rules for their Government. I find it clear, pointed, and instructive.

"Yours truly, CHARLES SUMNER."

Hon. JAMES G. BLAINE says:

"AUGUSTA, Me., Nov. 16, 1875.

"WILLIAM S. ROBINSON, ESQ.,

"Dear Sir—I have very carefully examined your brief Manual of Parliamentary Procedure, and I consider it singularly perspicuous, practical, and convenient. The system of Parliamentary Law is not broad nor deep—but is very sharp and very exact, and all its parts hang together with an admirable consistency. You have presented it with a clearness which a mere theoretical knowledge could never impart, but which your long practice in connection with a Legislative body has enabled you to acquire. Your book will be especially valuable, not merely to Legislative assemblies, but to all municipal bodies; and indeed to all Societies where proceedings are governed by law and order.

"Very respectfully, J. G. BLAINE.

A POPULAR HISTORY OF OUR COUNTRY.YOUNG FOLKS'*History of the United States.

By Thos. Wentworth Higginson. With over 100 illustrations. $1.50.

The theory of the book can be briefly stated; it is, that American History is in itself one of the most attractive of all subjects, and can be made interesting to old and young, by being presented in a simple, clear, and graphic way. In this book only such names and dates are introduced as are necessary to secure a clear and definite thread of connected incident in the mind of the reader; and the space thus saved is devoted to illustrative traits and incidents, and the details of daily living. By this means it is believed that much more can be conveyed, even of the philosophy of history, than where this is overlaid and hidden by a mass of mere statistics.

"Compact, clear, and accurate. . . . This unpretending little book is the best general history of the United States we have seen."—The Nation.

"The book is so written that every child old enough to read history at all will understand and like it, and persons of the fullest information and purest taste will admire it."—Boston Daily Advertiser.

"It is marvelous to note how happily Mr. Higginson, in securing an amazing compactness by his condensation, has avoided alike superficiality and dullness."—Boston Transcript.

Comin' Thro' the Rye.

1 vol., 8vo. Paper covers.....75 cents.

"A very amusing and well-written story. The history of the youth of the Adairs is extremely amusing, and told in a bright and witty manner. . . . One of the pleasantest novels of the season."—Morning Post.

"It is a clever novel, never dull, and the story never hangs fire."—Standard.

"There is a great deal of power in 'Comin' thro' the Rye.' The heroine grows up before our eyes from the 'tom-boy' stage of girlishness to an excellent specimen of loving and truthful womanhood. There is originality in the tragic plot, and an unceasing current of rather rollicking fun, which saves the tragedy from becoming too sombre."—Athenæum.

General History of Greece,

From the Earliest Period to the Death of Alexander the Great. By the Rev. GEORGE W. COX. 1 vol., 12mo. Cloth. $2.50.

"We envy those schoolboys and undergraduates who will make their first acquaintance with Greek history through Mr. Cox's admirable volume. It ought to supersede all the popular Histories of Greece which have gone before it."—The Hour.

"The appearance of this work is an event of some importance in the history of educational books. When a man proposes to write a History of Greece, even a school history, he proposes a great matter. . . . The book is worthy, in every way, of the author's reputation. . . . It is altogether a most interesting and valuable book."—Educational Times.

"Mr. Cox's history has many claims on our attention. Its style is extremely spirited, and often highly eloquent and picturesque; and it is the only Greek history in our language written in a style to attract and impress the young imagination and memory."—English Churchman.

The Works of Count Rumford.

Carefully collected and edited by a committee of the Academy, consisting of Prof. Winlock, Prof. J. P. Cooke, Jr., F. H. Storer, Esq., Prof. Wyman, J. B. Francis, Esq., E. C. Pickering, Esq., Wolcott Gibbs, Esq.; together with a LIFE OF COUNT RUMFORD.

By the Rev. GEORGE E. ELLIS, D. D.

Complete in five vols., 8vo, beautifully printed and illustrated. $25.

This forms the only complete edition of the works of this great American philosopher and inventor, who may be properly called the PIONEER OF POPULAR SCIENCE AND ECONOMIC REFORM. The works contain full accounts of his experiments in heat, light, electricity, and his wonderful success in the introduction of reforms in the sanitary management of armies and public institutions of Europe. The Life contains all that is known of interest regarding him, from his birth in Woburn, Mass., his voluntary exile from America, his assistance to the British ministry, and afterward his services in the royal army in America, his being knighted by George III., and appointed Count of the Holy Roman Empire by the Elector of Bavaria, his being raised to the most important positions in the government of Bavaria, to the time of his death.

Prof. E. L. YOUMANS says of his discoveries: "Rumford was the first to reach, experimentally, the fundamental conclusion that heat is but a mode of motion."

Hon. ROBERT C. WINTHROP says: "We have never done honor enough to his memory in America. There ought to be a statue of him here, as there is in Munich. It is a tardy act of justice to one who did great things for the world as well as Bavaria. His plans for the relief and prevention of pauperism would alone entitle him to the blessing of mankind. Almost every thing which is valuable in our modern systems of charity may be traced to his writings."

NATURE says: "One remarkable feature of Rumford's papers is their simplicity and clearness. They are all readable to the least initiated in scientific technicalities, every page displays the clear and purely scientific intellect of the writer. He was no mere theorist, however; he carried out practically every principle he expounds. He cooked for tens of thousands in his military kitchens and House of Industry."

 No large public or private library should be without a set of these magnificent works.

"We have here an honest, manly book; an earnest, eloquent, and thoroughly readable book. Works like this ought to have a wide circulation."—The Church Journal.

NOTES IN SEASON.

It is coming time, as we have suggested by our prize questions in agriculture and horticulture, for the bookseller to lay in his stock of books for the farmer and gardener. Valuable lines of such books are advertised in this issue, and the trade should keep on the watch for them.

THE prize questions continue to excite unusual interest, and we have, at date of writing (Wednesday), 22 lists in political economy, for which the competition closes this Saturday. The results will be given in the next WEEKLY. The question on horticulture follows. One of the winners of prizes writes to us very warmly of the usefulness of the system to book clerks, and adds, "I can assure you the encouragement has been of almost incalculable value."

A VERY pretty little book is to be issued by Hurd & Houghton, New-York—The Riverside Press, Cambridge—on Charcoal Drawing, a translation from the French of Auguste Allongé, by Miss Waring, a sister of Colonel Waring. The book has a heliotype frontispiece and an introduction by Charles C. Perkins. Colonel Waring, himself, is to bring out through the same house his Sanitary Drainage for Houses and Towns, and Mr. Edward Sprague Rand, Jr., well known for his horticultural books which have lately passed into Hurd & Houghton's hands, will print Glen Ridge Orchids, a practical hand-book on orchidaceous plants.

THE second volume of the Centenary Edition of Bancroft's "History of the United States" will be published by Little, Brown & Co. on or about the 22d of the month. The thorough revision this work has received gives it new claims to the popular favor which in this Centennial year it is sure to enjoy. Every American must study his own country's history now.

ROBERTS BROTHERS are preparing for early publication a new edition of Hamerton's charming art and out-door volume, "A Painter's Camp," uniform with his "Intellectual Life;" also, in the same style, his "Sylvan Year," and "The Unknown River," to form a single volume. The illustrations of these popular books will not be included in this edition, but a steel portrait of Mr. Hamerton will be given, to the gratification of his many admirers.

THE "Life of George Ticknor" proved so popular, that the first edition was absorbed before the second could be prepared. This is now ready, and a third—and many more—will doubtless be needed to meet the demand for a work so exceptionally rich in anecdotes, reminiscences, and descriptions of notable persons.

MRS. WHITNEY'S new story, "Sights and Insights," will be published by James R. Osgood & Co., Saturday the 18th, in two volumes, $3. The scene of the story is in Europe; the characters are American, and the atmosphere is Mrs. Whitney's. It embraces sufficient description of picturesque views, a genuine love story, and those humorous, airy, thoughtful, earnest, deeply engaging features which distinguish Mrs. Whitney's books. It is quite long, but probably not a page too long to please her numerous admirers.

THE clever author of the society poems called "Point Lace and Diamonds," Mr. Geo. A. Baker, Jr., publishes through F. B. Patterson a bright collection of society satires, "The Bad Habits of Good Society." Most of them were printed in the Evening Mail, over the signature of "Katzenjammer," and attracted much attention to their bright satire on the fashionable follies of New-York. The volume in which they are now collected is very dainty, with a capital cover design, and it should have a wide sale as a summer book.

PLAN AND SCHEDULE OF THE A. B. T. A. DISPLAY.

WE give herewith a plan of the lower section of the A. B. T. A. allotment at the Centennial Exhibition, for which we are indebted to Mr. Henry Pettit, Chief of the Bureau of Installation, with a list of the exhibitors and the distribution of space among them. The latter number close upon one hundred, and although a few prominent houses are unrepresented, the display promises to be worthy of American book production. The distribution of the space up-stairs is sufficiently indicated by the plan printed in Vol. IX., No. 1, of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY (for Jan. 1st, 1876). The following is the list of exhibitors, the numbers referring to their official numbering on the books of the Director-General:

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries." Notes from librarians will also be gratefully received.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

CURIOSITIES OF TRADE JOURNALISM.

It is not considered very good manners for the younger generation to turn about and criticise their elders, and we suppose we may well be modest just now in calling the mother country to account. But American readers would certainly be pleased if the leading literary journal of England, the Athenæum, were a little more fair toward this side of the Atlantic, both in its notices of books and in its statements of facts, which latter it has declined to correct when its errors have been pointed out, and we imagine the English trade, as well as we, would be grateful if our veteran contemporary, the Publishers' Circular, displayed more carefulness and impartiality than it is sometimes guilty of. Our bill of grievances has many particulars, for we have long refrained from uttering our woes; imprimis, the following table, which is really a curiosity of literature :

The figures given under Nos. 8 to 12, and the nomenclature of Nos. 1, 4, 5, 8, 10, 13, 14, 17, and 22, are especially remarkable. How any one could put "Republications" for History of Literature or Literary History, and "Extracts" for History, we are at a loss to account for; but we can picture to ourselves the learned compiler, dictionary in hand, bewildered by Gewerbe (trades) and Gewebe (weaving); betrayed by Haus- und Land (house and land), suggesting to his unsuspecting mind architecture and surveying for Haus- und Landwirthschaft (domestic and rural economy), and finally decidedly "mixed" over Vermischte, which by some inexplicable process fermented in his brain into "Brewing" instead of "Miscellaneous Literature." Over a thousand books on brewing within two years !

O Vaterland, kannst ruhig sein !

The accuracy of this table calls to mind the following surprising statements made by the Circular, December 31st, 1873 :

"Our contemporary, the Athenæum, has . . . given us a résumé of the literary work of the year in the various civilized countries of Europe, but has, as yet, omitted our own, the most fertile of all. But while the largest number of works published in one country is 659 [italics our own], one subject, that of theology, alone amounts with us to 770 works, the grand total of new books, new editions, and American importations amounting to the immense aggregate of 4991 different books and pamphlets."

The aggregate of books and pamphlets published in the same year (1873), in Germany, was 11,315, the subject of theology alone embracing 1239 publications!

We can not say, however, that this catalogue of grievances is entirely impersonal. Here is something that comes home to us—the notice of the "Trade-List Annual for 1874," December 31st of that year:

From the Office of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, New-York.—The Publishers' Trade-List Annual, embracing the full trade lists of American publishers, books recorded in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY from January 16th, 1873, to June 27th, 1874. This is the original—the acknowledged original—of Mr. Whitaker's British Reference Catalogue, and however well done, is, and ever must be, necessarily imperfect. It is merely a collection of booksellers' lists of a uniform size, "the unobtrusive simplicity of the plan" of Mr. F. Leypoldt consisting in gathering what catalogues he could together, and issuing them. So far, they are useful; but as no less than sixteen firms did not respond to his circular, and "Messrs. Cassell's manager was in Europe, and could not furnish a list," one must see how far from perfect such a plan must perforce be. Such a trade list is as different from the British Catalogue as well can be.

The title, as misquoted, "lists of American publishers [omitting "together with an Alphabetical Reference List of"]; books recorded in the P. W.," etc., etc., is certainly open to misconstruction, for no word is said in explanation of the "Reference List," which, though in a more compact form, serves the same purpose as the Annual English Catalogue, issued from the press of the Publishers' Circular, at the price of 5s. Now what is said, "It is merely," etc., etc., states precisely what the work claimed to be, and it did not claim a whit more, as is fully explained in the preface, where also it is stated that "The Trade-List Annual is indeed a mere 'makeshift'; it may become more perfect and more indispensable every year, but it only half fulfils its mission without the existence of 'The Finding List.'" The latter work, now actually in preparation at this office, may, we hope, compare not unfavorably with the British Catalogue.

The British Catalogue, it must be understood, is published at the office of the Publishers' Circular; Whitaker's "Reference Catalogue" at the office of the (London) Bookseller. We are very particular in stating the sources of publication, as was not the Publishers' Circular when it noticed the first appearance of the "Reference Catalogue." The omission of Mr. Whitaker's name or place of publication was then as singular an "oversight" as the omission of a certain rival firm from its Educational Catalogue published in 1871. This "Educational Catalogue" was not published in the Publishers' Circular, as is the American Educational Catalogue in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, but in book form, at the price of 3s. 6d., and such work should not be "necessarily imperfect." The recent "Educational number" of the Publishers' Circular, by the way, has for its sole educational feature, outside of "the collection of booksellers' lists" in its advertising pages, a half page of editorial remarks on text-books in general, inclusive of five lines on Murray's and Longmans' lists in particular, summing up the rest of the educational publishers of Great Britain in the phrase: "to mention other worthy attempts would be merely to reprint the names of those whose lists will be found in the present Circular." We doubt if the American book trade would come forward in support of such "Educational numbers."

We gratefully acknowledge that the Trade-List Annual for 1875 has met with more appreciation at the hands of the Publishers' Circular. Indeed, as an offset to last year's imperfect notice, we now get more than is our due. The notice reads:

Mr. F. Leypoldt's third "American Publishers' Trade-List Annual" has made its appearance, and bears the marks of the same industry and intelligence bestowed on that produced last year. The work has slightly increased in bulk, contains more catalogues than it did in 1874, and in addition to the Index of Contributors and Advertisers, and Index of Specialties Represented in the Annual, is enriched by an Alphabetical Reference List (of works published from January 2d, 1874, to June 26th, 1875), and an American (Classified) Educational Catalogue for 1875.

It is true that no mention is made of the new and most useful features, the General, Medical, and Law Indexes, but to balance matters, credit is given us for what we received no credit last year, and what, unfortunately, we do not possess this year, namely, an "Alphabetical Reference List." It is clear that the ingenuous writer re-reviewed our Annual for 1874, taking a more favorable view of the "gathering," and taking it for granted that as the Reference List last year was from January 16th, 1873, to June 27th, 1874, this year's must be from January 2d, 1874, to June 26th, 1875, and that, perhaps for uniformity's sake, we re-catalogued the publications from January 2d to June 27th, 1874.

We are glad that the above, intended for publication in our last issue, was delayed, as we are enabled to print simultaneously, in justice to the Publishers' Circular, its account of the "misadventure of the list" published in the subsequent number, February 16th. It reads:

SUMMARY OF WORKS PUBLISHED IN GERMANY IN 1874-5.—In the list of these works given in our last from that compiled by Mr. Hinrichs (not Heinrichsen), one or two errors have crept in through the misadventure of the list not having been corrected before going to press. We have to thank Mr. Schulze and other correspondents for calling attention to these errors, and we believe the better way of setting the matter correctly before our readers is to give the revised list entire.

Now, we like a frank avowal, and are always ready ourselves to confess our failings, but we leave it to our readers to count the "one or two errors" which Mr. Schulze "and other correspondents" (why not the editor?) took the trouble to correct. We suspect that the arithmeticians of the Publishers' Circular are on very accommodating terms with its statisticians. "One or two errors," or let us say only inaccuracies, may still be pointed out on the list as corrected, though we never should have thought of criticising our contemporary had the list appeared in its present shape.

Sammelwerke and Gesammelte Werke are not exactly the same thing. The former, here, rather means "Collections, Libraries, Serial Publications;" the latter "Collected Works," such as Schiller's or Dickens' Works, though the "collected works" of an author of miscellaneous literary and scientific works are to some extent included by Hinrichs in the former. Naturwissenschaft means "Natural Sciences," a term more comprehensive than "Natural History." No. 9, Neuere Sprachen, of course, could come under "Philology," so could part of No. 8; but No. 9 includes only "Modern Languages." Kriegswissenschaft is not covered by "Military," but might be in this case by "Military and Naval" (Arts or Sciences). Pferdekunde (lit. science or knowledge of the horse) means more than "Horsemanship;" the only analogous term which would express it in one word might be, if we could venture, "Hippology." Forstwissenschaft is not expressed at all in "Field and Sporting Works," the cultivation of forests, an important branch of study and practice in Germany, furnishing by far the larger number of works in this department. Jagdwissenschaft (science of hunting) may include various field and sporting works; but in the present sense is rather confined to what might be best though not fully expressed by the old term "venery." Volksschriften (books for the people, i. e., cheap publications) does not mean "Popular Works," which term should comprehend the popular books in any branch of literature. We admit that we ourselves have not been able in all cases to find the corresponding terms for the German, and that in several instances we have given preference to explanatory rather than technical terms. In doing so we have followed Hinrichs' list as published in the Börsenblatt, though some of the departments are imperfectly headed in the original.

IN answer to numerous inquiries as to the work on the "American Catalogue," we may state that this magnum opus is at last, after we know not how many years' delay, fairly begun. The plan for the first volume of the catalogue and the working rules have been prepared in detail, the publishers have been applied to for the information which we first require, and the work of transcribing titles has already begun. How long the completion of the work will require is still a matter of conjecture to ourselves, but we trust to issue the first volume considerably before the end of 1876. The delay has been owing solely to the difficulty of procuring subscriptions for the catalogue, since the great outlay required, especially in the bibliographical work, made it too costly an enterprise to be undertaken at individual risk. The guarantee fund has not reached the minimum which we had set for it, but we have decided to go on with the work in the trust that the trade will come to our relief. We ask our friends now to do what they can to increase the subscriptions in advance of publication. The price will depend upon the actual cost of the work, but it will not exceed $25 for the two volumes, and we are quite sure that it will be more than worth this amount to any book-dealer or library, as well as to many private readers. This price, whatever it is, will be raised on publication, and it is therefore desirable on both sides that as many subscriptions as possible should be sent in previously. The Catalogue is to embrace all books in print and for sale up to January 1, 1876, or possibly later.

THERE is a "Christian gentleman" in Philadelphia to whom we may call the attention of the Philadelphia trade. He has distributed through the country a remarkable circular, including a letter in which, some years ago, President Grant, Mr. Colfax, Mr. Greeley, and other distinguished individuals recommended him at large as a Christian gentleman and a Sabbath-school teacher and platform speaker; and he offers books on the very thin device of "clubs" at prices at which booksellers can not afford to sell them. The pièce de resistance is Chambers' "Encyclopædia," but there is also a considerable stock of American and English books scheduled at all sorts of prices. This distinguished gentleman advertises himself from the building of the "Art Journal," of which he announces himself the editor, and so wide is his business ability that he is not only a bookseller and an editor, but he kindly offers his services as a boarding-house broker for the Centennial at the low price of $2 per head.

THE current Bookseller has an excellent article on the question of lowering prices, under the caption of "The Book Trade and the Public," in which it says: "Let the publishers adopt such terms and prices as will enable the trade to say to the public, 'We have cut down our prices to you and our profits for ourselves to a figure that will only enable us to make an honest living and cover our risks. We have but one price, and that is a fair price.'" But we can not agree that it speaks for the trade in saying, "We have to confess that we have not kept faith with the public. We have cut off their discounts, but we have not reduced prices." A reduction of prices was promised as the result of the retail price rule, but this reduction has been delayed because the action of some houses in fostering undersellers has retarded the progress of the reform and done much to prevent the consummation so devoutly to be wished.

WE begin in this number a series of personal reminiscences of the book trade by Mr. D. B. Cooke, of Chicago, which, we are quite sure, both the older and the younger members of the trade will find interesting. Such pictures of the book business are not only entertaining but they afford opportunities for useful comparisons of old methods with new, and it is our chief regret that we can not as yet give more space to the interesting material of this sort which is doubtless to be had in abundance.

THE SPRING SEASON.

WE present herewith such facts as we have been able to gather about the books the trade may expect to handle the coming season, and other matters of interest in connection with the opening of the spring campaign. Such omissions as there may be are not our fault, but those of the houses who have failed to respond to our request for information, and we shall turn over to them any apologies due to the trade. We shall be glad to print any further information of the sort in our number next week, which will be a supplementary issue, also for distribution at the Book Fair.

The conditions of business at the opening of the year have not been so much better as many hoped, but there is nevertheless opportunity for a respectably large and profitable trade if booksellers only make the most of their field. The publishers generally, it will be seen, are not making quite so many important ventures as usual, although our list is long enough to tire most readers. This will be to the advantage of both the manufacturers and the retailers, if it shall cause the latter to concentrate their force upon the new books which do come to them, and upon the standards which have of late years been too much neglected.

The preparations for the Fair are progressing rapidly, and the trade will note that most of the important Eastern publishing houses will be fully represented. To those who have not yet been attendants at the Fairs, we may say that they offer especial advantages to the local bookseller. Here the dealer can see for himself and compare from one line to another the books which he proposes to offer to his customers, and he thus obtains a practical knowledge of the general stock in trade which he can not gather from his individual orders or even from the samples of travellers. We therefore advise all booksellers to embrace this opportunity to come to New-York and see for themselves the display of books which the publishers will there make to them.

The remainder sale which is to follow the Fair, and to which several interesting lots will be contributed, is a further inducement to those booksellers who are or desire to be also publishers. But the great feature in this way will be, of course, the sale by James R. Osgood & Co., which is to follow the next week, and which of itself ought, without the Fair, to attract the trade very largely to New-York. Not only will they offer nearly four or five hundred sets of plates of books, which any publisher who has the time to push them might well desire to have upon his list, but the enormous number of 75,000 volumes of remainders, bound and unbound. This exceptional opportunity to purchase books so well known in the trade should not be allowed to pass.

Another important sale of stereotype plates and remainders, which booksellers may attend on their way to the Fair, will take place in Philadelphia the Saturday preceding the Fair, March 18th, at 12 o'clock, noon, at the rooms of M. Thomas & Son, 139 and 141 South Fourth street. This includes the plates of works issued by the late firm of Hunt & Congdon, which are put on the market by order of Mr. George Remsen, assignee. They include a number of school-books of general interest, as will be seen from the list in full, published in our advertising columns.

D. Appleton & Co. have one of the important books in the line of biographical reminiscence, so popular just now, in the memoir and correspondence of Caroline Herschel, one of the women who have accomplished something in science. The life of the late Senator Grimes, by William Salter, will come later in the season. A short history of "The Progress of Science," by Miss Buckley, Sir Charles Lyell's private secretary, will be found a notably good book; of more pretentious scientific works are Mivart's "Lessons from Nature," and new volumes in the International Scientific Series, "Animal Parasites and Messmates," "Fermentation," etc. There will be two noteworthy volumes on electricity, "Electricity and the Electric Telegraph," by George B. Prescott, and "Telegraphy," by English post-office officials. Dr. B. W. Richardson's volume on the "Diseases of Modern Life," treating especially of the use of stimulants and other bad habits, is of equal interest to the general reader and the physician. Of medical books proper, several important ones are forthcoming: Bartholow on Therapeutics, "Sayre's Orthopedic Surgery," and a revised edition of "Hammond's Diseases of the Nervous System."

Mr. Rossiter Johnson's selections from the "Works of the British Poets, from Chaucer to Morris," in three volumes, with biographical sketches, will be welcome to many, and the "Primer of English Literature," by Rev. Stopford Brooke, will compress a rare amount of fact and sound suggestion into a half dollar's worth. Mr. J. T. Bixby's study of the "Similarities of Physical and Religious Knowledge" will attract especial attention from the orthodox. The Appletons will first publish Cox's General History of Greece. They have also two novels, "Coming Thro' the Rye" and one from the German of Wilhelmina von Hillern, "Elsa and Her Vulture."

The Authors' Publishing Company will issue a new novel called "Shadow Perils," by Mrs. M. A. Avery, a Connecticut lady, and a boudoir volume from foreign sources, under the title of "Women's Secrets; or, How to be Beautiful." Also, later in the spring, a nonsense book called "Fair Minthe; or, the Curious Origin of Mint-juleps," a literary dissipation, and a book for children, by Kelsic Etheridge, called "Nine Little Busters." These will be issued in paper and cloth, under various titles, as the "Saratoga," "Boudoir," "Mint-Julep," etc. editions, respectively.

A. S. Barnes & Co. are beginning to cultivate the miscellaneous trade to a considerable extent. Besides their Centennial History, and Mrs. Lamb's "History of the City of New-York," which go by subscription, they have contributions to Centennial literature in "The Battles of the Revolution," by General Carrington; and a reprint of "Principles and Acts of the Revolution," by Hezekiah Niles, the editor of Niles's Register.

J. W. Bouton undertakes a great enterprise in publishing the etchings of Wm. Unger, the Flemish artist, already spoken of. He will probably issue shortly Payne Knight's new volume on "Ancient Art and Mythology."

Mr. James Campbell, of Boston, has just ready a parallel to Colonel Waring's work. This is Dr. John Simon's treatise on "Filth Diseases and their Prevention," of which it is sufficient to say that it is printed under the direction of the Massachusetts Board of Health.

G. W. Carleton & Co.'s spring plans are not yet announced, except as to their proposed serial publication, the Record of the Year, and the new novel by Edgar Fawcett, "Asses' Ears."

Robert Carter & Brothers, besides several new volumes by the popular "A. L. O. E.," and the "A. L. O. E. Library," complete in fifty-five volumes, neatly cased, will have new books for the children by Julia A. Mathews, "Lilies or Thistledown," and by Joanna H. Mathews, "Little Friends at Glenwood." The author of "The Peep o' Day" makes a popular exposition of the Book of Acts, for children, under the title of "The Story of the Apostles." The new "Pilgrim's Progress," by Duncan Macgregor, called "The Mariner's Progress; or, Captain Christian's Voyage to the Promised Land," is likely to prove a taking book, and we may note also a brace of books from that well-known writer, Dr. Macduff.

The Catholic Publication Society has in press for the spring two important books on the school question, which will be of interest to both sides in the controversy—Bishop Mc-

Quaid's "Lectures and Letters on the School Question," and articles reprinted from the Catholic World on "The School Question: Catholics and Education." They will also publish the Memoir and Journal of the Right Rev. Gabriel Brute, First Bishop of Vincennes, by Bishop Bayley, of Baltimore, and "Historical and Dogmatical Lectures on Religion," by Bishop Verot, of St. Augustine. They also announce a number of juveniles, etc.

Jos. H. Coates & Co., Philadelphia, will publish this month the interesting historical work on "King and Commonwealth," and the second volume of the Count of Paris' great History of our Civil War, which has had remarkable success.

The Congregational Publication Society of Boston, now known also as the Boston Publication Society, will print this spring an important work on "The Arabs and Turks," by Rev. E. L. Clark; a translation by Prof. Smyth of Andover, of Dr. Uhlhorn's "Conflict of Christianity with Heathenism," and several volumes of romance and Sunday-school juveniles.

Mr. T. Y. Crowell, successor to Warren & Wyman, has just ready Rev. Dr. E. F. Burr's new volume, "Work in the Vineyard," a practical appeal for Christian work, and new editions of the popular Anna Shipton series, "Tell Jesus" and its companion volumes.

E. P. Dutton & Co., who have as usual made a specialty of Lenten books, announce for later issue a volume by Dr. Samuel Osgood, who also has caught the prevalent Centennial fever, called "Our Cycle: Notes of Persons and Principles," and a new edition of his papers called "Hearthstone: Home-Life in our Cities," with the addition of one on "A Hundred Years of Housekeeping." They also have in preparation the little address to candidates for holy orders by the modern Milton, Rev. Mr. Bickersteth, and a new album for the younger people, "The Autograph Text-book."

Estes & Lauriat have made a most remarkable success with that extensive undertaking, "Guizot's Popular History of France," and are naturally rejoiced over their recent arrangements to publish in the same sumptuous style, in conjunction with M. Hachette, in Paris, and Sampson Low, in London, the companion work, his "Popular History of England." The manuscript of this, which was prepared before the France, was found complete after M. Guizot's death. It will make three or four volumes, with the same beautiful line of illustrations, but, unfortunately for the trade, is also to be published by subscription, in parts. "The History of Massachusetts," by Professor George L. Austin, with seven or eight plates, is also just ready at this house. They will add to their series of novels during the spring, the remarkable fiction which has been running in the Catholic World, "Are You My Wife?" by the author of "Number Thirteen;" a new book by Mrs. J. H. Riddell, "Above Suspicion," and "A Family Tree," by Albany Fonblanque, who is the British consul at New-Orleans, both from advanced sheets.

Wm. F. Gill & Co. propose to issue that interesting volume, the memoirs of Seymour Haydon, in an American edition, and also a volume of life sketches of leading French writers.

Chicago is bound to become a publishing centre, and here are S. C. Griggs & Co. already with a considerable list for the year. They will have next month Prof. Stevens' edition of "The Select Orations of Lysias," and in May Prof. Mathews' new book, "Words, their Significance, Use, and Abuse," sure to be popular. Later on they will have "Two Years in California," by S. M. Cone, intended for tourists and those seeking residence; it treats of the winds, storms, soil, vegetation, mines, picturesque localities, etc. Prof. Anderson has struck an excellent vein in his Norse books, and will add "Viking Tales of the North, from the Icelandic Sagas," "The Elder Edda; or, An Old Northern Grandmother," a translation of the Elder Edda, and a third volume on "The Younger Edda." The remarkable fiction, "The Pilot and His Wife," by the Norwegian novelist, Jonas Lie, has been translated by Mrs. Bull, wife of the great violinist, Ole Bull, and there will be also an illustrated juvenile, "What Tommy Did," by Mrs. Emily Huntington Miller, of "The Little Corporal."

E. J. Hale & Son are continuing their "Thisle Edition" of the "Waverley Novels," and will add to the popular "Odd Trump" series of novels another strong work of fiction by this unknown author. The new biography of "Moody and Sankey," by Mr. Reader, is almost ready.

Harper & Bros. have just published several of their most interesting spring books, but they have a goodly list left. The first volume of the "Life and Letters of Lord Macaulay," by his nephew, Mr. Trevelyan, M.P., a biography only second in importance to Forster's "Swift," is nearly ready. Later there will be two important books of travel, "The Mikado's Kingdom," an extensive work on Japan, by Mr. W. J. Griffiths, for some time a teacher there, and a new edition of Prof. Orton's notable work on "The Andes and the Amazon," which will have 300 pages of new matter, describing a more recent journey to the latter. In literature proper, this house puts forth a collection of Mr. Eugene Lawrence's historical essays, and will publish here "Stray Studies in Italy and England," the essays by J. R. Green, the now famous historian, and Gladstone's book on "Homeric Synchronism." Prof. Draper has revised his great work on "The Intellectual Development of Europe," for re-issue in two volumes 12mo. "Great Expectations" will be issued in the "Household Dickens," with illustrations by the English artist Fraser, and Mr. Rolfe will add an edition of "Gray's Select Poems" to his convenient and neat series. Of scientific books may be noted Prof. Charles Rau's "Early Man in Europe," reworked with additional matter from his interesting papers in Harpers' Magazine, and the "Annual Record of Science and Industry for 1875," prepared as usual by Prof. Baird, with the assistance of eminent scientists. In the educational list will be a new and important text-book of "Comparative Zoology," by Prof. Orton, a careful work, in crown 8vo, with 350 illustrations; a re-written edition of Hooker's well-known "Chemistry," Cicero's Select Orations (fourteen) in the Greek and Latin texts, etc. Those two compact and valuable works, Merivale's "General History of Rome," and Cox's "General History of Greece," will, by and by, go to the Harpers' list, in their series of Student's Histories.

Henry Holt & Co. have, as we have before said, one of the most tempting lists of the spring. The first of their important books will be D. G. Brinton's study of "The Religious Sentiment, its Sources and Aim," which is a book that the orthodox will claim is intended to dispense altogether with religion itself; and the new edition, revised, of his "Myths of the New World," a book that has given its author excellent standing among the scholars of Europe. Taine's new book, "The Ancient Régime," will be ready somewhat later in the spring, and other important volumes, especially to scholars, are Mr. E. L. Godkin's promised work "On Government," Gen. Francis A. Walker's treatise on "The Wages Question," and Sir Henry S. Maine's "Village Communities and Miscellanies," a new edition of the work first named, with a collection of essays. "The Selection of Wit and Wisdom," from Thomas Carlyle, will please many of his admirers. For novels, we are promised Thomas Hardy's new work, "The Hand of Ethelberta," and for next week "Ersilia," a new English novel by the author of that clever book, "My Little Lady."

Henry Hoyt, of Boston, has in progress an important work on the History of the Young Men's Christian Associations in the United States and Canada. This will be a large 12mo, of some six hundred pages, and with forty or fifty illustrations, embracing portraits of leaders in the work and views of Y. M. C. A. buildings. It will be edited by Rev. P. C. Headley and W. E. Boardman, with the collaboration of special writers. "Now is Christ Risen," a collection of Easter poems, compiled by S. L. W., will come shortly. Among the juveniles promised are, "Will Foster and my Brother Paul; or, Real Heroes;" "Up to Fifteen" and "Only Me," two stories for boys; and "The Secret of the Lord," by Anna Ship-ton, whose writings seem to be gaining no small degree of popularity here.

Hurd & Houghton will publish immediately, as noted elsewhere, the important papers of Col. George E. Waring, Jr., on "Sanitary Drainage of Houses and Towns," which is meant not so much for the professional engineer as for those who own or rent houses. The investment in such a book as this is often an efficacious preventive of doctors' bills. The little treatise on "Charcoal Drawing," translated from the French of August Allongé, by Miss S. D. Waring, is issued in response to the demand for an authoritative book on this fashionable art. Mr. Rand's "Glen Ridge Orchids" is also spoken of elsewhere. A most important work will be undertaken by them later in the season, although it will be published in subscription parts—a collection of illustrations in water-color lithography of "The Wild Flowers of America." The water-color drawings have been made by Isaac Sprague, who had part in Audubon's great work, and the text will be furnished by Professor George N. Goodale, of Harvard. It is proposed to give from four to eight plates in each part, at $2 a part. The same house, which is to print the great Centennial catalogues, also proposes a series of five useful little guides to the Eastern cities. They will be published in several languages, at the same price in any language.

Jansen, McClurg & Co. are also "launching out" this spring, and mean to compel Eastern dealers to keep their books, for they are to have Joaquin Miller's Californian novel, "The First Fam'lies of the Sierras," which is pretty sure to make a sensation; a second series of "Truths for To-Day," by that popular heretic, Prof. David Swing, containing his latest preachments to his new church; and a book by a new Western writer, Miss Florence McLandburgh, "The Automaton Ear, and other Sketches," said to be very clever.

Lee & Shepard, Boston, will publish a few books this spring, for several of which a wide popularity may be predicted. There will be a new story of home life, by Amanda M. Douglass, called "Nelly Kinnard's Kingdom," and another novel will be the clever study of New-England life which was about the best thing in American Homes, "Achshah," by "Rev. Peter Pinnott." Rev. Daniel Wise, D.D., whose "Glen Morris" juveniles are so popular, will commence a new set, the "Winwood Cliff Series." The house will also reissue Oliver Optic's "Living Too Fast; or, the Confessions of a Bank Officer," an early book.

J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia, will publish on this side the new third edition of Chambers' "Cyclopedia of English Literature," as revised by Dr. Robert Carruthers, and a supplementary series of that admirable introduction to the Greek and Latin authors, "Ancient Classics for English Readers." They have nearly ready "The Life of Stonewall Jackson," by S. M. Randolph, one of several biographies of Southern leaders now being published, and as a further contribution to war literature, a "History of the Philadelphia Brigade," by Charles H. Bains. Rev. William R. Alger's "Life of Edwin Forrest" still looms in the distance. Rev. Benjamin F. Bowen has his say against Christopher Columbus in a forthcoming volume, entitled "America Discovered by the Welsh, in 1170." Mr. A. S. Bowle's "Conflict of Labor and Capital" will attract some attention in these days, and from Julia Duhring will come another series of pleasant papers under the title of "Gentle Folks and Others." There will be several novels, including a new one by "Ouida" entitled "In a Winter City"; "At the Counsellor's," from the German of E. Marlitt; "Davault's Mills" by Charles H. Jones, and another American novel, "A Family Secret," by Fannie Andrews. Two elementary text-books on physical geography and astronomy are from the pen of Richard A. Proctor. Messrs. Lippincott, we may add, have a contract with the Centennial Commission, so that their "Visitor's Guide to the Centennial and Philadelphia" will be the only guide-book of its sort sold on the grounds.

The chief work of Little, Brown & Co., Boston, in miscellaneous literature this spring, will be the issue of the Centenary edition of Bancroft. The last volume will contain an index of one hundred pages.

The spring list of Lockwood, Brooks & Co., Boston, includes Rev. Washington Gladden's series of lectures on "Working People and their Employers," a sound, practical book, which is packed with good counsel. It will make a neat 12mo. Dr. Gladden won the highest reputation for bright and useful work previous to and during his connection with the Independent. Prof. Heinrich Ewald's work on "The Antiquities of Israel" will form a supplement to his standard "History of Israel;" he is perhaps the leading scholar in Jewish research. A little volume of Easter hymns, selected by Miss J. E. C. Chapman, will be issued shortly in a neat 32mo, and will prove widely acceptable. Several noteworthy enterprises are under consideration for later issue.

A. K. Loring, Boston, will issue more of his new twenty-five cent series, called "Loring's Tales of the Day," and other lively works of fiction.

D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, will publish among their popular juveniles "Mrs. Hurd's Niece," by Ella Farman, and "The Four Girls at Chattaqua," by "Pansy." There are also two series of sketches of exemplary men, edited by Rev. S. F. Smith, D.D., on the basis of English works. These are "Noble Workers" and "Stories of Success," the latter including lives of Arthur Tappan, the abolitionist; Dr. Cullis, the consumptives' friend; and Dr. Judson, the Burmese missionary.

Macmillan & Co. have just ready the pleasant little book giving suggestions for "Floral Decorations for Dwelling-Houses," by Miss Hassard, edited for American readers. The new edition of the "Statesman's Year-Book," the valuable compendium of Mr. Frederic Martin, for 1876, is expected at once. There are for issue, later in the season, several interesting works of biography, including the second volume of Lanfrey's "Napoleon the First," the Earl of Albemarle's "Fifty Years of My Life," the second volume of the "Life of the Earl of Shelburne," whose history is connected with that of the American Revolution, and two volumes of the literary remains of Dr. Whewell, two or three books of travel, Mr. Blanford's work on the "Zoology and Geology of Persia," Dr. Anderson's book on Western China, under the title "Mandalay and Momien," and Mr. Campbell's "Circular Notes" of his travels round the world, are also to be mentioned. An important book will be Dr. John Eadie's history of the translations of the Scriptures into English, under the title of "The English Bible."

Mr. Jas. Miller has already issued more of his spring books, from Mayne Reid, Col. Dodge, Miss Cobb, etc., but, as the American publisher of Mrs. Browning's works, he announces also the correspondence with her, by Mr. Horne, one of the salient books of the English season.

Thomas Nelson & Sons publish a number of new books especially for the Lenten season; a treatise on "Angelic Beings, their Nature and Ministry," by Rev. C. D. Bell; a series of narratives of missionary adventure, under the title of "Perils among the Heathen," and a number of their well-known English juveniles, for which we must refer readers to their new list.

Nelson & Phillips will commence this year the issue of the great systematic series in theology, edited by Dr. Hurst, to be in two distinct volumes. Other announcements are not yet ready.

The list of Jas. R. Osgood & Co. has a pièce de resistance in Mrs. Whitney's forthcoming book, "Sights and Insights," spoken of elsewhere. A valuable work of general interest, by Viollet-le-Duc, "The Habitations of Man in all Ages," translated by Benjamin Bucknall, architect, with abundant illustrations, is in preparation for March. Later we shall have the last volume of Henry Wilson's History of the Slave Power, of which the last chapter was completed by his private secretary; and Mr. Howells' exceedingly good novel of "Private Theatricals." A new guide-book to the White Mountains, which will be exceptional for the completeness of its detail, by Mr. M. F. Sweetser, will be ready for summer travellers. Several new issues of the charming "Vest-Pocket Series" are scheduled elsewhere; these little gems should be very popular with summer rambles.

Porter & Coates, Philadelphia, as yet make no announcements beyond those of new volumes in their International Series of Novels, but these will be the most important yet issued, Mrs. Oliphant's new novel, "An Odd Couple," and Anthony Trollope's "The Prime Minister."

G. P. Putnam's Sons will continue their excellent series of "Select British Essayists," with a volume from The Tatler, and the "Brief Biographies," with that on the "German Political Leaders," by Herbert Tuttle. Their publication of Rev. Dr. Frothingham's books will be crowned, late in the season, with his history of "Transcendentalism in New-England," and in this same field of religious thought they will have Professor Bascom's work on "The Philosophy of Religion," Mrs. Antoinette Brown Blackwell's discussion of the "Physical Basis of Immortality," and a new edition of Rev. James Martineau's "Religion as Affected by Modern Materialism," with the addition of a chapter on Professor Tyndall's famous Belfast address. Two new novels are in hand, "Wych Hazel," by the Misses Warner, and a Japanese romance, "Chinshingura," which will be a curiosity in its way, with 30 illustrations by Japanese artists. Col. Dodge's book on "The Plains and their Inhabitants" will give much fresh knowledge of that part of our country. Mr. Herman Melville's narrative poem of a pilgrimage in the Holy Land, called "Clarel," will introduce him afresh to a new generation of readers. Among their medical books may be especially noted Frey's "Compendium of Histology," and Dr. Hammond's discussion from the side of the observer of nervous disease, of "Spiritualism." Their educational books will embrace a selection of "Poetry for Home and School," by Miss Eliot and Miss Brackett, who have practical experience in such selection, Prof. Day's new book on "The Elements of Psychology," and Prof. Elmendorf's "Outlines of Philosophy."

A. D. F. Randolph & Co. are keeping quiet this spring; doubtless the poet—no, we won't—is concentrating his powers upon his address for the Convention. There are some little religious books, however, on the tapis: "The Two Prodigals," an effective appeal by Rev. M. R. Vincent; Mrs. Menzies' "Hints on Bible-marking," sanctioned by Mr. Moody, and a new book from Mrs. Havergal, "Under the Surface," besides the Bampton Lecture for 1875, "The Doctrine of Retribution," a very able book, and some useful "Suggestions for the Sick-Room," "by an American woman."

Messrs. Roberts Bros. have already published many good books this year; the next issue will be a bird's-eye view, by Hon. Theophilus Parsons, of the Swedenborgian system, of which he is a leading apostle. It will be a 12mo volume, under the title of "Outlines of the Religion and Philosophy of Swedenborg." The cheaper edition—probably at $2.50—of William Morris' translation of Virgil's Æneids will be from new American plates in small 8vo. One of the most important enterprises will be an edition, in four neat volumes, a little larger than "Pericles and Aspasia," of the "Imaginary Conversations" of Walter Savage Landor, whose fame is so rapidly increasing among general readers as to justify an endeavor to place his more popular works before the public at a reasonable price. They also put forth new editions of Hamerton's ever popular and wholesome books. Mr. T. G. Appleton's pleasant volume of travel, "A Nile Journal," with illustrations by his compagnon du voyage, Mr. Eugene Benson, printed first by Macmillan & Co., London, during Mr. Appleton's stay abroad, will be given to American readers by Messrs. Roberts. Rev. Edw. Abbott, of that indefatigable book-making family, will continue his "Paragraph Series" of histories with a "Paragraph History of the American Revolution," in which he will pack more facts than ten times as big a book often contains. The first of this series has been very successful. Miss Alcott's next book, nearly ready, will be the fourth volume of her collected sketches for children known as "Aunt Jo's Scrap-Bag," under the title of "Silver Pitchers and other Stories." Later on, in time for summer, will come a compilation of the poetry about mountains, selected by Miss Cook, of the Packer Institute, Brooklyn, to be in like style with the pretty volume called "Sea and Shore." A new book by the English humorist, "Happy Thought" Burnand, called "Buddicombe Hall," is also in preparation. Roberts Brothers will offer several interesting remainders at the Fair auction.

Geo. Routledge & Co. will present a book of wide interest to American readers in George Macdonald's story, directed against Tyndalism, "Thomas Wingfold, Curate," but as yet we have no other opening announcements from this house.

Scribner, Armstrong & Co. have under advisement, but not yet ready for announcement, several important enterprises. Most of the earlier spring books so far announced are already out. The exceptions are the volume of "Plato's Best Thoughts," compiled from Jowett's translation by Rev. C. H. A. Bulkley, which should be a very welcome book; and the biography of Norman MacLeod, D.D., that charming and noble man, by his brother Donald, which, if it reflects its subject, should be full of "sweetness and light." It will be in two volumes, with portraits.

Mr. C. P. Somerby, the liberal publisher, announces for this season a communistic volume on "The Politics of the Gospels," by Austin Bierbower; a Jewish work on "The Historical Jesus of Nazareth," by Rabbi Schlesinger of Albany; and a small volume on "The Ultimate Generalization," a contribution to scientific philosophy.

Turnbull Brothers, Baltimore, besides "The Southern Side of the Story of Andersonville Prison," which will contain in an appendix the names, etc., of 13,000 Union soldiers who died there, and is compiled from official documents by Dr. R. R. Stevenson, chief surgeon of the prison, expect to publish during the spring or summer a "Life of General Robert E. Lee," by his literary executor, Colonel Marshall, and a "Life of Alexander H. Stephens," by Colonel R. M. Johnston and Dr. William Hand Browne, editor of the Southern Magazine.

The "World Publishing Company" announce a number of new titles in our advertising pages, and we call attention to their column.

H. A. Young & Co., Boston, will publish an important polemic work by Rev. Alvah Hovey, D.D., one of the strongest Baptist theologians. This is "The Doctrine of 'the Higher Christian Life' compared with the Teaching of the Holy Scriptures."

MY MEMORIES OF THE BOOK TRADE.

"Things I myself have seen, and a great part of which I was."—Virgil.

By D. B. COOKE, Esq.

I.

HAVING been asked to say something of my life in connection with the book trade, I have refreshed my memory, and have collected facts and dates, a task which has proved so interesting that I have determined to enlarge upon my original plan and offer several papers for publication in the WEEKLY, hoping thereby to recall to the minds of my older friends in the trade many pleasing incidents in their own lives, and to show to the rising generation how the old booksellers lived and labored in their early days.

My early life was passed in Northampton, Mass., where I was born February 10th, 1826; and in the city of New-York, from which place I emigrated in the year 1836, to the then small village of Columbus, Ohio.

Well do I remember the long and tedious journey by canal to my Western home, the trip occupying about three weeks.

After the usual routine of school duties, on the first day of June, 1841, being fifteen years of age, I entered the bookstore of H. W. Derby, who had purchased from that genial and well-remembered bookseller, Isaac N. Whiting, a complete outfit, amounting to about six thousand dollars.

Mr. Whiting is still living, hale and hearty as he was a quarter of a century ago; he is justly entitled to the appellation of "Pioneer Bookseller," having first opened in Columbus in the year 1829. At that time his was the only bookstore of any note in the State. Ephraim Morgan, the noble Quaker, was at this time selling books at Cincinnati, his assortment consisting mainly of the common school-books and a little stock of stationery, the whole occupying a store about twenty-five feet in depth.

Columbus soon became a book centre, and for the following fifteen or sixteen years Cincinnati and the entire State received their supplies of books and stationery from this point. Mr. Whiting became a publisher of considerable note; his list of law and miscellaneous books grew rapidly, and would be a credit to-day to any Western house. His celebrated "Harrison and Log Cabin Songster" was issued in 1840, and met with a very large sale. A few copies yet remain as mementos of the olden times.

Here I was in my element. I had long yearned for some congenial pursuit, and I now had the opportunity to exert myself to my heart's content. Many of the school-books which we then sold will be remembered only by the older members of the trade. The prominent ones were Lindley Murray's Grammar, Murray's English Reader and Introduction, Webster's Spelling-Book, Pike's, Daboll's, Smiley's, and Talbott's Arithmetics, Walker's Dictionary, Kirkham's Grammar, and Cobb's Readers. These, together with school Testaments and Bibles and a full line of the publications of Harper & Bros., Lea & Blanchard, Grigg & Elliot, and D. Appleton & Co., made up the bulk of our assortment. We also kept a full line of stationery, sheet-music, Macassar hair-oil, fiddles and bows, flutes, and penknives, Currier's prints and wall-paper. We were also express agents for the town.

How my memory runs back to those olden times, before the days of railroads and telegraphs, when, rising at five, we worked until ten, and often until midnight, and yet had recreation enough, for our hearts were in our business. We generally spent a portion of each evening in cutting out with a knife and a tin pattern all the envelopes that would be needed for our sales the following day.

The great publishing event of the period was the famous "Harper's Pictorial Bible," far in advance of the times. It appeared in monthly parts, the first number being issued June 18th, 1850.

In these days all booksellers bought "paper rags," and at stated intervals wagons from the neighboring mills would make their rounds and gather them up, leaving us writing and wrapping paper in payment.

When trade became dull at home, and maturing notes were to be provided for, it was our custom to take a load of our surplus stock, and start out into the country to work it off. In this way my employer and myself travelled over nearly every portion of the State of Ohio, selling books at auction from the tail of a wagon.

Finding that the greater portion of our increasing trade came from the direction of Cincinnati, my employer became ambitious to open an establishment in that city. With this end in view, he disposed of his stock to Mr. Joseph H. Riley, a bookseller of culture and great general intelligence, a young man who was peculiarly fortunate in having been educated in the then renowned publishing house of Grigg & Elliot of Philadelphia, a firm whose name was synonymous with integrity and fair dealing, and whose immediate successors were J. B. Lippincott & Co. He had entered their service in September, 1837. Leaving Columbus for our new field of labor in one of Neil & Co.'s old-fashioned stages, after several days of weary travel over the national turnpike road Mr. Derby and myself arrived in Cincinnati on the 13th day of October, 1844, and the new firm of Derby, Bradley & Co. immediately opened on Main street, near the corner of Third. Mr. Chas. F. Bradley proved a valuable acquisition to our working force. He was educated in the old house of Daniel Appleton & Co., New-York, a cultured bookseller and a gentleman whom all delighted to honor.

Our advent in Cincinnati proved a marked era in the book trade of that city, already possessing several bookstores carrying limited stocks. Our elegant assortment and well-appointed establishment at once attracted the readers and lovers of choice books, and for years our store was the literary resort of the city.

The old booksellers of the "Queen City," as I now see them in my mind's eye, were Ephraim Morgan, with his serene countenance, as ready to speak the truth and impart good counsel as the quarto Bibles he made; George Cox, "who, in his little box, gathered and saved his rocks;" J. Ford Desilver, and Desilver & Burr; Wm. H. Moore and David Anderson, whom we called "the length and the breadth of the book trade;" J. A. and U. P. James, Wm. Phillips & Sons, John D. Thorpe, George L. Weed, and George Couclin, who was succeeded by the Applegate Brothers (now A. H. Pounsford & Co.); Wm. T. Truman and Truman & Spofford. Mr. Spofford, of the last-named firm, was always a studious bookseller, a young man whose aim was to be master of his business. His intuitive grace and his culture eminently fitted him for his present honorable and responsible position as Librarian of Congress.

Winthrop B. Smith & Co. were already "pushing" the Eclectic Readers and selling blank-books and stationery "under the hill" on Main street, annually moving up into their third floor to save their stock from the rising water, and going down to their business in skiffs. (Edward and "Bart" Sargent were then in their prime.) This house expanded by degrees into the present house of Wilson, Hinkle & Co., whose list of school-books is one of the most popular in the United States. Cincinnati grew apace, and our trade increased. Customers were numbered by hundreds, from New-Orleans in the South to Chicago and Galena, Ill., in the North-west. Among our early patrons I recall the names of Jas. R. Dayton, of Quincy, Ill.; Joshua Brooks, of Galena; Stephen F. Gale, and A. H. & C. Burley, Chicago.

The leading old-time publishers in New-York of whom we bought most of our supplies were, as nearly as I can remember them, A. S. Barnes & Co., who removed from Philadelphia in March, 1845, locating at No. 51 John street, where their printing and binding departments, much enlarged, still continue; Harper & Bros.; D. Appleton & Co.; Collins, Keese & Co., now Collins & Bro.; Pratt, Woodford & Co., afterwards Farmer, Brace & Co., then Pratt, Oakley & Co., who failed in 1861, and Oakley, Mason & Co., who built on their ruins, the firm of Baker, Pratt & Co. being now the continuing house; William & George Wood, now Wm. Wood & Co.; Wiley & Putnam, afterwards Jno. Wiley and G. P. Putnam, separately; F. J. Huntington & Co.,—then Huntington & Savage,—succeeded by Mason Bros.; Mark H. Newman, then Newman & Saxton, then Newman & Ivison, succeeded by H. Ivison & Co., and sundry changes to the present style; Roe Lockwood,—chiefly retail, but the leading men in this line were H. & S. Raynor in the Bowery; Baker & Scribner, afterwards Charles Scribner, in the old brick church, now Scribner, Armstrong & Co.; Gould, Banks & Co.; John D. Voorhies & Co.; Nafis, Cornish & Co. (Birdseye Blakeman was a pupil there); Derby & Jackson; Sheldon & Co.; Rudd & Carleton; Clark, Austin & Co., now Clark & Maynard; M. W. Dodd; John S. Taylor; Stanford & Swords, and Thomas J. Crowen, whose store was on the corner of Broadway and Fourth street.

The leading Boston publishers were, in 1840, and for the succeeding twenty years, B. B. Mussey & Co.; Burnham & Bros.; W. J. Reynolds & Co.; Islands Tompkins; Robert S. Davis & Co.; Crocker & Brewster; Gould, Kendall & Lincoln; Redding & Co.; Crosby, Nichols & Co.; Jenks & Palmer; Wm. D. Ticknor & Co.; Crocker & Ruggles; Tappen & Dennett; Jos. H. Francis; Jas. Munroe & Co.; Weeks, Jordan & Co.; Phillips, Sampson & Co.; Little, Brown & Co.; John P. Jewett & Co.; Brown, Bazin & Co.; Charles Stimpson; O. C. Greenleaf; James B. Dow; and Marsh, Capen, Lyon & Webb. These are all that I can recall at this moment, and how few remaining! The oldest surviving bookseller in Boston is Augustus Flagg, Esq., of Little, Brown & Co., who has "enlightened the public" on the same old spot for forty years. How his genial face used to beam when, on the old trade-sales stand, years ago, he used to sell his books.

During the same period Philadelphia was fully up to the times, represented by staunch, reliable firms such as Thomas Cowperthwaite & Co.; Grigg & Elliott; Hogan & Thompson; Lea & Blanchard; E. H. Butler; E. C. & J. Biddle; Henry F. Anners; Uriah Hunt; Kimber & Sharpless; Geo. S. Appleton; A. Hart; Perkins & Purves; Lindsay & Blakiston; Kay & Troutman; R. H. Small; Hayes & Zell; T. B. Peterson; Fisher & Bro.; J. B. Lippincott; Blanchard & Lea; R. E. Peterson; Childs & Peterson; Parry & Macmillan; Chas. Desilver; Alfred Martien; T. & J. W. Johnson; Kay & Bro.; H. Grambo; Smith, English & Co.; McCarty & Davis; J. J. Woodward; Henry Perkins; Jos. Whetman; Wm. A. Leary; T. T. Ash; W. L. McDowell; Geo. J. Henderson; Wm. G. Perry; R. Paine; W. J. Simm; J. Redman; Elijah Weaver; Daniels & Smith; M. Pollock; J. M. Moss; James K. Simon, and H. Volkman—a noble array of forty-eight publishers and booksellers. Out of the number, thirty-six are dead or gone out of business!

HAS THE REFORM BENEFITED ANY BODY?

—, PA., Feb. 26, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

I have heard booksellers say that the book reform amounts to nothing, but such cases are rare. It seems to me it would encourage publishers and jobbers to adhere to the strictest interpretation of the reform rules, if dealers generally were to relate their experiences through your columns.

We have in our town a small public library, and although all our booksellers were solicited and expected to become members by paying annual fees, yet whenever books were formerly wanted, the city of Philadelphia was canvassed till some one was found willing to give one third off. Because we were not willing to present, in addition to our membership fees, boxing and freight on what the library needed, we lost the chance of selling. Since the reform, these parties buy second-hand trash at auction sales in the city. But the public will after a while decline receiving such "new books," and the evil will cure itself.

Formerly many of our best book-buyers never came into our bookstores, because they had acquired the habit of buying what they needed in the cities, and local bookstores did not receive the credit of having any stock. Thus, lately, my family physician, during a professional call, wondered what had gotten into city publishers, saying that on medical books they would not give more than 10 off, whereas he formerly received 20 and 25 off. We explained matters to him, and told him we would serve him equally well with city dealers. Not till then did it strike him that it might be rather shabby policy to accept the support of townspeople in his business and refuse it to his customers. The consequence was a nice order, a good customer for the future, and through him an extension of custom. The publisher lost nothing by this transaction, because he gave us no larger discount than he had been accustomed to give to this physician.

I have no doubt all local booksellers have felt the effects of the new rules. I find that parties who have once been refused the former discounts by the large houses cheerfully pay full prices at home. The only ones who cause us trouble are those to whom we formerly gave large discounts, for the purpose of keeping them, and all they need is to try their luck at buying in some other place.

Do the publishers lose any thing by the reform? We think not, because the local dealers are having more orders than formerly and naturally concentrate them on the publishers and jobbers, and each local dealer has his favorite place of buying, so that all wholesalers share in the prosperity of the former. The only class which may sell less is, perhaps, the smaller city retailer, but it does not follow that he suffers by it, because on what he does sell, he now has a living profit.

May the trade continue the good work as begun, one or two years, and publisher and retailer will be on a better basis than for years past.

VALLEY.

PERIODICALS AND THEIR PUBLISHERS.

NEW-YORK, February 21, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

Being well satisfied with the effect my first letters produced on the above subject (in the shape of other letters and several editorials), I can not refrain from adding another towards abolishing the present system of periodical publishers in soliciting subscriptions. That it has been going on for years past, I am well aware, and only last week I came across an old Galaxy of '68 or '69, in which they made the announcement that it, with one or two other publications, would be sent at just such a great reduction as is the case to-day, and far below what a retailer could supply them for. The publishers should well bear in mind that we are the tools with which they work, and we increase or decrease their paper's circulation at our discretion in most cases.

Very few retail bookstores in our large cities sell papers or magazines at all, and I attribute this mostly to the present manner the publishers discourage them by their killing terms, as compared to what the retailer is compelled to charge in order to realize any thing. If these bookstores were certain that the offices would not differ from their terms, it would not be long before every bookstore (retail), small or large, would go into the paper and magazine line to some extent, for then it would pay them for the time and trouble spent in procuring subscribers; but as the matter rests now, it would be a complete loss to them, were they to begin it, and as every new paper store is a help to the publisher in a greater or less degree, I think it worth their while to consider these points.

But it don't seem to stop here, for they (the publishers) are going so far as to offer premiums with certain papers and magazines, which (premium) the retailer can not procure at all. For example: Appleton's Journal and Atlantic Monthly both offer such fine steel engravings of eminent persons with their respective publications that these alone are inducements for some persons who can not procure them without subscribing direct.

If only one of our large papers were to begin on the new system, it would soon tell, and if to their disadvantage, would it not then be time enough to withdraw and go back to the old rates? These various calculations are from a city point of view; now how much more severe must it fall on some of our country merchants who only buy what they have immediate use for?

If it keeps on at the present rate the next thing we will hear from the publishers is: Single copies of so or so will be forwarded on receipt of 7 cents, regular price 10 cents, or a magazine at 25 cents, regular price 35 cents—and then they will have finished their ruinous work, which is already two thirds achieved.

SUR-REJOINDER.

WATERBURY, CT., March 6, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

There appears a little sting in the tail of Mr. Randolph's reply to my note in the WEEKLY of March 4th. He says country dealers who are not members of the Association are quite indifferent to its operations until they desire "protection," or think they can make a point against those who have borne the heat and burden of the day, etc.

Now this is rather neat on the part of Mr. Randolph; but I "beg to assure him" that, so far as I am concerned, I had no desire to "make a point" against the worthy President, or any one else.

Truly, WM. PATTON.

P. S.—Mr. Randolph says, in his letter in WEEKLY, there is no fixed retail price for a certain class of English books. Then why did he fix a retail price, in a distinct paragraph, to his clergyman correspondent? He says there, "Knight's England, 8 vols., $25—net, $17.50"!

BOOKS RECEIVED.

ON DANGEROUS GROUND, by Mrs. Bloomfield H. Moore. (Porter & Coates.) Mrs. Moore draws her characters and scenes from the every day life of American society. Her book strikes one in consequence as specially American in its tone, and extremely lifelike and natural. The principal character in the novel, a young woman, almost too good for "human nature's daily food," endeavors to carry out her ideas about Platonic affections, and finds herself, as might be expected, treading "on dangerous ground." The heroine's character is wonderfully well worked out, as is also the finale to her story, which turns out just as it should. We can speak in high praise of the dialogue throughout, as it evinces special culture and refinement on the part of the authoress. One of the best of this series (International) published. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

WHY WE LAUGH, by Samuel S. Cox. (Harper & Brothers.) If we do not find a philosophical and scientific solution in these pages to the all-important question of "why do we laugh?" we will imbibe so much new food to exercise our risibilities upon, that reasons will be lost sight of in amusement. Mr. Cox has gathered together a most wonderful assortment of stories and witticisms, illustrative of American humor, in the streets, in the newspapers, and chiefly in our Congress, the latter drawn in a great measure from the author's own experience. The volume may be opened at any one page, and will be found bubbling over with quaint Yankeeisms, dry Americanisms, and broadly humorous anecdotes so perfectly characteristic of our national wit as to be irresistibly funny reading. The stories have also the merit of a good setting, not being, as is often the case in such works, aimlessly and roughly strung together, but having a framework which displays many salient points. 12mo, cloth. Price, $1.50.

GUIDE TO NEEDLEWORK, and THE LADY'S BOOK OF KNITTING AND CROCHET. (J. Henry Symonds.) The first-mentioned of these little books gives a fund of important information about needlework, an accomplishment which threatens in these days of the sewing-machines to be soon counted among the "lost arts." The greatest minutiae are entered into as to details both in the text and illustrations, both as to the various stitches in sewing, and as to cutting garments, etc.—rendering the little work a most useful aid to teachers and mothers who are wise enough to keep up in their children this, the most charming of woman's accomplishments. The second work is a collection of over a hundred new and easy patterns for crochet and fancy work. 12mo, paper, 50 cents each.

THE JERNINGHAM JOURNALS. (Scribner, Armstrong & Co.) The matrimonial infelicities of Mrs. Jerningham and John Jerningham are severally poured forth in the metrical rhymes of these pages. They are both edifying and amusing, pointing a moral for husbands and wives, and offering some very pleasant reading to the uninitiated. The first poem, "Mrs. Jerningham's Journal," will be remembered as having made some stir on its appearance a few years ago. "John Jerningham's Journal" was called forth by it, and is by a different author. The Scribners have made a hit in bringing out a new edition of the poems together in one volume. Sq. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

NOTES ON THE EPISTLES OF JAMES, PETER, JOHN, AND JUDE, by Albert Barnes. (Harper & Brothers.) A revised edition of a much-valued and popular work with Sunday-school teachers and theological students. The notes are unusually full and practical, and very clear in their explanations. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

THE POETICAL WORKS OF EDGAR ALLAN POE. (W. J. Widdleton.) This little diamond edition contains all of Poe's poems, and a brief memoir by Mr. William F. Gill, which vindicates the aspersions cast upon Poe's reputation by Rufus W. Griswold. A neatly bound and handy little volume. Sq. 18mo, cloth, $1.25.

THE FRENCH PRINCIPIA. PART II. (Harper & Brothers.) The plan of this work is the same as Dr. William Smith's "Principia Latina," which is accepted as one of the very best elementary text-books. It is designed chiefly as a reader, and differs in this respect from other French reading-books, first, in having each extract followed by grammatical questions, and second, in its copious vocabulary which explains fully the etymology of every word. The vocabulary contains nearly thirteen hundred words, and is complete enough to be used as a dictionary for all French books usually read in schools. The extracts for reading are progressive, and both entertaining and instructive, relating to history, discoveries, inventions, etc., etc. The volume is very neatly and carefully gotten up, and will rank among the very best school-books in the market. 12mo, cloth, red edged, $1.25.

THE GERMAN PRINCIPIA. PART I. (Harper & Brothers.) This is also based upon Dr. William Smith's "Principia Latina," and has been compiled at the request of numerous teachers for a good elementary German work on the above plan. The main object of the book is to enable the beginner to acquire a knowledge of grammatical forms, by learning their usage in the construction of sentences, thus also gradually acquiring a stock of words which assist him both in conversation and reading. The book, therefore, contains grammar, delectus, exercise-book, with vocabularies, preserving in one volume all the pupil needs to begin the study of the language. 12mo, cloth, red edges, 75 cents.

CARTER QUARTERMAN, by William Baker. (Harper & Brothers.) The quaint simplicity of Mr. Baker's stories has gained for them a public of their own, who eagerly look for all that comes from his pen. His "Inside" and "Mose Evans" sprung into instant favor, making quite a reputation for him. The highest praise we can bestow upon this his latest work, is that it possesses the best points of his previous works. It describes life in the South after Jackson's administration, and presents a number of characters, religious and otherwise, which are especially marked by the graphic manner in which they are delineated. 8vo, paper, 75 cents.

ORIGINAL PLAYS, by W. S. Gilbert. (Scribner, Armstrong & Co.) "The Wicked World," "Pygmalion and Galatea," "Charity," "The Princess," "The Palace of Truth," "Trial by Jury," are the names of the plays in this volume. Several of them have been played in this city with the most signal success, introducing Mr. Gilbert in a most flattering manner to the American public. They all possess the double merit of being good acting plays and most charming reading, being marked by a refinement of fancy, a delicate wit, and a grace and elegance of diction scarcely to be found in the works of any modern dramatist who has had a great success in the theatre. The volume is every thing that can be desired typographically, its paper, print, and binding being quite simple and elegant. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

IN THE VINEYARD, by Rev. E. F. Burr, D.D.

(T. J. Crowell.) In view of the present revival going on under Messrs. Moody and Sankey, this work by the well-known author of "Ecce Cœlum," offers much valuable aid and many suggestive thoughts to those who aim to be like the Evangelists workers in the field. It is also designed to create fresh zeal and earnestness in this direction, and overcome the present lukewarmness among professing Christians. It endeavors to do this first by the presentation of the illustrious examples it cites, and second by giving the leading principles, methods, and rewards of work in the Vineyard. 12mo, cloth. Price, $2.

MISS HITCHCOCK'S WEDDING DRESS. (Scribner, Armstrong & Co.) A pretty young creature, who has known better days as the daughter of an English clergyman, finds herself dreaming of the bright scenes the wedding dress of Miss Hitchcock, upon which her nimble fingers are working, is destined for. She is tempted to put it on herself just to see how it looks, and some old heirlooms in the way of ornaments make her toilet complete. Leaving her sister sound asleep, she slips Cinderella-like into the open door of the next house in which a ball is going on. The incident is not very probable, but upon it the whole story hinges; of course the prince appears in the person of a handsome young man who loses his heart with Cinderella, who disappears from his sight as mysteriously as the heroine of the nursery tale. The complications which follow this scene complete a very interesting and romantic love-story. Sq. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

EARLY HISTORY OF SPRINGFIELD, by Henry Morris. (F. W. Morris.) This address, delivered by Mr. Henry Morris on the two hundredth anniversary of the burning of the town of Springfield by the Indians, gives a very concise and interesting narrative of the various incidents of the Indian assault upon the town, with the history also of such events as led up to the catastrophe, covering the years from 1636 to 1675. The appendix which follows the address contains some important historical records. The volume is embellished by a steel engraving of William Pynchon. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

FILTH-DISEASES AND THEIR PREVENTION, by John Simon, M.D. (James Campbell.) Dr. Simon contributes here an important aid to sanitary reform; his essay reviews the causes which have brought about various epidemics in England, and takes up the matter so thoroughly of house ventilation and cleanliness, that no one should fail to read his paper, and make application of the information he will gain from it. The essay was reprinted under the direction of the State Board of Health of Massachusetts, and contains notes in reference to its suggestions as to their applicability to our own sanitary condition. 12mo, cloth, $1.

SUNDAY ECHOES IN WEEK-DAY HOURS: A TALE ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE PARABLES, by Mrs. Carey Brock. (E. P. Dutton & Co.) Tales that have run up to thirty-four thousand editions, as have some of the volumes of this popular and instructive series, seem to speak for their own merits, and scarcely need any special recommendation. We will say, however, that the present volume does not in any way fall behind its predecessors, being a most charming story of home life, in which many of the scenes related are based upon facts. Young readers will find no lack of incident or interest throughout, while they will imbibe the highest order of instruction in the most delightful manner. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

SUBURBAN HOMES: HOW TO OBTAIN THEM. (A. J. Bicknell & Co.) The principal feature of Towndrow's new plan of association, for enabling people of restricted means to acquire comfortable and desirable suburban homes, is set forth in this little volume, with tables showing how the cash operations are carried through. 12mo, cloth, 50 cents.

LIVES AND PORTRAITS OF ALL THE PRESIDENTS, by John B. Duffey. (T. S. Arthur & Son.) A little pamphlet containing a brief history of the Presidents, from Washington to Grant. A handy little book for reference. 25 cents.

WHY IS HISTORY READ SO LITTLE? This little pamphlet contains some very excellent ideas upon the unpopularity of history resulting chiefly from the methods by which it is now taught. The author, a young man who has been for years a student of history and English literature, and who collected a library only by many sacrifices, deserves the greatest encouragement. He says: "This little pamphlet can be obtained, post-paid, by sending 15 cents (the cost of printing) to 'A Student of History,' care of Walter F. Wheaton, Herald Printing House, New-Bedford, Mass. All letters to that address will reach the author."

ROBINSON CRUSOE'S MONEY, by David A. Wells. (Harper & Brothers.) This can scarcely be called a story, although it has the outside structure of one, being divided into chapters, and having characters and a designated scene of action. Its sub-title most clearly defines it, as "the remarkable financial fortunes and misfortunes of a remote island community." It is, in truth, but an elaborate essay on political economy, exemplifying the working of the various plans that have been offered us in our financial difficulties, done up in the flimsy disguise of a story, which will probably help many the better to swallow something which is purely instructive. The simplicity of the language is the strong point in the book, as it places some very important truths within the comprehension of the most unlearned. The illustrations are by Nast, but scarcely up to his best work. The author is the late U. S. Special Commissioner of Revenue. 8vo, paper. 50 cents.

SADLIER'S EXCELSIOR SERIES OF CATHOLIC GEOGRAPHIES. NOS. 1, 2, 3. (William H. Sadlier.) Sadlier's series has been prepared to fill a long-felt want in Catholic schools—namely, for a line of geographical text-books, which shall present a perfectly truthful geography, and at the same time do full justice to catholic countries and catholic peoples. Written as they are from this standpoint, they are invaluable almost to catholic schools and scholars, and have already received the most hearty approval and indorsement from all the most prominent catholic dignitaries and educators, not only for this special point, but also for the merit of their get-up and the practical usefulness of their plan of study. They are progressive in matter, No. 1 being intended for the very youngest scholars; they all have for their basis a system of object-teaching, and are richly illustrated with maps, pictures, etc. No. 1, 12mo, 40 cents; No. 2, 4to, $1; No. 3, large 4to, $1.88.

THE ACOLYTE; OR, A CHRISTIAN SCHOLAR. (Peter F. Cunningham & Son.) The hero of this story is a young catholic student; the beauty of his life and his many virtues are placed before the young reader in a very attractive manner, rendering the work a most efficient aid in confirming the teachings of the church. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

LITERATURE FOR LITTLE FOLKS, by Elizabeth Lloyd. (Sower, Potts & Co.) This little book takes the ground that the committing of rules of syntax to memory, and the studying of technical grammar in early youth is not the benefit to the child that it is generally considered; the art of speaking grammatically, it argues, comes from the child hearing others speak grammatically, and from being taken through a course of training which impresses the proper construction of our language upon his mind without troubling him with the reasons why, which the compiler wisely relegates to a time when the reasoning faculties are awakened. The little book is made up of selections from children's literature, embracing both favorite nursery pieces and some of the very best standard pieces in verse from standard authors. These are followed by questions and suggestions which lead the child easily into composition. The book can be recommended as very well planned and well gotten up typographically. 16mo, cloth, 75 cents; boards, 50 cents.

HOW TO WRITE LETTERS, by J. Willis Westlake, A.M. (Sower, Potts & Co.) A systematic treatise on the subject of letter-writing, which shall be an authority in schools and also in society, has long been wanted. Mr. Westlake, professor of English literature in the State Normal School, Millersville, Pa., offers the present work as one which can be accepted as having most carefully and thoroughly worked up the subject. Indeed, in glancing through the work, one is struck with the great amount of matter that is brought together on a point apparently so simple, and yet one in which so many cultured people even, fail in perfect correctness. The aim Mr. Westlake has held in view all through has been to give the conventional methods relative to business letters, notes, social correspondence, etc.; thus placing at once forms before the student or reader, of which he can make direct application. Every one wanting a book which says every thing that can be said on this subject, and which contains every possible sort of information about addresses, notes, etc., to all sorts of dignitaries, in religions and the government, should have this volume brought at once to his or her notice. 12mo, plain cloth, $1; gilt, $1.50.

SIN AS SET FORTH IN HOLY SCRIPTURE, by George M. Straffen, M.A. (E. P. Dutton & Co.) The sense of sin, its nature, the origin of sin, the consequences of sin, the disclosure of sin, and the propitiation for sin, comprise the chief points of the six brief but forcible lectures contained in this book, and known as the "Hulsean Lectures for 1874." 12mo, cloth, $1.

THE FLAG OF DISTRESS, by Captain Mayne Reid. (James Miller.) The date of this story is about twenty-five years back, and the scene of it shifts from California to Mexico and the South Sea. It opens with a thrilling chase after what seems a phantom ship sailing under a reversed flag, which when boarded is found to be in possession of a most remarkable crew. It promises to be a most exciting story of love and adventure, told in Mayne Reid's most popular style, and is sufficiently voluminous to satisfy the most ardent of his young admirers. 12mo, cloth. Price, $1.75.

TRADE MEETINGS.

A CIRCULAR has been circulated among the Canadian book trade, asking their attendance at a convention at Ottawa, March 8th—Wednesday of this week. It was signed by James Campbell & Son, Wm. Warwick, Rowsell & Hutchison, Willing & Williamson, James Bain & Son, Hart & Rawlinson, P. C. Allan, Robt. Marshall, Clougher Bros., Alfred Piddington, and James Vannevar. The principal question for discussion is "The Government Book Repository," an institution which was started about thirty years ago for supplying school material to the public schools, but which it is hoped to abolish under the present administration. Other questions, such as the rates of discount, etc., will doubtless come up. As yet we have no report of results.

CENTENNIAL NOTES.

THE catalogue of Mr. Rowell's exhibition of newspapers will be a handsome book of three hundred pages in solid nonpareil type, and will be printed from electrotypes at the Cambridge University Press, Mass. It will not differ materially in size or appearance from the official catalogues of the four departments of the principal exhibition. The chief feature of the catalogue is its arrangement in gazetteer fashion under towns, with the names and numbers of papers issued by each place, thus giving the spectator at a glance an idea of the importance of a locality. It will contain, besides, laboriously compiled tables of newspaper statistics, showing the present condition and importance of journalism in the United States. The first edition of the catalogue will be ready in May, when a copy will be presented to every exhibitor who has a representative at the exhibition, and sent by mail to every American newspaper publisher.

LIBRARY AND BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTES.

MR. SABIN has printed separately from his "Dictionary of Books relating to America," a "List of the Editions of the Works of Louis Hennepin and Alonso de Herrera," pp. 16. The "Dictionary" itself has now forty printed parts, numbering 32,000 titles, and six more parts are expected to appear this year, the MS. being advanced to the letter K.

A BIBLIOGRAPHY of chess has been published at Utrecht by Dr. A. Van der Linde, with 2209 titles, besides 113 titles on checkers.

A HANDY little fortnightly, Gazette anecdotique, littéraire, artistique et bibliographique, has been begun with the year at the Librairie des Bibliophiles, Paris (New-York: F. W. Christern).

IN the Chronique of the official Journal of the French book trade appears a remarkable article on the libraries of the United States. It is so complimentary to the growth of art and literary taste in this country that it is ungrateful to point out some beautiful blunders in the figures of the "statistician from New-Yorck," but the Public Library of Boston is given but 183,000 volumes, while the Handel and Haydn Society's modest collection is magnified to 40,000. The "Harvard Universal Library," Cambridge, is credited with 150,000.

THE "Catalogues of Scientific Papers," compiled and published by the Royal Society, in six volumes 4to, are, so to say, a history of the science of the world from the beginning of the present century down to 1863, for they present the titles of papers published in the Transactions of Societies and in scientific periodicals, in all languages, within the sixty-three years. The Royal Society have kept on with their labor of love, and have recently sent to press the continuation of the Catalogue for another decade, 1864-1873. It is expected to form two volumes equal in bulk to those which have already appeared, and will probably be ready for publication by the end of the present year. The cost of compilation has been borne by the Royal Society; the government pays for the printing.

MR. MEJOF, the untiring representative of Russian bibliography, has recently published a catalogue of the Russian books of 1873 and 1874. Under the title of "Fifth and Sixth Supplements to the Systematic Catalogue of the Russian Books sold in the Bookstore of A. F. Bazunof," it forms a goodly volume of more than 400 double-columned pages. No other country, says the Athenæum, possesses a bibliographical record which can for a moment be compared with that which M. Mejof so steadily keeps up; for the entries include references to important critical notices, home and foreign. In the years 1873 and 1874, there were published 679 Russian books on theology, 322 on law, and 113 on rural economy. On history, 270 books appeared, 164 of which were upon Russian history. To geography, ethnology, etc., 247 books were devoted; to mathematics, 195; to military and naval science, 135; and to natural science, 234. Medicine can boast of 224 works, and philology, etc., of no less than 438. Of purely literary productions, including those classed under the headings of poetry, romance, the drama, etc., figure 1831 original productions, and 447 translations. To art, only 94 books were devoted.

OTTO HARRASSOWITZ, Leipsic, announces as forthcoming a new volume of the "Dutch Bibliography," containing in alphabetical order the full titles of books, periodicals, maps, etc., with name of publisher, prices, etc., published in Holland from 1863 to 1875, together with a classified index for the years 1850 to 1875, compiled by C. L. Brinkman, of Amsterdam. The work will be issued in 11 or 12 parts, at the price of about $1 each.

O. LORENZ, Paris, will have ready, May 10th, the first part of his "General Catalogue of the French Book Trade," embracing the years 1866 to 1875, to be completed in four parts or two volumes, towards the end of September, 1877. The price of the two volumes, forming vol. v.

and vol. vi. of the entire work, is fixed at 50 francs. A General Subject Index, in two volumes, forming vols. vii. and viii. of the work, is to follow later.

Two important auction sales of Americana have been taking place this week, of the extensive library of the late J. K. Wiggins, in Boston, numbering 2700 lots, sold by Leonard & Co., in that city, and of the Americana portion of the library of Mr. Almon W. Griswold, of this city, numbering 1000 lots, at Bangs, Merwin & Co.'s, Mr. Joseph Sabin officiating. Mr. Griswold's fine copy of Eliot's Indian Bible, second edition, brought $325, and his Hakluyt's Voyages, a unique copy, bound as two volumes, $137.50 per volume.

COPYRIGHT NOTES.

(Contributed by Rowland Cox, Esq.)

IN the case of Lawrence vs. Cupples, Judge Shepley has announced it as his opinion that in an action for the infringement of a copyright, where the resemblances are accidental or arise from the nature of the subject treated in the two books, there can be no recovery. To constitute an infringement of a copyright, the learned judge says, there must be piracy—the defendant must have used the plaintiff's book as his model. Although the defendant's work covers the same ground as the plaintiff's, and answers the same purpose in toto, it will be no infringement if it is not an appropriation of plaintiff's particular method.

Hence, where the plaintiff had compiled a book bearing the title, "The Advertiser and Collector's Chart," containing certain lists of names, and defendant issued a book entitled "The New-England Mercantile Guide," which contained the same lists, it was held that there was no infringement.

There can be no doubt that a copyright which purports inferentially to cover any thing akin to a subject is of no avail. It is idle to attempt to make a copyright effect, directly or indirectly, the functions of a patent or a trade-mark. The three are possibly of the same genus, but as species are widely separated, and to confound them inevitably leads to illogical conclusions.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE Atlantic for April will contain one of the most important of Mr. Adams' railroad papers; the conclusion of the striking story, "A Carnival of Rome;" an admirable paper on the early American Novelists, by Mr. Lathrop; a study of life in Boston during the siege, by Horace E. Scudder; a final article on Drainage, by Colonel Waring; a study of the old battle-field of Lützen, by J. K. Hosmer; an Essay on Rural Architecture, by Wilson Flagg; a timely sketch of the Egyptian Khedive and his Court, by Charles Hale; Old Woman's Gossip; Private Theatricals; and poems by Bayard Taylor, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, William Howitt, Edgar Fawcett, and G. P. Lathrop.

THE Post-office Department has shut down on the sending out of editors' extract slips with magazines; so The Atlantic sends its by mail, and the Scribners stitch their slips in front of their two magazines.

GERMANY has a new book, periodical, the Suchblatt, or Search Journal, for the purchase and sale of second-hand books, etc. It occupies the place of our columns of "Books Wanted," etc., and appears "two or three times weekly" from Leipzig.

A RECENT issue of the Nieuwsblad voor den Boekhandel, the semi-weekly organ of the Dutch book trade, now in its forty-third year, contains a long and pleasantly appreciative article on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. We may say in turn that our Amsterdam contemporary is one of the most enterprising of the foreign book-trade journals, and has more news in proportion to its size than any other, English or continental.

OBITUARY.

JOHN A. BANCROFT.

It is our sad duty to notice the decease of Mr. John A. Bancroft, formerly of the firm of John A. Bancroft & Co., of Philadelphia, which occurred on the 23d of February, after an illness of about a week. Mr. Bancroft had been connected with the book-publishing interests of Philadelphia since a lad, when he entered the old and widely known house of Thomas Cowperthwait & Co., with whom he remained until the close of their business. He then assisted to establish the firm of Schermerhorn, Bancroft & Co., Philadelphia and New-York, which partnership continued for several years. About ten years since the Philadelphia house withdrew and enlarged its own business under the present title of J. A. Bancroft & Co. Mr. Bancroft was widely known and esteemed throughout the eastern part of the United States as a gentleman of great ability and activity, and as a business man of undoubted integrity.

OWEN C. OWENS,

manufacturer of envelopes and paper, 47 John street, departed this life on Wednesday, March 8th. His funeral took place on Friday and was largely attended by representatives of the stationery trade. Mr. Owens was 56 years of age, and greatly respected by numerous friends in the trade, and his sudden death will cause much sorrow to those who have been intimate, and who have always found him a genial and happy friend.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. ALBERT W. MOLLOY, well known to the trade in connection with the houses of J. B. Lippincott & Co. and Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger, is now with Sower, Potts & Co., Philadelphia.

MR. D. M. DEWEY, the well-known Rochester bookseller, recently delivered a lecture before the Academy of Art of that city on "What an Amateur Ought to Know; or, How to See Works of Art," a subject which he handled, says the Union, in a manner that showed he had devoted considerable time and attention to its consideration.

MARY HOWITT, the venerable authoress, is living with her family in Rome.

MISS CARA OAKEY HALL, eldest daughter of Oakey Hall, has, it is stated, written a novel, which evinces much literary ability on her part.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BRYANT & ROBERTS, Pensacola, Fla., are succeeded by Roberts & Boulware, Mr. W. H. Bryant having sold his interest to Mr. A. Boulware, Jr.

MR. H. H. SHEPARD, the retiring partner of the house of Matt. Foster & Co., Kansas City, has started a new house in that city, under his own name, at 618 Main street.

R. S. DAVIS & Co., Pittsburg, Pa., will remove to the corner of Fifth avenue and Wood street about April 1st.

THERE promise to be quite a number of removals in New-York. A. D. F. Randolph & Co. will leave their old stand for the more spacious store on the corresponding corner of 20th street and Broadway, where they will have much better accommodations. G. P. Putnam's Sons are also about to move from Fourth avenue (where they have been for six years) to 182 Fifth avenue, 3d door below 23d street, next door to Gunther's building. They will have there a handsome store, 26½ by 100 feet, with full basement, double hoists, etc., and will make arrangements to give special attention to retail and library business in standard American and imported books. Collins & Brother will locate themselves at 414 Broadway, near Canal street.

STATIONERY NOTES.

WE are pleased to remark a better feeling in the stationery trade, and orders this week are more numerous than the preceding. Indications of strong confidence among the larger houses, with inclination to purchase more freely than at any time this spring. We trust the hopeful feeling will continue, and that the amount of general business, though late, will compare favorably with last year.

MR. FR. J. EMMERICH, importer of optical and mathematical instruments, 38 Maiden Lane, has just received a large invoice of drawing instruments. The assortment is such that all may be suited, from the novice to the experienced draughtsman, at prices ranging accordingly from $4 per dozen sets to $35 each. The former at $4 per dozen are not in boxes but neatly put up on cards, and are intended principally for beginners in public and private schools. The same in boxes can be supplied at $5 per dozen. He has also a fine stock of microscopes, including two styles intended for pocket use, either of which may be had at $7.50 per dozen. Mr. Emmerich is still supplying the trade with the Centennial thermometer mentioned some time since in the WEEKLY.

CHAS. T. BAINBRIDGE has returned from a successful trip West.

C. S. PLUMMER arrived home on Thursday.

WE draw the attention of the trade to the advertisement of William W. Harding in this number, wherein he announces his new lines of Quarto Bibles, and an entirely new and extensive series of Photograph Albums, samples of which will be exhibited at the Booksellers' Fair on the 20th inst.

THE cross-bar mucilage-stand is a valuable improvement in mucilage-stands. The improvement consists of a cross-bar attached inside the stand for clearing brush of surplus mucilage, and which rises and falls with the opening and closing of the cover, thereby obviating the clogging of the mouth of the stand. The water-well attached receives the brush, keeping it moist and always ready for use. The whole is of beautiful design, nickel-plated cap and brush-handle. Price, $18 per doz.; regular discount to the trade. Quinan & Frost, 131 William street, N. Y.

THE suit brought against the Acme Letter-File Manufacturing Company, for infringement of patent granted to T. J. Gaffney, has been dismissed, with costs to the plaintiff. We speak of this to remove any fears the trade may have in selling the goods. The above-named company are manufacturing paper fasteners, parchment paper, copying paper and books, and we respectfully call the attention of our readers to their advertisement.

JOHN D. EMACK, 114 William street, New-York, is the sole manufacturer of the Chinnock Drawing Slate. They are handsomely finished in oil, and about 12 inches square, in the form of a desk, which contains three different compartments for drawing materials, drawing-paper, and sixteen different designs. The slate can be detached from the desk when needed for school use, as represented in the cut below. In case the slate is broken, any 6x10 slate can be made to fit the frame. Patented February, 1876. Price, $9 per dozen; large discount to the trade.

JOSEPH GARUS has gone into the manufacture of writing-inks and mucilage, which are of excellent quality, and will no doubt take the place of some imported inks to a great extent. They are put up neatly in quarts and pints. Price-lists sent on application. Depot, 18 Liberty street, New-York.

MR. CHAS. SMALL, of the firm of S. A. Tower & Co., is on his usual spring trip South. When last heard from he was in the interior of Texas and sending in unusually large orders.

R. E. STEVENS has, after a two months' trip for Perry & Co., made an engagement with his former employer, Willy Wallach, and will soon be on the road with a complete line of samples in stationery.

S. A. TOWER & Co., successors to Cutter, Tower & Co., New-York, have removed to their new store, No. 306 Broadway, corner of Duane street, comprising the ground floor, basement, and sub-cellar—25 feet wide by 100 feet deep, with excellent accommodations to show goods, and will be happy to see their friends who are in need of stationery.

WM. P. DANE, 139 William street, has just issued to the trade an elegant new catalogue of domestic and imported fancy papers suitable for stationers, printers, lithographers, box-makers, and book-binders. It is neatly printed on tinted paper, with dark green cover printed in gold. Copies will be forwarded, on application, to any address.

IN our last issue we stated that the H. Grainger Stationery and Manufacturing Co., of 148 La Salle street, Chicago, had a capital stock of $25,000 paid up. It should have been 50 per cent paid up. Mr. H. Grainger, the president and manager, has just completed buying stock for the above-named company, paying cash. The trade will do well to be on the look-out for such buyers.

J. J. SPALDING & Co., of Chicago, we understand, are about to sell out their stationery, and confine themselves exclusively to manufacturing.

GEO. GODFREY, JR., has invented an oil-painted washable wall-paper, which he is now manufacturing at Crump & Everdell's wall-paper factory at Montclair, N. J. This paper is coated with two coats of oil-paint, so that it can be washed as a painted wall. Soap and water can be freely used in cleansing. It is made plain and tinted. The various woods are imitated, and fancy figures and borders are produced in great variety. The cost is but a trifle more than ordinary hangings. Samples and price-list sent on application to Mr. Godfrey, at the factory.

JOHN BOVD, of 812 Seventh avenue, New York, has invented an elastic pen-holder. It consists of a flexible attachment between the barrel and the holder, made by connecting the barrel to the holder by a rubber band and the finest tempered steel springs, secured firmly to the holder, so that the oscillation is at the upper end of the barrel. This invention affords a greater elasticity to gold or steel pens than when attached to a rigid holder, and can be graduated to the taste or use of the writer. It is especially adapted to gold pens, as it prevents wear on the points, from the fact of the spring relieving the heavy pressure of the hand. The same principle also applies to steel pens. The hand will not cramp while using the elastic pen-holder, from the fact that the muscles of the hand are not in a rigid position, as is the case with all other holders. This pen-holder has been tested in the largest commercial and banking houses in New-York city, and by them recommended. The retail prices are from 75 cents to $3 each.

ROBERT SNEIDER, of 37 John street, is having great success with his Centennial packets of old-fashioned note-paper and envelopes—the variety being so large and the price within the reach of all. The designs are original copies from the Centennial, and are worthy of a good run for the season. The styles are plain blue, ruled, bordered on edge, liberty bell, Independence Hall, linked coins, mind-your-business coins. The last two are fac-simile of the old coins used at the commencement and forming of the States. The prices run from $25 to $40 per hundred.

C. C. & A. L. CHAMBERLAIN are making a very handsome document box envelope of manilla and enamelled boards, with metallic ends and arranged with an inner case which holds the papers in a convenient manner for filing. By its use valuable papers are kept in good order and handy for reference.

BAKER, PRATT & Co., New-York, have made extensive arrangements for a large spring trade both in domestic and foreign goods. This house has entered into the importing business with much energy, and is offering very handsome lines of goods. Among their specialties we notice a full line of French copying books, which they offer at exceedingly low rates. Their stock of glass inks is varied and of novel designs. In goods of their own manufacture they have full assortments of walnut and pasteboard clips, numeral frames, black-board erasers, desk-weights, etc. It is the intention of this house to carry full lines of all goods required by the trade both in books and stationery.

As we go to press we hear that Mr. George H. Reay is lying at the point of death. We are extremely pained to hear this sad news, and trust it may not be as serious as reported.

NOTES ON THE ROAD.

CINCINNATI.

AWFUL hard times ; but the ladies are out in their fine furs, velvets, silks, and new hats. The weather is fine, the atmosphere warm and balmy as spring, the sky, clear and blue, smiling sunnily upon us. Trade shows some indication of reviving, but nearly all the different houses are stocked well up in goods for the expected spring business.

Robert Clarke & Co., the well-known law publishers, run 50 presses and 420 fonts, and employ about 150 persons the year round. The bindery, printing-room, and wholesale and retail departments are all in one building, and the stock is remarkably well arranged and excellently selected. In the last two years they have issued 75 volumes of law books alone. Foreign publications of whatever language and country are to be obtained from this house. Their import orders are despatched twice a week regularly, and catalogues of all the new publications are issued regularly to their trade.

Messrs. Wilson, Hinkle & Co., in their capacious store on Walnut street, are among the largest publishers of school text-books in the world, and their stationery department is a prominent feature of their business, and, in quantities, equal to many of our largest Eastern jobbers.

Wilstach, Baldwin & Co., 141 Race street, probably have the largest line of stationery and fancy goods appertaining to the line in the State. The arrangement of the large variety here displayed, and the admirable order of every thing, together with the extreme neatness, is certainly deserving of especial mention and compliment on the able management of Mr. Lee and his assistants.

George E. Stevens & Co. have, on Walnut street, their extensive floors devoted entirely to the wholesale stationery lines, which they handle in large and varied quantities. Their retail establishment on Fourth street contains an extensive variety of books, fancy goods, fine papers and stationery, together with works of art.

Their windows and show-cases are admired by all who view them, on account of the excellent arrangement and taste displayed.

The new store occupied by A. H. Pounsford & Co., successors to Applegate, Pounsford & Co., is a marvel of neatness and beauty. The new stock of goods, displayed to excellent advantage, and the roomy, light quarters, certainly must draw a first-class trade. They manufacture a superior line of blank-books, and have a job-printing establishment in same building, over the store.

The Cincinnati News Company supply the dealers and some railroads with newspapers, weeklies, and monthlies. They carry also stationery, and are headquarters for perforated board and masquerade articles in this city.

Stone & Stewart, 141 Walnut street, are very large dealers in paper.

W. B. Carpenter & Co. and J. R. Mills & Co. are extensively engaged in supplying banks, insurance, railroad, and other offices with every thing in the commercial stationery line.

Beeler & Curry, designers and engravers, will move to 184 Fourth street, March 1st, where they will have an entirely new and attractive stock of artistic and wedding goods. This firm leads the style in wedding and party invitations, and enjoys the crème de la crème of the finest trade in this city.

CHICAGO.

Culver, Page, Hoyne & Co. probably carry the largest stock of stationery and staples of any house in the West. The admirable arrangement of the stock, and the system which Mr. Brown, the buyer, follows, might be advantageously copied by all large business houses in whatever line of trade. Mr. B. has a number of price-books, arranged in alphabetical order, containing every known catalogue and price-list, with the prices and discounts, so that at a moment's notice he can select and ascertain any information as regards the goods to purchase. Every order is given at the store in the form of a letter, which is copied before presentation.

Jansen, McClurg & Co., in their imposing and magnificent building on State street, make a display of books scarcely excelled by any house in the country. The basement is filled with all lines of paper and stationery, school-books, etc., while the upper floor is used as the wholesale department. Mr. Terhune has charge of the stationery department and Mr. Smith of the book department.

W. B. Keen, Cooke & Co., adjoining the above house, have also an elegant store, with an extensive variety of books, fine stationery, fancy goods, etc. Their wedding and engraving department, with fine stationery, includes the latest and best styles. The wholesale department is under the direction of Mr. Ed. Keen, and Mr. Joe Keen has charge of the retail stock.

The Western News Company, John R. Walsh, Esq., President and Manager, is too well known all over the Western country to give any lengthy details as regards their business. Mr. Wilson is buyer in the wholesale department, and is particularly liked by all the travelling fraternity for his gentlemanly and polite reception of them.

Skeen & Stuart, 277 Madison street, always have a good variety of every thing in the stationery line, and are having a rapidly improving business. W. G. Holmes occupies the other side of the store with a good line of books.

J. M. W. Jones has a large railroad trade, and his stock of stationery is varied and well selected. The bindery and printing department is one of the specialties of his business.

Hadley Brothers & Co. occupy a very large and fine store, filled with a choice variety of every thing in the line of stationery and books. They have a fine business in school supplies, and are enjoying a rapidly increasing trade with their numerous customers in the country.

A. H. Andrews & Co. are large dealers and manufacturers of school furniture and supplies.

The National School Furniture Company, A. S. Barnes & Co., are also engaged in school furniture, etc.

Rand, McNally & Co. are largely engaged in railroad printing and supplies; also supplies for printers.

Miller's old bookstore is the headquarters for old books and magazines.

Cameron, Amberg & Co., on Lake street, are enjoying a good trade, and their "Amberg's patent letter file and binder" is favorably known everywhere.

John S. Stott, 158 State street, in a line of stationery, and Mitchell & Hathaway, with books, are always busy in their neat and handsome store.

Floto & Meininger, 70 Randolph street, are occupying a fine store with a fresh stock of goods.

H. Enderis has two stores, one on Randolph street and the other on the West side. He deals in stationery and German books.

E. Roubovitz will occupy a large new store on Randolph street in a few weeks with an entirely new line of goods.

All travellers report trade unusually brisk and orders numerous in this city, and as there has been a large number during the last few weeks, among them William Graham, Will Horn, and Mr. Beck, of Kqch, Sons & Co.; Charles T. Bainbridge; Mr. Gibbs, of Willy Wallach; Mr. Colton, with Colton & Whelpley, La Crosse, Wis.; Mr. A. McFeeters; Mr. Houghton, of Hurd & Houghton; Mr. Wood, from J. B. Lippincott & Co., it indicates a stronger and better feeling. C. S. P.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

A "LIFE of General Israel Putnam," by Rev. Increase N. Tarbox, is now in the hands of a prominent publishing house of Boston, and will probably see the light some time in April. The Transcript states that it deals particularly with the battle of Bunker Hill, and furnishes a vast amount of documentary evidence to show that the bluff old Connecticut hero, and no other, was in command of the American troops in that battle.

MESSRS. A. J. BICKNELL & Co. have entered copyright for an ingenious advertising device—a card of legal-envelope size which the postmaster addressed is requested on the face to place in the box of one of the most enterprising builders in his place, and which contains on the other side advertisements of manufacturers of specialties used in the carpentry and building lines, while the face presents the advertisement of Messrs. Bicknell's catalogue of their own books on this subject.

THEMES tending to the revival of business just now occupy the book-makers. Mr. F. B. Patterson will shortly contribute a little work which aims at showing us "How to Steady our Dollar." The author, Jas. C. Hallock, Jr., M.D., having treated mental diseases for several years in various asylums, now proposes to suggest a remedy for the "Morbus Numericus," or "Money Disease," which afflicts the body politic.

THE New-York Times issues in an octavo volume "The Cooking and Practical Home Recipes" it has been printing of late in its columns.

HAWKS' "Album of Genealogy and Biography" will in future be supplied to the trade by Messrs. A. Williams & Co. This album is one of the best things of the kind in the market for preserving family records, autographs, portraits, photographs, etc.; the importance of such records can hardly be estimated, and, as the advertisement pathetically puts it, "those who can not afford to mark the graves of their relatives with slabs of marble may, at a trifling cost, make records in this album, which, with ordinary care, will outlast the epitaphs in stone, if not the stone itself."

WEST, JOHNSTON & Co. recently sold a copy of the original folio edition of "Audubon's Birds of America," without the volume of the text, which had been destroyed, for the sum of seven hundred dollars, cash—probably the largest amount paid in the South for a book since the war.

THE preface of the new volume of Hulsean Lectures, just issued by E. P. Dutton & Co., is really a gem: "The writer is aware that the lectures are shorter than usual; but his regret is that he has not been able to make them shorter still."

MESSRS. P. GARRETT & Co.'s several series of "100 Choice Selections" have been a capital hit, and the 12th, just issued, is said to be in great demand. They have also combined these, in sets of four, as "The Speaker's Garland," vols. i., ii., and iii., in cloth gilt, at $2 per volume.

A POCKET Map of the City of Richmond, Va. (including Manchester), 21 inches by 13 inches, has just been published by West, Johnston & Co., Richmond, Va. The price in boards is 30 cents.

MISS MARTHA JELLISON is preparing a history of Ellsworth, Me., which is nearly ready for publication.

ALONG with the memoirs of William Godwin, the London publishers issue a series of essays by him never before published, under the title of "The Genius of Christianity Unveiled," edited by Mr. C. Kegan Paul.

A CLERGYMAN at Providence, the Rev. Walter P. Doe, has made a collection of the opinions of leading clergymen on revival preaching, which will soon be published by a local house.

DR. BRINSLEY NICHOLSON is to edit the "Doubtful Plays of Shakespeare" for Messrs. George Bell & Sons, London.

"THE Life of John Locke," by Mr. H. R. Foxbourne, is promised for this spring by Henry A. King & Co.

THE clever author of "The Member for Paris" has a new volume forthcoming called "French Pictures in English Chalk."

MR. SAMUEL PLIMSOLL, M.P., has written a commendatory preface to a story which will be published by Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton under the title of "A Voice from the Sea; or, the Wreck of the Eglantine."

MICHEL LEVY FRERES have in press a new work by Ernest Renan under the title "Dialogues et Fragments Philosophiques."

A WORK on "The English Bible," by John Eadie, D.D., LL.D., being a history of the various translations of the Scriptures, is to be published by Macmillan & Co.

MR. RUSKIN has edited a work on "The Art Schools of Medieval Christendom," by A. C. Owen, just ready in England.

A WESTERN reader writes: "Some weeks ago you informed us in the WEEKLY, that a certain firm had compromised with their creditors at fifteen cents on the dollar, and add, 'They inform us that their business has not been materially interrupted by their temporary difficulties.' Now you tell us that another gentleman of the trade is effecting a settlement with his creditors at twenty cents on the dollar, adding, 'His chief creditors are desirous of his continuing, as they consider him too valuable a man to lose.' I would like to ask if these items are intended to be funny. If trade morality has got so low, would it not be well to establish a funny column, for the record of failures of houses who do not pay more than say twenty-five cents on the dollar, and, being good fellows go right on without interruption; of course, if they pay more than that it would not do to admit them into the funny column, as it then becomes a serious matter."

is now ready, containing the new LISTS of one hundred and fifty-five American Publishing Houses (four more than last year), a GENERAL INDEX to the prominent books in the same, embracing about 14,000 titles, Indexes to MEDICAL and LAW BOOKS, with about eight hundred titles each, and the complete AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE, for 1875, with 7000 titles more, the series guiding the bookseller or reader to the full entries of over 22,000 books.

The addition of these Indexes makes the work absolutely indispensable to the bookseller, causing it to displace entirely the previous Annual. By keeping a copy of this work on his counter at the service of the customer, like a directory, the bookseller will do much to promote his trade. The librarian and the general reader will also find the ANNUAL most valuable in guiding them to the wide range of American literature.

The orders previous to publication day having been supplied at the usual nominal rate, the price of the work, as previously announced, is now put, to cover the cost of making the Indexes, at the following rates:

To the trade,	$2.00 per copy.
To the general public,	2.50 "

The volume being too large for the mails, directions for forwarding through jobbers or for expressage, which must be paid on delivery, must accompany each order. The volume is forwarded at our risk by express only.

WORKS ON GARDENING AND THE CARE OF HOUSE PLANTS,

By EDWARD S. RAND, JR.

Will be Published shortly.

ORCHIDS,

In one volume, crown 8vo, cloth.

This work will be a manual of the culture of Orchidaceous Plants, giving full directions for Potting, Propagation, Care of Orchid House, and a full descriptive list of the best species and varieties, especially those most desirable for culture by amateurs, from their brilliancy or fragrance of flower, or peculiarity of structure. Chapters will also be given on Cool Culture, Growth for Market Purposes and Exhibition, and on the Construction of Orchid Houses.

New editions of the following are now ready.

I. FLOWERS FOR THE PARLOR AND GARDEN. Twenty-fifth thousand. In one volume, 8vo, 450 pages, beautifully illustrated. Cloth, $3.00.

A new edition revised and enlarged. A complete manual of culture of all plants commonly grown in the parlor, garden, and greenhouse, with notes on Wardian Cases, Hardy Shrubs, and Wild Flowers.

"In this charming work the author has largely enhanced the sum of those public obligations previously due on the score of his personal exertions in arousing an interest in the beautiful art of floriculture, and has many valuable contributions to current literature upon this subject. . . . The directions which it gives for the selection and cultivation of flowers for the conservatory, parlor, and garden, besides being fuller and more explicit than those contained in any other work of equal compass, are the results of thorough practical experience. With substantial binding, beautiful typography, and copious illustrations, we have here a specimen of the art of book-making rarely surpassed."—Saturday Evening Gazette.

II. GARDEN FLOWERS; How to cultivate them. New edition, thoroughly revised, with additions to January, 1876. In one volume, 8vo, containing more than 400 pages, illustrated. Cloth, $3.00.

A treatise on the culture of Hardy Ornamental Trees, Shrubs, Annuals, Herbaceous and Bedding Plants; describing many thousand plants alphabetically arranged, constituting, in fact, a botanical dictionary and manual of culture.

III. BULBS. Sixth thousand. New edition. In one volume, 8vo, 375 pages, beautifully illustrated, with two appendices. Cloth, $3.00.

A treatise on Hardy and Tender Bulbs and Tubers, giving directions for the culture of all which are commonly grown, with descriptive lists.

"With returning spring Mr. Rand greets us with another handy book of horticulture. This volume is the only work on the subject, and is an exhaustive treatise upon the culture of bulbs. . . . A practical and valuable work like this deserves a large sale."—Boston Daily Advertiser.

IV. RHODODENDRONS. Third thousand, newly revised. In one volume, 8vo, 200 pages. Cloth, $1.75.

"We have got into the habit of expecting a new book on some horticultural subject from Mr. Rand every year. No class of plants deserves a biographer more than the Rhododendron. Mr. Rand has shown they can be grown abundantly if their habits are studied; he enumerates every plant which belongs or groups with the rhododendron and kalmia, and tells us where to get them and how they are best cultivated. We wish all the families of beautiful plants could find so earnest and faithful a biographer; every one who reads such a book becomes imbued with horticultural enthusiasm."—The Nation.

V. POPULAR FLOWERS, AND HOW TO CULTIVATE THEM. Tenth thousand, with appendix; thoroughly revised and enlarged. In one volume, square 8vo, 230 pages, illustrated. Cloth, $1.25.

A manual of flowers for the people, with simple directions and plain descriptions.

The Literary News

A Monthly Journal of Current Literature.

PUBLISHED BY

(Space allotted for Dealer's Imprint.)

APRIL, 1876.

TO THE RETAIL BOOK TRADE.

Retail Booksellers, News Agents, and Dealers generally, who desire a handy, cheap, and profitable advertising medium for the latest books in the market, will find

The Literary News

the best adapted to that purpose.

This publication (now in its fifth year) has reached a circulation of over 25,000 copies, and is used by hundreds of booksellers, from Maine to California.

It will be issued as heretofore, at the beginning of every month, with not less than eight pages, embracing Editorial Notes, Literary Intelligence, a full list, compiled expressly for its columns from the records of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, containing the titles and prices of the PRINCIPAL BOOKS PUBLISHED DURING THE PREVIOUS MONTH and announcements of Forthcoming Works for the Current Month, so classified as to show at a glance all the new publications in the various departments of literature, and one page of general advertisements, which will not conflict with the interest of the trade. It will be printed on tinted paper like previous editions, but of superior quality, and being of light texture, it can be sent with any book, magazine, paper, letter, circular, etc., with a small increase of postage.

It is certain that dealers who will adopt this cheap and effective mode for advertising their establishments, will find themselves amply repaid in a short time, and we have the testimony of many dealers who have not only increased the sales from their counters, but have found the orders for books not in stock highly remunerative.

Extra front headings (instead of the adopted style of imprint), with special name of paper and display, for which there is space above the rules inclosing date, are charged $1 extra per edition.

Any quantity from 100 to 1000 copies will be sent post-paid, but for larger quantities, at the reduced rates, postage or expressage will be charged.

WORK IN THE VINEYARD.

By Rev E. F. BURR, D.D., author of "Ecce Coelum," "Pater Mundi," etc., etc., 454 pp., 12mo, cloth, beveled boards, $2.

The aim of the volume is altogether practical. It seeks to promote that Christian work which the law of Christ requires, and which the needs of a world, in large part lying in wickedness, beg for with most affecting importunity. And this end is sought by the persuasion of illustrious examples, and by such appeals as, without a show of argument, but with all its substance, shall present in an orderly and glowing manner, the leading principles, methods, fields, and abounding rewards of "Work in the Vineyard."

HARDING'S SPECTROGRAPHIC ALBUM:

OR, THE DRAWING AFTER THE SHADOW.

The Spectrographic Album is a new invention, founded upon the principles of the laws of light. It enables any one, without being a professional artist, to copy Lithographs, Photographs, Engravings, and all objects of slight thickness, such as Leaves, Ferns, &c.

DIRECTIONS FOR SETTING UP AND USING THE APPARATUS.

The above figure represents the manner in which the apparatus is to be used. Place the Album, open, on a table where the light will fall upon it from the left hand side; raise the glass and fasten it in an upright position by means of the metallic hook; now place the picture or object to be copied on the left hand side of the glass, and see that the light from the window falls directly upon the object; in the same way make gas or other artificial light come from the left hand side of the apparatus, so that the object to be copied will first receive its rays.

If the operator then takes his position to the left of the glass, and looks through it, he will distinctly see the shadow of the object clearly defined on the slated surface, and with a little care the copy can then be made by tracing the outlines with a slate pencil; or, if a permanent copy is desired, all that is necessary is to lay a paper over the slated surface, when the object may be drawn with a pen or pencil.

This apparatus, when used according to the above instructions, will soon give the most unskilled person a taste for drawing, and at the same time afford an instructive and fascinating amusement for the home circle.

"VEXILLO,"

(FOR THE FLAG.)

OR THE IMPROVED METHOD OF PLAYING CROQUET.

Patented September 25, 1875.

Vexillo is simply an improvement on Croquet; the players have an additional interest, however, as each one has a flag to secure, making the game far more exciting and interesting.

Expert Croquet Players, in various parts of the country, who have carefully examined into the merits of Vexillo, pronounce it the best game in the market.

INDESTRUCTIBLE CROQUET, WITH RUBBER-FACED MALLETS.

Patent applied for.

Special attention is called to this new style of Croquet. By the use of a RUBBER FACE the Mallet is rendered INDESTRUCTIBLE, and prevents the Balls from being split or even dented in playing. A more scientific game can be played with this style of Croquet than with any other, as the RUBBER FACE on the Mallet gives a certain elasticity to the stroke, besides CAROM SHOTS can be made as in Billiards.

"We advise all Americans to read it carefully and judge for themselves 'if [the future historian of our war,' of whom we have heard so much, be not already arrived in the Comte de Paris. The translation is very good."—The Nation, New-York.

HISTORY

OF THE

CIVIL WAR IN AMERICA.

BY,
THE COMTE DE PARIS.

Translated with the approval of the author, by Louis F. Tasistro. Edited by Henry Coppée, LL.D. Vol. I., embracing, without abridgment, the first two volumes of the French Edition. With maps faithfully engraved from the originals, and printed in three colors. 8vo, cloth, $3.50; sheep, library style, $4.50; half Turkey morocco, $6.

To be followed in April by Vol. II., and the others as rapidly as issued in France. To be complete in four volumes.

"It is decidedly the best military history of the civil war. . . . In brief, both in his narrative of events and in his estimate of men and measures, he writes with a freedom from bias and a readiness to recognize both defects and virtues which it would be difficult, if not impossible, for any American to attain, and which, coupled with his military knowledge and a study of American life, character, and institutions, which must certainly have been painstaking and assiduous, place his history second to none, and, in its own peculiar domain as a soldier's history of the war, without a rival."—Harper's Magazine, New-York.

"Most Americans understand, in a vague way, that our fighting was different from that common on European soil, and that a foreign army would have to learn war anew before it could hope to 'whip us.' From this book they can learn just what the difference was, and will find that the notion they hold so vaguely has its basis of truth. . . . We would like to see this history have a wide circulation among Americans. It gives a succinct account of the more important conflicts in which we have been engaged, and is in reality a history of the United States Army, the Civil War being its most extended detail. . . . The presentation of political events is fair in spirit and moderate in expression. . . . The work shows great care, and the errors of statement are remarkably few and unimportant. The translation is well made."—The Galaxy, New-York.

"We may accredit it with a truthfulness that will entitle it to a place among the most valuable books of the present day."—The Times, New-York.

"It becomes continually clearer that this is destined to be the generally received history of the war. It will be deservedly so, for the author, by virtue of being a foreigner, has an impartiality which it would be hard for one of us to acquire; he has a satisfactory knowledge of both the great principles and the minutiae of the great struggle, and he spares no pains in search of thoroughness and accuracy. More than this, he is so completely master of his subject that he makes clear the most complicated campaigns, and he tells his story in the most lucid way. His position throughout is that of a judge and not that of an advocate, which is all the more commendable in view of the recentness of the events he describes; compared in this respect with Kinglake's History of the Crimean War, for instance, the superiority of this history is very plain. . . . The work of translation has been well done."—The Atlantic Monthly, Boston.

FROM MAJOR-GENERAL J. H. WILSON.

(In the "International Review," for March-April.)

It is by far the best work which has yet been given to the world in connection with the subject of which it treats. . . . The Comte de Paris challenges the admiration of even the Southerners, by the fair and philosophical spirit in which he describes events, and sets forth their relations to each other. . . . He has done for the military institutions and aptitudes of the American people, what De Tocqueville has done for their political institutions; and he has written in a more liberal and hopeful spirit.

"We do not remember any volume which gives a compact narrative, from the beginning of the troubles to the Restoration. This want is supplied here. . . . The work has been executed conscientiously, and the military history is very well done."—The Spectator, London.

'Useful and readable.'—The Academy, London.

"We know of no recent book which contains, in the same space, so much that is well worth reading."—Boston Courier.

"The five essays before us exhibit his diversified talents, his broad scholarship, his brilliant diction, his trusty manliness, and his warm, wide-embracing affections. . . . in each there are a few hints dropped, a few lessons taught, and a few chords of emotion vigorously struck, that make us the better for the experience."—Chicago Tribune.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE trade should keep on the lookout for such taking volumes of biography and reminiscences as those to be issued shortly by the Harpers and Appletons. The first volume of the Life and Letters of Lord Macaulay will be published probably during the month, and it promises to be one of the most interesting books of the sort which the public have lately had the chance of reading. The Appletons have postponed the publication of the Memoirs of Caroline Herschel until next week, and this book will be as interesting in its associations to scientific readers, as the other will be to literary readers proper.

REV. O. B. FROTHINGHAM's great work, "The History of Transcendentalism in New-England," will be published quite early in the spring by the Putnams, instead of at the end of it. The manuscript of the work is completed, and it will probably be ready for the trade next month. It will be in the square small octavo which the Putnams have lately made popular, and will extend to some four or five hundred pages. Dr. Frothingham is peculiarly fitted by his association and training to deal with the interesting subject of the intellectual revival in New-England, which has not before found a satisfactory historian.

HENRY HOLT & Co. have just ready Dr. D. G. Brinton's important work on "The Religious Sentiment: its Source and Aim." It makes a large 12mo of 300 pages, and is destined to attract general attention among scientific students of religion, and the growing circle of readers interested in this class of subjects. Dr. Brinton finds the religious sentiment controlled by the laws of the mind, and discovers its source in the Wish "whose fruition depends upon unknown power." His conclusion is that while there is rational ground for the assumption of a moral government of the universe, yet the essence of religion is not so much a relation with the supernatural, as faith and confidence in "the utterance which every religion speaks: 'Seek truth; do good.'" A revised edition of his previous work, "Myths of the New World," and the new novel in the "Leisure Hour Series," "Ersilia," by the author of "My Little Lady," will be issued at the same time.

THE Greek text-books by Professor Goodwin of Harvard, and the Latin text-books by Messrs. Allen and Greenough, published by Ginn Brothers of Boston, have gained remarkable popularity among the best teachers of the ancient classics. These are soon to be augmented by some noteworthy additions, including "Selections from Xenophon and Herodotus," "The First Four Books of the Anabasis," and "First Lessons in Greek," by J. W. White, Tutor in Harvard, and Professor Goodwin's collaborer in the editing of his series; also the "Second Part of Latin Composition," by Allen and Greenough.

LOCKWOOD, BROOKS & Co. have nearly ready the volume of "Easter Hymns" selected by Miss J. E. C. Chapman, an accomplished lady of Boston, and introduced by a note from her uncle, Rev. Dr. J. I. T. Coolidge. The hymns are excellently chosen, and the volume will be brought out in tasteful style. It will commend itself to the favor of all Episcopalians, and to the devout in all denominations, to whom Easter is not a mere churchly date but a day of deep and glad significance.

DORE's illustrations of Coleridge's "Ancient Mariner" are to be reproduced immediately in Heliotype by J. R. Osgood & Co., in a quarto uniform with the Toschi, Raphael, and Landseer. These illustrations are only just published in England, where they are attracting much attention.

THE circulating libraries in particular will be glad to learn of a new book from Mrs. Southworth, called "Ishmael; or, In the Depths," which is just ready at T. B. Peterson & Bros. This makes the forty-first volume in their uniform edition of her works.

THE FAIR AND SALES.

THE din of preparation has been heard at Clinton Hall for the past week, and on Monday the first Spring Fair opens. It is too late at this writing to urge upon booksellers any further the importance of attending the Fair, but we may speak again of the remainder sale which will follow on Friday. The catalogue is but just before us, but we note on it several important contributions. Messrs. Roberts Brothers head the list with six sets of stereotype plates, of books by A. R. Hope, Mary Cowden Clarke, and others, and a number of interesting remainders. Wm. F. Gill & Co. offer the stereotype plates of the four volumes of the "Treasure Trove" series, of Arsene Houssaye's and Bradlaugh's recent books, and three other sets. The four of H. T. Tuckerman's works, stereotype plates and copyright, are offered by his executors, and Messrs. Samuel D. Burlock & Co., of Philadelphia, offer three sets of stereotype plates of "Bibles and Psalms," in 32mo and 24mo.

Among the contributors to the remainder sale in general are Lockwood, Brooks & Co., with remainders of the works of Horace Bushnell, and others; G. P. Putnam's Sons, who include a considerable number of prose works by Bayard Taylor, and individual books by Irving; C. E. Nichols & Co., of Springfield, with Dana and Wilson's "Life of General Grant," a work which the present editor of the Sun may not be very fond of reading. W. J. Widdleton will make a special sale of 500 copies each of the editions of Poe, gotten up by Mr. Gill previous to his failure on the ground that the copyright in Poe's books did not cover any thing but the memoir. These two lines are a household edition of Poe's complete works, prose and poetical, in one octavo volume of 700 pages, and a diamond edition of the poems. This sale also includes fifty copies each of the recent memorial volume of the prose tales, and of the blue and gold poems, and a hundred sets of Poe's complete works. Quite a number of lots are offered by the estate of R. Worthington, including the reprints of Walton and Cotton, Lamb, Sidney Smith, and others; a "History of Booksellers," the "Greville Memoirs," Taine's "English Literature," etc. Mr. Harding offers a number of his subscription books. Estes & Lauriat have copies of "Campbell's Lives," and large remainder lots of several books of recent years. Macmillan & Co., Schaefer & Koradi, P. M. Haverly, McGlashan & Gill, Dublin, S. W. Tilson & Co., Chas. Taber & Co., and Owen C. Owens & Co., are among the other contributors.

The catalogue of the following sale of many of James R. Osgood & Co.'s plates next week is to be a creditable specimen of bibliography and printing, which they will present with some pride to the trade. It is not yet at hand as we write, but we may say that it will include particulars as to the plates, the number of copies offered, bound and unbound, in the remainder stock, data as to the cost of manufacture and wholesale price, and the copyright arrangement on American books. Several of these books offered are of very much interest, including such interesting American works as those of Theodore Winthrop, Gail Hamilton, etc., and plates of standards, such as Thackeray, Dickens, etc., and although the market is dull at present, many of these sets should call forth a large competition.

We notice also that the Messrs. Osgood have prepared a Book Fair Order List which will be of great service to the bookseller and suggests a capital idea to other publishers. The trade will observe from this that the list is still one of the most extensive and valuable in the country, although so many plates have been struck from it in view of the coming sale.

The Publishers' Weekly.

MARCH 18, 1876.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry and for notice in "Books Received."

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries." Notes from librarians will also be gratefully received.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

THE REFORM AND RETAIL PRICES.

THE difficulty which has been developing itself more and more in the later phases of the reform movement has been the fact that, although the greater portion of the trade in the large cities, and a considerable number of local dealers throughout the country, have become members, by far the larger number of dealers in the smaller places have not come under the rules agreed upon by the Association. It was of course to be expected that the local dealer should, under a general system of uniform prices, regain some of the trade which the competition of the cities had taken from him, and the city trade looked to the greater strengthening of the trade throughout the country, the building up of good local agencies, to compensate them for this loss, so far as it was not covered by the better prices which they themselves obtained in their sales. These compensating advantages are of course the work of time, and it was not to be expected that the full results would be evident at the start. Besides this, the compensation is to come in a general average, that is to say, the dealer who loses one sale here will be enabled to hold another there. It is perhaps the less far-sighted of the trade who have complained the most of the losses of trade which they consider they have sustained through the operation of the system. But there is another feature of the question which is more irritating, for which no satisfactory solution has yet been found.

Some of the country dealers who have not actually become members of the Association, and are in the habit of supporting the rules only so far as they tell directly to their own interest, compete directly with the larger centres by offering better terms than even the twenty per cent limit. These men are not the most important in the trade, and the evil is not so great as many are disposed to fancy it; but it is in human nature that one small sale which is seen to be lost by such competition as this, is more prominent in the mind than a dozen sales which have been more profitable to the bookseller because of the working of the reform. This is one of the most important factors in the feeling which is growing so strong in the trade, that the present movement for reform must be supplemented and completed by one for the reduction of discounts, and consequently of retail prices. That this feeling is getting to be very strong, no one who has taken occasion to test the sense of the trade on this subject can deny.

It has been seen, as was indeed pointed out at the commencement of the reform, that certain lines of books have been put at fictitious prices, because of the necessity of making the discounts larger and larger, according to the unfortunate trade system in vogue. This is not to be remedied by any extension of the limit of twenty per cent, because that is but opening the door to all the old evils from which the trade has suffered long enough. It may be remedied, it seems to us, both practically and logically, by a reduction of retail prices which shall make the trade discount less than it is now, so that the dealer will have less inclination and opportunity to throw a good part of his discount away. That is the fair and square way of solving the problem, and we see no other which will be permanently satisfactory.

It must not be forgotten, of course, as we have many times shown, that such a reduction can not apply alike to all classes and catalogues of books, and indeed many books are no higher now than they should be. A leading publisher recently made a calculation of the cost of a specific book (bound in sheep) in 1865 and in 1875, and the present cost proved to be on that particular book two cents greater than the cost ten years ago. This will show that the public clamor for the reduction of prices is only partially well founded. There must be careful and wise discrimination when any such reduction is put in operation.

It should also be remembered that a reduction of prices must be of such a sort and so managed as to work least harm to the trade as regards the stocks the jobbers and retailers have on hand. The jobbers certainly have had no extravagant margin for the last few years, and a reduction which should seriously affect the value of the goods they have in store would work no little injustice. Nor does it seem to us that the publishers' wholesale prices are, as a rule, too high, considering the many elements of risk and the like which enter into the cost of the book, entirely apart from that of manufacture. The wholesale prices of books are not, as a rule, capable of great reduction. But the system of reducing prices of which we speak affects neither the publisher nor the jobber to any great extent. In reducing the advertised retail price and the general discount to the trade correspondingly, any difference, aside from the incidental discrepancy in arranging the prices of particular books, will be felt chiefly in the nominal value of the retailer's stock; and we have tried to show that the real or virtual value of his stock would not be less under a general reduction. For where he is now obliged to make a discount of twenty per cent, there would then be hope of enforcing the retail price rule without exceptions to privileged classes, and the competition of the bazaars and other undersellers, which now constantly reduce the value of his stock, would then be checked to a great degree.

But the retailers should not be put at the disadvantage of any sudden change without sufficient notice to enable them to work off this stock on which changes are to be made, as far as possible. We have heard complaints from the jobbing and retail element that the recent reductions on certain lines of books wrought considerable injustice in that way, and we have been desired to call attention to this phase of the question. It seems only fair that there should be some confidential communication with the trade on the subject, before the reduction of prices is actually made, and we throw out this hint for publishers to take as they will.

The chief difficulty in the way of a reduction on individual lines or by individual firms, without general consent and co-operation, is the unwillingness of the trade to buy lines on which the discounts are less than they have of late years been accustomed to. This is to be remedied by a full discussion of the question at issue, and the consequent education of the trade to the common-sense belief that a real though small discount on a small price is better than any nominal discount on a large price. There must be some solution to the present difficulties as to prices, and it can come most rapidly in this way. In a corresponding state of the trade, a generation ago, the result was reached by abolishing retail prices and printing the lists with net prices. (Still earlier in the history of the American trade both were published side by side). But either this, or an extension of the twenty per cent limit, seems less wise than the establishment of a just system of retail prices on the basis we have set forth. So long as discounts are extravagant, so long certain lines will be offered at the dollar stores, and otherwise undersold, and the stock on the regular dealer's shelves suffer deterioration. If discounts were smaller, the opportunities of the bazaar-stores and of the trade underseller would be most fortunately curtailed, and the temptation to the honest dealer to cut rates lessened.

But in saying this we wish to emphasize again the fact that, notwithstanding the imperfections we have pointed out, the retail price rule with its flexible twenty per cent limit has done real good to the trade, even in bad times. Many dealers see plainly that the compensations to them have far outweighed any disadvantages to which they have been put by rivals who take advantage of the reform by keeping outside of it; and either to extend the discount, or in any way to go back on the reform, would be simply to re-introduce old evils which have been at least partly remedied. It is better to have an arrangement which works partially ill, than to have no arrangement, and thus let every body work the most ill he can to his neighbor.

THE following extract from the letter of a college professor and librarian is of interest in connection with the present question of the reduction of retail prices: "The trade is partly right and partly wrong in the matter. They are themselves—the publishers—to blame for the wretched condition into which the bookselling business had fallen. They gave the private individual better terms than the retail bookseller could get, no matter in what quantity he bought. And accordingly they advanced the retail prices of their books to fictitious figures. Now they 'bind themselves by an oath' to freeze these inflated prices, and reap the benefit of their own previous wrong.

"The rule you transmitted to us would be worth something if only it defined large buyers. As it does not, it seems to me to be of small account. Every dealer can construe it as he pleases. A boy in college here can, perhaps, get better terms for the few volumes he buys for his fellow-students than the library can. He becomes a bookseller forsooth by ordering ten to twenty dollars' worth at a time, and the bona fide bookseller loses his trade with students, or a part of it, by the operation of the rule, which is supposed to have been made for his protection." There is a great deal of suggestive common-sense in this letter, although it is mistaken in some points, particularly as to the supposed desire of the trade to freeze to retail prices. The recent reductions in the lines of "standard" poets, etc., set on foot by the Lippincotts, and in Macaulay, etc., started by the Harpers, which have called forth similar reductions on competing editions, are, indirectly at least, and in great measure directly, the result of the present movement, and these are but the forerunners of a more general reduction which will come the quicker as the present features of the movement are made more general in their workings.

It will be noticed that there are many books offered in the remainder sale which is to follow the Fair, which do not properly come within the scope of the sale at all. We had expressed some fear at the inauguration of this feature of the Fair, lest the old trade-sale abuse should creep into it, and unless we are greatly mistaken, there is evidence that our fears were not ill-placed. It is not possible to offer goods at auction and to attempt, at the same time, to hold retail prices on them, and only those books should be offered which are going out of the market or out of the publisher's hands. We don't speak, of course, of such a clearance sale as that just forced upon Mr. Widdleton by Mr. Gill's capture of Poe, but of several lots offered which, we can have no doubt, the publisher intends to print again, and to keep in the market. It is not only unwise to offer such books, but it is in direct contravention of the rules of the Association Committee, whose attention we beg leave to call to this important matter. It will be quite impossible to ride two horses by having a book fair and a trade sale, and if we are not greatly mistaken, the trade wants no more trade sales. We would not be understood as taking exception to remainder sales proper, which seem to us a desirable and necessary feature.

THE Centennial Catalogue Company of Philadelphia, who have purchased from the Exhibition authorities the right to sell and distribute the official catalogues, construe this right to give them the control of the sale and distribution of any catalogues whatever on the grounds—a construction which is supported by the decision of the Director-General. They propose to permit other catalogues only on the payment of a license or royalty. Whether they will take this position in regard to the catalogues of the foreign book-trade associations, already prepared, and the lists of individual publishers, we have not yet been able to learn. We have, however, communicated with them directly on the subject, and trust to be able to inform the trade of their decision as to individual catalogues, in our next issue. It is a question which is, of course, of considerable interest to exhibiting publishers. As the Company has purchased its right for a very large sum, it is of course justified in making the most of it, although it has not seemed to us wise that the Centennial authorities should have originally permitted any outside speculation that should have such results.

We desire to have it understood by the trade that we shall hereafter make it a general practice, in the case of correspondence directed to the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY concerning detailed matters of arbitration, especially complaints against individuals, to refer them directly to the proper arbitration committee. There has been slight injustice done, we fear more than once, by printing a letter of complaint before the party called in question had opportunity to make reply; and printing his answer a week later and in a number which may not be so carefully read by those who have noted the charge, is not always sufficient reparation. We shall therefore take more pains to confine the correspondence which we print, to those letters which are sufficiently general in character to come rather before the court of public opinion than before the tribunal of the Arbitration Committee. Correspondents will do well to bear this in mind, and to send letters of the kind we speak of directly to the Arbitration Committee.

AN abuse is creeping more and more into the trade, to which we wish to call attention now, before it gets any worse. This is the issuing of old books under new titles, which are, we fear, sometimes designed to conceal the fact that the book is not new. In other cases titles are changed from those of the English works reprinted, or from the original caption of the work, so as to make them more popularly attractive to the book-buying public. We have had complaint after complaint upon this subject, and we can not but think it should be discarded by those houses in the trade who have harbored the custom. We wish also that the American trade might be got into the habit of making a proper distinction between re-issues and new editions; but perhaps this is too much to hope. Yet if this can not be bettered, let us at least have honesty in the matter of titles.

THE PRIZE QUESTION IN POLITICAL ECONOMY.

THE Prize Question (No. 3) in Political Economy has called forth more lists than any previous question. This is partly to be explained, we have no doubt, by the fresh interest awakened in the subject by the present political situation and the fact that the Presidential election, occurring this year, promises to turn on the questions associated with this class of subject. In accordance with this interest, we have gotten up the order-list on finance and political economy given in our advertising pages last week, and which is to be repeated fortnightly in alternation with the Centennial page. We trust booksellers will not fail to make use of this. There are other indications of the general interest, and we have just at hand a neat catalogue of works on these subjects, from Robert Clarke & Co., of Cincinnati.

In political economy 30 lists have been submitted. It is an extraordinary coincidence that the list of the successful competitor, who is an old friend of our readers—Mr. H. W. Hagemann, with D. Appleton & Co.—gets the highest possible number, 194, since it is identical in its titles, though not in their arrangement, with the list by popular vote. We therefore award him a double prize, of $10. The following is the list:

PRIZE LIST (No. 3) IN POLITICAL ECONOMY.

The following gives the lower counts:

3. Bascom's, List's, and Say's Works on Political Economy.
2. Bagehot's Lombard Street; Bastiat's Sophisms and Protection; Butts' Protection and Free Trade; Cairnes' Essays on Political Economy; Fawcett's Essays and Lectures on Political and Social Subjects.

The second list is that of Mr. J. B. Fredricks, also with D. Appleton & Co., whose number is 186. His list is identical in its entries with that of Mr. Hagemann, with the exception of one book; he lost the prize by citing Carey's Political Science, counting but 4, in place of Jevons' Political Economy, counting 11. That both should be of the same house is a curious coincidence, and a practical compliment to the establishment, since it is to be presumed, of course, that they worked independently of each other. The third list is that of Mr. Jas. S. Wynkoop, of R. G. Wynkoop & Co., Syracuse, counting 181. His list is also identical with Mr. Hagemann's, except that it replaces Walker's "Science of Wealth," counting 17, with List's "National System," counting 3. The highest count after this is 179; the lowest count 102.

Several books were cited which did not properly come within the specific subject. These were, aside from single citations, Nordhoff's Politics for Young Americans, 12; Townsend's Civil Government, 4; Lieber's Civil Liberty, 3; Lieber's Political Ethics, 2—which come rather within the department of Political or Governmental Science, which, as well as Finance proper, will form the subject of a future question. These were not involved in any of the higher lists, so that the results would not have been altered; but they might have been, and we point out the facts to warn future contestants to confine themselves carefully to the specific subject in hand.

PRIZE QUESTION No. 5.

Which are the most salable works on the Revolutionary Period?

Give twelve titles in the following order, as usual: Author, title proper, size, price, publisher.

Give only special works and treatises (historical, biographical, political, and social) confined to the American Revolution. General History of the United States is to form the subject of a special prize question.

Rule for competitors, No. 11, has been changed as follows:

11. The result of the answers will be published three weeks [instead of four as heretofore] from publication of the question. Lists must be received within two weeks after publication of Prize Question.

For the other rules see previous issues of the WEEKLY.

THE SPRING SEASON.

We add to our four pages of reading matter, in the last issue, giving the news of the spring season, some items of interest since received.

George W. Carleton & Co. will add to their list during the spring Joaquin Miller's other new novel, "One Fair Woman," and a novel by a new writer, Grace Mortimer, somewhat in the style of Miss Fleming's novels, and called "The Two Barbaras." They will publish also

Dr. A. K. Gardner's book on the management and care of "Our Children."

One of the most interesting announcements yet made is to be added to the Carter's list, a new book from the author of "Ministering Children," called "Oliver of the Mill." It will be printed from advance sheets by direct arrangement with the author.

The Congregational Publishing Society of Boston has also in press for early publication "A Bouquet from the Missionary Garden" (Harpoet), by Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Wheeler; "The Arabs and their Prophets," by Rev. Edson L. Clark, a book of some 400 pages; and a monograph by Rev. Dr. Dexter, "As to Roger Williams, and his 'banishment' from the Massachusetts Plantation; with a few further words concerning the Baptists, the Quakers, and Religious Liberty." Dr. Dexter's motto is "Strike but hear," which must be understood as meaning that he has heard what he regards as nonsense, and he proposes to strike. He is editor of The Congregationalist, and an authority on New-England ecclesiastical history.

J. B. Ford & Co. will put forth during the spring, besides several subscription volumes not yet ready for announcement, "The Forest and Stream Rifleman's Guide," so called in recognition of the interest that journal has taken in rifle-shooting. This will be a handbook of instructions as to the organization and incorporation of Rifle Associations, with practical hints to their members and to marksmen generally; containing forms for by-laws, rules and regulations for practice and competitive matches, detailed directions for construction of ranges, targets, and all accessories, forms for score tickets, and pretty much whatever would be useful to the thousands taking interest in rifle-shooting. All over the land associations for it are springing up on every side. The book will be illustrated with diagrams, etc.

E. J. Hale & Son inform us that the new novel by the author of the "Odd Trump," etc., bears the title of "Flesh and Spirit."

Lee & Shepard, in addition to the works noted in our last issue, will publish during the spring a new edition, for the trade, of Mr. S. W. Cozzens' work on Arizona, under the title of "The Marvellous Country," and two new volumes of miscellany for children, edited by Oliver Optic, called "Our Boys and Girls' Souvenir," and "Our Boys' and Girls' Offering." They group the Rev. P. C. Headley's works together under the title of "Headley's Historical Library," in six volumes, at $1.50 each; and Col. Higginson's complete works, in six volumes, find a home in their catalogue instead of on Messrs. Osgood's.

Sheldon & Co. have in press a little but important work on prayer, of especial present interest, by Rev. Dr. P. H. Mell, Professor of Ethics and Metaphysics in the University of Georgia. Miss Annie T. Howells' novel of "Reuben Dale," now running in the Galaxy, will be published also next month. A revised and smaller edition of "The Service of Song," with 700 of the most popular and stirring songs, including the Moody and Sankey hymns, is in preparation in small 4to at $1.25. Messrs. Sheldon & Co. paid a considerable sum for the privilege of including these hymns, and the publishers now say they would ask three times the money.

MY MEMORIES OF THE BOOK TRADE.

"Things I myself have seen, and a great part of which I was."—Virgil.

By D. B. COOKE.

II.

IN the early days to which I refer, of course our sales were limited, as our customers were only small dealers. We sold bills to the amount of a few hundreds of dollars, and made fair profits, while now thousands of volumes are sold and the margins of profit are small. Then it consumed months to manufacture a book by the slow processes at command; now a hundred new books are issued every month by the leading American publishers.

The present race of book clerks are not as thorough as were their fathers in the trade; they do not seem as eager to learn, and their duties are less onerous than were those of the clerks of the olden time, whose hours of labor were longer and more systematic. They have many advantages which we had not. Then we had but few helps to study, we depended more upon our memories; now the country is flooded with costly catalogues and "trade annuals," which greatly facilitate (if studied) the learning of the business. The reading regularly of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY will do more to post a young man in the current books than all the means that were formerly at our command.

The subsequent history of the house of Derby, Bradley & Co., afterwards changed to H. W. Derby & Co., was marked by brilliant and uniform success, except that in November, 1849, the establishment was completely consumed by fire.

Mr. Derby will be remembered by his contemporaries as one of the most active and enterprising of publishers and business men, and many costly buildings which adorn the city of Cincinnati and bear his name, testify to his taste and liberality.

During the month of June, 1848, Mr. John C. Barnes, now of A. S. Barnes & Co., N. Y., became connected with the house and added greatly to its reputation. Mr. Barnes returned to New-York in July, 1851.

In the same year Fletcher Harper, Jr., became a member of the firm, and subsequently Benjamin Homans was admitted as partner. Mr. Homans possessed abilities as an accountant rarely to be met with, and as a genial and kind-hearted man he is a model. He has been identified for many years with that valuable publication, an ever welcome visitor to every bank and counting-room in the land, "The Banker's Almanac," published at No. 251 Broadway, New-York.

After various changes, more or less important, the firm of H. W. Derby & Co. was dissolved in 1860, C. F. Bradley taking the stationery department. The miscellaneous stock passed into the hands of Rickey, Mallorey & Webb. Subsequently Mr. Derby sold out his law book interests, which he had retained in connection with the agency of Harper & Bros., to Robert Clarke & Co., who have ever since carried on the business, their elegant establishment and extensive trade being an ornament and a great credit to the city in which it is located.

Mr. Robert Clarke's first introduction to the trade in Cincinnati occurred June 7th, 1854, at which time he bought out T. Lyon, of Lyon &

Patterson, which firm afterwards became Patterson & Clarke, and carried on business in Bacon's Building, corner of Sixth and Walnut streets. In June, 1857, Mr. Clarke bought out Patterson and went it alone until August 5th, 1858, when, in connection with R. D. Barney and J. W. Dale, he bought out Mr. Derby, and has carried on the business at No. 55, and subsequently No. 65, West Fourth street, ever since.

In the year 1852 Chicago had just begun to attract the attention of capitalists and business men in all parts of the United States. The fabulous accounts of its sudden and marvellous growth were constantly brought to our notice. Leaving Cincinnati for a summer tour around the lakes with my old friend George H. Derby, who had established himself in the city of Buffalo, I went to Chicago for the first time; and after carefully looking over the ground and studying the geographical position, I determined on locating myself in the "Garden City," which then seemed any thing but a garden, with its streets almost impassable from the great depth of mud, and its unsightly rows of wooden shanties. Closing my connection with my old employer, with whom I had been so long associated, bidding adieu to my friends in Cincinnati, and bearing letters from Judge James Hall, Hon. Bellamy Storer, and others, to its leading business men, I started for Chicago. A run over the strap rails of the Little Miami and the Mad River and Lake Erie Roads via Sandusky, thence by lake steamer—a delightful journey occupying several days—brought me to our newly found home.

Here were established, at that period, several booksellers carrying ample stocks for the simple wants of the then thinly settled country tributary to Chicago, which was reached by huge wagons termed "Prairie Schooners."

The booksellers, all located on Lake street, were J. Keen, Jr. & Bro., S. C. Griggs & Co.'s "Literary Emporium of the Prairies," A. H. & C. Burley, W. W. Dannenhower, and Hewson & Denison. Previous to this date the dealers in Chicago were Stephen F. Gale & Co., who were in the year 1844 located at No. 106 Lake street; Brodegaw & Keen; W. W. Barlow & Co., who were in the year 1844 at No. 147 Lake street; and Griggs & Bross—the last-named firm being a branch of Mark H. Newman's New-York house, and composed of S. C. Griggs and Wm. Bross ("Deacon Bross"), now one of the fortunate proprietors of the Chicago Tribune.

Opening a complete stock of school, miscellaneous, law, and medical books and stationery under the firm name of D. B. Cooke & Co. in High & Magie's Building, No. 135 Lake street, I soon found myself fully employed in supplying the demand from the surrounding country, which was being rapidly opened up by the constantly multiplying railroads. Our quarters here proving too limited to accommodate our business, we removed in 1856 to the elegant store erected by Edward and Walter Wright, No. 112 Lake street, where, in October, 1857, our establishment was destroyed by fire, rendering us homeless. It gives me pleasure to refer to two of the most intelligent and gentlemanly attachés of our house, who were always watchful for the best interests of the business—namely, Mr. Eugene B. Myers, who came to us from Troy, N. Y., in 1854, and is now the extensive law-book publisher of this city—and Mr. Wm.

J. Gilbert, who entered our employ on Thanksgiving Day, 1854, and who has been for the past ten years conducting a highly successful law-book business at St. Louis.

After the burning of our house the writer was connected with the firm of S. C. Griggs & Co., at 39 and 41 Lake street, whose magnificent stock of books was destroyed in the great conflagration of January, 1868. Retiring from this firm, noted in its day for its extensive trade in elegant and costly editions, the writer became a member of the present firm of W. B. Keen, Cooke & Co.

In the general conflagration on the 9th of October, 1871, the establishment of W. B. Keen, Cooke & Co., was totally destroyed, but our trade was immediately resumed in a temporary building erected on the lake shore, where we remained until our present commodious store, on the old site, was built and made ready for our occupancy.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A USEFUL BOOKSELLER'S TOOL.

March 9, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

I desire to call the attention of the trade to the usefulness of Allibone's "Dictionary of Authors" as a bookseller's tool. I have within my reach all the American catalogues issued since 1820, and the English from 1814 to date, but I would part with them all rather than dispense with "Allibone."

Perhaps the question may be asked, why is this book so valuable? Let me illustrate: A few weeks since a customer wrote for information in regard to the works of the following authors: Charles Blount, John Mill, Matthew Tindal, Anthony Collins, Woolston, Thomas Morgan, and Thomas Chubb, all Deistical writers. If I had consulted the catalogues I would have been obliged to refer to upwards of a dozen and then would not have been any wiser than before, as the books were published during the last century and are not to be found in any of these catalogues. I referred to "Allibone" and found them all, also a list of their writings. The prices of the volumes were not given, neither would the catalogues have quoted them correctly, as it would be impossible to give the constant market value of such works; the books being out of print are of such a nature that they must first be found before their value can be ascertained.

Again: A customer reads a book by an author with whose style he is much pleased; the inquiry arises, has he written any thing else, and if so, what? This information can be readily found in Allibone.

I might give many more illustrations, but think I have said enough to call the attention of the trade to the value of this work. Some one has said, "No intelligent bookseller who understands his business can do without it." I think that no bookseller can be intelligent enough for his business who does not use it.

The cost of the book may be offered as an objection to its purchase, but the information it imparts is infinitely of more value than the price asked, so that instead of not being able to afford this expense, one can not afford to save the amount and thus deprive himself of a most valuable aid in his occupation. *

BOOKS RECEIVED.

DIANA CAREW, by Mrs. Forrester. (J. B. Lippincott & Co.) Diana Carew, the pretty heroine of this charming novel, tells her own story; it is rich in incidents and romance, culminating in what might be called a tragedy; still it is not a sad story, being full of the brightness of youth, and hope, and love, which finds its "earthly close." The characters are mostly taken from fashionable English life, and are very well delineated, and the plot is quite original. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

THE SQUIRE'S LEGACY, by Mary Cecil Hay. (Harper & Bros.) Miss Hay improves with every story she writes. This is as much superior to "Victor and Vanquished" as that novel was to "Old Myddelton's Money." Its scenes and characters are taken from high life, as is the case with so many English novels, but it is bright and fresh, and new in construction and detail. 8vo, paper, 75 cents.

SEA AND SHORE, by Mrs. Catharine A. Warfield. (T. B. Peterson & Bros.) The story of Miriam Hardy, which ran through "Monfort Hall" and "Miriam's Memoirs," is brought to a conclusion in a very satisfactory way in this volume. Miriam goes through a number of thrilling adventures, such as being rescued from a burning vessel in mid-ocean and suffering incredible hardships afterwards upon a raft, where she and others take refuge, and live for a long time. She reaches land at last, and is then shut up in an asylum as a lunatic. However, all her sufferings come to an end, and she is crowned with happiness, and her enemies' wicked plans frustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

THE BLACK HILLS, by Richard Irving Dodge. (James Miller.) Lieut.-Colonel Dodge, of the United States Army, accompanied an exploring party sent out by the Government in 1875 to make a thorough survey of the "Black Hills," and report as to the amount of gold really to be found there. This little volume is a history of the expedition, its results scientifically, its adventures—with a description of the country, the nature of its soil, its scenery, etc., etc. It is very graphically written, and may be accepted as reliable and authentic in its statements. Illustrated with maps and photographs. 12mo, cloth, $2.

THE ANNUAL SUMMARIES FOR A QUARTER OF A CENTURY. (A. Brentano.) It has been the habit of the London Times, during the past twenty-five years, to give its readers at the close of the year a summary of the year's news, as recorded in its own voluminous columns. Gathered together as they are in this volume, they stand as a most important historical record of the events of all nations since 1851. 24mo, paper, 60 cents.

A MANUAL ON THE CULTURE OF SMALL FRUITS, by E. P. Roe. (Journal Printing Establishment.) The text from which Mr. Roe starts is, that "the unfortunate people who buy their fruit do not know what a strawberry is." To teach them how to raise their own strawberries, raspberries, currants, blackberries, etc., after but a little study, and on the smallest plot of ground, is the aim of his pamphlet. It also instructs as to the best way of packing and marketing fruits. 8vo, paper, 50 cents.

MAUD MANSFIELD, by Mrs. Frances Hamilton Hood. (J. W. Burke & Co.) This novel, written by a Southern lady, well known in society for her fine literary tastes and graceful conversational powers, takes for its scene of action the South just at the beginning of the war. It contains some very striking character sketches, and displays considerable talent on the part of the writer. 12mo, cloth, $1.50; paper, $1.

THE SCARLET LETTER; a play in five acts, dramatized from Hawthorne's novel, by Elizabeth Weller. (A. Brentano.) All the best scenes in Hawthorne's story are brought out in fine relief in this drama. It is finely written in blank verse, and in most poetical language, noticeably suited to the theme. We doubt if it would make a good acting play, though it is most attractive reading, bearing every evidence of the dramatist's refinement and culture. Sq. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

FLORAL DECORATIONS FOR THE DWELLING-HOUSE, by Annie Hassard. (Macmillan & Co.) Ladies and amateurs in house flower-gardening will find a most charming volume in this publication. It seems to tell all that can be told on the subject, and is rich in new ideas on floral decorations for the drawing-room or dining-room. The book met with a great success in England, where it was first published. It has been slightly remodelled for American readers, and some new matter added of special interest in connection with our own plants. It is richly embellished with many illustrations of plants and flowers, making it quite an attractive work for general readers. The binding is quite rich and very pretty. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

LEGAL RECREATIONS, VOL. I. HUMOROUS PHASES OF THE LAW, by Irving Browne. (Sumner Whitney & Co.) "Legal Recreations" is the title under which a new series of amusing and entertaining books to be published by the above firm is to be known. This, the first volume, is devoted to a humorous exposition of different phases of the law; the cases cited are all real, and display evidence of considerable research having been expended in their preparation; they will, however, afford a great deal of entertainment even to the unprofessional reader. We can speak in high praise of the very neat and elegant manner in which the volume is gotten up; paper, print, and binding are all that could be desired. 16mo, cloth, $1.50.

IDA GOLDWIN, by Aleck Derby. (Robert M. De Witt.) A most remarkable and exciting story of New-York life, by an author whose name is unknown to us. The lovers of the intense will find in it reading of the most thrilling description. 12mo, paper, 75 cents.

LITTLE JACK'S FOUR LESSONS, and CHRISTIE'S OLD ORGAN. (Robert Carter & Brothers) Two little stories for young children, written as much to instruct as amuse, having through both of them a strong vein of religious teaching. 16mo, cloth, 50 cents each.

THE BANKERS' ALMANAC AND REGISTER FOR 1876, edited by B. Homans, Jr. (J. S. Homans.) This important publication appears this year with its numerous lists of National, State, and Private Banks, Savings Banks, Trust Companies, and Safe Deposit Companies in the United States, with names of President and Cashier and capital of each, reported in full, and corrected up to date. Under each month there is a list of chronological notes showing the dates of important events affecting the financial and commercial world, from the year 1775. Besides, there are a number of other tables of monetary statistics, with the usual amount of valuable information given by this publication—an invaluable one, we should judge, to bankers. 8vo, cloth, $3.

THE BAD HABITS OF GOOD SOCIETY, by Geo. A. Baker, Jr. (F. B. Patterson.) The witty, satirical vein pervading Mr. Baker's pointed society sketches will make many persons read them who would otherwise miss some very excellent moralizing on the evils of fashionable life, we sadly need taking to task for. The little book should meet with general favor, being unusually bright and original. The design on the binding is very pretty and appropriate. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

A POCKET CONCORDANCE TO THE HOLY SCRIPTURES. (American Tract Society.) A concordance for popular use has long been wanted; this little volume aims to fill the void. It is in a sense complete, having one word at least from every verse of the Bible. Care has been taken also to select the word most likely to be sought for, thus rendering the little volume a most excellent work of reference in a small compass. 12mo, cloth, 75 cents.

HEBREW HEROES, by A. L. O. E. (Robert Carter & Brothers.) A continuous story is here constructed out of the exploits of some of the prominent characters in the Old Testament. The time selected is from the rising against Syrian tyranny at Modin, to the restoration of the temple. The writer has deviated but a trifle from history, at the same time offering a book rich in human interest. 16mo, cloth, 75 cents.

EASTER LILIES. (A. D. F. Randolph & Co.) These pretty little leaflets, with their novel binding of white ribbon, contain a number of religious poems from the German and from some of our best English writers, especially adapted for Easter reading. Miss Anna Warner, Horatius Bonar, Rev. N. R. Thompson, Rev. Henry Alfred, and Mrs. Elizabeth Charles are among the contributors. This little publication will make a charming Easter offering, as it is gotten up in the most dainty and tasteful manner, having pretty white board covers with an appropriate design in gold, red, and black. The pages are simply fastened at the back by a white satin ribbon, instead of the regular style of binding. 12mo, 75 cents.

HINTS ON BIBLE MARKING, by Mrs. Stephen Menzies; prefatory note by D. L. Moody. (A. D. F. Randolph & Co.) We will not endeavor to epitomize Mr. Moody's plan of Bible marking, but leave the reader to seek it himself; the matter in the little book is so brief, that any extended note of it would almost exhaust its contents. We can say the plan suggested is an excellent one, and the specimen Bible pages inserted with the markings upon them very helpful. 15 cents.

THE TWO PRODIGALS, by the Rev. Marvin R. Vincent, D.D. (A. D. F. Randolph & Co.) We all know the story of the man who had two sons, and of the going away and the joyful return of the younger one, the "prodigal" of the Scriptures. The point Rev. Mr. Vincent makes in this little essay is in bringing out by careful analysis the character of the "eldest son," who has generally been overlooked by commentators. The moral points especially to the self-righteous. 20 cents.

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE SICK-ROOM, compiled by an American woman. (A. D. F. Randolph & Co.) This compilation contains the best suggestions of the various books published on nursing the sick, and also some original matter drawn from the writer's own experience. It will be found extremely useful, both to professional and unprofessional nurses, the matter being concisely arranged and clearly set forth. 12mo, flexible covers, 60 cents.

WELLS OF BACA, by the Rev. J. R. Macduff. (Robert Carter & Brothers.) A tiny book in blank verse, designed to bring comfort and consolation to afflicted and sorrowing hearts. Oblong 32mo, cloth, 50 cents.

MOODY AND SANKEY: AN AUTHENTIC ACCOUNT OF THEIR LIVES AND SERVICES, by Frank S. Reader. (E. J. Hale & Son.) As Mr. Reader was for many years the intimate personal friend and companion of Hon. David Sankey, the father of the singing evangelist, he seems especially fitted to write his life. His knowledge of Mr. Moody's career is also more complete than that of any other of his biographers. The volume may therefore be accepted as one of the best biographies of the evangelists published. With portraits. 12mo, cloth, $1; paper, 50 cents.

LIBRARY AND BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTES.

THE sale of the valuable library of the late Samuel G. Drake, A.M., commences on Tuesday, May 2d, at the salesroom of Leonard & Co., 50 Bromfield street, Boston. The sale will be positive. We can not but regret that this superb collection of Americana is to be dispersed, but since this is to be the case, we can only recommend public libraries and private collectors to make the best of their chance. The sale, as is usual in Boston, will occupy the full days, morning and afternoon. The catalogue of Part First, numbering 5400 lots, through the letter K, is at hand, and is prefaced with an interesting paper on Mr. Drake, his life-work and his library, by his son, the well-known author, Samuel Adams Drake, and with an interesting steel portrait of the former. The catalogue is arranged alphabetically, except in the special collections of pamphlets, as biographies, genealogies, poetry, Indian and local history, etc., where the subjects are grouped. The catalogue is mainly Mr. Drake's own. Part Second will be issued later, and the sale on this will commence June 6th. The manuscripts, autographs, and portraits, and the collection of about 15,000 pamphlets, will be included in a third catalogue for a still later sale.

Two eminent Russian bibliographers have recently died. Pavel Mikhailovich Stroëf, who was eighty years old, was sent in 1829, together with Berednikof, to explore the various libraries of the empire. The documents which he and his colleague collected, amounting to some three thousand, formed the nucleus of that grand collection of documents which the Russian Archæological Commission, of which Stroëf was an active member, began to publish in 1831, and is still publishing. Among his most useful works are the Index to the first eight volumes of the "Collection of Chronicles," published by that Commission, the "Ukazatel" or Key (in two volumes) to Karamzin's "History of Russia," and the full and extremely valuable Catalogues of the Slavonic MSS. and early-printed books in the library of Count Tolstoy, etc. (1825-43). The other Russian bibliophile was Count (formerly Baron) Modest Andreëvich Korf, the Panizzi of the Russian Imperial Library, to the development of which he gave an immense impulse, awakening it from its lethargy, and making it rival in activity, and in some respects surpass, the public libraries of Western Europe. Under his auspices was commenced the vast collection of Russica, comprising all the foreign books about Russia, and the admirable catalogue of its contents, the publication of which was finished in 1873. He was also the author of two works, and it is said that he has left behind him a number of MSS., including a "Life of the Emperor Nicholas."

THE ANNUALS.

It would be hard to say what the book trade would have done but for the efforts of Mr. Leypoldt, the editor of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, in the way of obtaining a comprehensive catalogue of current literature. Certain large firms, at much personal expense and trouble to themselves, managed, to be sure, to contrive a clumsy, ill-assorted scrap-book of a catalogue, in which publishers' circulars, price-lists, and catalogues were arranged with a semblance of order mostly delusive; but the smaller members of the guild had not even that makeshift till it entered into the mind of Mr. Leypoldt to induce the various publishers to issue their catalogues of a uniform size, and at the same time of the year, and to send them to him to be bound, to be indexed, and to be distributed to the trade for the mere cost of binding. This plan has been carried into execution for several years with constantly-increasing success, and was followed in England by Whitaker two years ago. It has largely stimulated trade, and has enabled even the country bookseller to "study a catalogue," one of the things essential to the perfect development of a bibliophile and a bookseller. The two volumes, the English and American catalogues, do not pretend to be complete catalogues, but for their comprehensiveness and practical usefulness and cheapness, they show how a keen thought can devise a makeshift till a more artistic and elaborate structure, a complete American catalogue, can be constructed—a work that Mr. Leypoldt has in hand, and which no one is more competent to perform.—Louisville Courier-Journal, March 5th, 1876.

AMERICAN.—This is a book of special interest and value to the book trade, and necessary to libraries as an index to the publishing activity of the years as they roll, and the press in its hum and clatter to keep pace with the intellectual development of the age in which we live. A great deal of the new book printing done now does not represent new thought, but its mass shows the gigantic effort of modern enlightenment to leave its impress on the age. An annual like the present records the full scope of the movement to supply the world with books.—Republican, St. Louis, March 5, 1876.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

GOOD wine, they say, needs no bush, and certainly the Atlantic did not need the fine portrait of Longfellow which it has been giving to its subscribers to gain their good graces. But it has certainly pleased them, and well it may, as it is perhaps the finest lithographic portrait ever made in America. It is a high credit to the new department of the Riverside Press.

JULES VERNE's new story, "Michael Strogoff, the Courier of the Czar," is begun in the March number of London Society. It will be published here in book form by Scribner, Armstrong & Co.

Treasure Trove is the name of a new magazine published by R. B. Caverly, New-York. The first number which we have received contains a miscellaneous collection of papers and stories. The magazine will be devoted chiefly to entertaining reading matter. $3 a year.

OBITUARY.

GEORGE H. REAY.

It is our sad duty to notice the decease of Mr. George H. Reay, which occurred on March 14th, after a short illness, in the thirty-ninth year of his age. Mr. Reay came to this country from England in 1854, when a boy sixteen years of age, and engaged with Messrs. Berlin & Jones in the manufacture of envelopes at two dollars per week. While engaged with the above firm he displayed a great mechanical genius in repairing an envelope machine, which was then run by hand. After remaining a few years with the above firm, he engaged with Bryon, paper dealers, as porter, but soon left them, and went with J. Negbaur, in Vandewater street, in the manufacture of envelopes, where he remained until they were burned out about the year 1858. Mr. Reay then bought the machinery that was in the fire, and by putting it together managed to get a complete envelope machine, which he sold to J. Q. Preble for 5000 dollars. He then started the envelope business, under the firm of Bennett & Reay, which was soon succeeded by Reay & Negbaur, which after a few years was bought by Geo. H. Reay, and carried on in Spruce street, near the Tribune building. Fortune seemed to favor Mr. Reay, who was a genial, large-hearted gentleman, and his place becoming too small, he removed to his present store, 77 John street, where he has carried on the envelope business very extensively, furnishing the Government contracts for stamped envelopes. Mr. Reay was widely known and esteemed throughout the United States as a generous and energetic gentleman, and the envelope trade is largely indebted to him for improvements made in machinery for the manufacture of envelopes.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. S. R. CROCKER, of the Literary World, who is one of the hardest workers in the trade, is busy upon the elaborate index for the new edition of Bancroft's History, which will occupy about a hundred pages. This kind of work is not very satisfactory literature to the author, and therefore the reader should be all the more grateful.

WE learn that Mr. C. E. Hopkins has declined a partnership in a leading New-England book and stationery concern, and will continue his engagement with his present house, the Powers Paper Co., and will be in New-York to look after their interest during the coming Book-Fair.

REV. E. P. ROE, the novelist, is known to as wide a circle as his readers, as one of the most successful small-fruit culturists in the country. He has just printed an 80-page pamphlet, "A Manual of the Culture of Small Fruits," giving the results of his experience, which is to be had by inclosing 50 cents to him at Cornwall, N. Y.

MR. GEO. M. BAKER, of Lee & Shepard, has written during the past few years no less than a hundred amateur dramas, which have been very popular, both in the collected volumes and separately. In the latter shape he publishes them himself, under the style of Geo. M. Baker & Co., and several have had great runs among amateurs. His latest issue is a little centennial play, "One Hundred Years Ago."

BUSINESS NOTES.

THERE seems to be some misunderstanding as to the title of the Claxton house under the changed arrangements. The old firm name of Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger is adhered to, notwithstanding Mr. Remsen's retirement.

CHARLES DESILVER & SONS, of Philadelphia, have removed from No. 1229 Chestnut street, to the new building of the American Baptist Publication Society, No. 1420 Chestnut street, third floor, rooms No. 17 and 21, where they intend to devote themselves more closely to their own publications, and to supplying academies, schools, etc., with educational works.

S. E. NICHOLS, in his own name, is the successor to Nichols & Allen, Pittsfield, Mass.

WE are glad to learn that the difficulties in the way of Mr. A. F. Graves' settlement with his creditors have been removed, so that he has effected a compromise at fifty per cent. It would have been hard that a man of Mr. Graves' repute should suffer when others, for whom there can be little sympathy, are securing settlements at a third of what he was enabled to pay, and the sympathy generally felt for him is illustrated by the case of one house which returned the new notes with a receipt in full for the old debt.

STATIONERY NOTES.

TRADE seems to be steady, and buyers are inclined to give small orders and duplicate oftener, thereby keeping their stock small but well assorted, instead of buying largely and accumulating goods on their shelves as has been the practice in former years. We think, from all appearances, that trade to-day is in a more healthy condition than it has been for some time past.

THE American Lead-Pencil Co. have just ready for the market their new pencil called the E Pluribus Unum, in cedar wood, handsomely polished in red, white, and blue. This pencil is a medium grade, and can be retailed for five cents. The Centennial Pencils are having a large run, and are put up in round and hexagonal shape.

W. H. BRETT & Co., Boston, have removed to their new and spacious building, No. 165 Devonshire street through to 26 Arch, where, with new and improved machinery and greatly increased facilities, they will continue the manufacture of the finest class of wedding envelopes and fancy stationery, together with a general steel and copper-plate engraving and printing business for the trade, and will be pleased to see their friends and patrons.

MR. CAMERON, of the well-known house of Anderson & Cameron, has gone on a short trip through the West.

WILLIAM G. COLE, of Borum & Pease, is now looking after the city trade, and hopes to build up this too often neglected branch.

CONANT & CAMPBELL have removed to their new and spacious store, Nos. 118 and 120 Duane street, where they will be pleased to see their friends and patrons.

ANDREW DOUGHERTY seems to be doing a good steady trade in playing-cards.

THE Eagle Pencil Co. have just got a patent on a pencil-point protector and rubber eraser. It is a very neat and tasty article, made in the usual barrel shape, nickel-plated; it has more rubber than the ordinary tips, and is always kept clean by an outside barrel which screws up and down, also exposing additional gum as it is worn off by usage. It is very simple, and far superior to any thing of the kind yet in use.

MR. LUCIEN LEVYS, of the firm of Henry Levys & Co., pocket-book manufacturers, will start West in a few days to complete the trip begun by the late Edward Irish.

MR. MARTINEAU, travelling agent for V. E. Mauger through the South and West, has become insane, and is now in the Bloomingdale Asylum. His friends expect to send him to France, where his relatives reside.

THE New-York Consolidated Card Company are nicely located at 123 William street, and are doing a fair share of the playing-card trade. They make some of the finest cards in the market, and enjoy a very extensive Pacific-slope trade.

NOTES ON THE ROAD.

ST. LOUIS.

MESSRS. SHORB & BOLAND will move into their new and elegant store, opposite the Lindell Hotel, in a few weeks. The building to be occupied is five stories high, 150 by 50 feet, fronting on Washington avenue and running through to St. Charles street. The second floor is to be devoted to samples, displayed on long tables. This room is 16 feet high, has 12 large French-plate windows, and is one of the best-lighted and most desirable sample rooms in the country. The stock is to be kept in the two upper floors and basement. The rapidly increasing business of this enterprising firm has compelled them to leave the quarters occupied by them for the past few years, and the change will undoubtedly prove an advantageous one, as the situation is the best in the city. This firm report business remarkably brisk, and their corps of travellers are sending good and frequent orders. Mr. S. has just returned from the East and has purchased a large stock of new, attractive, and desirable goods.

R. & T. A. Ennis have just completed an extensive line of blank-books, of their own superior manufacture, for the Cherokee Indian Nation. Also, printed and bound volumes of the laws, printed in the Cherokee language, the type for which was made expressly for them by an Eastern type foundry. There are 86 different characters or letters used, and this book is the only one of the kind in existence. This house have a large assortment of commercial stationery, a bindery and printing office, and deal largely in school-books. They have a gas-power engine of one and a half horse-power, to run the light machinery.

The St. Louis News Company are enjoying their usual extensive amount of business.

H. R. Hildrith has a fine large store on Olive street filled with an unusual assortment of attractive goods and staples. The extreme neatness of the stock displayed is deserving of special mention.

Scharr Brothers & Saxton have the engraving and wedding trade of the city. Their styles are new and attractive and are eagerly bought by the ladies of St. Louis who desire artistic stationery.

Gray, Baker & Co. are continuing to supply their usual trade with every thing in the book and stationery line.

Business is unusually brisk and encouraging in the city, with indications of the largest trade for many years.

Before closing I must speak with deep regret as regards the death of our fellow-traveller and friend, Edward Irish. After two weeks of intense suffering, and while receiving constant and attentive nursing, with the kindest treatment, from the hands of Mr. Barnard, Saxton, and others, our genial friend Ned passed away. His last moments were peaceful and with little suffering, and with his wife and child at his bedside, he left this world of trials for "that house, not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."

MILWAUKEE.

Business in the city of Milwaukee is unusually brisk, and all are quite satisfied as regards the opening of spring trade.

H. Niedecken & Co. have a large and varied line of stationery and fancy goods, together with an extensive variety of flat papers, blank-books, etc.

West & Co. occupy a large building, which contains not only stationery in all its branches, school-books and school supplies, but the largest and finest variety of wall-paper in the Northwest. They manufacture blank-books also in large quantities.

J. B. Hoeger & Sons, in their roomy and elegant store, display books, stationery, fancy goods, artists' materials, etc., to good advantage. Their wholesale business is largely among the Germans, and is constantly increasing.

Of the Wisconsin News Company, J. H. Raiguel is proprietor and sole manager. Mr. R. was formerly employed in the house of Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., for about four and a half years, and bought out this news company last fall.

The enterprising firm of Des Forges & Lawrence are enjoying a splendid trade, and their printing department and bindery is a particular feature of their business. Their holiday trade was the best for a number of years.

DETROIT.

The sudden news of the death of W. E. Tunis, Esq., adds another name to the list of those belonging to our trade who have passed away. As we look back and contemplate the last few weeks and miss those with whom we were associated, we feel more assured of the uncertainty of life.

Richmond, Backus & Co. (C. N. Ayers, buyer) carry an immense stock of stationery, flat paper, printers' stock, blank-books, etc. They employ some eighty hands, and are very busy. They contemplate building an addition to the rear of the present building, as the four floors now occupied are not enough for their increasing business. Mr. Ayers has patented and is manufacturing an improved "Coupon Ticket Case" for railroad purposes, which is highly commended by all. It economizes space, and supplies a long-desired want.

E. B. Smith & Co. occupy one of the most elegant stores in the country, filled with a choice selection of books and stationery. Their wholesale department is one of the largest in the West. Mr. Laphem has charge of the retail stationery department.

TOLEDO.

T. J. Brown, Eager & Co., dealers in all kinds of school-books, office and school stationery, have just issued the "Home Cook-Book," 8vo, $1.50 retail, containing many tried and true recipes, with blank leaves for the purpose of inserting new ones and writing memoranda. The little volume, "On the Road to Riches," 12mo, $1.25 retail, should be carefully read by all clerks and travelling salesmen.

Brown & Faunce, stationery, books, and wall-paper, are enjoying a good spring trade. The members of this firm are both young men, and their energy and close application to business deserve all the success which they evidently enjoy.

The Blade Printing and Paper Company occupy a fine building, and are extensively engaged in job printing and binding. The Toledo Blade, the daily paper, is issued by this firm.

J. T. Fry has sold out the stationery part of his business, and is engaged in binding blank-books, etc.

Brown & Pitcher, Jackson, Mich., have an attractive and finely arranged store, with a stock of books, stationery, and wall-paper of good selection. Mr. Brown was on a visit to Washington, D. C., last week.

CLEVELAND.

Cobb, Andrews & Co., in their new and truly magnificent building, may be complimented upon the admirable arrangement of their stock. The tasty and artistic appearance of the massive windows attract the passer-by, and causes all to stop and take a look. They are closing out the old stock in their late quarters on Superior street.

The large and commodious establishment of Brooks, Schinkel & Co., may be favorably compared with any in the West. In point of variety of all lines connected with stationery and books, their stock looks fresh and salable, and is arranged in excellent order. They handle a writing paper, the "Ermine Mills," which is said to equal the best foreign-made papers.

Ingham, Clark & Co., and Burrows Brothers are doing their share of business.

Robison, Savage & Co. are very largely engaged in printing. Also keep stationery and blank-books. They publish the Sunday paper.

Sanford & Co. have enlarged their store, and always have a profitable trade, as they buy carefully, sell at reasonable profits, and treat their customers with attention and politeness.

Evans, Van Epps & Co. deal in books, stationery, and weekly and daily papers. Their store is well patronized by the ladies of Cleveland, as their lines of paper embrace every thing new and attractive, while the latest books may be found at earliest moment.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

AN Eastern firm which has been advertising in "Books Wanted" writes to "bear cheerful witness to the efficacy of the WEEKLY as a medium to pick up odd and rare books. We had tried many months in vain to find the book in question through the regular trade, and your paper developed who had it."

EX-PRESIDENT HILL's little book on "The True Order of Studies" has passed to a third edition.

MACMILLAN & Co. will add to their list, in the tasteful "Golden Treasury Series," a select edition of the quaint poems of Herrick, edited by Palgrave, the originator of the series.

MR. GEORGE W. BLUNT calls the attention of the public to the fact that any books, magazines, or other reading matter, second-hand or new, which they are willing to give for the use of the keepers of the lighthouses and lightvessels of our coast may be sent by express, C. O. D., to A. B. Johnson, United States Lighthouse Depot, Staten Island. There are six hundred lighthouses and lightships on our coast, and many of them are entirely isolated.

"JONATHAN" is not the Centennial volume of the "Leisure Hour Series."

PORTER & COATES have in press the "Official Guide-book to Philadelphia," by Thompson Westcott, one of the best and most complete guide-books issued of the Quaker City. Truly of the making of Centennial guide-books there is no end—and they are all official.

ROBERT CLARKE & Co. have just published one of the most important law books they have issued this year, "Sayler's Statutes of the State of Ohio, from 1860 to 1875, in continuation of Curwen's Statutes at Large, and Swan and Critchfield's Revised Statutes."

A NEW Southern novel, "Maud Mansfield," by Mrs. Frances Hamilton Hood, just ready at J. W. Burke & Co.'s, Macon, Ga., is put forth as ranking among the best American works of fiction.

MR. ALFRED AUSTIN's long-promised work, "The Human Tragedy," is in press, and will be published by Blackwood & Sons next month. It is one continuous narrative poem, in four cantos or acts, comprising, together with several lyrics, some thirteen hundred ottava rima stanzas, the metre of his previous work, "Madonna's Child." The action opens in England in June, 1857, and closes in May, 1871, with the fall of the Commune.

THE whole series of translations from the sacred books of the world, which are to be edited by Prof. Max Müller, will be divided into six sections: Books illustrative of the religion of (1) the Brahmins (Sanskrit); (2) of the Buddhists (Pali, Sanskrit); (3) of the followers of Zoroaster (Zend); (4) of the followers of Confucius (Chinese); (5) of the followers of Lao-tse (Chinese); (6) of the followers of Mohammed (Arabic). It is understood that the co-operation of some of the most distinguished Oriental scholars in England, Dr. Legge for Chinese, Prof. Cowell for Sanskrit, Prof. Childers for Pali, has been secured.

THE Oxford University Press, which recently issued the "smallest Bible," has now published the smallest Prayer Book ever printed. It is a complete Prayer Book, and measures three and a half inches in length, two and an eighth in breadth, and a quarter of an inch in thickness, and weighs barely an ounce. It is printed on India paper, as a companion volume to the Bible.

MISS ELLEN E. FITZ, of St. John, has invented a globe which is likely to revolutionize the popular notion that woman has no inventive genius. It is exceedingly 'cute, and will surely find its way into hosts of families and schools when the "Manual" is ready, which Ginn Brothers promise soon.

AN edition of King's "French Leaders," in the Putnam's "Brief Biographies," has been ordered for England by the Lows.

Special attention paid to miscellaneous orders by mail.

The Progress of Science. A Short History of Natural Science, and the Progress of Discovery, from the Time of the Greeks to the Present Day, for Scholars and Young Persons. By ARABELLA B. BUCKLEY. 1 vol., 12mo, cloth, $2.

From the London Examiner.

"Nothing could be devised more calculated than its general employment to convert primary scientific instruction from a plaything into a reality; while the atmosphere of nobleness which invests it—disinterested enthusiasm, generous appreciation, reverence for eternal laws, disparagement of all that is incapable of verification—entitles it to a rank among moral agencies seldom attained by scientific manuals. We have only to add that the technical execution is equal to the biographical; the various discoveries described, and the experiments frequently necessary to render them intelligible, being explained with a perspicuity on which it would be impossible to improve."

VI.

"No preparation of any kind is needed to begin the study of this book."

"Marcel suggests, as the first steps in studying a language, to read a book with the aid of a translation by the eye only, and without pronouncing either aloud or mentally."

"By this means any one can acquire a reading knowledge of a foreign language without any previous preparation, and without a teacher."—Extract from Preface.

THE SPRING FAIR.

THE display of books at the Spring Fair has been sufficiently tempting, as our lists in recent numbers prophesied, but the buyers have not been so many as the books. Scarcely any sales were made on Monday and Tuesday, and indeed few buyers made their appearance on those earlier days. There was more done on Wednesday and Thursday, but that unfortunately is not saying a great deal this year. The fact of it is, the trade is still very cautious, and has had little desire to lay in much stock this spring, so that the Fair can not be called a success.

The truth is, not many books can be sold when people don't want to buy, and the trade generally is very cautious this Spring. Western dealers reported that the warm weather there during the last few weeks had made a mud blockade, which prevented farmers getting anything to market, and so put a quietus on general trade. It was thought that the next Fall Fair would, however, make amends for the slowness of the supplementary fair of last Fall and this Spring one, and show the value of the change. One dealer expressed himself ready to lay in $10,000 worth of stock at that Fair.

We noticed the new stock that was presented at the Fair in our numbers of the past fortnight; it therefore would be repetition to go over the features of the display again. The most notable show at the Fair was made by James R. Osgood & Co. with their lines of the poets and other standards in the new material of binding known as "leatherette." This is a composition of some sort which bears a very close resemblance to fine-grained calf. It is said to be made out of a preparation of paper, but it stands water and can be cleaned off with a moist cloth. It is very attractive and the large line in this material shown by this house, which has so enterprisingly laid hands on the new fashion, was the talk of the Fair. The new goods cost and are sold at about one-third more than the same lines in cloth. They are gotten up in a great variety of color and design, and the trade will do well to stock up in the novelty. The durability of the new material has yet to be proved, but there can be no doubt that it would be a taking novelty for the time, at least.

The sale of plates and remainders began on Friday, attracting a good number of the trade, nearly fifty in fact, among whom were many of the old trade-sale faces. The prices obtained were quite low, most of the stereotype plates going at the cost of the metal to the stereotypers, or being bought in. There was but one bid on each set, those of Roberts going to Wilson, Gill's to Lucas, for whom Mr. Gill bid, the Tuckerman books to Jenkins, and the Thackeray plates to H. Miller. The Poe books, offered by Mr. Widdleton in quantities, brought fair prices on first bids, 40 to 50 off, but had to be put up again and again to get rid of the quantity, and ran down to as low as two thirds off. We shall give details in our next issue. It was remarked that, judging by the prices obtained on this limited stock, a trade-sale of the old sort this spring would have proved a reckless slaughter.

Considerable interest is expressed in Messrs. Osgoods' sale of next week, which is expected to attract the trade very generally. The cost of the plates and illustrations that will be offered next week has been over $300,000, and the printed stock that will be offered amounts to upward of $125,000, retail prices. Of the results of the sale we hope to give a full report in our next number.

THE POSTAL QUESTIONS.

It is a notorious fact that the Post-office Department has always been run at a deficit. This means, of course, that it is taking money out of the pockets of the people in one direction for the purpose of serving them at a less cost in another. Somebody has to pay the loss, just as when a bankrupt fails, his creditors have to foot the better part of the bills themselves. The bankrupt business man, who pays but a part of his bills himself, is, of course, enabled to put other business men, who pay all their bills themselves, to serious disadvantage, as we have had occasion to point out many times in regard to the book business. Now, the Post-office Department is in this sort of competition with a large class of business men in this country. The question is, whether the service it does to the people, is, in any feature at issue, sufficient to justify such interference with them.

The stationers, especially those who have to do with the manufacture and printing of envelopes, have kept up a vigorous campaign against some of the features of the present Post-office system, and the statement of their representatives before the Congressional committees, which may be obtained from the Berlin & Jones Envelope Co., or from this office, should be thoroughly read by the stationery trade. It brings up some alarming facts to show at what disadvantage the Post-office Department, in its chronic condition of bankruptcy, is enabled to place the private envelope manufacturers, printers, and stationers, with whom it competes.

When Rowland Hill made the discovery that Post-office business was more profitable under a uniform system of low rates, than under the old complicated system of weights and sheets and distances, he probably did not foresee the applications into which his beneficial principle might be construed. That principle holds thoroughly true of letters, whose weight is small, and the chief cost on which is not in transportation, but in handling. On this first-class matter the Post-office Department has always made a profit, and done legitimate service to the people; but in applying this principle to weighty merchandise, such as is rated as third-class matter, it has always done business at a loss. The Department has also furnished envelopes at an insufficient price to cover their actual cost, and added to this the expense of printing address-cards gratuitously. Such address-cards were, of course, a considerable convenience and saving to the department, and it is on this ground, we presume, that the post-office authorities have justified it. But it is fairly questionable whether it is worth while or right to do this service to private parties gratuitously—that is to say, at the cost of other people.

In other words, the Government will take orders at almost any post-office in the country for address-cards on stamped envelopes, which it has printed by contract at New-York, and which it transports and delivers free of charge, no matter how many thousand miles off the purchaser may be. The local stationer who deals in envelopes must, of course, pay freight on his goods from New-York, and pay the printer also for printing address-cards on them. He has no chance whatever against the Government competition.

It has frequently been alleged in Post-office reports that this free transportation and delivery of stamped envelopes and like matter costs nothing to the department. That is simply absurd. This matter forms a considerable part of the Post-office business, and if it is not paid for at so much a pound, it is certainly included when the transportation companies make their contracts. It is also shown in the stationers' report that the filling of an order for envelopes on which the address is printed, requires no less than twenty-one handlings and records, which any business man knows is not to be done without expense.

The stationers are asking that in selling stamped envelopes and printed addresses, and delivering goods at distant points, the government will at least ask the actual cost. On the book side, a bill now before the Post-Office Department, summarized elsewhere, provides that third-class matter shall be charged for in proportion to distance. Both these proposed changes introduce the element of complexity into the post-office business, and this is a serious objection against them. There seems to be little question but that the case of the stationers, however, is so clear that they will ultimately succeed in the demands made in their report, so justified as it is with facts and figures. There is a more definite objection to Senator Hamlin's bill, which is opposed by the publishers on the double ground that the complexity occasioned by it would be very embarrassing, and that education by books should be favored by the government to the extent of allowing them to pass through the mails at a low rate. This view was ably presented to the Senate Committee on Thursday by Messrs. Birdseye, Blakeman, D. S. Appleton, and P. Farrelly, for the New-York trade. Distant retailers naturally oppose this view as interfering with their local business, but the reply to this is that the business by mail is, after all, for the most part to points where bookselling has not yet started. We bring the question before the trade as one of the most important that comes within its province of discussion.

THE periodical dealers are making a strong stand in favor of having a fair chance at some profits, and the case cited by a correspondent elsewhere illustrates the strength of their position excellently. If they are to do most of the business for the publishers, they ought certainly to be allowed a fair rate of profit; and if, on the other hand, the publishers wish to subordinate them to direct relations with subscribers, it is only fair that it should be so understood. It seems to be a question of choice, which is in the hands of the periodical publishers.

A LETTER from a well-posted Boston bookseller, which we print elsewhere, opens an interesting subject to which we may recur more fully at a future time. All these facts are new proof to show that a reduction of discounts is needed to complete the work of reform, and thus will do their part in hastening the day of its consummation.

PRIZE QUESTIONS.

IN reply to inquiries, we state that, under the definition which excludes from the Centennial list (Prize Question No. 5) general histories of the United States, special volumes of such histories, as vols. 5-10 of Bancroft, should not be entered in the lists submitted.

TRADE MEETINGS.

A. B. T. A. COMMITTEES.

THE Committee on Assemblies met at the Book Fair rooms on Thursday at 10:45, and decided upon Niagara Falls as the place of the next convention, which by constitutional provision opens on the 13th of July. The Cataract House will be the head-quarters, favorable terms having been arranged. A special train to the Centennial is proposed at the close of the convention.

The Executive Committee met at 11:45 in private session, adjourning thence to July 12th, at 3 P.M., at Niagara Falls.

CANADA BOOKSELLERS' CONVENTION.

THE book trade of Canada opened their Convention at Toronto, pursuant to the call printed in our columns, Wednesday afternoon, the 9th inst, continuing through Thursday. The meeting was a great success; over a hundred members of the trade were present, the Canada Booksellers' Association was organized, with rules somewhat similar to those of the A. B. T. A.; and a grand dinner, given by Messrs. Jas. Campbell & Co., made a pleasant close to the meeting. The new association, we are informed, hope to send a delegation to the next Convention of the A. B. T. A., and will ask to have that association fraternally represented at their ensuing Convention.

The Convention was held at the Queen's Hotel. Mr. Robert Reid, of London, was unanimously elected Chairman, and Mr. W. C. Campbell, of Toronto, Secretary. On motion, Messrs. Nesbit, Woodstock; Dawson, Montreal; Irving, Toronto; Harrison, Belleville; Hope, Ottawa; Lancefield, Hamilton; Bryce, London; Fairfield, St. Catharines; Rose, Toronto; Donnelly, Simcoe; Bain, Toronto; Menzies, Peterboro; Adam, Toronto; Mitchell, Pembroke; Willing, Toronto; Vance, Millbrook, were appointed a committee to draft a constitution and by-laws for a Booksellers' Association for the Dominion of Canada. The discussion developed the opinion that the prevention of underselling would be, as in the States, a chief object of the Association. Mr. W. C. Campbell said that they would be able by meeting together from time to time to settle amicably questions which now caused a good deal of disagreement. One thing would be to secure from American publishers the same treatment which they gave to the retail trade on the other side of the line.

The latter part of the afternoon session and that of the evening was occupied in discussing the chief grievance of the Canadian trade, which had been the prime cause of the Convention, the abuses of the Government Book Depository. This is a bookselling establishment run by the government, and which had gone the usual way of such establishments, doing business at a decided loss, and interfering seriously with the course of private business. It was founded years ago, when bookstores were less plenty, as a part of the educational work of the government, but it seems to have outlived its usefulness. A series of resolutions stating that its existence was no longer necessary, and calling for at least certain specified reforms in its methods, was carried, and on Thursday afternoon, a considerable part of the Convention waited upon Hon. Adam Crooks, Minister of Education, to present their case. He was addressed by Mr. Reid, by Mr. Mitchell, of Pembroke, who incidentally stated that the book trade of Canada imported about $800,000, while the home manufacture reached $200,000, and by Mr. W. C. Campbell, who showed that the catalogue of the Depository was a curious relic of past ages, altogether wrong. The minister replied courteously, promising that the government would give careful attention to the grievances pointed out.

Preceding this visit the forenoon session was given to the discussion of the proposed constitution, whose preamble reads:

"The book-publishers and booksellers of Canada, being desirous of promoting a fuller intercourse of ideas concerning the interests of the trade, and a more general harmony of action in its various branches, and also to establish sound and, as far as possible, uniform methods of conducting business, do hereby associate themselves under the name of the Canadian Booksellers' Association."

At the commencement of Thursday afternoon's session, a letter from the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY office, giving some of the experience of the trade in the States, in reply to a letter from some of the originators of the movement, was read, after which the Chairman called the attention of the meeting to article nine of the constitution (which he explained was a recommendation only), and which in substance advised the keeping of the retail trade among the retail booksellers and the wholesale trade among the wholesale dealers, and that no discount be allowed to retail purchasers, except 10 per cent to ministers and teachers, and 20 per cent to institutions. This called forth much discussion, a few being against allowing any discount either to ministers, students, or institutions, while the majority were in favor of laying the matter over till the next Convention. One or two gentlemen present were of opinion that ministers should enjoy the privilege, as they were very large buyers of books. It was ultimately agreed that the matter be allowed to rest as at present. The first part of the clause was then passed as read, and the constitution was finally adopted.

The following gentlemen were then elected as officers of the new association:

President.—James Campbell, Toronto.

First Vice-President.—Samuel Dawson, Montreal.

Second Vice-President.—Robert Reid, London.

Secretary-Treasurer.—W. C. Campbell, Toronto.

Executive Committee.—S. E. Mitchell, Pembroke; J. Maclean Rose, Toronto; S. R. Hart, Toronto; A. J. Donly, Simcoe; J. Hope, Ottawa.

An interesting letter from Mr. G. Mercer Adam, of Toronto, was then read, after which the newly-elected President took the chair, and after the usual votes of thanks the Convention adjourned.

The dinner that evening was given in the Queen's Hotel by Messrs. James Campbell & Sons to the booksellers attending the convention and a number of invited guests. Over one hundred sat down to dinner in the spacious dining-hall. Mr. James Campbell acted as chairman, and Mr. W. C. Campbell as vice-chairman. To the right of the chairman was Hon. O. Mowat, Prof. Goldwin Smith, Mr. S. Dawson, of Montreal, and Mr. A. Donly, of Simcoe; to his left, Mr. J. M. Buchan, of Hamilton, Inspector of High Schools, Mr. Robert Reid, of London, Mr. S. E. Mitchell, of Pembroke, and Mr. J. Hart, of Perth. Among the others present were Rev. W. Bee, Messrs. Jno. Stevenson, James Bain, John Bain, W. Rawlinson, A. Piddington, Toronto; T. J. Moorehouse, Goderich; J. Salisbury, Cobourg; J. Morrish, Chatham; James Hope, Ottawa; D. McMaster, Sarnia; E. Overrell, Brockville; J. Anderson, Guelph; A. McLean, Ingersoll; W. R. Petrie, Ayr; R. Lancefield, Hamilton; B. C. Fairfield, St. Catharines; W. H. Keefer, A. G. Lee, B. Belford, E. T. Brown, T. C. Allan, W. G. Brown, W. D. Taylor, F. J. Brunskill, W. A. Wright, T. N. Campbell, H.

Hutchison, W. McGillivray, John Young, W. Warwick, S. Hart, J. Vannevar, J. Maclean Rose, and C. Riley (Secretary Commercial Travellers' Association), Toronto; T. Menzies and A. Davidson, Peterborough; R. Van Norman and J. Harrison, Belleville; J. G. McCrae, Sarnia; J. W. Bressey, Forest; W. K. Ireland, Meaford; A. E. Hayter, Millbrook; A. Leach, Millbrook; John Mills, London; L. Allen, Whiby; L. C. Munro, Fergus; G. Anderson, Woodstock; — Parker, Dumbarton; W. T. Watson, Harriston; R. Law, Clifton; F. Reynolds, Cobourg; J. Oberholtzer, Berlin; G. J. Duncan, Drummondville.

After the cloth had been removed, letters of regret from Minister Crooks and others were read, and responses made to a number of toasts. Prof. Goldwin Smith responded to the toast "Books and Printing," and addresses were also made by Hon. Mr. Mowat, of the Legislature, Mr. Buchan, Mr. Robert Reid, Mr. Dawson, and others.

The trade of our own country will rejoice heartily in the success of this new organization, so happily started.

MY MEMORIES OF THE BOOK TRADE.

"Things I myself have seen, and a great part of which I was."—Virgil.

By D. B. COOKE.

III.

I HAVE in these sketches hurriedly run over a varied experience of something over thirty-five years, and I have been extremely interested in so doing. This review has recalled many old and pleasing incidents, many joys and sorrows, numerous trials and triumphs.

The wholesale trade of Chicago is to-day represented by the following well-known firms: The Western News Co., so ably presided over by Jno. R. Walsh, Manager; Jansen, McClurg & Co.; Hadley Brothers & Co.; and W. B. Keen, Cook & Co.; S. C. Griggs & Co., and George Sherwood & Co., confining their trade to their own publications. The trade in religious books is represented mainly by Mr. Wm. G. Holmes, and the subscription-book business is largely in the hands of Moses Warren.

Glancing over the names of the publishers of the present date, I see quite a goodly number who commenced their business life with me, still pursuing the glorious profession of circulating good books, whose aim has ever been to be the distributors of literature that would exert only a good influence, whose rule of life has been and is to sell only the better class of publications. The book trade of this country has become vast in its proportions. To keep well informed in regard to editions and new books has become a study. There are printed yearly in the United States from three to five thousand different books, whose value will reach nearly fifty millions of dollars. To remember their titles alone is in itself a task requiring all the energies of a bookseller who pretends to be well posted in his business.

Can any one say there has been no progress in books during the past one hundred years? A century ago, scarcely any book was read but the Bible, and to-day more books are read about the Bible than the Bible itself.

Taste and refinement are called for in every department of our trade, and unless a man is satisfied to be a mere drudge, unless he would chain himself down for the whole of his life to the lowest scale of wages, he must endeavor to improve his capabilities; he must by self-culture and hard labor fit himself for the great battle for superiority which is now going on throughout the world. There is plenty of "room higher up" in every trade, and in the book trade in particular, but the room has few occupants.

Mr. Henry Curwen in his "History of Booksellers" speaks of the old booksellers of London as "a body of men singularly thrifty, able, industrious, and persevering—in some cases singularly venturesome, liberal, and kind-hearted." Are not these the leading characteristics of booksellers all over the world—especially in being "singularly venturesome"?

"What becomes of all the books?" is about as difficult a question to answer as "What becomes of all the pins?" The great majority of individual volumes have only a brief life. Of the books printed more than twenty years ago, probably not one in five exists to-day; the others by steps more or less rapid have found their way to the flames, or to the waste basket and thence to the paper-mill.

To be an educated bookseller in these latter days is something to be proud of. We are the almoners to the hungry souls who yearn for literary food, who would rather do without everything than books.

I always admired the character of that old fellow of whom we read, who said, "If I have a little money, I buy books; if I have any thing left, I buy food and clothes."

He could exclaim, in the words of Shakespeare:

"Me, poor man, my library was dukedom large enough."

Gibbon said, "a taste for books is the pleasure and glory of my life. I would not exchange it for the riches of the Indies."

And Frederick the Great remarked in his old age, "My latest passion will be for literature."

I trust I may not be accused of egotism when I remark that booksellers are looked upon by the world as belonging to rather a higher class than the ordinary merchant. The village bookseller is generally the best and most popular man in his town, except, perhaps, the postmaster and the preacher. Said a friend to me, a man who had occupied many positions of honor, "The proudest moment of my life was when I attended church with Fletcher Harper."

In urging the younger members of the trade to become well posted in their business, I would have them include in their attainments a thorough knowledge of English and foreign books, as well as of American writers. The time will soon come—it is now here, when the selling of English books will be an important branch of our business. The better class of buyers ask for, and will possess the best English editions of standard authors. The English press must, however, look to its laurels, as the issues of many of our American houses so closely resemble those of the English publishers, that we involuntarily turn to the printer's marks to satisfy ourselves as to their nativity.

I may be indulged in another reminiscence. In the year 1855, it was my good fortune to attend "The Publishers' Fruit Festival," which was held in the Crystal Palace, in the city of New-York. There was no wine there—nothing but pure Croton water to quench the thirst; but there was "a feast of reason and a flow of soul" never before or since, enjoyed. I can not recall the names of those who composed that brilliant assemblage of good men and fair women. It was a grand gathering of authors, publishers and booksellers met together to see each other and hear each others' voices. There were Bancroft and Motley, Irving, Bryant and Longfellow, Mrs. Stowe and the Cary sisters, Holmes, Lowell and Fields, Buchanan Read, Whittier and Willis, besides scores of others whose writings are "familiar in their mouths as household words."

I shall never forget Washington Irving as I saw him then, rising in response to a toast in which his books were alluded to. He said he could not believe that his popularity was due entirely to himself. "How could an author's books keep from selling when his publishers brought them out in such attractive styles?"

Then arose George P. Putnam—now gone to his rest—who, in a few well-chosen words, thanked Mr. Irving for the beautiful and well-deserved compliment. Mr. Putnam took occasion to administer a little kind advice to his young friends, the publishers. He warned them to beware of that very enthusiastic class of authors who enter your office with the MS. of a book which "more than half the world are dying to see in print." "My friends," he said, "be not deceived; be assured that not over a quarter of mankind will ever care a fig for it. Another as dangerous class will endeavor to convince you that their forthcoming book is destined to set the North River on fire; but, ah! believe them not; no book ever written set a river on fire."

How often do we meet just such authors, who expect publishers to advance all the money and assume all risk of sales, while they, in the result of inevitable failure, get off harmless. Recently, a MS. was offered to our house for publication, "A Poem," as yet unnamed. It was contained in ten books, six hundred cantos, all about something no one could make out. This author thought that this book—his first-born child—would reach a larger sale than any book of modern times, perhaps two hundred thousand copies!

Had I the space I would be glad to tell more about the Fruit Festival. It was there that the eloquent blind Milburn said, "Gentlemen booksellers, the leaves that you scatter are from the tree whose fruit is for the healing of the nations. Gentlemen publishers, the well-heads opened in your press-rooms may send forth streams to refresh and gladden the homes of a continent, so that the parched land shall become as a pool, and the thirsty land springs of water, and in the habitations of dragons, where each lay, shall be grass with weeds and rushes."

"But if I magnify the office of a maker and seller of a book, how much more the authors. As Wolfe sadly and sweetly recited 'Gray's Elegy' upon the St. Lawrence the night before his glorious fall on the Plains of Abraham, he said, 'I would rather have the honor of writing that poem than of taking Quebec to-morrow.'

"Were I to paraphrase his thought to my wish, it would be thus, Could I have written the 'Sketch-Book' (turning to Mr. Irving), or could I have sung that ode commencing 'The groves were God's first temples' (turning to Mr. Bryant), cheerfully would I go through life, binding this badge of infirmity upon my brow, to wear it as a crown; or groping in the unbroken darkness, so were it the Father's will, for threescore years and ten of man's appointed time!"

As will have been observed, there are but few of the olden booksellers left; they are for the most part "gone up higher," and their places are filled in a number of cases by honored sons, who are following in the footsteps of their illustrious predecessors. The great houses of D. Appleton & Co. and Harper & Brothers are the most prominent instances of this description. It gives me pleasure to allude in this connection to the untiring devotion and services of a gentleman as well and favorably known as any other in the trade, W. H. Demarest, who entered the house of Harper & Brothers on the first Monday in February, A.D. 1833, forty-three years ago! You will always find him at his mahogany desk just at the head of the front stairs.

I must draw these sketches to a close; they have been hastily written, but I trust that they will awaken fond recollections in the minds of those who may read them, and inspire our young friends to more active efforts and endeavors after useful and honorable lives.

Be ambitious to improve. I have never known a first-class well-posted bookseller looking for a place, for the places are looking for them.

Let us not be weary in well-doing, and though we may meet with drawbacks and pull-backs in various ways by "fire and flood," we who have borne the burden in the heat of the day, may hope to reach a competence that will enable us to enjoy a good old age, not in idleness and inactivity, but in the midst of prosperous business and among our friends; and when we are called to die may we die with the harness on, bright and educated for a richer experience in the world to come. That this may be our recompense and final reward, I fondly wish you God-speed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A LETTER FROM "FATHER ASTON."

COLUMBUS, March 10, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

"The Surrender at Columbus" is the heading of an article in your issue of 19th ult. To me it is strange that you are so far behind the times, for Columbus surrendered a year ago. When I left the firm of Randall & Aston, and before I entered into business for myself, I noticed a card from Randall & Co. and G. W. Gleason in answer to a circular issued by a firm here, stating that they had withdrawn from the "Book Ring." This broke our association asunder, so you will see no association has existed since I entered into business for myself.

The trade has been at sea for the past year, and the wonder is that we, as a trade, have done so well broken in two, with the ring all off. Cutting has been optional, yet the trade has weathered the storm very well considering the pressure of the times. But to the point. It seems "H." has reported the "so-called" father of the reform. This is correct, and like Captain Scott's coon he comes down.

It seems in bidding for a library of $843, G. W. Gleason was the highest bidder, namely, 20 per cent off. In this case he deserves the thanks of the trade, yet this firm failed to report that once before they bid 27½ per cent on a Sunday-school library, which all the trade knew was a closer bid; now if "H." had told both stories, you see how nicely they would have balanced each other. The so-called "Father of the Reform" made his bid under a perfect knowledge of an open field and a free fight at home. So "H." sold at 27½ per cent off under the same competition; neither party dreamed of anything but a home competition.

I am free to confess I never thought of any mother association in New-York, but my mind was beclouded with home demoralization, so I climb down on the off side, and ask the prayers of the brethren who have never cast a stone or committed a fault since the reform began. Examine yourselves, brethren!

Mr. Monachesi writes me that I am the only one in this surrendered town who belongs to the parent association in New-York. I supposed until now we were all in the same boat and all the trade here were members of the parent association. The reform commenced two years ago, and we were all urged to take hold and heartily co-operate and make a success of it. Now if I spent six weeks in the hottest season laboring single-handed with the publishers in the Eastern cities, and executed the plans of the Cincinnati Convention, which led to the reform, while my brethren were quietly keeping cool at home, I see no good reason why I should be censured by those who have done nothing, and who have not co-operated with the movement so far as to join the association or even attend a single convention. The secretary has also invited the trade here to join the parent society, and they have not as yet responded; so who is guilty? I am not inclined to blame any one, and think common courtesy would suggest I should not be responsible for men who have attained mature age, and who are able to act for themselves. I would be quite happy to be on the most fraternal relations with my competitors and have the fullest confidence with all, but I can not force men into measures against their will. One thing is certain, the entire trade have been benefited by the movement thus far, and the trade have bought freely and thereby sustained the publishers, and I hope this little agitation will benefit our home trade. But I fear no lasting benefit will be ours until the trade repose more confidence in each other, and less in shoppers, who like Mark Twain can tell a lie if they will.

Very truly,

ISAAC C. ASTON.

FASHIONABLE SETTLEMENTS.

BOSTON, March 16, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

Your "Western Reader" makes a very pertinent suggestion regarding the facility with which bankrupts effect a settlement in these times of rag money and easy virtue. Some of the latest developments in this line would make excellent material for a roaring farce, or, in the hands of an Offenbach, for opera bouffe.

Under the benevolent operations of the amended bankrupt act, and the distinguished patronage he has received, the Boston lottery man has effected his fifteen cent settlement, and will doubtless be ready to open the spring campaign with renewed vigor after his "temporary difficulties," which have not in the least "interrupted his business," have been adjusted. One of the most effective points of the farce is the fact that one of the committee recommending the settlement, and several of the leading creditors, are or have been among the leaders of the reform in the book trade. Doubtless another will be that these same men will consider him as worthy of credit and entitled to confidence, and will attribute any other course of action pursued by dealers who pay for their goods in full, and are struggling to make an honest living, as due to local jealousy. If any of his competitors who are obliged to pay eighty-five per cent more for their goods than he does are inclined to take a tragic view of the case, they can console themselves with the thought that they, too, can settle for fifteen cents, and go on without interruption by those "temporary difficulties," when their turn comes, as it surely will come, for it can not be possible to do business on such unequal terms for any great length of time.

Commending these suggestions to all those who encourage book lotteries and other would-be reformers, I sign myself one of the UNFORTUNATE COMPETITORS.

NEW-YORK, March 15, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly :

By all means, let us have a "funny column." If houses continue to "go under" in the same rapid succession as for the past few months, and coolly offer fifteen and twenty cents on the dollar to compensate the sufferers whose confidence has led them to sell on long time, I advocate the establishing of a "funny column," and coincide with the advice given by the "Western Reader."

This rapid increase of failures all over the country, and the readiness displayed by the creditors to compromise immediately, no matter how small a settlement is offered, with the continuation of the business without materially interrupting the same, is a bid for further suspensions.

It is certainly a fact, established by the present mode of compromise, which will ultimately induce many other firms to follow these examples already noticed in your columns. It reminds me of a story, in which a party called on a large wholesale clothing house, when the following conversation took place :

"Ish der brobrietor in?"

"Yes, sir," was the reply; "I am one of the firm."

"Vel, mine name ish Von Bluminstein, and I calls to dell you I vants do vail."

"Want to fail! What do you mean, sir?"

"Vell, I'll dells you all vot de drouble ish. You may dinks it very funny; but Herr Yawcups, he keeps von store like mine, und sells clothes like me. He yust vailed, und bays fify cends on der dollar, und zells der clothing much cheaber dun me. ven I bays un hundred cends on der dollar. So I vant to vail du, und cum down to offer you fify cends, vich make no difference to you—zo I can zell mine tings as cheap like he do."

It is needless to continue an honest business if our neighbors are allowed to compromise on a large line of salable goods, and pay one fifth their value, when the upright, honorable dealer is obliged to pay full value for his stock, and to sell at prices to compete with the suspended house. If trade morality has indeed sunk so low, then let us all fail at once, and commence at the beginning again. C. S. P.

THE PERIODICAL QUESTION—A CASE IN POINT.

FORT WAYNE, IND., March 16, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly :

On the first of last December I ordered sample copy of Littell's Living Age, and succeeded in getting three customers for it. But owing to the extra inducements which the publishers offered, I can't make any money out of it. For instance, they offer to furnish the Age with any $4 periodical for $10. One of my customers demanded that I should do the same, or else he would send direct himself. I wrote to the publishers of the Age in regard to the matter, and they said they could allow me a commission of 50 cents. Now here is what I lost by pushing the Age: the profit on Harpers' Weekly, 52 numbers, 2½ cents each, is $1.30; the profit on Harpers' and Age together is 50 cents, a difference of 80 cents. The result is that I cut off extra copies of the Age and shall try to get my remaining two customers to take something else. How is it that Harper Brothers, being in the reform movement, offer to furnish postmasters with any of their periodicals for $3, while their best terms are $3.20 to dealers? If there is any reform in that I wish you would show it to me. Yours truly, P. B. DAVIS.

THE EXTRAVAGANT DISCOUNTS ON ENGLISH STOCK.

March 18, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly :

Apropos of Mr. Randolph's offering to his customers "Knight's England" at $17.50, it may be interesting for our worthy and revered president to know how some folks here regard "nominal retail" books. Offering one of our library customers a copy of Cassell's $15 horse books, we were annoyed to hear that it could be had of a neighboring firm for $9. Shortly afterwards, when in their place, we asked for an explanation, and were not a little surprised to know that they sold that book at 40 per cent off, because they bought it at a half off. "Oh, my dear sir," said they, "we never dream of asking 20 per cent off on English stock when it can be purchased from the publishers at 40 and 50 per cent discount."

Verily, half the trouble now going on in trying to fix the vexed subject of discount proceeds from this practice of the English houses with American agencies giving an enormous discount from a fictitious retail price. We should like to see from you, if you will allow us to suggest it, a strong editorial on this point, for our experience proves that English-made books, especially juveniles, are to be most carefully avoided. Let those houses give their publications a proper retail price, with a corresponding reduction in discount, or otherwise the wise bookseller who has a proper regard for dead stock must shun them.

Yours, faithfully,

"SELPUC."

"TAKE NOTICE."

NEW-YORK, March 21, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly :

In our recent trip West our attention was on a great many occasions called to papers and cards labelled, and in some cases watermarked, "Perie," "Pirie." Messrs. Alexander Pirie & Sons will be very tenacious in maintaining their rights. In the case of cards, a special aim has been made to imitate our manufactures and our styles, and we will fight our own battle and defend ourselves. We have the names of the houses perpetrating these swindles, as well as the names of the cheated purchasers; and unless the dishonorable practice is immediately stopped, we will publicly advertise their names and places of business.

HISTORY OF THE TOWN OF RINDGE, NEW-HAMPSHIRE, by Ezra S. Stearns. (A. Williams & Co.) Although this seems to be a history that is purely local in its interests, it contains much matter of a general character relative to our early wars and the struggle for independence. The author has given an exhaustive history of Rindge and its inhabitants, its traditions and peculiarities, which must stand as a valuable contribution to centennial literature. It dates from 1736 to 1874, and has a complete genealogical register of the prominent or rather historical Rindge families. Illustrated by a number of portraits. 8vo, cloth, $4.

THE LEGENDS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION, by George Lippard. (T. B. Peterson & Bros.) A new edition of a book that created a good share of attention in its day. It can be read even now with both profit and pleasure, as it contains most graphic and vivid pictures of Washington and his generals, and the battles in which they were actors. 8vo, paper, $1.50; cloth, $2.

THE MYSTERIOUS ISLAND, by Jules Verne, translated from the French by W. H. G. Kingston. (Scribner, Armstrong & Co.) The three parts of this story—"Dropped from the Clouds," "Abandoned," "The Secret of the Island"—are here presented in one thick, bulky volume of over nine hundred pages, with one hundred and forty-five illustrations. This story is one of the most interesting for young people Jules Verne has written, and will take its place among such standard works as "Robinson Crusoe" and "Swiss Family Robinson;" indeed, it has been aptly called "a new Robinson Crusoe with all the modern improvements." We know that no one will take it up without finishing it, it is so full of exciting adventures and the most romantic incidents. The price of the volume is noticeably low, considering the size of it, its illustrations, and the exceedingly creditable manner in which it is presented typographically. Small 8vo, cloth, $3.

NATIONAL LESSON SCROLL. (Congregational Pub. Soc.) Intended to hang on the wall, and designed to furnish appropriate reading matter for every Sunday in the year, having on each page a text in large print, a Scripture lesson pointed out, and a verse of a hymn. $1.25.

THE GOLDEN FLEECE, by A. L. O. E. (Robert Carter & Bros.) Besides the story of "The Golden Fleece," so named from the heroine, a pretty little girl with a head of shining curls, whose life illustrates and exemplifies the truest principles of self-sacrifice, this volume contains also the story of "Zaida's Note-Book." 18mo, cloth, $1.50.

METEORS, from the French of Zürcher and Margollé, by William Lackland. (Scribner, Armstrong & Co.) "The Illustrated Library of Wonders," of which this is a volume, has had a deservedly great success. It embraces works on almost every scientific subject, and upon the many wonders in nature and art. They are written in a clear and interesting manner, and are thoroughly reliable. The present volume is devoted especially to meteors and atmospheric phenomena, produced by the varied and combined actions of the three elements—air, fire, and water. All the different conditions of the sky, the clouds, the rain, snow, and hail; whirlwinds, rainbows, and auroral lights, are described and explained. The volume contains about twenty-one illustrations. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

SILVER CASTLE, by Margaret E. Wilmer. (National Temperance Society and Publishing House.) A sequel to "The Dumb Traitor," and containing a further account of the characters introduced in that story. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

THE CAPTIVITY OF JUDAH. (Robert Carter & Brothers.) This is written by the author of "Peep of Day" and a number of other stories, founded upon portions of the Scriptures. The present volume tells how the Jews were taken captive for their sins, and, though related in the form of a story, the language is mostly scriptural. 16mo, cloth, $1.

COMFORT STRONG. (Robert Carter & Brothers.) Comfort Strong, who is the chief character in this story, is a revivalist preacher. She sacrifices her entire life to this one object—the reclaiming of sinners, and their final rehabilitation. The story opens with a camp-meeting, and has many other scenes of a similar nature; but it has also a very interesting story running through it. By the author of the "Win and Wear Series." 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

THE KING BEE'S DREAM, by Thomas Maxwell. (George A. Searcy & Co.) An address in rhyme, delivered last year before the "Druid City Literary Club," in the city of Tuscaloosa, Alabama. It is chiefly local in its interest, embodying legends and traditions of the Druids existing in the valley of the Cumberland, and of some of the Indians of Alabama. 12mo, cloth.

THINGS COMMON AND UNCOMMON, by Mary Dwinell Chellis. (Congregational Pub. Soc.) Instruction and amusement are here combined in a very ingenious and pleasant manner. In a very pretty story a variety of conversations occur between the characters about facts in nature which are not very profound, but which many young people do not know, and will probably pick up more quickly in this way than in any other. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

THREE GIRLS, by Mrs. M. F. Bates. (Congregational Pub. Soc.) The characters of three young girls in different ranks of society are contrasted in this story, which also relates all the various incidents of their home and school life, and their pleasures and disappointments. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

We have received in the "Vest-Pocket Series" published by James R. Osgood & Co., "Lady Geraldine's Courtship" by Elizabeth Barrett Browning, "A Christmas Carol" by Charles Dickens, "The Deserted Village and The Traveller" by Oliver Goldsmith, and "The Vision of Sir Launfal" by James Russell Lowell. These tiny volumes contain most excellent reading, and have become very popular. Bound in flexible cloth covers, 50 cents each.

ERSILIA. (Henry Holt & Co.) Almost the entire action of this novel takes place in France, the characters being mostly English, though there is also a good share of the foreign element. The story of "Ersilia, Princess Zarai-kine," is a sad one, though charmingly written, and full of an intense interest which holds the reader to the very end. The strong point in the novel is the delineation of character, that of the heroine being drawn with considerable pathos and power. "Leisure Hour Series." 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

PASSAGES FROM THE FRENCH AND ITALIAN NOTE-BOOKS of Nathaniel Hawthorne. (James R. Osgood & Co.) Just issued in the new popular edition of Hawthorne's works uniform with "Little Classics." 2 vols., cloth, $1.25 per vol.

PRACTICAL INSTRUCTION IN THE ART OF WOOD-ENGRAVING, by William A. Emerson. (Charles J. Batcheller.) Any one desiring to learn the art of wood-engraving without an instructor, will find this little book exceedingly useful. It explains in the most minute manner the different steps in the art, the tools to be used and how to use them, together with a history of the art, from its origin to the present time. Illustrated throughout. 16mo, paper, 50 cents.

THE ABBOT, AND THE MONASTERY, by Scott. (E. J. Hale & Son.) The latest additions to Hale's pretty "Thistle Edition" of Scott. This is one of the most attractive editions of Scott in the market; it is every thing that can be desired typographically, is beautifully illustrated, and is very tastefully bound in green cloth, with a stamp on the front cover which is very appropriate, a medallion head of Scott surrounded by thistles. 16mo, cloth, each in 2 vols., $1.50 per vol.

LIBRARY AND BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTES.

THE second part of the government library volume is completed, with the exception of the index. The first part, the manual for librarians, is going through the press.

MR. SPURGEON, the English clergyman, has published a little bibliography of the Bible, called "Commenting and Commentaries," in which he gives titles, etc., of Bible-helps, with his own views as to their relative worth. It is put on the market at half a crown—which does not cover cost of production.

IN a paper read by Mr. R. S. Guernsey, before the New-York Genealogical and Biographical Society, some very interesting information is given relative to the military bibliography of the United States. Besides the "Army and Navy Registers" published since 1815, and a number of unofficial lists of the officers of the army and navy who served from 1789 to 1853, some very important works have been issued. In 1869 General Guy B. Henry published the first volume of a work entitled "Military Record of Civilians appointed in the United States Army," relating chiefly to our late Civil War. The second volume of this work appeared only a short time ago, and the work is not yet completed. The government has also published at Washington, in eight volumes, an "Official Army Register of all the Officers of the Volunteer Forces, from April, 1861, to the Disbanding of that branch of the Service in 1865." In 1870 a work of great importance was issued, compiled by Lewis R. Hamersly, and entitled "The Record of Living Officers of the United States Navy and Marine Corps, with a History of Naval Operations during the Rebellion of 1861-5, and a List of the Ships and Officers Participating in the Great Battles." The record of the heroes of '76 is as yet rather meagre; the most extensive compilation relative to this time is that of W. T. R. Saffell, of Baltimore, published in 1858, "Records of the Revolutionary War," containing innumerable lists of officers, regiments, companies, etc. Mr. Guernsey mentions besides a number of state publications especially devoted to our late war, and "A Roll of Honor" published in 25 volumes at the expense of the National Government, and containing the record of over 330,000 graves of deceased Union soldiers.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE London Catalogue of Periodicals, giving the names of all the newspapers and periodicals published in London, their prices, days and places of publication, most carefully compiled, has just been published by Messrs. Longmans & Co.

THROUGH a mistake made at The Galaxy office, an article entitled "Provençal Song," by Mrs. Maria E. McKaye, of Cambridge, Mass., appears in the present number with the name of T. W. Higginson appended, that gentleman being merely the medium through whom it was sent to the editors. The error was not discovered till the magazine had been printed and bound.

JOURNALISTS are on the "free-list" in Japan in unprecedented measure. A recent decree of the Mikado gives complete freedom of postage to journalists, each of whom is now allowed to send whatever communication he may think fit from one part of the empire to the other, free of expense.

BUSINESS NOTES.

THE firm of Bolza & Reynolds, Muskegon, Mich., has resolved itself into its component parts, Adolph Bolza continuing the business at the old stand, and F. L. Reynolds in Mason's Block, Western avenue, as before stated.

L. T. KANTERS & Co., booksellers and stationers, Holland, Mich., have dissolved.

MR. JOHN S. E. ROGERS, Gloucester, Mass., has failed. Liabilities in the neighborhood of $10,000.

S. E. NICHOLS, successor to Nichols & Allen, Pittsfield, Mass., offers his business, a thriving book, music and stationery store, for sale. Attention is called to his advertisement in another column, wherein all the particulars will be found.

WE obtain via England a report of the recent annual meeting of the "Lovell Printing and Publishing Co.," which runs the establishment at Rouse's Point. The report showed, after deducting the large amount expended in organizing the company and establishing the branch business at Rouse's Point, the net profits to be £4800. From this a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent was declared, leaving £1200 to be carried forward. It was announced that the works at Rouse's Point, which have been organized on a large scale, were in full running order, and that arrangements had been concluded for a large amount of work for the coming year. Mr. Sydney Bellingham, M.P.P., was elected President; Mr. Charles Garth, Vice-President; Mr. John Lovell, Managing Director; and Mr. Robert K. Lovell, Secretary-Treasurer.

THE new postal bill provides that third-class shall be charged for at rates depending on distance, one cent per two ounces for less than 300 miles; two cents for 300-800 miles; three cents for 800-1500 miles, and one cent per two ounces additional for each additional thousand miles thereover. Transient newspapers and magazines will be carried at one cent per two ounces under, and two cents over 1000 miles. In case of an insufficient prepayment, matter will be forwarded at a charge of double the deficiency.

STATIONERY NOTES.

TRADE for the past week seems to have improved on the preceding one, and the trade generally seems to be more hopeful of doing a larger spring trade than they anticipated. Many in the trade say their business so far this season is much better than it was for the same season last year.

HARDING'S NEW CATALOGUE. W. W. Harding, Philadelphia, has now ready his new spring catalogue of Bibles and photograph albums. New editions of pulpit and family Bibles, and new lines of albums are prominent features of his already extended list. The reputation of this house for excellence in taste and workmanship is well established. Being the pioneer house in this branch of the trade in this country, it still leads the van in the production of goods of the highest standard. Mr. William T. Amies, late of the firm of John E. Potter & Co., has the personal care of the manufacturing department. Mr. Amies' long experience in the business and his knowledge of the wants of the trade in all sections of the country, together with the unrivalled facilities of this house for the production of fine stock, is a guarantee that purchasers will be suited both in quality and prices.

KIGGINS, TOOKER & Co., blank-book manufacturers, 125 William street, New-York, have a new line of exercise-books. They are entirely different from any thing now on the market, and made in stiff and flexible covers of steel-blue paper, with a handsome gilt border; in the centre of the cover is a variety of handsome lithographed pictures, comprising fruit, flowers, etc., making a very tasty cover. They are made in three sizes and prices, ranging from $2.25 to $4.50 per dozen. This house is always adding something new to their already large line.

THE decision given by the Examiner of Patents in the United States Patent-Office, rendered on the 20th of January, in favor of a patent for the Eagle Pencil Co., for the ink and copying crayons, has, after appeal, been unanimously confirmed by the full board of examiners of the U. S. Patent-Office in favor of the Eagle Pencil Co.

A WELL-KNOWN house in the card business has issued a new line of very cheap goods. The sample reads:

"The meanest thing out.
"Bowen's Bristol."

Comment is unnecessary.

WE understand that the business of the late Geo. H. Reay will be continued by Mrs. Reay, who is well qualified by education and experience to carry it on, and whom the trade will wish all success.

MR. FRANK W. BAYNUM, of Slote, Woodman & Co., has just returned from his trip West. He reports a very fair trade.

CHARLES SMALL, with Cutter, Tower & Co., has just returned from his Southern trip.

OUR attention has been called to the Memorial Inkstand, which is an exact fac-simile of Memorial Hall, handsomely cast in antique and green bronze. The stand contains three wells, the dome being the cover of the centre one, the terrace forming a convenient pen-tray with cover. The general design of the stand is finely executed, and the whole forms one of the cheapest and most useful souvenirs of the Centennial. Price, $1.50 retail; $12.50 per dozen to the trade. It is patented and manufactured by Wm. D. Bennage, Jr., 47 North 9th street, Philadelphia.

PH. HAKE, manufacturer and dealer in cardboard, will remove to the elegant building corner of William and Ann streets, consisting of store and four floors. He will occupy the premises on or about the 1st of May, and will then have all his different departments under one roof.

THE Morgan Paper and Envelope Company, Springfield, Mass., have just issued some new and novel styles of papeteries. Mr. Van Horn, their Western traveller, has just returned from the West, having had an unusually successful trip.

MESSRS. TIBBITTS & RANDALL, of Providence, R. I., have secured a copyright on music paper, by the adaptation of machine ruling to paper or any other article upon which music staves may be ruled by machinery.

THE "Masonic" Inkstand, manufactured by the Schindler & French Mfg. Co., West Meriden, Ct., is the latest article in this line, and is having a rapid sale.

THE "Van Horn Binder," to fit over a common wirefile, thus binding the papers immediately, is a little article very useful and extremely cheap. Wm. H. Woglom, 239 Greenwich street, is the agent. Samples sent on application.

WILSON BROTHERS have just patented a new method for bordering paper, which is cheaper and more rapid in manufacture.

MESSRS. GEORGE M. JACOBS & CO., 121 Duane street, have published some elaborate designs in Centennial mottoes. Samples by mail.

LIEBENROTH, VON AUW & Co. will shortly publish a new autograph album, which, it is promised, will surpass all former productions.

MORA, the artistic photographer, 707 Broadway, is producing some elegant specimens of the art. His line of celebrities is large and salable.

RODNEY CHIPP, Newark, N. J., will occupy a new and elegant store on Broad street, April 1st.

J. A. MCQUILLAN, of Pott, Young & Co., has returned from his Western trip.

OBITUARY.

THE funeral of the late George H. Reay took place on Thursday, the 16th inst., from the North Dutch Church, Clermont avenue, Brooklyn, and was conducted by the Rev. Dr. A. R. Thompson, an old friend of the family, assisted by the Rev. Wm. B. Merritt. The services were of the most solemn character. After the church services were performed, Ivanhoe Lodge, No. 610, F. & A. M., paid a last tribute to its dead, after the impressive Masonic ritual. The trade, notwithstanding the very inclement weather, was very largely represented, for Mr. Reay was loved by all.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

ROBERTS BROTHERS, of Boston, make some additions to their spring announcements, which are of the utmost interest. Rev. Edward Abbott, the author of the Paragraph Histories, will contribute another volume to Centennial literature, "Revolutionary Times; Sketches of our Country, the People, and Their Ways, One Hundred Years Ago." This will be of handy size, so as to be read on the cars on the way to the Exhibition, and will treat of the Colonies, topographically and geographically, the chief cities of that day, the notable families and public men, the architecture of the day, and its social, intellectual and religious life. There will be also a volume of the discourses of the late President Walker of Harvard, a new volume by Rev. R. Laird Collier, lately settled in Boston, "Meditations on the Essence of Christianity," and Mr. John Weiss' brilliant lectures, "Wit, Humor, and Shakespeare." It is good news for summer readers that "Susan Coolidge" (Miss Woolsey) will collect into one volume her "Stories for Summer Afternoons." Another interesting book on the list is "The Art Schools of Mediæval Christendom," by A. C. Owen, which Mr. Ruskin edits.

PROF. L. NOA, an erudite German, now living in Boston, has translated into English verse Goethe's "Roman Elegies," which Shoenhoff & Moeller will shortly publish in a square 16mo volume of about 60 pages. Prof. Noa's command of English is quite remarkable, and his little work will have a positive value.

"SEPTIMUS FELTON" is the next volume in the "Little Classic" edition of Hawthorne. It is the eighteenth; the three juvenile books, which are by no means the least delightful of Hawthorne's writings, will complete this tasteful edition.

A NEW edition of Miss Amanda M. Douglas' works in uniform style is just ready at Lee & Shepard's, and her new story, "Nelly Kinnard's Kingdom," will be added to it shortly.

MR. LOVERING, of Boston, was last week the victim of an adroit thief, Asa J. Smith by name, who it seems had been appropriating his books for some time, as, upon arresting him, pawn tickets were found in a pocket-book which he dropped, representing in value about $25 worth of books.

THE "Little Classic" edition of Hawthorne has proved so successful that Osgood & Co. propose to bring out Emerson's works in the same taking style. This will introduce the "Concord Philosopher" to a new circle of readers, who—if we mistake not—will find that philosophy, as dispensed by Mr. Emerson, is wonderfully interesting.

THE advertisement in the Boston papers now reads:

9999 VOLUMES,

More or less, of New and Old Books, selling for

10 CENTS—15 CENTS—25 CENTS,

50 CENTS—75 CENTS—100 CENTS

Apiece, from ——— GREAT BANKRUPT STOCK, at

— AND — WASHINGTON STREET.

Books were never sold so cheap before.

This is not so objectionable an announcement, certainly, in form, but it can not be pleasing to those of the trade who are meaning to pay their hundred cents on the dollar.

OVER 1,700,000 copies of various works by Bishop Oxenden, the Metropolitan of Canada are said to have been sold by his English publishers. They are mostly, however, little volumes or tracts.

Two more novelettes by Florence Marryat are just ready in Loring's new series of "Tales of the Day"—"A Lucky Disappointment" and "A Star and Heart."

G. W. CARLETON & Co. are to make up "John Paul's" (C. H. Webb) Tribune summer letters into a book, "John Paul's Vacation," and will also issue his burlesques, "St. Twel'mo," "Liffith Lank," "The Wickedest Woman in New-York," together in a single volume.

A LITERARY novelty is forthcoming in the shape of a new translation of a couple of Jules Vernes' well-known stories, "De la Terre à la Lune" and "Autour de la Lune," to be issued by Mr. Lawrence Kehoe of the Catholic Pub. Soc., for the translator, Mr. Edward Roth, under the titles of "The Baltimore Club" and "All around the Moon." The idea the translator has had in view is certainly a novel one; whether it will render the stories any more acceptable to young readers than they are at present remains to be seen. Mr. Roth's plan has been to make the works perfectly reliable as scientific treatises, hence he has done no end of outside work, such as supplying about a hundred pages of original matter to complete and elucidate certain passages, in recasting sentences, correcting blunders, and interpolating words where he thought necessary to brighten up and add new sprightliness to the text.

IN the preface to "Ishmael," Mrs. Southworth's latest volume, just issued by the Petersons, which was published in the New-York Ledger under the title of "Self-Made" some years since, but not before in volume form, she says: "This story, in book form, has been called for, by thousands, during several years past, but the author has reserved it until 1876, as her contribution to the Centennial; not only because she considers it to be her very best work, but because it is peculiarly a national novel, being founded on the life and career of one of the noblest of our countrymen, who really lived, suffered, toiled, and triumphed in this land; one whose inspirations of wisdom and goodness were drawn from the examples of the heroic warriors and statesmen of the Revolution, and whose life is a guiding star to the youth of every land, to show them that there is no depth of human misery from which they may not, by virtue, energy, and perseverance, rise to earthly honors as well as to eternal glory."

MR. STEIGER is to add to his series of Kindergarten publications a volume of "Rhymes and Tales for the Kindergarten and Nursery," collected and revised by Miss Alma L. Kreig, one of the most competent Kindergartners in this country. We are glad to note, in this connection, the deserved compliment paid by Rev. Edward Eggleston, in his Scribner article on the Kindergarten, to Mr. Steiger, for his good work in behalf of the better education of the little people.

SPEAKING of Mr. Geo. P. Lathrop's recent magazine work on American writers, the Tribune says: "In addition to his critical paper on early American novelists, in the Atlantic, Mr. Geo. P. Lathrop will have in the April Scribner's an article on 'Poe, Irving, Hawthorne.' The younger men at Cambridge are giving promise of good work in the critical study of English and American literature. Mr. Horace E. Scudder has prepared a course of lectures in the narrower field, and has been delivering them during the winter, and Mr. Arthur Gilman has a similar course in the wider field. The eleventh edition of the latter's brief history of English literature will soon be published by A. S. Barnes & Co., to whose catalogue the book has been transferred, with a new introduction of some importance."

WE have the cheering wish from a house in the northern part of New-York, "that your success may equal your merits." We are not sure that we would be willing to be treated just according to our deserts: still we appreciate the kind thought, which is emphasized by the statement, "we would rather go without our dinner once a week than fail to receive your welcome visits."

THE French publishers, says the Tribune, have also taken to the "series" system, and a recent enterprise of the Charpentier house takes in the cotemporary literatures of the several European countries. M. Odysse Barrot is the writer of the study of present English literature. M. Charles Louandre has published three volumes of picked French tales, dating from the thirteenth to the nineteenth century, which are said to include all the best specimens of French vivacity and Gallic humor. M. G. Lafenestre is to publish likewise three volumes of select Italian tales.

UNDER the title of "Empreint Bindings" Messrs. Collins, Sons & Co. have introduced into the English market a new style of binding for Bibles and prayer-books, which is selling very largely, mostly in Persian morocco, as a cheap fine binding. The novelty lies in introducing thick bevelled boards and countersinking the centre; colored and gilt monograms or titles are introduced into the hollow, and the books thus bound have a massive, attractive appearance.

MESSRS. SPOTTISWOODE have in preparation a new quarto Bible for use in family reading and in the study. The marginal references and notes are edited by Rev. Alex. Taylor, of Queen's College, Oxford, and are strictly exegetical.

MR. FREDERICK MOY THOMAS has been entrusted with the work of making the authorized translation of M. Guizot's posthumous "History of England," which Estes & Lauriat are to publish here.

MR. WILLIAM BLACK's new story, "Lady Silverdale's Sweetheart," forming, with other tales, one volume, of the usual library form, will be published by Messrs. Sampson Low & Co. early in March.

A NEW work by W. R. Greg, "Mistaken Aims and Attainable Ideals of the Artisan Class," is just ready in London from the press of Messrs. Trübner.

MR. JENKINS' temperance brochure, "The Devil's Chain," published here by Harper & Brothers, has reached 10,000 copies in England.

THE fac-simile Bibles recently issued in several sizes by the Oxford University Press, embody a clever idea. The printing is so arranged that the page of one edition is an exact fac-simile of the other, and those who become accustomed to the special spot or place in which certain passages and chapters are to be found, can pass from one edition to another (as when age requires a larger print) without losing this cue. The fac-simile Bibles are furnished with maps and other accessories.

A TRANSLATION of George Eliot's new novel, "Daniel Deronda," is published in a Russian periodical.

RIO JANEIRO seems to be a great bibliographical centre. The American bookseller who is to have charge of the French Centennial display comes from there, and now a Rio Janeiro publisher has found out that Mr. Disraeli is the author of "The Battle of Dorking," since he gives his name on the title-page of the translation.

MR. F. T. PALGRAVE states that it is not an edition of Herrick's poems, but only a selection, that he proposes for the "Golden Treasury" series. Mr. Grosart, it may be added, has in the press a critical edition, with full notes and biography so far as ascertainable, for Messrs. Chatto & Windus' series of Early English Poets.

HUMORS OF THE TRADE.

AN order was received yesterday in our wholesale department for "1 Boyd's Paradise Lost." The clerk filling it, who is noted among the employees for his delight in dime novel literature, forwarded the following "mem" to his customer: "1 Boyd's Paradise Lost we can't find in the city; we have the (sic) Milton's Paradise Lost, if that will do." * * *

THE PUBLISHERS' TRADE-LIST ANNUAL FOR 1875

is now ready, containing the new LISTS of one hundred and fifty-five American Publishing Houses (four more than last year), a GENERAL INDEX to the prominent books in the same, embracing about 14,000 titles, Indexes to MEDICAL and LAW BOOKS, with about eight hundred titles each, and the complete AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE, for 1875, with 7000 titles more, the series guiding the bookseller or reader to the full entries of over 22,000 books.

The addition of these Indexes makes the work absolutely indispensable to the bookseller, causing it to displace entirely the previous Annual. By keeping a copy of this work on his counter at the service of the customer, like a directory, the bookseller will do much to promote his trade. The librarian and the general reader will also find the ANNUAL most valuable in guiding them to the wide range of American literature.

The orders previous to publication day having been supplied at the usual nominal rate, the price of the work, as previously announced, is now put, to cover the cost of making the Indexes, at the following rates:

To the trade,	$2.00 per copy.
To the general public,	2.50 "

The volume being too large for the mails, directions for forwarding through jobbers or for expressage, which must be paid on delivery, must accompany each order. The volume is forwarded at our risk by express only.

TRY THE IMPROVED METHOD OF PLAYING CROQUET.

Patented September 25, 1875.

Vexillo is simply an improvement on Croquet; the players have an additional interest, however, as each one has a flag to secure, making the game far more exciting and interesting.

Expert Croquet Players, in various parts of the country, who have carefully examined into the merits of Vexillo, pronounce it the best game in the market.

INDESTRUCTIBLE CROQUET, WITH RUBBER-FACED MALLETS.

Patent applied for.

Special attention is called to this new style of Croquet. By the use of a RUBBER FACE the Mallet is rendered INDESTRUCTIBLE, and prevents the Balls from being split or even dented in playing. A more scientific game can be played with this style of Croquet than with any other, as the RUBBER FACE on the Mallet gives a certain elasticity to the stroke, besides CAROM SHOTS can be made as in Billiards.

MARCH BOOKS.

SIGHTS AND INSIGHTS.

By Mrs. A. D. T. WHITNEY.

3 vols. 12mo. $3.

This is Mrs. WHITNEY's longest story, and will probably be accounted her best. It opens in New-England, but the scene soon changes to Europe and continues there. Charming descriptions of picturesque scenery, and a delightful love story form the warp and woof of these volumes. Mrs. WHITNEY's characteristic humor, vivacity, sunny cheerfulness, and rich vein of thoughtful suggestion, are conspicuous in this story, and will win for her fresh admiration.

VIOLET-LE-DUC'S NEW BOOK.

THE HABITATIONS OF MAN IN ALL AGES.

1 vol., 8vo. Uniform with "The Annals of a Fortress," "The Story of a House."

Fully illustrated. $5.

In this book Viollet-le-Duc gives the history of the structure of human dwellings among the Aryans, Hindoos, Chinese, Assyrians, Greeks, Romans, French, and other nations. It is treated with the skill of a master, yet is not technical or statistical, but fresh and suggestive, as are all of Viollet-le-Duc's works. The illustrations are admirable and greatly enhance the value of the book.

ISHMAEL; OR,
IN THE DEPTHS.*BY MRS. EMMA D. E. N. SOUTHWORTH.*With a Portrait of Mrs. Emma D. E. N. Southworth, engraved on steel, by Illman Brothers, from a photograph taken of her on March 22d, 1876, giving a Perfect Life-like Likeness of Mrs. Southworth at the present time, with her Autograph under it.*Complete in one large Duodecimo Volume of 700 pages, uniform with Mrs. Southworth's other works.
Price $1.75, bound in Morocco Cloth, Gilt Back.

"ISHMAEL; OR, IN THE DEPTHS," is the name of Mrs. Emma D. E. N. Southworth's greatest work, to be published in book form, on Saturday, April 15th, by T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia. It is the best work ever written by Mrs. Southworth, and has never been published except in the "New-York Ledger," in which paper it was issued many years since, under the name of "SELF-MADE; OR, OUT OF THE DEPTHS," but it is now in press, and will be issued in a few days, in book form, for the first time. Mrs. Southworth, in the preface to "Ishmael," says: "This story, in book form, has been called for by thousands upon thousands of readers during several years past, but the author has reserved it until 1876 as her contribution to the Centennial; not only because she considers it to be her best work, but because it is peculiarly a National Novel, being founded on the life and career of one of the noblest of our countrymen, who really lived, suffered, toiled, and triumphed in this land." It will have an immense sale. Send in your orders at once for it, so as to get them by the day of publication.

T. B. Peterson & Brothers have also just issued a new, uniform, and complete edition of all the popular works written by Mrs. EMMA D. E. N. SOUTHWORTH, in forty volumes. This edition is in duodecimo form, and is printed in the best style, on the finest white paper, and each volume is bound in the very best manner, in morocco cloth, with a full gilt back, and is sold at the low price of $1.75 a volume, or $70 for a complete set, each set being put up in a neat and strong box. The American Catalogue Department has sent circulars requesting information to all publishers whose names could be obtained, the list reaching over a thousand. If there are any of the trade who have published one or more books, now in print and for sale, who have not received such a circular, we should be greatly indebted if they would communicate at once with the American Catalogue Department and obtain the circular giving the directions for the sending of the information.

NOTES IN SEASON.

LET us remind the trade that talk about going to the Convention is now in order. The gathering this year will be one of the most important yet held, because it will have to deal with the issues brought out by a full year's experiment with the reform rules, and we shall be greatly disappointed if every interest in the trade and every section is not represented in full at Niagara. Get ready to pack up, brethren.

THE "Stationers' Hand-Book" being ready for delivery, subscribers who have not yet instructed us how to despatch their copies, will please to do so without delay. We hold ourselves responsible only for copies sent by express, or for copies delivered at our office. Subscribers who wish to have their copies sent by enclosure, should send their orders directly to their jobbing houses. If to be sent by mail, 37 cents per copy for postage should be enclosed with order. The price to non-subscribers is $1.50. The volume contains a number of interesting articles on the several specialties of the trade, written by experts, invaluable to stationers; a very extensive order-list, compiled by Mr. Yohn; and a number of the most valuable lists in the trade, bound up therewith. No stationer can afford to be without it.

ONE of the most important of the London books for the year has been received by Scribner, Welford & Armstrong, George Rawlinson's great work on "The Seventh Oriental Monarchy." It is a sumptuous book in its manner, and in its matter one of the most important recent volumes in archæology, dealing with the great Sassanian Empire. It is fully illustrated with maps and cuts. A number of other interesting English books, including Lindsay's "History of Commerce," are advertised elsewhere by this house.

THE Putnams expect to publish Mr. Tuttle's "German Political Leaders" before the middle of April, and with it will come the new novel "Wych Hazel" by the Misses Warner, whose names are sure to attract hosts of buyers for any new book to follow "Queechy," and "The Wide, Wide World." Dr. Frothingham's "History of Transcendentalism in New-England" will be ready shortly after. It will contain a steel portrait of the author.

THE next instalment of the "Vest-Pocket Series" will include Coleridge's "Ancient Mariner," which never grows old, and Dr. John Brown's two most famous sketches, "Rab and his Friends," and "Marjorie Fleming." The beauty of these little volumes, their excellent type, and the choice character of their contents make them general favorites, and they will doubtless be in great demand during the travelling and vacation seasons.

SCRIBNER, ARMSTRONG & Co. will publish during the month their most important books of the spring season. The first volume of the "Sans Souci Series" is expected to be ready about the 15th; also, the memoir of Dr. McLeod, which has been so successful in England that the first edition was exhausted before it was off the press, and a copy was ordered by the Queen for each of the royal family; and the interesting compilation of the "Best Thoughts of Plato." The sixth volume of the "Speaker's Commentary," a new "Epochs" book on "The Age of Elizabeth," and another volume in the new series of the "Wonder Library," that on "Arms and Armor," may also be expected during the month.

Two interesting volumes of travel are just in at Macmillan & Co.'s. One of these is Dr. Anderson's book on Western China, called "Mandalay and Momien," which is in excellent shape, valuable, and well illustrated. The other is "My Circular Notes," by Mr. Campbell, a circumnavigator who has illustrated his book with his own pencil. The cover of this book is decorated with a fac-simile of what is known as Adam's foot-print in Ceylon. There were giants in those days, for the pedal extremity of our first ancestor was, according to the Ceylonites, a trifle under six feet in length.

ROBERTS BROTHERS will shortly publish the volume by Rev. R. Laird Collier, "Meditations on the Essence of Christianity," announced in our last. It will be too earnest to be controversial, and those who can lay aside theological prepossessions, and listen sincerely to the best thoughts of a sincere mind, will gain much of strength and inspiration from these "Meditations."

Mr. Widdleton's special sale of Poe's Works brought the following prices, first lots being of 5. second 10, third 20, fourth 40.

500 Complete Works. 8°, about 700 pp. $2.50, ($1.25' $1.10-90-80).
500 Diamond Poems. $1.25, (75c.-65-60-55, balance to Lee & Shepard.)
50 Memorial volumes. 8°. $2.25. ($1.25, $1.20).
50 Prose Tales. 2 vols., 16°, Gt. top. $1.75, (90-87½).
50 Blue and Gold Poems. 32°. $1.25. (60-65).
100 Complete Works. 4 vols., Cr. 8°. $9, (per vol. $1.20- $1.12½).

The remainder lots offered by Roberts Bros. ran about 10 to 15 per cent of the retail price. In Lockwood, Brooks & Co.'s invoice, about 2000 copies of Mr. Hale's and other stories, 6 vols., 8vo, paper, 50c., brought 2c. each, which was the price also for Bushnell's "God's Thoughts." Five large-paper copies of Samuel's "Birds of New-England," pp. 591, $25, brought $12.50-$10. On Putnam's invoice, 50 each of Mrs. Ames' "Eirene," $1.25, brought 14c.; "Treasures of the Earth," $2.50, 55c.; "Keys of the Creeds," $1.25, 15c.; "Hinton's "Health and its Conditions," $1.25, 10c., etc. Two lines of Irving, $1.75-$2.50, brought 50 to 80c. per vol. Nine lines, 40 to 50 each, of Bayard Taylor's novels and travels, 12mo., $2, brought 30-50c. There was a good deal of fun over Dana & Wilson's "Life of Grant," which the author has done much to depreciate since he wrote it. There were 250 copies, $2.50, $3, $4, started "by a Democrat," at half a cent apiece, and knocked down at 32½c., 40-35c., 57½c., chiefly to Mr. Lee,— "as a campaign document for the Democratic General Committee of Massachusetts," cried some one. Lines of 5 and 10 from Worthington's stock went low, the art books better, and considerable lines of remainders from Estes & Lauriat did not bring a fortune. There were some other invoices of interest, but we can not take the space for further quotation.

The Publishers' Weekly.

APRIL 1, 1876.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry and for notice in "Books Received."

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries." Notes from librarians will also be gratefully received.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

THE SPRING FAIR AND THE BOOK FAIR SYSTEM.

THE Spring Fair can not be called a success. The sales were not large enough to justify the trouble most of the houses took in contributing, and there were scarcely enough buyers present to fulfill the secondary object of the Fair—the showing of goods and personal consultation of different classes of the trade. The main question is, of course, what is the significance of this Fair as to the general usefulness of the Fair system?

In the first place, let us give thanks that the old trade-sale auction system was not in vogue this spring. If there is any thing commercially disastrous it is the flooding a market which wants little or nothing. The prices obtained at the remainder sale, where the supply was so limited as to permit buyers to bid and order freely, were so small as to show conclusively that a general trade auction would have been a disaster to the houses contributing, as well as in the long run to the buying houses overloading themselves with stock. The result would have been to prolong indefinitely the evils from which the trade has been recently suffering, but which it hopes to get rid of by the approaching fall. The truth of it is that the spring is so dull that buyers are wise in not attempting to lay in much stock. They could not afford therefore to come on to the Spring Fair, nor could they have bought much if they had come.

We do not think, therefore, that the non-success of the present Fair is at all an argument against the system. It will be a success as soon as the tide turns, and buying and selling books in any way is a success. The first Fair gave very good results, although it was soon evident that it was held at the wrong time. Of the Supplementary Fair little was expected, and it fulfilled its promise. But, taking everything into account, there is good evidence that the non-success of the respective fairs has been the result of a mistaken time of holding them, or of the apathy of the season in which they were held. The system, like other features of the reform, has suffered from the general dullness since the reform was started, and as we have said, it is perhaps better that this friction should occur in dull times, and be over and done with when better times come and the trade is ready to go to work again on better methods. Then the reform generally will become a triumphant success, the more certain for the difficulties it has encountered in these days.

Nevertheless, there are a good many points about the Fair which need to be discussed or emphasized. In the first place, if we are to have a general gathering of the trade at these Fairs, there must be definite inducements for distant buyers to come to New-York at that time—inducements which are not offered at any time between the Fairs. It is proposed that distant buyers may be permitted to purchase at the Spring Fair on orders by mail; but as a prime purpose of the Fair system is to bring buyers together and show goods, we are by no means sure but it would be best on all sides to let the Spring Fair go, and hold one great trade gathering in the fall. Certainly at this Fall Fair, the event of the year, we must have the trade together; and then it must be an object not only for the trade to come at that time, but to buy at the Fair itself rather than at the stores. There has already been some evasion of the Fair commission by those who have come to purchase at it, and the easiest way to do away with this wrong is to take away the temptation. The Messrs. Harpers have so far sold the most important bills at the Fair, not simply because they were the largest house, but because they offer inducements which can not be had at any other place or at any other time, and the trade are absolutely certain that this is the case. We are glad to learn that Messrs. James R. Osgood & Co., also announce their determination to follow this rule strictly, and some of the other houses have adhered, or will hereafter adhere, to the same principle. This is the one thing needed; and if the publishers in general will spurn offers made at the Fair, to "call at the store and divide the commission," and stand on the straight platform of doing the best they can for the Fair, and making a trial of its usefulness, we have no doubt of its becoming a permanent and thoroughly valuable feature. If, on the other hand, the publishing trade are ready to come down on discounts at any time in the year, to any one who beckons, they not only can not expect to bring buyers to the Fair, but they must calculate also that buyers will be forever holding off for "better terms."

Another point much discussed is the question of the commission. The seven per cent seems to be a good deal in the way, especially of those houses who prefer to do their own banking business. A great many also decidedly object to the system of indorsed notes, which was, to be sure, a feature of the old trade-sales, but is in one aspect a serious evil. If A seeks an indorsement from B for his note, he is morally bound to give B his own indorsement when there is need, and the call may come when A is least able to stand it. This is an evident reason why houses which are absolutely strong, and which can obtain any indorsement they require, object to this feature of the Fair. It is certainly promotive of some of the most unfortunate evils of the old credit system, and must remain open to serious objection.

We submit, therefore, that it is worth while to discuss the plan of separating the banking department from the Fair proper to the extent of leaving it optional with sellers whether they will deal with their buyers directly or through the Messrs. Leavitt. It is alleged by some that the chief difficulty here would be the desire to avoid giving offence to any houses by refusing to accept their individual credit. Let us say right here that this fear of giving offence to people who are not deserving of credit has been one of the most fertile sources alike of the difficulties in the trade, and of the corruption in the country, and it is time that merchants should recognize this fact. If a man is not worthy of credit, he must be given to understand it, and then the men who are worthy of credit will have the honest advantage which they deserve. We have no doubt that under an optional system the larger part of the business would still be done through the Messrs. Leavitt, but it would take away the objection that is put forth from some quarters against the Fair, and allow the objecting houses to do as they pleased.

There has been talk in some quarters of doing the business of the Fair directly through an agent of the Association, who should be paid a salary for that purpose. Those who have acquainted themselves with the work and the responsibility which the Fair involves, will easily see that this can not be done except a salary were paid which should be sufficient to remunerate a man of very high business talent and assured responsibility, and the present method is by all means the more economical. We would suggest, indeed, for the consideration of the trade, that the best plan might be to pay the present managers a good round sum to cover the actual expenses of the Fair, and a liberal profit into the bargain, of which they would be assured, sales or no sales. This might be divided pro rata among the houses contributing, either in proportion to the amount of books exhibited, or the amount of business done. There would then be no tendency to shirk selling at the Fair because of the commission, and the endeavor would of course be to sell all the goods possible there. The managers might then, on their own account, as a house of large capital and assured responsibility, continue the banking business of the Fair just as they do now. It is our belief that this might be made more profitable, both to them and to the trade, and it is important that the question should receive a full and candid discussion.

SINCE the above was written the great sale of the Messrs. Osgood has taken place and has brightened the market considerably. The total mounted up beyond all expectations, and the publishers are going home to mark up their stereotype plates on their books. It is to be hoped that they will not go too far in this direction and come to grief. The tendency of the sale, of which we give very extended report elsewhere, will be to strengthen the trade very considerably. The Messrs. Osgood, it is universally conceded, have been wise in making the sale, because, although their remaining list of 800 volumes is by no means small, it is now comparatively compact and much more easily handled. Mr. Osgood's announcement, spoken of above, that he proposed to maintain his discounts rigidly until the next fair, will, with the results of this sale, give them a very strong position in the trade, a position which will add strength to the trade itself. There is of course one drawback, that the large quantities of stock thrown on the market will tend to break prices on most of the books so offered. That is to say, such books will for a time be likely to go into clearance lists, on which prices can not be maintained under any rules. This, however, is an incidental evil connected with any clearance sale, and that millennium will never come when everything will work to the absolute satisfaction of everybody. As it is, there is hearty reason to congratulate alike the Messrs. Osgood and the trade at large on this sale and its excellent results.

MR. JUSTIN WINSOR, whose practical experience in the management of the Boston Library should give his opinion the greatest weight with the trade, makes to us the practical suggestion that publishers should insert in the books they send out a bibliographical record of the title, etc., on uniform-sized slips of stiff paper. These would serve the triple purpose of a registry for editors, libraries, and booksellers, and would be of the greatest convenience to all these classes; or this record might be printed at the top of a sheet, the lower part of which should be filled with advertisements of forthcoming publications, or, still better, with a clear summary of the contents of the book, for the information of the bookseller in selling the book, and of the editor who has time to notice it but briefly. Such slips would take the place of the present advertising, editorial and other inserts, and would be of tenfold value. We propose to follow this suggestion up, and shall possibly present to the trade later a suggestion of the form, etc., of such an insert.

THE stationers are now circulating for signature a petition to Congress, asking for a reform of the Government regulations as to stamped envelopes, postal-cards, and address printing. We give some of the points of this petition elsewhere, and we suggest to the stationery trade that they send either to the Berlin & Jones Envelope Co., Samuel Raynor & Co., or others who are prominent in this matter, for these petitions for signature, or they may be obtained, on application, from this office. There seems to be little difference in the stationery trade as to the injustice of the present arrangement, and the necessity of some such reform as is here suggested; and certainly the trade ought to express its opinion, in the manner suggested by those who have got up this petition.

WE print elsewhere a communication from a well-known traveller in the stationery trade concerning a set of men in Chicago, who, he states, are defrauding the trade to a considerable extent. He informs us that he is ready to substantiate this letter in full, and we therefore have no hesitancy in putting it before the trade. If this is the state of things, we advise our friends of the stationery trade to lose no time and spare no expense in giving these fellows their deserts. An example or two in this line may save them a good deal of money in the end. We thank our correspondent heartily, in behalf of the trade, for boldly bringing the matter to public attention.

UNDER the department, not of "Books," but of "Book-Butchery," a Troy paper prints the following advertisement:

"The Book-Butcher is now negotiating for bankrupt stocks in New-York and Boston, and hopes to be in a position next week to offer to the people of Troy the most extraordinary bargains in books ever known in the history of bookselling. It will pay you handsomely to come to Albany to buy your books."

This is a particularly interesting example of the ultimate results of fifteen cents on the dollar compromises—in which there is food for reflection.

WE have a letter in our pigeon-hole from a well-known correspondent on the imperfection of bookselling methods, awaiting the receipt of the correspondent's name. We must hold to our rule in this respect, and require that the real name shall be given to us confidentially before we publish any sort of letter. In this case, if we have ever had the name we have mislaid and forgotten it, and as a private letter without signature comes to us with that intended for publication, we take this opportunity to ask the correspondent—who will easily recognize himself by these references—to send us at once his real name and address. We should be sorry to lose his letter because of any failure in this respect.

The best three lists are those of Mr. W. S. Parker, with the St. Louis Book and News Co., winner of the second prize in Agriculture, whose count is 193; Mr. Joseph Bebian, with C. T. Dillingham, counting 192; and Mr. Chas. S. Hobson, with the Orange Judd Co., counting 189. Each of these three lists includes all but one of the list by popular vote, Mr. Parker giving Downing's Landscape Gardening, counting 6, in place of Buist's Flower-Garden Directory, counting 10; Mr. Bebian giving Bridgeman's Am. Gardener's Assistant, counting 5, in place of White's Gardening for the South, counting 10; Mr. Hobson giving Buist's Family Kitchen Gardener, counting 6, in place of Rand's Flowers for the Parlor and Garden, counting 14. The highest count after this is 181, the lowest 128.

The following shows the popular vote down to three:

6. Brill's Farm Gardening; Buist's Family Kitchen Gardener; Downing's Landscape Gardening; Loudon's Encyclopædia of Gardening.

5. Bridgeman's Am. Gardener's Assistant; Burr's Vegetables of America; Downing and Lindley's Theory of Horticulture; Rand's Popular Flowers.

3. Barnard's Gardening for Money; Kemp's Landscape Gardening; Jaques' Garden and Farm and Barn Yard.

Six works received two votes each, and fourteen books one each. Among the latter the majority are works on Fruit Culture, a subject which was expressly excluded from the question.

CURRENT PRIZE QUESTIONS.

NO. 5.—Which are the most salable works on the Revolutionary Period?

By request, another week's time is given for the return of answers, and lists will be received until April 8th. The subject being of main importance to the book trade during the Centennial year, it is to be hoped that the "coming booksellers" will manifest their patriotism by a full vote.

NO. 6.—(REGULAR.) Which are the most practically printed Trade-Lists?

Name five publishers' catalogues or trade-lists in the order preferred, and state briefly reasons for preference. Suggestions for improvements are also in order. The criterion to be their usefulness for business purposes and adaptability for the "Trade-List Annual."

The special object of this question is to elicit particularly the opinions of experienced salesmen and book-order correspondents for the benefit of such publishers as may be preparing new trade-lists for the Centennial, and the promotion of a more uniform system of cataloguing.

Answers to this question must be received by the 15th of April.

NO. 7.—(EXTRA) Which are the most salable novels?

SPECIAL PRIZES AS FOLLOWS:

Twenty dollars for the best list; $10 for the second best list; $5 for the third best list.

Give fifty titles of individual novels in the following order, as usual: Author, title, size, price, publisher.

Exclude works by Bulwer, Dickens, George Eliot, Scott, and Thackeray, since these are classics and certain; also novels published in 1876, since their popularity is as yet untried. State only the preferred edition, and give authors' Christian names or the initials.

The special object of this question is to obtain approved working material for the compilation of an enclosure catalogue of select fiction, which, it is expected, will prove to booksellers the most profitable business-card for distribution during the Centennial and travelling season.

Answers to the above question must be received on or before May 1st.

THE OSGOOD SALE.

MESSRS. JAMES R. OSGOOD & Co. offered the plates and stock to clear their catalogue, as announced, at the Clinton Hall Trade-sale rooms, through George A. Leavitt & Co., Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, March 28th and 29th. The sets of stereotype plates numbered within a score of five hundred volumes, which were stated to have cost, with the illustrations, over $300,000; of course many of them were, however, duplicates from English plates, not at first cost. The stock which, with the exception of the Verne books, had been bound up to the full extent of the sheets, for this sale, numbered over 75,000 volumes, amounting to upwards of $125,000 retail price. The offering was from the miscellaneous lines of this house, their sets of English novelists, and a few of their American minor authors, the library of novels, English reprints, etc., etc. The firm retains over eight hundred volumes of their best books, including their leading American authors, the best poets, etc., etc., so that the list of this house is still, as it has been for years, the strongest of any in American literature of the higher class, and in other respects one of the best in the trade.

There has been no such offering as this for nearly twenty years, and it is likely that the results will outreach those of any sale ever held in the American trade; the sale of Abraham Hart, in Philadelphia, in the summer of 1854, amounting to something over $80,000; that of G. P. Putnam, in New-York, immediately following, to a few thousands less; that of Phillips & Sampson, in Boston, in 1859, to about $107,000, as nearly as we can get the figures. The present sale, according to Mr. Osgood's own estimate, will aggregate between $105,000 and $110,000, of which the plates brought in the neighborhood of $60,000.

The catalogue of the sale issued by Messrs. Osgood was very handsome and creditable, illustrated as it was with four fine steel-plates and any number of wood-cuts. Some few copies were bound up in the new material, "leatherette," and it is evidence of the durability of this new binding that it stood the hard handling of the sale excellently. The "cost of manufacture" (meaning cost of paper, press-work and cloth-binding), wholesale price, and "profit per thousand copies," were stated in the case of each book. The exquisitely rose-colored view of the latter, called out a good deal of "chaffing" from the trade, and, if the press and public had laid hold of the catalogue, might have done serious harm, for it took no account of several of the most considerable factors in the actual cost of a book, and would therefore mislead entirely as to the profits of the book-trade. Such "profits," to a fortunate buyer of the whole series of plates, would reach the very pretty sum of $275,000.

The distribution of this catalogue, and the wide advertising the sale had otherwise received, brought together the most remarkable gathering of leading publishers, especially heads of firms, that any of those present remembered to have seen. The Harpers were almost the only leading house in the miscellaneous trade unrepresented, and they sent bids through Mr. Shepard. There came from Boston, besides Messrs. Osgood, Ticknor, Ammon and Kelley, of the house, Messrs. Lee, Shepard, Niles, H. O. Houghton, Estes, and others; from Andover, Mr. Draper; from Montreal, Mr. John Lovell and Mr. Warwick; from Ogdensburg, Mr. Lawrence; from Northampton, Mr. Edwards; from Newburgh, Mr. Richie—besides other booksellers from other smaller cities; from Philadelphia, Messrs. Walter Lippincott, Kimball, Claxton, Remsen, Elliott, Porter, H. T. Coates, Potter, and others; from Chicago, Gen. McClurg; and of New-Yorkers, among the host may be mentioned Messrs. George, D. S., and Walter Appleton, Armstrong, Seymour, Dingman, Randolph, A. C. Barnes, I. E. Sheldon, Holt, Vogeliuss, G. H., Bishop, and Irving, Putnam, Mead, Van Wagenen, Dutton, Clapp, Charles and W. H. Wiley, A. H. Houghton, Carleton, Widdleton, Alb. Mason, Dillingham, Macmillan, and Miller. The handsome lunch spread up-stairs each day by the house became a social reunion of the trade; and down-stairs, when nothing exciting was on hand, the buyers would draw their chairs together in groups and gossip pleasantly over old times and old stories. A report of these conversations would be a history of the trade.

The sale opened at about 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, at which time there were eighty or more buyers present, a number which was increased to 120 through the sale. "Jerry" Pratt opened the ball at the desk, alternating with Mr. William Leavitt, while Mr. B. H. Ticknor represented the house on the rostrum. Mr. Ticknor stood at his post nobly, never leaving the stand through the sale, a strain on one's endurance which we imagine few would be willing to venture upon. Doubtless his experience as common-councillor in Boston stood him in good stead. Nothing very lively occurred until the Dickens series was reached, when the entire assemblage seemed to warm up to the work and get, each man of them, personally interested. The sales of the four sets of plates reached the large sum of $14,215, and the 15,000 volumes of stock brought the total nearly up to $25,000. The great event of the sale, however, was the sale of the Thackeray plates about the middle of Wednesday. They were started by Mr. Shepard on a bid of $360 for Harper & Brothers. It didn't take them very long to get above the $400, and then there was a steady and sharp bidding by Hurd & Houghton, Lee & Shepard, and other houses. The bidders and a good part of the rest of the crowd rose to their feet in their excitement, and one might have supposed that the Gold Exchange itself had sent a delegation to make matters lively at the quiet book-room. Considerable surprise was expressed when they reached the high price of $515 a volume, and were knocked down to Lee & Shepard, who it is understood will publish both this set and the Household Dickens. The Verne books, which were almost at the end of the sale, also brought out a lively competition. The buyer of these plates was required to take the sheet stock at cost, large editions having been recently quoted.

The leading buyers at the sale were the Houghton house, who bought in De Quincey, the "Library" Dickens, and the Waverleys, three sets of plates aggregating $17,025; Lee & Shepard, who purchased the "Household" Dickens and the Thackeray plates, amounting to nearly $9000, besides many other lots; Albert Mason, who bought largely of the Verne books and the miscellaneous publications to the amount of nearly $7000 in plates; Porter & Coates, who made off with the "Charles Dickens" edition and many individual books, and Mr. Lovell and Mr. Warwick, of Montreal, the first-named, it is supposed, buying for publication from the manufactory at Rouse's Point. No plates were bought by the Appletons or Scribners, but three sets by the Lippincotts, and only two volumes by Harper Brothers, through Mr. Shepard. Those to whom the sale was of most service were, as some one said at the Fair, of three classes: publishers just starting business, or who had but small lists which they wished to extend; the owners of printing establishments which they wished to keep busy, who would naturally seek the plates; and the jobbers and larger retailers who had the capital and custom to handle the stock. At the request of the trade generally, we give below a full list of the plates sold, with the prices and names of buyers. Several sets of plates, including Mr. Hale's works and others, were withdrawn from the catalogue previous to the sale. Bids were entered for all the plates at the worth of the type metal by Welch, Bigelow & Co., of Cambridge, and in cases where their names are mentioned as buyers it may be understood that unless other arrangements are made, the plates go to the melting-pot, so that the books themselves will be out of print. As to the rest of the books, the trade will be able to follow them to the catalogue on which they will hereafter appear by marking off the titles from the full lists given below. We have given the size, paging and prices of the books of which plates were sold, that the trade can compute for themselves the rates at which the stereotypes sold, as these data may be very valuable for future reference. It is rather curious to note that the presence or absence of copyright on a book seemed to make very little difference on the price. The title, description, and retail price of the book are given first, then the price at which the plates sold, then the name of the buyer, and lastly, in most cases, the price in cents at which the stock sold per vol., this following the publisher's name within brackets. In this part of the sale, the analogies of the old trade-sale auction were followed. The second bidding was for double lots, and at each new bidding the size of lots was doubled. The figures in brackets give generally the highest and lowest prices at which the cloth stock was sold per volume. Where there was anything notable in prices for doubled and quadrupled lots, more than the two prices are quoted. The quotations following after comma, inside the brackets, are for the stock in fine bindings per volume. In some few cases, where the bulk of the goods went to one house, we have given the name of the purchaser of stock, so that the trade may know whence to order. For the most part, however, the goods were very generally distributed, so that they can be had at most of the jobbers. A considerable quantity went to the undersellers down town.

At the conclusion of the sale Mr. Osgood was very generally congratulated by the trade on the excellent results, which, we think we may say, surpassed the expectations alike of the trade, the auctioneers, and the selling house. Many in the trade estimated that $50,000 in these dull times would be the top limit of the sale. A bottle of champagne was wagered by two others most competent to judge, at the limits of $70,000 and $90,000, so that taking the average of the general expectation, the sale was $35,000 better than the general anticipation. It will be long before the book trade sees another sale of equal importance.

COMMUNICATIONS.

THE REDUCTION OF RETAIL PRICES.

CINCINNATI, March 21, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

Your admirable article on "The Reform and Retail Trade" hits the mark. The final solution of the abuses in the trade will be found in the reduction of retail prices, and the reduction of the margins between the net cost and the nominal retail price.

The question to be solved is, What is a fair discount for publishers to offer the trade on their books, that the trade may handle them with a fair profit? and what retail price shall be asked, that retailers may obtain without any reduction?

All agree that there must be a reduction in retail prices. Why not try the following scale? Let those who now offer 40 per cent as their best discount to the trade, reduce their retail price 10 per cent. Those who give 40 and 10, 20 per cent from present retail; and those who give 50 per cent from retail, reduce their price 25 per cent, and, with this reduction in retail prices, reduce their line of discounts so that 33½ per cent would be their maximum discount to the trade.

This plan offers many advantages. It does not depreciate the value of stock to any dealer, as the net cost is the same; and a legitimate margin is allowed both jobber and retailer to sell by.

The present discount given by publishers is of no benefit to either jobber or retailer, while it is a positive detriment to the publisher, who has the credit (?) of asking 20 per cent more for his books than any one ever realizes at retail.

The jobber throws his 40 per cent away by allowing 33½ per cent, and often a cash discount extra, and he realizes about 10 per cent, not counting freight or other expenses.

The retailer receives 33½ per cent, and gives away 20 per cent of that as a bonus to his customer, and realizes 20 per cent, not counting freight or expenses.

By the revised prices, the publisher would have credit only for what is realized.

The jobber would, by selling at 25 per cent from retail, have a profit of 12½ per cent, less expenses, and the retailer would have 33½ per cent, less expenses. The public would have reduced prices, and the advertised retail price would be the selling, as well as the retail, price.

A. HOWARD HINKLE.

A WARNING TO THE STATIONERY TRADE.

CHICAGO, March 20, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

A letter, of which the following is a copy, was received by the house in whose employ I am: "Gents—Please send me samples of your goods, and state lowest prices by the quintity. Respectfully yours, M. O. Shaughnessy." According to his printed letter-head, he purported to be at 159 East Van Buren street, and to have moved from 329 West Lake street, Chicago. I chanced to be here, and the letter was sent to me with instructions to look up Shaughnessy. A visit to 159 East Van Buren street showed that location occupied by a small concern with a few dozens of towels, and other cheap dry goods in small quantities. The occupants stated that M. O. Shaughnessy did not keep there, but that they had a number of letters for him, that they knew a man named Shaughnessy who used to travel for an Eastern stationery house, and supposed that he was coming on a regular trip, and, as usual, was going to make his headquarters with them. On my showing his printed letter-head, they said he could not be the man they knew, and that they would at once give his mail to the carrier to take back to the post-office. Possibly they did. PROBABLY?

On visiting 329 West Lake street I found the place—a very small store—vacant. The party in the store adjoining reported that Shaughnessy once occupied 329 at a monthly rental of $15, and that the landlord had to distrain to get that extravagant amount. He also told me that the place was seldom open except about the time at which the express deliveries were to be made, and not always then, as the drivers sometimes came to him to inquire for Shaughnessy when the place was closed. When packages were received they were generally promptly removed to some safe place, from which they could be quickly peddled out to small stationers here for cash, at about fifty per cent of their value. The names of a number of the leading publishers and stationery manufacturers of the East are mentioned by the trade here as having been swindled by him, and I was shown about half a dozen letters from other equally prominent Eastern houses inquiring about him. I visited the mercantile agencies here to notify them about him, but found that they have him written up, though only quite recently in one of them.

The mail that awaited Shaughnessy at 159 East Van Buren street consisted of seven letters which I could see were from Eastern stationers, and two postal cards on which he was notified by other houses that their travellers would shortly call on him. He has been at his swindling operations for about a year, in connection with one J. Lonegran, and others of a regular, organized gang, under various firm names, one set of swindlers referring to the others as to standing, and each depicting the other in most roseate hues when referring to their ability and willingness to pay. Lonegran has been operating in produce commission until lately. He is now on the north side operating in stationery. They are not only robbing the Eastern manufacturer, but they are destroying the trade of the dealers here, who can not compete with men who get their goods for nothing. Please give this the widest possible circulation to protect the trade, and I would suggest to the Stationers' Board of Trade that they devote a little money to employ a detective or lawyer to hunt down Shaughnessy and his confederates, and land them in the State's prison, which can easily be done. But what is everyone's business is no one's business; and, beside, it is too much to expect any one house to devote time and money to catch and convict such swindlers, while the organized trade can do so cheaply, effectively, and to mutual advantage. Yours truly, R. H. D.

TRADE MEETINGS.

THE Convention opens at Niagara Falls on the first Tuesday in July (pursuant to constitutional provision), which date is the 11th of July, and not the 13th, as mistakenly stated in our last issue. The Executive Committee meets on Monday the 10th, at three. We shall print in our next issue a report from the Committee on Assemblies and the call to the trade.

At the last meeting of the Book Trade Association of Philadelphia, which includes the printing and like trades, a resolution was passed requesting Congress to repeal those clauses of the postal law which require the payment of double rates on third-class mail matter. The following gentlemen were chosen officers for the ensuing year:

President—Thomas McKellar.

Treasurer—Alexander Kirkpatrick.

Secretary—A. G. Elliot.

Directors—S. J. Megargee, J. R. Jones, Roger Sherman, John A. Black, E. S. Talmage, John E. Potter, Bloomfield H. Moore, William Rutter, George R. Fagan, J. M. Ferguson, Robert S. Menamin, and Henry F. Coates.

A RECEPTION was given by the Y. M. C. A. of Boston, on Thursday evening, March 23d, to the newspaper men and members of the book trade, and was a very interesting and successful affair. Governor Rice presided, and addresses were also made by Mr. Curtis Guild, on behalf of the press, and H. O. Houghton, on behalf of the book trade. After alluding in a happy manner to what he styled the attempts to get His Excellency out of the trade by nominating and electing him to various positions of honor and trust, and which had signally failed, as he yet remained a good paper-maker, Mr. Houghton proceeded to speak of the book trade since he had been interested in the business. He said that the English had stolen from us the dictionary of Noah Webster, and given in return a list of Sunday-school books full of the divine right of kings. When he first came to Boston, Redding & Co., on State street, sold newspapers and Russia-salve, and Mr. Ben. B. Mussey, who was a bookseller, sold pills. He spoke of the Messrs. Swan, Ticknor, and Mr. James Brown. The latter was a poor farmer's boy, who while here as a servant learned to love books. Through Hon. George S. Hilliard, he obtained a position in a book-store, rose from clerk to partner, and finally founded the house of Little, Brown & Co. During his visits abroad he was associated with Wordsworth and many others equally well known. Mr. Brown first introduced into this country, through the speaker, the large, round type now used all over the world. In conclusion, he earnestly protested against a certain class of books and papers which were inspired by the "devil of the press," and worked immeasurable harm to the minds of youths.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

LIFE, LETTERS, AND JOURNALS OF GEORGE TICKNOR. (James R. Osgood & Co.) As a record of the famous men and women of this country and Europe, who lived during the past fifty or sixty years, this volume stands unsurpassed. It seems an impossibility almost to give an adequate description of the wealth of its contents, name follows name with such bewildering regularity. Mr. George Ticknor's whole life was an exceptional one, and one we, as Americans, may well be proud of. Unusually gifted mentally and personally, and with a charm of manner which pleased all with whom he came in contact, he was fitted in a rare degree for the society he describes with such felicity. It really looks, in a brief glance, as if it would be easier to name the persons he did not know, than to give a list of those with whom he was in frequent and intimate connection. Such celebrities as Goethe, Mrs. Siddons, Byron, Madame de Staël, Madame Recamier, Scott, Mrs. Fletcher, Miss Edgeworth, Thierry, Montalembert, Webster, are but a few among the hundreds of famous people of whom he writes the most delightful details. Nothing exactly like this work can be found in the bibliography of memoirs; it is destined to take a high place in literature and to stand among the classics of our language; its pages betray such a total lack of ill-natured gossip or unkind speeches or details, and are so permeated with the refinement and culture of the man, as to be quite exceptional and remarkable. The work of editing was begun by Mr. George S. Hilliard, but sickness removed it from his hands into those of Mrs. and Miss Ticknor, who have shown most excellent judgment in their selection of matter from the wealth of material at their disposal. The volumes are very elegantly gotten up, and embellished by two portraits of Mr. Ticknor at different periods of his life. 8vo, cloth, 2 vols., $6.

THE SHEPHERD'S MANUAL, by Henry Stewart. (Orange Judd Co.) Designed to fill a want long felt with American shepherds and farmers for a work that should be up to date on this subject, and embrace descriptions of all the modern improved breeds of sheep which have become so popular. English works of this kind are all more or less incomplete as regards the information specially needed by American shepherds regarding this branch of agricultural industry. This work seems to embrace everything looked for; it is so plain it can be used by a farmer who has never raised sheep, or the experienced shepherd can go to its pages and find many new and valuable suggestions. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

PAUSANIAS, THE SPARTAN, by the late Lord Lytton, edited by his son. (Belford Brothers, Toronto.) This is the third publisher who has issued editions of Bulwer's unfinished romance. We have already noticed the contents of the work, and only call attention to this as a new edition. 12mo, cloth, $1.

SEPTIMUS FELTON, by Nathaniel Hawthorne. (James R. Osgood & Co.) This will be remembered as the last story from Hawthorne's pen. His daughter has had it printed from his manuscripts, retaining many passages in brackets, showing how her father had intended to amplify some of the descriptions and develop more fully one or two of the studies of characters.

The volume belongs to the new popular edition uniform with "Little Classics." $1.25.

SIGHTS AND INSIGHTS, by Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney. (James R. Osgood & Co.) Mrs. Whitney's book appeals to a large and cultivated class of readers who generally eschew fiction. Her work, however, is more a volume of travels than a story, though a very charming love story connects it, and develops the characteristics of the actors in it. It is written in the form of letters, by one Patience Strong, a maiden lady with whom Mrs. Whitney's readers are already acquainted, who has for a confidant a lady as seemingly mythical as "Mrs. Harris." She serves the author's purpose, however, as the recipient of all her wonderful insights into people, and her discoveries of their motives and secrets, and her graphic descriptions of the art treasures of Europe, of which she writes at length and with great judgment and discrimination. As the female character predominates in the book, there is much in the way of deductions and moralizing that can only be thoroughly appreciated by a woman, and scarcely understood at all by a man; hence we would call it essentially a woman's book, to have and to hold, and to study and to ponder over, and derive all sorts of religious comfort and intellectual enjoyment from. 2 vols., 12mo, cloth, $1.50 per volume.

FIRST FAMILIES OF THE SIERRAS, by Joaquin Miller. (Jansen, McClurg & Co.) Bret Harte's style is so evidently imitated in this story that we can not refrain from noticing it. In the characters, in the scenes (laid in the wild camp-life of old California days), in the construction even of the story we are reminded of Bret Harte. Though wonderfully realistic in description, Mr. Miller's sketches seem to lack color and warmth in a remarkable degree, when brought into comparison with his poetry. Probably if he did not rank so high as a poet, so much would not be expected from him, but with the sensuous beauty of his verses still in mind, most readers will be apt to be disappointed with his prose. It is unfortunate that he should thus risk his reputation, for he can never expect to do great things as a story-teller. If the book had come to us without Joaquin Miller's name, we would say it is a very readable book, of the pioneer days of California, not very reverential in its tone, but racy and amusing. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

DAVAULT'S MILLS, by Charles Henry Jones. (J. B. Lippincott & Co.) The usual characters and complications which go to make up a story of true love, whose course would not run smoothly, are to be found in this volume. It is an American novel, as far as scene is concerned, though the characters have nothing especially American about them. It is quite a lengthy story, full of details, though not wanting in incidents, which at times become highly dramatic. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

THE RELIGIOUS SENTIMENT, by Daniel G. Brinton. (Henry Holt & Co.) The chief inquiry Mr. Brinton propounds in this volume, and endeavors to solve, is what first gave rise to the religious sentiment in man, upon what causes it is based, and from whence does it spring. He further seeks the groundwork of all religion, questioning if it be faith or reason, and to what extent we can believe in the efficacy of prayer. In the course of his research he gives a singularly liberal and independent review of the historic religions of the Old World, deducing from the facts he gathers from their spirit and essence, some general truths which can not but interest both religious and scientific minds, though they may not absolutely accept them. The deeply philosophical spirit, however, in which his work is written, acknowledging and reverencing good in all forms of ancient worship, must recommend it to every liberal mind. It completes in a measure "The Myths of the New World," as it follows the line of thought therein outlined. Large 12mo, cloth, $2.50.

VISITOR'S GUIDE TO THE CENTENNIAL EXHIBITION AND PHILADELPHIA, 1876. (J. B. Lippincott & Co.) A most complete and thorough guide to everything in or about Philadelphia, or to the Exhibition or any matter relating to it. Full lists of all the commissions connected with the Exhibition, a programme of the events contemplated, a list of the parades, meetings, etc., to take place, and a full account of all the departments of the Exhibition, the foreign countries represented, etc., etc., with lists of the banks, places of amusement, public buildings, and other information too numerous to mention. Two large maps accompany the book, one of Philadelphia, and one of the Exhibition grounds. The Guide is said to be the only official one published. 16mo, cloth, 50 c; paper, 25 c.

WATER-WHEELS; OR, HYDRAULIC MOTORS, by M. Bresse. Translated by F. A. Mahan. (John Wiley & Sons.) This essay on water-wheels is translated from the second volume of M. Bresse's Lectures on Applied Mechanics, delivered to the pupils of the school of civil engineers at Paris. It is offered by Lieutenant F. A. Mahan to students of civil engineering in this country, to supply a want long felt for a standard work on hydraulic motors. In the present edition of the work, a new one thoroughly revised by Professor D. H. Mahan, the French units of weights and measures have been translated into English. 8vo, cloth, $2.50.

THE HISTORY OF PRINTING IN AMERICA, Vol. 2, by Isaiah Thomas, LL.D. (Joel Munsell.) This volume embraces a history of newspapers from the period when they were first published in the British Colonies to the time of the Revolution; with some account of those published in Europe, and also a list of the booksellers in the Colonies, from the first settlement to the commencement of the Revolutionary war in 1775. Half of the volume is taken up by an exceedingly valuable and complete catalogue of publications issued in this country prior to 1775-6. This valuable work is issued under the supervision of a special committee of the American Antiquarian Society, and is very carefully revised, having all the author's corrections and additions. 8vo, cloth, $4, net.

THE HABITATIONS OF MAN IN ALL AGES, by Viollet-le-Duc. Translated by Benjamin Bucknall. (James R. Osgood & Co.) The origin and development of domestic architecture among the several races of mankind, the modes in which human dwellings have been constructed, and the appearance and manners of their inhabitants, from pre-historic down to modern times, are the matters herein described. The interest of the subject is enhanced by the doings and discussions of two imaginary witnesses of this development—"Epergos" and "Doxius"— personifying respectively the spirit of progress and that of obstinate adherence to traditional forms and habits. The volume is embellished by numerous illustrations, showing the various dwellings men have designed, from the first rude shelter of the primitive man to the sumptuous mansions of the Renaissance. Nothing more instructive and interesting than this work can be imagined, nor one more attractively gotten up both as to the manner in which the reading matter is placed by the author before the reader, and as to the manner in which the work has been issued by the publishers, who have spared no expense to render it quite a typographical gem. 8vo, cloth, $5.

AN ODD COUPLE, by Mrs. Oliphant. (Porter & Coates.) The story of two people, well educated, refined, and moving in good English society, and the parents of two interesting children, who never could agree upon any one subject. The story opens upon a quarrel, in which, after ten years of married life, they determine to separate, the boy going with the mother and the girl remaining with the father. Ten years more of a divided existence follows, the writer graphically describing the course each one pursues alone. The ending, however, is a happy one all round, spite of many mistakes which are made by both parents and children. "International Series." 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

THE MARINER'S PROGRESS, by Duncan Macgregor. (Robert Carter & Bros.) "Captain Christian's Voyage in the good Ship 'Glad Tidings' to the Promised Land," the second title to this little work, more fully describes it. It is an allegory—not unlike the "Pilgrim's Progress"—pointing out a Christian's triumphant path through life. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

KING AND COMMONWEALTH, by B. Meriton Cordery and J. Surtees Phillpotts. (Jos. H. Coates & Co.) Charles the First's struggle with his parliaments forms one of the most important epochs in English history; this volume is devoted to a history of that period, and is written with great care and exactness, and bears evidence of much careful research having been expended in verifying its statements. While it is scholarly in composition, and profound in its treatment of the constitutional questions which arose at that period, it is so interestingly written that it will be perused with avidity by the general reader. It gives, besides, vivid sketches of the dress, manners, and morals of the period—altogether a most charmingly written volume of history. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

THE DOCTRINE OF RETRIBUTION, by William Jackson, M.A. (A. D. F. Randolph & Co.) A series of eight lectures, delivered in 1875, before the University of Oxford, on the doctrine of a future life, and the question of retributive justice after death. Mr. Jackson takes the affirmative side, and works out his arguments clearly and fairly, offering in his work a most valuable contribution to the philosophy of natural religion. 8vo, cloth, $3.

CENTENNIAL NOTES.

THE (English) Publishers' Circular says: "Our printing and publishing industries will, we are glad to hear, be well represented at the Centennial Exhibition of Philadelphia. Of the 80,000 square feet allotted to foreign exhibitors, Great Britain takes nearly one half, or 36,735 square feet; France takes 10,000 and Belgium 9375. The space devoted to the group Education is, we are told, quite taken up by English publishers. The Graphic has secured a large space to show the whole process of printing an illustrated paper, and to exhibit some of the best specimens of its work, which is very artistic. The Illustrated London News will be also represented, and Messrs. Cassell, Petter, and Galpin likewise in force. But whether such exhibition of the power of English publishers and printers, against which the American publishers contend, will do any good for our copyrights we forbear to say. The Walter Press, which many declare to be the finest and most rapid in the world, will be exhibited and, we hear, tested against a newly-invented perfecting press by the celebrated R. Hoe and Sons, of New-York. As many Americans believe that their inventions and machinery are really not only the first, but almost the only ones in the world, this competition of the old country will be interesting to them, and the Philadelphia Exhibition can not fail to do good. There will also be a large exhibit of British sewing-machines, the first of which certainly came from America. In paper, printing, and binding, and in all that goes to produce a book, there can be little doubt but that England will keep her place in this largest of all the Exhibitions."

A SANDWICH ISLAND contribution to the Centennial Exhibition is thus described in The Honolulu Gazette: "It consists of a couple of volumes of Bowditch's 'Navigator' in the Japanese language, sent by the Rev. Dr. Damon of this city. The work is one of twenty copies, which were all made by hand and with incredible neatness and skill in Japan about twenty years ago. The book is written on thin paper, and the pages are double, in the ordinary Chinese and Japanese style. The work is illustrated with pictures and diagrams, one of which is very laughable, representing an ancient mariner in the act of 'taking the sun.'"

A Gar-rulous correspondent of the New-York Times, who has been straying about the main building, struck a snag the other day. He writes to Sunday's Times: "There is one erection rather peculiar in material and construction at the far eastern end. It is a display of iron staircases, etc., made of plates which have been cut in scroll-work, I do not know by what means, but with a resultant effect as fine as that produced in wood-work. The whole staircase, balustrading, newel-post, steps and all, are of iron, and if this invention can be placed at reasonable cost in dwelling-houses it will go far to do away with the dangers arising from fires." This is rather good on the Book-Trade structure, which is what he is attempting to describe.

LIBRARY AND BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTES.

MR. ALFRED RUSSELL SMITH, 36 Soho Square, London, has issued a "Catalogue of Books illustrating the Life and Works of Shakspeare." Its 568 numbers are supplemented by an index of authors and editors, as rare in such publications as it is welcome, says the Nation.

AFTER appointing Mr. J. Carson Brevoort superintendent of the Astor Library, the trustees revised the subordinate offices of the library, making Mr. Frederick Saunders first librarian, Mr. A. W. Tyler second, and Messrs. Leonard and Bierstadt first and second assistants. Mr. Saunders is an author whose works are especially admired by scholars and gentlemen. Washington Irving, alluding to his "Salad for the Solitary," published in 1854, said, "A salad peculiarly to my taste, and which I have relished with somewhat the curious palate of a literary epicure." Mr. Saunders is the author also of "Salad for the Social," "Pearls of Thought, Religious and Philosophical," "Mosaics," "Festival of Song—a Series of Evenings with the Poets," "About Women, Love and Marriage," and several other readable volumes. He has also been a frequent contributor to the leading magazines and reviews, and by education, taste, and habit is the very model of what the highest order of librarian ought to be.—Harpers' Weekly.

THE Chicago Public Library has just issued a new edition of its Finding Lists, containing abridged titles of the forty-seven thousand volumes in its collection. It is sold to the public for ten cents per copy. The average daily circulation of the Library is eighteen hundred volumes, and twenty-five hundred are given out on Saturdays. Thirty-two thousand persons are registered as book-borrowers. The Library has been open to the public less than two years.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The American Socialist is the name of a new weekly journal, which will be issued this month by the Oneida Community, under the direct charge of Mr. John H. Noyes, who is extensively known as the founder of the Community, and as the author of a "History of American Socialism." Its chief object is to advocate Communism, and to offer practical suggestions towards the forming of successful communities, without giving any special prominence to the theories of the Oneida Socialists.

THE Atlantic for May will contain a sketch of a sojourn in Rome, by T. B. Aldrich, an excellent short story by a new writer, a study of the life and writings of Buddha, by Prof. Adler, of Cornell, the conclusion of Mr. Howell's charming story, "Private Theatricals;" Mrs. Kemble's Gossip; an account of the Khedive and his Court, by Charles Hale, and other papers.

PERSONAL NOTES.

"THE Rev. Peter Pennott," whose bright New England story of "Achshah" will soon be issued by Lee & Shepard, is Mr. W. F. M. Rounds, the office editor of the Independent and a well-known magazinist.

ANTHONY TROLLOPE will commence a serial story in the May number of Temple Bar, to be entitled "The American Senator." The scene of the story is laid in England.

LORD LYTTON has taken so seriously to politics since his appointment to the Indian Viceroyalty that he has withdrawn his new poem, "King Poppy," which was about to be published.

MR. GEORGE VANDENHOFF, who is now in England, is engaged in the preparation of an entirely new edition of his "Art of Elocution," which has been out of print and scarce for some years.

A LIFE of Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston, by his son, is in preparation.

MR. HARRISON AINSWORTH will write still another story for Bow Bells.

LORD JOHN MANNERS will be the chairman of the Royal Commission on Copyright in the room of the late Earl Stanhope.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BANGS, MERWIN & Co. will sell on the 10th of April, and for several days following, one of the most notable collections yet offered of rare books and pamphlets, chiefly Americana, comprising many early imprints, scarce books by Cotton and Increase Mather, works on the Indians, on witchcraft, magic, and astrology, and a number of tracts and local histories. This will be one of the leading sales of the year.

IN opposition to Senator Hamlin's bill, relating to postage on third-class matter, Mr. Patrick Farrelly, of the American News Company, made the principal argument before the Senate Committee at the hearing on the 23d ult. He protested against discrimination in rates upon printed matter, and set forth the difficulty of determining between circulars or advertising sheets containing information and irregular publications, the postage on which would be arbitrarily determined by the 35,000 postmasters of the country. He said that different Postmasters-General rule differently on the same subjects, and frequently the law officer of the Government reverses their decisions. He favored a uniform system of postage, so simple that it can not possibly be misunderstood. He opposed the provision that third-class matter shall pay according to distance, and pointed out the injurious effects of our postal treaty with Canada, which allows circulars to be printed there and sent to the States at a saving of thousands of dollars to the persons circulating them. Mr. D. S. Appleton followed, urging a law to allow bound and unbound books to pay the same postage. He saw no reason why a bound Webster's spelling-book should not go as cheaply as a novel with a yellow-paper cover.

LINDSAY & BLAKISTON issue for 1876 the first number of "The Medical Intelligencer," a pamphlet consisting of a list of new medical books and new editions published in 1875, with press notices or descriptions of the contents of each, together with what has long been needed by the trade, a classified list of all their own publications.

THE enterprising house of Jansen, McClurg & Co., of Chicago, seems to have had no lack of business these latter days, 3500 of Will Carleton's "Farm Ballads," 2000 of Sherman's "Memoirs," 1000 of Livingstone's "Africa," and 1000 copies of Smith's "Dictionary of the Bible," having passed through their hands into the general trade. Another significant fact relative to the Western trade is, that this same house has already taken 110 subscriptions for the Encyclopædia Britannica.

MR. J. S. SIBOLE and Mr. H. E. Stellwagen, formerly with the Messrs. J. B. Lippincott & Co. in the retail department, have formed a co-partnership under the style of Sibole & Stellwagen, for the purpose of carrying on the business of bookselling and publishing at 727 Sansom street, Philadelphia. They are agents for Audubon's "Birds of America," "The Reader's Ready Rest," and Richardson's "History of Our Country." Subscription and fine books will be their specialty.

MR. JAMES D. GILL, of the firm of Gill & Hayes, Springfield, Mass., has purchased his partner's interest in the business, and will continue at the old stand, keeping a complete line of books, stationery, and fine art goods.

STATIONERY NOTES.

WE are glad to notice among the jobbers and manufacturers for the past week a livelier state of trade than there has been for some weeks past. This was owing no doubt to a number of buyers being in town. It is to be hoped that when navigation opens, and roads in the country become passable, trade will take a good start. Stocks are light generally, and country buyers must renew their broken assortments.

THE petition of the stationers to Congress, after recapitulating the positions given in the report of the trade committee, suggests to the Department that the manufacture and sale of stamped envelopes by the Post-Office Department, and the printing of address-cards on them, is not a necessity, and should be discontinued. If this can not be done, Congress is asked to add to the price of stamped envelopes (and for the printing thereon), postal-cards, and newspaper wrappers, enough to cover a part of the loss to the Post-Office Department by their use, and to pay for printing thereon. The specific suggestion is that there should be an extra charge of $1.60 per thousand on stamped envelopes and wrappers, 50 cents extra for printing addresses on envelopes, and on postal-cards $1.40 per thousand, to bring the price up to cost, and $1 per thousand more as part cost of transportation. It is claimed that the increase of revenue for the fiscal year 1876 under these modifications would amount to over $636,000.

THERE is a subscription being taken among the members of the stationery trade in aid of the widow of the late Edward Irish, who died recently in St. Louis. This appeal is of an urgent character, and it is to be hoped that Mr. Irish's friends and the travelling fraternity generally will come forward and contribute as liberally as possible. Anything sent to the address of C. S. Plummer, 55 Pennsylvania avenue, Newark, N. J., will be thankfully acknowledged.

CHAMBERLAIN, WHITMORE & Co. have just added a very handsome line of papeteries to their already large assortment. They are in four elegant tints and three sizes, Alexander, Empress 2, and Empress 3, and are put up in the most neat and tasty style of boxes, containing one quire of paper with envelopes to match. Price, 35 cents. We noticed the genial and smiling countenance of Richard S. Denton in the above house; he has been for many years in the trade, and his long experience will no doubt make him a valuable accession to the house.

THE new double Banker's inkstand, which for utility and neatness is equal if not superior to anything of the kind now in use, is made entirely of the purest white glass, and is so constructed, that one kind of ink can be emptied and renewed without disturbing the other. It is surmounted by two pin or sponge cups for covers, so that sponges may be used for cleaning the pen or as a dampener. The inkstands come with and without racks, and they are especially adapted for offices, banks, libraries, etc., combining three of the most requisite articles for desk use. Price $12 and $15, with liberal discount to the trade. Edward Rorke & Co., 40 Barclay street, New-York, supply the trade.

CONANT & CAMPBELL have added a handsome line of bronze inkstands, which will compare favorably in style and price with any in the market; they have also a line of croquet in four, six and eight ball sets, which are put up in compact boxes, making them more convenient to handle than heretofore.

MYERS BROS., of 62 John street, have just handed us a sample of a new medallion Centennial paper; the style and finish are excellent, and there is a handsome water-mark design in the centre of each sheet.

B. ILLFELDER & Co. have just received a beautiful line of glass goods from Europe, comprising inkstands, weights, and other novelties in glass; also, a very handsome line of photograph frames in velvet, of new and unique designs. They have also the sole agency of Fowler's Pin-Roll, which is a neat and useful little article, and can be sold at $12 per gross.

WE learn, that by a recent appointment, Wm. Lucy's, 52 John street, New-York, is made the depot of Marcus Ward & Co.'s Royal Irish linen papers. Mr. Lucy keeps on hand the paper—flat, folded, and put up in papeteries of various tints. Among the latest papeteries are those put up in one quire and envelopes to match; also, black bordered, in handsome boxes, and in the English style.

BELCHER & HOUGHTON, 71 John street, are having a good run on their new Centennial cabinet, handsomely made, and containing four quires of Irish linen-paper with envelopes to match.

NICHOLAS MULLER'S SONS, manufacturers of bronze goods, will soon offer to the trade a new and handsome line of inkstands. Among them will be one of elaborate Centennial design.

THE Centennial Catalogue Company of Philadelphia have given the exclusive right to sell their catalogues in New-York, the Eastern States and Canada, to James G. Mundy, 114 William street, New-York. The catalogue will be of twelve hundred pages, handsomely bound in cloth. Besides the catalogue proper there will be one hundred and fifty pages of interesting reading matter, describing the principal relics of the Exhibition, steel-plate engravings of the buildings, the rise and progress of the United States for one hundred years past, maps of Philadelphia, as well as a complete guide-book, and many other interesting matters pertaining to the Exhibition. The price will be $1.50.

TOWER's patent velvet-edge oblong rubber is a very superior quality of gum, and the shape and neatness in which it is put up will give it a great advantage over other styles now in use.

S. A. TOWER & Co., since their removal, are rapidly getting their stock arranged, and when completed the establishment will be a model of order and neatness.

THE Berlin & Jones Envelope Company are about to occupy the large store next door; they are now making some alterations, and when completed will open a new department, comprising domestic and foreign papers.

MR. CHARLES D. MYERS, senior member of the firm of Myers Bros., 62 John street, has gone to Europe with his wife and family, combining business with pleasure.

VICTOR E. MAUGER is having a good run on his A. B. French Copying Ink, on which he has received a large number of testimonials from the principal houses in the trade.

KAHN & GOLDSMITH have removed to their new and elegant store, No. 106 Duane street, where they have neatly arranged an entire new stock of baskets and willow-ware for stationers' use, with prices as low as any in the market. The members of this firm are young and energetic men, and deserve credit for the manner in which they have built up their large business in a comparatively few years.

THE liberty-bell card-rack is a neat and tasty little article for the desk, also as an ornament for holding cartes de visite on the mantelpiece. It can be had of Willy Wallach, New-York, at $1.50 per dozen.

WE learn that Mr. Joe St. John is doing a good trade with Perry & Co.'s goods through New-York State.

JUST out, the "Child's Delight," or standing figures made of paper, with a base so that they can be placed erect on the table. They are put up in boxes, of various comical styles and shapes, handsomely illuminated, and sold by Willy Wallach, New-York, for $2 per dozen boxes.

THE company of Perry & Co., limited, recently incorporated in London, to carry on the extensive pen and pencil business of Sir Josiah Mason and Mr. W. E. Wiley, together with that of Messrs. Perry & Co., is now in full operation. The demand for shares was unprecedented, being five times greater in amount than could be allotted. This shows, when the amount of capital ($2,500,000) is taken into consideration, the great confidence which the public have in the undertaking. Messrs. Perry & Co., New-York, will soon have many new goods produced by the company in London.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

"THE Cambridge of 1776," a little volume issued by the Women's Centennial Committee at Cambridge, has met with so much success as to call for a second edition. The interesting views, it is now stated, were drawn by Miss Eliza S. Quincy, of Boston. The "Diary of Dorothy Dudley," which was first accepted as an original document, the editor, Mr. Arthur Gilman, now confesses was written expressly for the book by Miss Greely, although she derived her material directly from authentic documents, such as letters, diaries, etc.

ROBERT CLARKE & Co. have just published a new edition of a work that has long been out of print, and classed among rare and valuable "Americana"—"The Olden Time," a monthly Western historical magazine, edited by Neville B. Craig, Esq., and originally published at Pittsburg in 1846-7. Among the rare and valuable documents embraced within its covers relating to the early explorations and settlements around the Ohio are: "Washington's Journals of 1753, 1754, and 1770;" "Frederick Post's Journal, from Philadelphia to the Ohio, 1758;" "George Croghan's Journal, from Fort Pitt to Vincennes and Detroit, 1765;" "General Richard Butler's Journal, to the Falls of the Ohio, 1785," and Smith's "Account of General Bouquet's Expedition against the Ohio Indians in 1764."

J. H. COATES & Co. make an interesting contribution to the long list of Centennial publications in two works they have just ready, which are handsomely gotten-up,—blank-books designed for recording impressions and descriptions of the Exhibition. The first, "Memoir of the Centennial Exhibition," is intended for a full and extended account, while the second, "Centennial Notes," is simply to be used for rough notes in connection with the first.

MESSRS. PORTER & COATES having purchased the stereotype plates of the following books, formerly published by Hunt & Congdon, will in future supply them to the trade: "Ainsworth's English and Latin Dictionary," 8vo, sheep; "A Treatise on Surveying," etc., by John Gummere, A.M., 8vo, sheep; "A Complete Key to Gummere's Surveying," by Samuel Alsop; "A Treatise on Plane and Spherical Trigonometry," by Enoch Lewis; "Bonnycastle's Mensuration and Practical Geometry," etc.; "A Key to Bonnycastle's Mensuration," by Benjamin Hallowell; Hazen's "Speller and Definer," and the "New Spelling-Book," by John Comly, Hunt & Comly's enlarged edition.

S. R. WELLS & Co. are to publish a new edition of George Combe's works on phrenology and similar subjects, to be printed from revised plates in four volumes, at $5 per set, and to be known as the "Centennial Edition."

We have received from John Church & Co., Cincinnati, the song "Punch in the Presence of the Passenjare," by Mark Twain, with additional words and music by O. A. Hand; also, "I'll Take You Home again, Kathleen," words and music by Thomas P. Westendorf; each, 35 cents.

A HALF a dozen pieces of new music have been received from S. T. Gordon & Son, of which the following is the full data: "First Hope," companion to "Last Hope" by L. M. Gottschalk, composed by J. D. Kerrison, 50 cents; "Dost Thou Remember Still," by L. Streabbog, English version by Dr. William J. Wetmore, 30 cents; "Nil Desperandum Galop," by Thomas P. Murphy, 60 cents; "Murmurs," words by Adelaide Anne Proctor, music com-

LEE & SHEPARD's list is now enriched by the addition of Col. Higginson's works, and in the interest of good literature it is to be hoped that these may have a sale even beyond the generous thousands already reached by his admirable "Young Folks' History of the United States." Col. Higginson's essays are easily among the best ever written in this country. The substance and freshness of their thought are admirably embodied in the graceful and almost perfect style. We are glad to note that he is preparing a "Young Folks' History of American Adventure," as a mate to his recent work, for publication by the same house.

"MARK TWAIN" has a new book in press with the American Publishing Company, of Hartford, called "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer."

MR. R. W. GILDER has had better luck than most new poets. "The New Day" has sold so well that the first edition is about exhausted, and a second is already in preparation.

MR. EMERSON's "Letters and Social Aims" is having a large sale. Although published in December, the fifth thousand was in the market before January 1st, and, despite The Athenæum, a second edition has been called for abroad.

THE pretty book of Macmillan & Co., on "Floral Decorations," has been reduced in price to $1.50.

A PUBLISHING firm in this city notifies us that during the past year a set of "Waverleys" was left in their store by some one unknown. The most careful inquiry on their part has failed to find the owner; if, however, this should reach his eye, and he can identify the books, the firm in question will be most happy to deliver up to him his property.

MR. E. STEIGER is preparing for his admirable series of trade catalogues, a descriptive list of the most important publications on education, general philology, and other subjects of especial interest to American teachers, and is sending proof-sheets to publishers for the purpose of correcting errors and making additions. We trust they will heartily and promptly second his efforts.

ON a neat Centennial business card, issued by A. Williams & Co., some very interesting data are given regarding "The Old Corner Bookstore" in Boston, now occupied by this house. This venerable building was erected in 1712, in the reign of Queen Anne, and is one of the oldest structures in the city. Since 1828 it has been a centre of the book trade, first occupied by Carter & Hender, then in 1837 by W. D. Ticknor & Co., in 1841 by Redding & Co., in 1844 by Ticknor & Field, in 1852 by Fetridge & Co., in 1856 by A. Williams & Co., in 1865 by E. P. Dutton & Co., from 1869 again by A. Williams & Co., and Crosby & Damrell, now C. L. Damrell & Co.

THE Christian Union enters Dr. Frothingham's book as "Beliefs of the Unitarians." It may consider that Unitarians and Unbelievers are the same thing, but really it shouldn't interfere with the Doctor's belief or Unbelievers.

BOOKS AT THE CENTENNIAL.

THE exhibition of the several book-trades at the Centennial promises to be more general and interesting than most members of the American trade had expected. The readiness with which the leading foreign trades, the English excepted, have put themselves to much expense and trouble, without any pecuniary return, for the purpose of complying with our invitation, has in fact set an example by which the American trade may well feel, we may almost say, abashed. The foreign trades have unselfishly given up even the distinction of individual publishers, who have severally united in merging their individuality, so that the book-production of their country might be presented to the American public in the most satisfactory shape and under a logical and useful classification. The first question among too many American houses, "How will it pay?" does not seem to have arisen among them.

The representation of the American trade promises nevertheless to be both effective and useful. A few firms are still omitted who should have been represented, which is due partly to their own apathy and partly to dissatisfaction as to one feature of the management. But the unrepresented are only exceptions. The structure erected by the committee of the A. B. T. A. was a very happy thought to double the original space, and in its favorable location will present an imposing appearance. It was last week already erected, and by this writing the decoration is probably completed, and the setting up and filling of cases put well forward. It can be seen from all points of the eastern end of the main building, and itself commands a coup d'œil of the whole American department. Above, most of the large firms have joined in filling the handsome pavilions and wall-spaces for which the structure has given opportunity, while below, one or two of the large houses and most of the more modest ones occupy the considerable space. Messrs. J. B. Lippincott & Co. are erecting a very handsome structure of their own in the circle connected with the book plot, so that it is essentially a part of the exhibition. The one thing to be regretted, it will probably be found, is the lack of any approach to uniformity in the style of book-cases, which will, we fear, give the Exhibition in that respect a very American look indeed, contrasting not very favorably with the tasteful uniformity of the foreign trades. The structure is supported on forty slender and tastefully-painted columns, twelve feet high, from which extend handsome brackets having the monogram of the Association. Above, the pavilions or pagodas display the larger book-cases to great advantage, and any present top-heavy appearance of the structure will probably be largely relieved when the space below is filled with cases. We believe the American trade, while it will have opportunity to learn much from the foreign exhibits, will also have reason to be proud of its display.

The exhibitions of the foreign trades, of which we have given from time to time much information, are not sufficiently advanced on the grounds to say much more about them. The Netherland Booksellers' Association cases had, however, already arrived last week and will soon be in shape. This exhibit is, like the French and German, a collective one, and is contained in a sort of pagoda bearing the name of the association, whose shelving is lettered and numbered to point out the classification of the books. The general color is a quiet lavender with decorations in brown and gold, and the affair promises to present a very beautiful effect. The display of the French Cercle de la Librairie and of several publishers who will make a display of their own, alongside of that of the Cercle, arrived in Philadelphia by the Amérique Thursday week, and is now being unpacked. The German exhibit had not at last accounts become visible. It will not take long to erect and arrange their structure, as like the other continental trades, there has been a proof exhibition at Leipzig. We can not find that there will be any exhibit of importance by the English publishing trade generally. A few houses are individually represented and will make fine displays, as may be learned in one case from our "Centennial Notes," but the exhibit is confined to them and there seems to have been no concert of action among the English trade. This is certainly to be regretted.

It is to be said of the coming Exhibition that we shall be able to learn very much from our visitors, if we only keep our eyes and ears somewhat modestly open,—perhaps more than they will learn from us. The spirit of co-operation in which the foreign book trades have acted should certainly be effective in this respect, and doubtless there will be much to learn also from individual features of the Exhibition. We can say at least that any bookseller who fails to spend some days among the books at Philadelphia, will fail to take advantage of one of the great opportunities that has been offered him. The stimulus that it should give, morally, to our own trade, is the true answer to that chronic American question of "How will it pay?"

In re "Treasury Blotting" the Stationer states that it "has not, nor has the Paper Trade Journal, from which it took its points, assumed or said that the manufacturers sold 'Treasury blotting,' which turns the scale at ninety pounds, as weighing one hundred pounds." We certainly considered that such an assumption or imputation underlies the sentence, "We do not admit, however, that a package of Parker's 'Treasury Blotting' sold to the trade ostensibly for one hundred pounds, scales that weight, and we charge upon the manufacturers that they know that a ream of 'Treasury Blotting' stenciled 100 weighs ten pounds less than the figures marked upon it," although it was afterwards stated that "the manufacturer got $20.70, or twenty-three cents per pound," which would be by scale weight. Evidence has been brought forward to show that some members of the trade have ordered the No. 100 and No. 120 as 100 lbs. and 120 lbs., and that there is thus much misunderstanding, although we do not find but that the trade generally is posted as to the discrepancy. We have only to repeat, on the one hand, that we might, with the Journal and Stationer, have brought the matter up in a different way, that would have been less liable to misconstruction, and on the other, that the system is, to say the least, an unfortunate one, which should never have come into practice, and which should now be abandoned.

COMMUNICATIONS.

MR. WINSOR'S SUGGESTION.

WILMINGTON, DEL., April 4, 1876.

We think your suggestion of a brief slip of a summary or synopsis of the contents of each book published, if placed in the front would add greatly to the sale. If this were done by publishers in all new books it would be a great advantage to seller and buyer. Many a customer looks over the counter and asks questions regarding new publications; the bookseller must keep thoroughly posted to be able to answer, and must give the necessary time. Now, if the public once understood that just inside the cover they would find a terse, brief synopsis of each and every book, that would give them an idea of the contents, it would greatly aid in selling many volumes which now lie dead upon the counter. We hope it will be done.

Yours truly,

BOUGHMAN, THOMAS & CO.

Five works received two votes each, and 36 books one each. One of the competitors had only 11 works on his list.

The best two lists are those of Mr. H. W. Hagemann, with Messrs. D. Appleton & Co., winner of the first prize in Political Economy, and of Mr. Joseph A. Shaw, with Messrs. Tibbitts & Randall, Providence, R. I., each counting 132, out of 139, the highest count that could be made. Mr. Hagemann becomes winner of the prize by his choice of the People's edition of Irving's Washington, counting 7, in place of the 12mo edition, counting 4, as given by Mr. Shaw. Both lists give the first seven books, the 9th and the 12th of the above list by popular vote; Mr. Hagemann further gives the 10th, the 13th, and the 20th; Mr. Shaw, the 11th, the 14th, and 19th. The next best two lists are those of Mr. W. H. Arnold, with Messrs. Flagler & Merritt, Poughkeepsie, and Mr. W. S. Stedman, with Messrs. Bridgman & Childs, Northampton, Mass., both counting 126. The highest count after these is 122, the lowest 74.

CURRENT PRIZE QUESTIONS.

NO. 6.—(REGULAR.) Which are the most practically printed Trade-Lists?

Name five publishers' catalogues or trade-lists in the order preferred. Brief statement of reasons for preference, and suggestions for improvements are also in order. The criterion to be their usefulness for business purposes and adaptability for the "Trade-List Annual."

The special object of this question is to elicit particularly the opinions of experienced salesmen and book-order correspondents for the benefit of such publishers as may be preparing new trade-lists for the Centennial, and the promotion of a more uniform system of cataloguing.

Answers to this question must be received by the 22d of April. We are very anxious to draw forth the opinions of booksellers on this question, and ask that the trade generally will at least send in the names of the catalogues they prefer.

NO. 7.—(EXTRA.) Which are the most salable Novels?

SPECIAL PRIZES AS FOLLOWS:

Twenty dollars for the best list; $10 for the second best list; $5 for the third best list.

Give fifty titles of individual novels in the following order, as usual: Author, title, size, price, publisher.

Exclude works by Bulwer, Dickens, George Eliot, Scott, and Thackeray, since these are classics and certain; also novels published in 1876, since their popularity is as yet untried. State only the preferred edition, and give author's Christian names or the initials.

The special object of this question is to obtain approved working material for the compilation of an enclosure catalogue of select fiction, which, it is expected, will prove to booksellers the most profitable business-card for distribution during the Centennial and traveling season.

Answers to the above question must be received on or before May 1st.

In reply to queries, we state that paper novels are of course admitted, and that any number of books by the same author may be entered in lists, provided they are treated as specific books ("Griffith Gaunt," "Put Yourself in His Place," etc.), and not generically, as "Charles Reade's Novels."

CORRECTIONS.—In previously published lists by popular vote, the following corrections should be made: The price of Flint's "Milch Cows" (Prize-List No. 2) should read $2.50 instead of $2; the new edition of Parsons on the Rose, $1.50 (Prize-List No. 4) should be credited to the Orange Judd Co., instead of to Wiley.

NEW-YORK, April 12, 1876.

THE Committee on Assemblies of the American Book-Trade Association, 1875-6, would respectfully report to the members of the Association and to the trade, through the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, as the official journal of the Association, that they have decided upon Niagara Falls as the place of the next annual meeting, which occurs by constitutional provision on the second Tuesday of July, namely, the 11th of July, 1876.

In making this choice the committee has not been unmindful of the desire of the members of the trade that a different place of meeting should be chosen each year, so that the journey to the convention would be a novel pleasure excursion as well as a business trip. It was found impossible, however, to obtain accommodations at any central and satisfactory location on the day appointed by the constitution. The Philadelphia trade hospitably offered to procure favorable arrangements at either Cape May or Atlantic City if the date could be made earlier, but the committee felt that it had no right to consider a change of date, when it had been settled by constitutional provision. A third invitation came from Princeton, N. J., which was considered to be too far off the regular line of travel to present advantages for gathering the trade.

It was generally felt that it would be pleasant and desirable if arrangements could be made to hold the gathering this year at or near Philadelphia, so as to afford the members an opportunity of visiting the Centennial Exhibition, and especially that of the American and foreign book-trade associations, at the same time. For the reasons stated this seemed out of the question. It is however proposed, should the attendance at the convention, and the number desiring it justify, to run a special train from Niagara Falls to Philadelphia at the close of the Convention, thus giving members of the trade an opportunity to combine business and sight-seeing in the most satisfactory way that could be suggested. The exhibition of books at Philadelphia will be very general and well worth seeing, especially as the French, German, and Dutch trades promise the finest exhibitions which they have made at any international exposition so far held.

The committee would impress upon the trade the importance of a full attendance at this Convention. It follows what may be called the first year in which the reform rules have had a fair and general test. The dulness of the book-trade, as of all trades, during that time, has of course been unsatisfactory in the extreme, and has caused some of those not most far-sighted to attribute to the reform, difficulties which have been the result of the general stagnation of business. On the whole, however, despite the individual differences and exceptions which must come up under any general understanding covering so wide an extent of country, the willing testimony of members of the trade in all sections and representing all interests, has been that the reform has already accomplished a great deal of good. The imperfections in its working are such as would have been worse evils without such a reform and are to be attributed in no wise to the reform itself. The coming convention will afford an opportunity to adjust these difficulties in view of the results of this year's experiments, and it is hoped that the attendance may be sufficiently large and general to insure the wisest action. The Association seems to have accomplished its chief work in legislation, but there remains nevertheless very much to be done by consultation and the promotion of friendly feeling.

The Convention will be held, as last year, in the pavilion at Prospect Park, Niagara Falls, and will be opened at 4 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, July 11th, with the usual address from President Randolph. The several committees, standing and special, have been requested by the Executive Committee to prepare in writing a full report of their transactions during the year, and to present with this their views as to the workings of the reform in the field covered by their work, and their suggestions for any improvements respecting it. These reports will occupy the early sessions of the Convention, and will bring before the trade the important subjects of the general workings of the reform, the arbitration feature, the book fairs, the Centennial Exhibition, and other topics of the most vital interest.

Satisfactory arrangements have been made with the proprietors of the Cataract House, which will therefore be this year the headquarters of the Association, a considerable reduction being offered its members. Members of the trade will be accommodated at the Spencer House also, at a considerable reduction from its rates. The International Hotel, having changed proprietors, has this year declined to make any such reduction. The reduced rates of fare through the country, in connection with the Centennial, will render it impossible for the Committee to make better terms from most points than can be had by buying regular excursion-tickets covering Niagara Falls. It is hoped, however, to make arrangements from a few of the large centres such as Boston, New-York, Chicago, Cincinnati, and St. Louis, with special reference to the Convention. These will be announced as soon as possible.

It is desired that those who propose to attend the Convention should notify the Committee at as early a date as possible, through the Secretary, Mr. C. A. Clapp, of E. P. Dutton & Co., 713 Broadway. Certificates will be forwarded on application to him, which will enable holders to obtain all reductions offered to the members of the trade. The Committee would again impress upon all members of the trade, whether belonging to the Association or not, the importance of being present at Niagara and joining heartily in the important work before the associated trade.

TRADE MEETINGS.

PUBLISHERS' BOARD OF TRADE.

THE Publishers' Board of Trade held a special meeting last week to provide for the reorganization of the organization in view of its expiration by limitation on the 1st of July next. A strenuous effort was made to induce a general agreement to give up the agency system, but the committee appointed to obtain signatures to that end were obliged to report that three houses declined to enter into such an arrangement. The Board, therefore, concluded to continue the organization for another two years on the basis of the old by-laws, which were essentially readopted, to hold from July 1st, 1876. Officers will be elected at the regular meeting in June.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

LIFE AND LETTERS OF LORD MACAULAY. In two volumes. Vol. I. By his nephew, G. Otto Trevelyan. (Harper & Brothers.) Macaulay has only been known to the world as the man of letters, the essayist, and the critic, the sanctity of his private life having been maintained inviolate till the day of his death. Mr. Trevelyan's work is a most delightful revelation of a loving and simple nature, uncorrupted by the great world, and of the characteristics and peculiarities which were only fully revealed in the home circle. He displays special and unusual gifts in his recital of his uncle's life, bringing to the surface innumerable anecdotes which illustrate in a graphic manner the nobility of his character. Macaulay's letters to a favorite sister, written in the most unrestrained and unaffected style, and untinctured by any thought of future publication, tell most of his history, and give amusing pictures of the society people with whom he was in familiar contact. The volume closes with his return from India, leaving the reader eager for further details. 8vo, cloth, $2.50.

SONGS OF FAITH, by J. H. Tenney and Rev. E. A. Hoffman. (S. Brainard's Sons.) A collection of selected hymns with music, especially suited for use in religious meetings. "Hold the Fort" and the "Ninety and Nine," with several other of Messrs. Moody and Sankey's favorites are among them. 12mo, cloth, 35 cents.

MARRIED BENEATH HIM, by James Payn. (T. B. Peterson & Bros.) Although Mr. James Payn has written a number of novels, he is best known as the author of "Lost Sir Masingberd," one of his most popular works. His novels all have elements of popularity, this probably as much as any of them, although it opens in quite a tame way—however, the reader will find no lack of excitement towards the end—as the unfortunate marriage entered into by the hero brings forth many disastrous results, foremost among which is a murder and an exciting trial of the suspected party. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

DEAD MEN'S SHOES, by Miss M. E. Braddon. (Harper & Brothers.) Miss Braddon shows a poverty of invention in the characters and plot of this novel that is unusual with her: there is not only a want of freshness and originality, but also a lack of probability in the incidents, which has a bad effect upon the reader's sympathies. Her story turns upon the fact of a young woman basely deserting her husband and child in poverty to go to the house of a rich old uncle, and live there in luxury, deliberately waiting his death, hoping to inherit his property. Many side issues spring from this, none of them being brought in very dexterously or cleverly. The book will be found full enough however of bright talk and description to make it very readable. 8vo, paper, 75c.

THE SOUL'S INQUIRIES ANSWERED. A Year-book of Scripture Texts; arranged by G. Washington Moon. (Thomas Y. Crowell.) An ingenious little mosaic of Scripture texts, arranged in the form of questions and answers, and designed as an aid, that can be quickly and readily consulted every day. Every alternate page is blank, with a space for each day in the year opposite the text, and is intended to serve as a place to enter brief records of private thoughts. 24mo, cloth, $1.

SHADOWED PERILS, by M. A. Avery. (Author's Pub. Co.) Without making any pretence to style, the author tells here a plain, straightforward, but exceedingly natural and interesting story. The scene is laid in the United States just at the opening of the late civil war, and contains some vivid pictures of life North and South. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

AN EGG FARM, by H. H. Stoddard. (Orange Judd Co.) The articles embraced within these covers were first published in the American Agriculturist, and attracted very general attention from parties interested in the raising of poultry on a large scale. The author presents his plans clearly and plainly, offering many suggestions of permanent value on the production of eggs. Illustrated, 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

THE TESTIMONY OF THE EVANGELISTS, by Simon Greenleaf, LL.D. (E. P. Dutton & Co.) This is not an inquiry into the evidences of Christianity, but an attempt to subject the narratives of the apostles to the same tests which other evidences are subjected to in human tribunals. The result will be highly interesting and satisfying to all Christian believers. In an appendix is a review of the trial of Jesus, and a history of the most ancient manuscript copies of the New Testament by Constantine Tischendorf. This is a new and revised edition. 8vo, cloth, $5.

WRINKLES AND RECIPES, compiled from the Scientific American, edited by Park Benjamin. (H. N. Munn.) A collection of recipes and suggestions designed to be of every day use to the mechanic, engineer, and farmer in the house and in the workshop; hence useful information will be found, arranged alphabetically, under the headings of "Household Hints," "The Farm," "Practical Technology," "Engineering," and "Mechanics." In so small a space it is surprising how much is given that is useful and valuable and easy of application by every one, owing to the simplicity of the language. Very fully illustrated, 16mo, cloth, $1.50.

THE PHYSICIAN'S RECORD AND CASH-BOOK, by D. M. Barr, M.D. (Sower, Potts & Co.) This book is intended to be used as a record of visits and appointments, and as a Ledger and Cash-book and Day-book. It is so divided as to meet all these requirements in a simple and practical manner. It is thoroughly endorsed by prominent physicians as one of the most perfect systems that can be had for recording all the minutiae connected with a doctor's practice at the expense of very little time and labor. This is a new and revised edition. Folio, cloth, $5.

THE LANGUAGE OF FLOWERS, by Uncle Charlie. (C. P. Dillingham.) A charming little book for those who wish to be conversant with the language and sentiments which can be interpreted by flowers. Besides the instructions in "Floral Conversations" and the long list of "Floral Sentiments," there is a most excellent selection of poems illustrative of the subject, and a very interesting chapter on "Floral Decorations." 50 cents.

LADIES' FANCY WORK, by Mrs. C. S. Jones and Henry T. Williams. (Henry T. Williams.) Directions for making the greatest variety of fancy articles are included in this volume. It also embraces the most minute instructions for making paper flowers, wax flowers, hair work, feather work, shell work, a number of ornamental articles for home decoration out of paper, worsted, beads, etc. Ladies who are fond of employing their leisure hours in this way, will find here a perfect treasure-house of patterns, directions and suggestions, most carefully and clearly elaborated. 8vo, cloth, $1.50.

EASTER HYMNS, compiled by J. E. C. Chapman. (Lockwood, Brooks & Co.) These hymns are gathered from various sources, and all breathe the joyfulness of Easter time. A little volume that is specially noticeable for the taste and daintiness with which it is gotten up. Sq. 18mo, cloth, gilt edges, $1.25.

CENTENNIAL NOTES.

CONTRIBUTORS should hurry up their goods. Wednesday next, the 19th, is the last day of grace as per programme, and the authorities are not disposed to grant much extension. Space unoccupied by April 26th is liable to be forfeited.

THOSE having cases made for the book department should be careful not to overreach the limits given them. The columns are likely to interfere with cases any larger in floor space, and the brackets with those any higher than the figures stated in the committee's letters.

THE judges for the several departments, including those connected with the group to which books belong, have already been appointed, but the names are withheld until the appointments are accepted. One half are foreigners and one half citizens. The awards will consist of a diploma and bronze medal, accompanied by a special report of the judges.

As to tickets for exhibitors, each exhibitor will be allowed one, non-transferable. If he desires to put his goods in charge of an agent, that agent may take the exhibitor's ticket, in which case the exhibitor loses his free entrance; and if an agent has charge of more than one exhibit, all the exhibitors lose their free entrance. In other words, free tickets are only for custody of the goods. It is possible tickets may be allowed to more than one member of firms exhibiting, but this is not yet decided.

THE New-York Tribune will have a separate little building on the grounds, near the lake. If the Tribune, in its Exhibition extras, will give the public a series of detailed comparisons of American and foreign results in the several departments, it will help us to get the best teachings of the Exhibition in the most effective shape.

THE building for Mr. Rowell's newspaper exhibit is going up rapidly, and the display promises to be an excellent representation of American journalism. It will include amateur newspapers, which are decidedly an American product. Mr. Rowell proposes to prepare a catalogue of the newspaper exhibits for gratuitous distribution, but this the Centennial Catalogue Company claim the right to prohibit. The exhibit is Mr. Rowell's own enterprise (under the sanction of the Centennial Commission), and is naturally not looked upon with favor by other advertising agencies. The only direct return for the outlay will be obtained from pages in the catalogue, not to exceed 100, to which descriptions, etc., of prominent newspapers will be admitted, at $200 the page.

THERE is still question as to how far the rights of the Catalogue Company extend. We have submitted the points in question to the Centennial Commission, and they have been referred to its counsel, so that full information may be expected in our next week's issue. The Company does not claim the right to prohibit publishers' general catalogues of publications, but does claim power to prohibit the use by any publisher of a select catalogue of his exhibits.

THE official catalogue itself is well along. Mr. H. O. Houghton has been in Philadelphia for a week or so, pushing his end of the work, and expects to make the best catalogue yet issued at any international exhibition. It will probably be in four parts, according to the different buildings, at 25 cents each, or $1.50 for the whole bound together in cloth. The body of the catalogue consists of entry by individual exhibitors (fifteen words each), according to place in the buildings; there will be an analytical table of contents, showing the groups, and an alphabetical index to exhibitors, referring to the specialty of each. This valuable indexing has never before been attempted.

THE other catalogues and guides are begun. The illustrated catalogue is licensed by the Catalogue Company, as some special catalogues have been. The official Guide-Book to the Exhibition is that of the Messrs. Lippincott, which with two excellent maps is sold at the phenomenally low price of 25 cents, paper; 50 cents, cloth. The official guide of Messrs. Porter & Coates to Philadelphia, etc., is a more elaborate affair, which is not directly connected with the Exhibition, but is commended by the Mayor of Philadelphia. It is in handsome shape, at $2, morocco; $1.50, cloth. The Lippincotts are revising their handsome half-dollar illustrated description of "Philadelphia and its Environs," and Porter & Coates are preparing a similar work. The little guides of Hurd & Houghton, at twenty-five cents, are very handy. John E. Potter & Co. publish cheap illustrated guides to Philadelphia and to the Exhibition at ten cents each, binding them together for a quarter. Their large Directory to the Exhibition is composed of descriptions of specialties and advertisements; it will be ready in May, and will cost about $1.50. Only the Centennial Catalogue Company's catalogue and the Lippincott Guide are allowed to be sold on the grounds.

WE have an advance copy of the "Catalogue of the Collective Exposition at the Centennial Exhibition in 1876, at Philadelphia, of the Netherlands Booksellers' Association," a goodly octavo of 237 pages. It is prefaced with a colored plate of the Exposition, which by no means does justice to the tastefulness of the structure. The title-pages, preface, etc., are given in Dutch and English, with a reduction-table for the prices appended to titles in the body of the catalogue. The titles themselves are of course in Dutch. One hundred and twenty-six publishers are named as contributors. The catalogue is arranged under logical classification, the grand divisions being general literature, school-books, periodicals. The gentlemen of the Association who have prepared this creditable exhibit and catalogue are Messrs. Thieme, President, and Van Kampen, Secretary of the Association, and Brinkman, Brouwer, Van Dijk, and Van Holkema. We trust they will meet with no impediment from the Centennial Catalogue Company.

MESSRS. BRADBURY, AGNEW & CO., the extensive Printers, of Whitefriars, London, are about to send to the International Exhibition at Philadelphia a book-case of novel design and construction. Built entirely of wood and glass, easily taken to pieces and built up again, the edifice would partake of the frame-house or chalet order of architecture, were not a certain artistic severity of tone recognisable in every detail. The "Exhibition Book-case" is twelve feet square and twenty-two feet in height, including the gabled roof, cleverly glazed with dark-green semi-opaque glass to soften the glare of a Philadelphia sun without actually shutting out its light. The woodwork is painted in various shades of olive green, relieved by black and gold. Behind the plate-glass windows of the sides will be arranged those works with which the name of the firm is more peculiarly associated. Copies of "Punch" will occupy one side of the book-case with volumes and sketches, and the "Handy Volume" series will also be strongly represented. Above the principal entrance appear in letters of gold the first four words of the Shakespearian quotation—

"Come, and take choice of all my library;
And so beguile thy sorrow."

The invitation is seriously intended by Messrs. Bradbury and Co., whose book-case has an inside as well as an out. Around the interior will be grouped a selection of the works published by the exhibitors, and the public are invited to enter and peruse any or all of them. It may safely be predicted that so comfortable and interesting a lounge will be thoroughly appreciated in America, where comparatively few people expend their energies in the unprofitable pursuit of walking about when they have a chance of sitting down. A librarian will take charge of the interior arrangements and watch over the comfort of the guests from a species of pulpit, behind which is a rich piece of stained-glass work, designed by Mr. John Leighton, F.S.A., and executed by Oudinot, of Bar-le-duc.—London Press News.

WE have the list of French exhibitors in the book and paper departments, numbering eleven special exhibitors and forty-five more in connection with the exposition of the Cercle. M. Terquem represents the latter at Philadelphia.

LIBRARY AND BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTES.

DODD, MEAD & CO.'s "Sunday-school Annual for 1876," just issued, has in a small space quite an amount of information of special interest to Sunday-school teachers, superintendents, and librarians. Drs. Taylor, Hall, Robinson, and Abbott contribute articles upon the subject of Sunday-school books, while the publishers present not only their own valuable catalogue of miscellaneous works, but also lists of all Sunday-school books published in 1873, 1874, and 1875, with a list of "Aids to Bible Study and Sunday-school Work." The analyses of Sunday-school books that this house has had in operation for six years now, and of which they give some specimens in the "Annual," affords them unusual facilities for filling orders for any specified line of books.

THE announcement of the sale of Mr. Drake's library at Boston, in May and June, and the excellent catalogue sent out, have excited remarkable interest. Letters come pouring in from all parts of the country, indicating the zest with which book-fanciers regard certain rare volumes, and promising a large attendance and spirited bidding when the sale comes on.

MR. E. G. SQUIER's library, to be sold by Bangs, Mervin & Co., on the afternoon of April 24th, embraces a remarkably comprehensive collection of books, manuscripts, maps, drawings, and engravings, chiefly relating to Central America and Peru, and American antiquities. The catalogue is issued under Mr. Sabin's editorship, in very creditable style, and in a shape exceedingly convenient for handling. A list of the books and pamphlets written by Mr. Squier and appended to the catalogue, show the wide range of his interests and researches.

BUSINESS NOTES.

MR. A. J. CLARK, the well-known Poughkeepsie bookseller, has removed to New-York, and now has his headquarters at No. 66 Nassau street, up-stairs. His advertisement will be found elsewhere.

MESSRS. JAS. R. OSGOOD & Co. will remove from their present store May 1st. They do not, however, leave the new Boston "book centre," in which they were pioneers, but go only so far as Franklin and Devonshire streets, where they will occupy the Cathedral Building.

MR. JOHN ALLYN, of 21 Bromfield street, Boston, will remove on May 1st to No. 30 Franklin street, in the new book quarter.

D. LOTHROP & Co., of Boston, have just moved from Cornhill to 32 Franklin street, diagonally opposite Lee & Shepard. They have very ample and commodious quarters, which they have arranged very attractively. They propose to do a more general retail trade than heretofore, and a vast round table in the front of their store enables them to display the newest books so temptingly that beholders will hardly resist the impulse to buy. It would be a rare place for literary loafing, if Mr. Lothrop's nervous activity did not discountenance it. A quite full assortment of stationery will be kept, and the Wide Awake will carry its monthly quota of instruction, entertainment, and good pictures to an army of young folks.

DE NISE & BALEON, of Newark, Ohio, having made a change in their business, J. H. De Nise going out of the firm and B. R. Elliott entering it, the house will hereafter be known as Baleon & Elliott.

SHORB & BOLAND, one of the leading jobbing houses of St. Louis, and for twenty years the occupants of the same premises on Main street, have recently, in order to meet the growing demands of their business, removed into the new and spacious buildings located at 610 and 612 Washington avenue. Their show-rooms are said to equal in size, elegance, and convenience, those of any similar business East or West, while they display a most select stock of school-books and foreign and domestic stationery.

STATIONERY NOTES.

TRADE for this season of the year is all that can be expected under existing circumstances. We learn that many buyers are holding off preparatory to visiting the Centennial Exhibition, and at the same time making their purchases while visiting the East. There is no doubt but that we shall have a better trade during the summer months than usual, when buyers will avail themselves of the opportunity to look over the different assortments of goods.

THE latest novelty, a "Combination Letter-Scale Inkstand and Pen-rack," is patented by E. L. Thompson & Co., 37 Park Row, New-York. It is an exceedingly neat, compact, and accurate scale, and will weigh from one half to eight ounces. The base has two ink-cups, which can be removed and cleaned in a moment, and is neatly bronzed. The arrangement is in every respect just the article for office use. It is also made nickel-plated, and sells at $3.50 and $5 retail.

McLOUGHLIN BROS., 71 and 73 Duane street, New-York, will issue to the trade in a few days the following new toy-books, executed in their usual attractive style, quarto, in colors: "The Camptown Races," "Henny Penny," "The Bears," "The Monkeys," "Red Riding Hood." Retail price, 25 cents; royal 8vo. "The Ark Alphabet," "Ten Little Niggers," "Cats' Dinner Party," "Dogs' Dinner Party." Retail price, 15 cents. On May 1st they will issue the wonderful and amusing toy called "The Spirit Table; or, Bewitched People." It is constructed on philosophical principles, using frictional electricity. The table is formed of a glass plate 10 x 12, resting on walnut legs, and sets closely in a wood box; on the bottom of the box there are a number of comical figures about one inch in size, printed on very fine paper. Accompanying the instrument will be a round pad, and by passing the pad over the glass gently, the figures will commence to dance, wriggle, turn over, and cut up generally. The many different positions the figures get in make them truly amusing, and they will please not only children, but grown people. The price will be $2.

W. W. HARDING has issued a supplement to his spring announcement to the book, stationery, and notion trade. In addition to the new line of photograph albums, he has now several entirely novel styles of albums, denominated the Centennial Series. These albums are made in the best manner and finished with pure gold-leaf, and offered at very low prices. They are bound in cloth, velvet, and morocco. The emblems and ornaments are entirely new and prepared expressly for this series. The most noticeable are the life portraits of George and Martha Washington. This Centennial Series is not included in their new catalogue. The catalogue and supplement will be sent on application to W. W. Harding, 630 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

ROBERT SNEIDER, of 37 John street, New-York, is making to order a monogram picture scrap-book, which is a novel idea and is very tastily arranged with pictures and monograms in various designs on every third or fourth page. When completed it will cost $15.

THE Washington Autograph Album is a very handsome and cheap article, made in cloth with fancy illuminated pictorial sides, rounded corners, and fine quality tinted paper in assorted colors. There are six sizes, ranging in price from $3.60 to $10 per dozen, with liberal discount to the trade. A line of fancy illuminated pictorial-side scrap-books, in full cloth, with white and colored paper, indexed and paged for selections from newspapers, magazines, etc., and in various sizes, running from 35 cents to $1.50 per book, subject to a trade discount, is also offered—by Asa L. Shipman & Sons, manufacturers, No. 10 Murray street, New York.

A NEW enterprise is to be noted in the book and stationery line. The firm of T. S. White & Co. have located themselves on the corner of Third and Minnesota streets, St. Paul, where they will keep a complete stock of books and stationery, etc., at wholesale and retail, and in such quantities that they can supply the buyer without delay. The success met with by this firm in comparatively so short a space of time is remarkable, and can only be attributed to care taken in selecting the stock and the thorough knowledge of the wants of the purchaser, together with the energy and push displayed by each member of the house.

THERE is just out an extra large calendar for bank, insurance, and office use. It is 12 x 15 inches, and the letters, figures, etc., are printed in 3-inch type, and can be seen at a distance quite plainly if hung in a prominent place. Retail price, $3.75. It is manufactured by J. O. Smith & Sons, 155 William street, New-York.

WILLIAM H. WOGLOM, 239 Greenwich street, New-York, has been robbed of his portfolio containing four hundred dollars' worth of stamps. On March 22d, at 8 o'clock A.M., five persons entered the store, and while four engaged the attention of the clerks, the other one slipped behind the counter and carried off the book containing the revenue and postage stamps.

MESSRS. DENNISON & Co., New-York, have the sale of a very superior line of American tissues. They excel any thing ever produced in this country, and compare favorably with foreign manufactures, both in quality and delicacy of tints.

CHARLES S. ADAMS, with Willy Wallach, New-York, has gone on his usual trip through the New-England States. We hope he will meet his usual success.

CENTENNIAL emblems, each having a photograph likeness of George Washington or Martha Washington, made of gilt metallic frames, square, open-work circle, star, eagle, etc., selling from $1.50 to $5 per hundred, are to be had of Willy Wallach, 4 Beekman street, New-York.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

MESSRS. E. P. DUTTON & Co. have in press for early publication "Rudiments of Theology," a first book for students, by John Pilkington Norris; a work which is likely to come into wide notice. The Churchman, in a review of the book, says: "To the clergy it will serve as a model method of dogmatic teaching, and to the laity it will be a rich storehouse of information concerning the things to be believed. It is capable of doing a most important service among all classes."

ESTES & LAURIAT, Boston, will shortly add to their list of novels Albany Fonblanque's new story, "A Family Tree," Mrs. Riddell's latest, "Above Suspicion," both of which have been received with much favor in England; also, the noteworthy story, "Are You My Wife?" which appeared serially in The Catholic World, by the author of "Number Thirteen." They now have nearly all the plates of Osgood's library of novels, with the stock; and will speedily bring out new editions of Gaboriau's and E. Werner's popular stories.

DODD & MEAD will soon issue the new novel by a new author, known as "C. M. Cornwall," which bears the curious title of "Free, yet Forging their own Chains." It has its scene in the Pennsylvania mining regions, and is said to be likely to win much favor among the admirers of Mr. Roe's novels. A new volume by Hesba Stretton, "The Crew of the Dolphin," and a life of Franklin, in Rev. J. S. C. Abbott's "American Pioneers and Patriots" series, are also in advanced preparation.

THE Harpers will shortly issue the second volume of the Macaulay memoirs, of which the first has been excellently received, and with it the volume of essays by Mr. Green, the historian, "Stray Studies," which is said to be a very entertaining and informing series of papers.

BESIDES Dr. Taylor's Yale lectures on "The Ministry of the Word," which will be very comprehensive and valuable, A. D. F. Randolph & Co. will shortly issue, in a little volume, a report of the two colloquies between Mr. Moody and the venerable Dr. Plumer, which have been among the most interesting features of the evangelists' crusade.

THE Macmillans will soon have ready the new book by Lewis Carroll, author of "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland." It bears the remarkable title of "The Hunting of the Snark: an Agony in Eight Fits."

EDWARD JENKINS's new political satire on the Royal Titles Bill, "The Blot on the Queen's Head," the London Examiner says, was written and printed in eleven hours, and fifteen thousand copies were sold within twenty-four hours after its publication.

A DECIDED novelty will be introduced to the trade by the Messrs. Putnam in the Japanese novel of "Chiushingura." This highly-sensational romance of Japanese life will be a curiosity not only for its text but in its entire get-up. It opens, like the Japanese books, in the one way we should never think of opening a book. It will have thirty curious plates in tint, imported from Japan and printed by the slow process of striking off with the hammer, and will be bound in some curious embossed cloths which the Messrs. Putnam have imported for the purpose from Japan.

ESTES & LAURIAT, of Boston, will soon bring out the following volumes in the "Epochs of History" series, "The Age of Elizabeth," by Mandell Creighton, "The Fall of the Stuarts, and Western Europe from 1678 to 1697," by Rev. E. Hale (not Edward Everett Hale), "American Independence," by J. M. Ludlow, "The First Two Stuarts and the Puritan Revolution," by S. R. Gardiner. The publication of these volumes, as of several before in this excellent series, is not a "trade fight" between Estes & Lauriat and Scribner, Armstrong & Co., but a matter of amicable agreement.

"THE Harvard Book," heretofore sold chiefly outside the trade, has gone into the hands of A. Williams & Co., who are ready to fill a limited number of orders for the same. This work, in two beautiful imperial quarto volumes, finely illustrated by the heliotype process, and selling for $32, presents in its biographical, historical, and descriptive sketches, and views and portraits, the only record, in permanent form, to be had of Harvard and old college days.

OSGOOD & Co. will add to their "Vest Pocket Series" Mr. Fields' delightful gossip paper on "Barry Cornwall and his Friends." It has grown somewhat since it appeared in Harpers' Magazine, and only stopped growing because it must have an end. Mr. Fields has apparently an inexhaustible fund of anecdotes and reminiscences of English and American authors of his time.

KANSAS also is aspiring to make books, beginning with its own history, which is also national history, "The Annals of Kansas," by Daniel W. Wilder, is just issued by the "Kansas Publishing House" at Topeka, managed by Mr. George W. Martin, the index alone filling seventeen pages.

ELIHU BURRITT will shortly issue, through Brown & Gross, Hartford, a "Sanskrit Handbook for the Fireside."

A BIOGRAPHY of the late Reverdy Johnson will be prepared, probably by Mr. Charles G. Kerr, who maintained an intimate relationship with Mr. Johnson during the last years of his life. It was Mr. Johnson's intention to have written some personal recollections of himself during this year, had he lived.

The Literary News

A Monthly Journal of Current Literature.

PUBLISHED BY

(Space allotted for Dealer's Imprint.)

MAY, 1876.

TO THE RETAIL BOOK TRADE.

Retail Booksellers, News Agents, and Dealers generally, who desire a handy, cheap, and profitable advertising medium for the latest books in the market, will find

The Literary News

the best adapted to that purpose.

This publication (now in its fifth year) has reached a circulation of over 25,000 copies, and is used by hundreds of booksellers, from Maine to California.

It will be issued as heretofore, at the beginning of every month, with not less than eight pages, embracing Editorial Notes, Literary Intelligence, a full list, compiled expressly for its columns from the records of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, containing the titles and prices of the PRINCIPAL BOOKS PUBLISHED DURING THE PREVIOUS MONTH and announcements of Forthcoming Works for the Current Month, so classified as to show at a glance all the new publications in the various departments of literature, and one page of general advertisements, which will not conflict with the interest of the trade. It will be printed on tinted paper like previous editions, but of superior quality, and being of light texture, it can be sent with any book, magazine, paper, letter, circular, etc., with a small increase of postage.

It is certain that dealers who will adopt this cheap and effective mode for advertising their establishments, will find themselves amply repaid in a short time, and we have the testimony of many dealers who have not only increased the sales from their counters, but have found the orders for books not in stock highly remunerative.

Terms for Editions with Imprint, invariably payable in advance.

100 Copies for three months,	:	:	:	$6 50	500 Copies for three months,	:	:	:	$19 00
250 " " "	:	:	:	12 00	1000 " " "	:	:	:	36 00

Special terms for large quantities.

As the December issue will hereafter be published as a double (Christmas) number, regular subscribers at the above rates, who fail to send their special order, will receive only one half the quantity for this month. Special terms for the Christmas number will be announced in the Publishers' Weekly during the month of November.

Extra front headings (instead of the adopted style of imprint), with special name of paper and display, for which there is space above the rules inclosing date, are charged $1 extra per edition.

Any quantity from 100 to 1000 copies will be sent post-paid, but for larger quantities, at the reduced rates, postage or expressage will be charged.

Dealers who desire an edition for trial before subscribing, can be supplied at the following rates:

100 Copies for any month except December,	$2 50	500 Copies for any month except December,	$8 00
250 " " "	5 00	1000 " " "	15 00

Orders must be received by the 30th of the month previous to which the subscription begins.

No orders filled without payment in advance, as the numerous small amounts will neither bear the trouble nor expense of sending bills or of repeated statements, and collecting. Remittances should be made either by Post-Office Order, Draft on New-York, or Registered Letter.

All Orders should be addressed,

STUDIES IN DESIGN,

FOR

Manufacturers, Architects, Builders, Designers, House-Decorators, etc.

By CHRISTOPHER DRESSER, Ph.D., F.L.S., F.E.B.S.

Consisting of sixty original designs elaborately produced in combined colors, and in gold and colors, with descriptive letter-press and twenty chapters on the Principles of Designing.

Folio, handsomely bound in cloth, $27.50.

The American Bookseller says: " 'Studies in Design' is an elaborate work on the art of decorating, by Chr. Dresser, the author of the valuable little work on 'The Principles of Decorative Design.' The new work of studies is a folio containing sixty beautiful colored plates. All the sketches are original designs of the author, except one or two by his most advanced pupils. In the text, Mr. Dresser treats in a simple, practical way of the different styles and the rooms and purposes to which they are adapted, giving many practical suggestions as to combinations and fitness, which will be of great value to the decorator. He not only shows a thorough knowledge of the art, but a faculty for teaching it and an appreciation of the wants of those who would learn. The work, both in text and plates, is thorough, and worth the attention not only of the professional decorator, but of all who take any interest in the ornamentation of their homes. It may be studied to advantage by the painter, who can turn to practical account its plates and suggestions, and by those who would acquire such a knowledge of the art as to be able to correctly appreciate and criticise it."

"My acquaintance with Mr. Grimes commenced in 1846. Mrs. Grimes has honored me with her confidence, and placed his home letters in my hands. From this and his other correspondence, and from the public records, I have arranged as clearly and succinctly as possible these memoirs of his life. They are substantially autobiographical, and afford, in his own language, his views of the questions and events in the consideration and determination of which he bore his part."—Preface.

SIMILARITIES OF

Physical and Religious Knowledge.

By James Thompson Bixby. One vol., 12mo, $1.50.

The intention of the author in writing this volume is to reconcile Religion and Science. He looks at religion and science in their broadest and most essential features, and sets forth the underlying unities of physical and religious knowledge; the common foundations on which they really rest; the similarities of methods, objects, and general results which exist between them, and the actual identity of interests which binds them together, and which should be acknowledged in word, thought, and action.

V.

Railway Appliances.

A Description of Details of Railway Construction subsequent to the completion of the Earthworks and Structures. Including a Short Notice of Railway Rolling-Stock. By John Wolfe Barry. With illustrations, $1.50.

"The purpose of this work is to describe the different material adjuncts, the appliance of which marks the distinction between the new road-bed, more or less straight and level, on which the rails are laid, and that elaborate system for the safe and speedy conveyance of passengers and goods, which is practically known and talked of under the vague designation of a railway."—Extract from Preface.

THE HABITATIONS OF MAN IN ALL AGES. By E. VIOLLET-LE-DUC, author of "How to Build a House," "Annals of a Fortress," etc. Translated by B. Bucknall, Architect. With over 100 illustrations by the Author. 1 vol., 8vo, $5.

"M. Viollet-le-Duc is one of the most captivating and informing of writers. . . . As we have already said, the value of this book lies in the fact that it unites a philosophy of human progress and culture with a history of the constructive faculty in man. . . . It is a book which may be read by the least thoughtful with delight; by the most thoughtful it will be found supremely suggestive and stimulating."—London Nonconformist.

LETTERS AND SOCIAL AIMS. A new volume of Essays. By RALPH WALDO EMERSON. 1 vol., 12mo, $2.

"Mr. Emerson's influence has been one of the most effective agents in molding the intellectual habits of the present generation of readers. . . . 'Letters and Social Aims' seem, more than Mr. Emerson's other books, to take the reader into the confidence of its author, to reveal something of his personal life and methods."—Prof. C. C. Everett, in Christian Register.

A PAYING INVESTMENT. By ANNA E. DICKINSON. 1 vol., 16mo, $1.

"Illiteracy, ignorance, trades unionism, the treatment of prisoners, the tenement-house horrors, the neglect of the ballot, all the great evils that we tacitly recognize, shudder at, or mildly condemn, but turn away from, she vividly paints in her artistic style, and then calls on us to attend to them, to abolish the wrong by setting things right. Her little book is only about a hundred pages long, but it tells the great story of wrong, and tells it truly."—Hartford Courant.

GEOLOGICAL SKETCHES. Second Series. By LOUIS AGASSIZ. $1.75.

CONTENTS.—Glacial Period—The Parallel Roads of Glen Roy, in Scotland—Ice Period in America—Glacial Phenomena in Maine—Physical History of the Valley of the Amazons.

FIFTH EDITION.

LIFE, LETTERS, AND JOURNALS OF GEORGE TICKNOR. 2 vols., $6.

"Probably no American has led a life richer in that class of associations and interests which belong properly to literary biography, and the two volumes in which his history is told afford such varied literary entertainment, such pleasant personal anecdotes and reminiscences of so many of the most distinguished people of the time, as to form a substantial addition to the books on the shelf that holds the memoirs of Johnson, of Scott, of Mackintosh."—The Nation (New-York).

"Extremely valuable and profoundly interesting."—New-York Christian Intelligencer.

LOWELL'S NEW BOOK.

AMONG MY BOOKS. Second Series. $2.

"Since St. Beuve's death Lowell is easily first among purely literary critics. To wide knowledge and catholic sympathy he adds a liveliness of apprehension, a delicacy of perception, and a depth of insight possessed in no fuller measure by the Frenchman. His splendid diction, power of epigrammatic statement, and sparkling wit give to his criticism an inexpressible charm, and to these graces of manner are joined a genius for simile and comparison, a command of figurative speech little less than marvelous."—Portland Press.

"We have read it with constant delight and profit."—The Independent.

AMONG MY BOOKS. First Series. $2.

MY STUDY WINDOWS. By JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL. $2.

"The wisdom and wit and insight and imagination are as delightful as they are surprising."—G. W. Curtis.

THE UNSEEN WORLD AND OTHER ESSAYS. By JOHN FISKE. 1 vol., 12mo, $2.

"The subjects which he has treated are, indeed, most varied and wide-ranging. They all but exhaust the field of criticism, as philosophy and abstruse science, religion and history, poetry and music, are all successively treated, and that with marked ability."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"One of the really strong and valuable books of the year."—Boston Advertiser.

A FARMER'S VACATION. By GEORGE E. WARING, Jr., of "Ogden Farm," author of "Whip and Spur." Beautifully and copiously illustrated. 1 vol., 8vo, $5.

"It contains stores of interesting information. An unusually entertaining and meritorious book. It is handsomely printed and profusely illustrated, and the illustrations show the variety of the reading matter. As instances of this variety we cite at random an Edam cheese-press, a Scheveningen fish-wife, the clock-tower at Rouen, the head-dresses of Normandy, the castle of Mont St. Michel, a cow at home in Jersey, and the interior of Victor Hugo's drawing-room in Guernsey."—The Nation (New-York).

NOTES IN SEASON.

BANCROFT'S new centenary edition of his famous "History of the United States" has reached the third volume, and is one of the most popular hits of this Centennial year, as it every way deserves to be. Booksellers can do their country admirable service by promoting the circulation of this and other works of similar character now while people are willing to learn something about the history of the nation.

HURD & HOUGHTON have just ready Col. Waring's volume on "The Sanitary Drainage of Houses and Towns," which is considerably extended from the Atlantic papers, with many illustrative diagrams, and is invaluable to every householder; Mr. Rand's timely book on "Orchids;" the charming little guide to "Charcoal Drawing;" and a fifth edition of the popular "Satchel Guide" to Europe, revised to April, 1876.

THE Appletons have nearly ready "The Life of Senator Grimes," which will be an interesting contribution to American biography; the work on Fermentation, in the Scientific Series; and a contribution to Centennial guide-book literature in "A Hand-Book of American Cities," which will be the most comprehensive book of its kind in the market. It is compiled by Mr. Jones, the experienced editor of the Appletons' other guide-books, and will describe American cities from Boston to San Francisco.

LOCKWOOD, BROOKS & Co., of Boston, promise about May 1st a theological book that can hardly fail to excite something of a commotion. It is entitled, "Is Future Punishment Eternal?"

and is by a scholarly orthodox clergyman, who through a carefully-reasoned argument, fortified by a host of passages from the Bible, reaches a negative conclusion. The book will be published anonymously, but there is a man behind it.

THE "Life of Benjamin Franklin," just ready for publication by D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, is likely to be very generally welcomed as a compact yet comprehensive account of Franklin's remarkable public career, and giving a more than ordinarily full picture of his social and domestic life. It is from the skilful hand of Rev. Dr J. Chaplin, author of the "Life of President Dunster," of Harvard, and appears just at the right time.

JOHN WILEY & SONS will soon have ready a new and revised edition of "Downing's Fruits and Fruit-Trees of America," a work whose popularity bespeaks its merit.

THE initial volume of the Sans Souci Series will be "Haydon's Correspondence and Table Talk," with four illustrations, and a fac-simile of a letter by Haydon. The Times said of it: "Since the appearance of the 'Greville Memoirs,' there has been no collection of reminiscences which compares with this in point and interest." The binding will be a decided novelty.

MESSRS. PORTER & COATES have nearly ready an edition of Shakespeare, in eight volumes, which will meet the wants of an edition giving notes, etc., of good print, and yet sufficiently small to be easily handled and carried. Only a small edition was printed from the plates years ago, and they are in excellent condition. The text is regulated from the folio of 1632, with readings from former editions, and there are, besides, a history of the stage, a life of the poet, an introduction to each play, and notes by the most approved commentators.

THE price of Hamerton's "The Sylvan Year" and "The Unknown," in one volume, ready by Roberts Bros. in May, is to be only $2, not $3, as erroneously advertised in our last issue.

AMERICAN CATALOGUE NOTES.

We are pushing forward the work on the American Catalogue, but we must ask the trade to come to our assistance in making the financial basis of the work assured. We have yet less than 300 subscriptions, and our belief is that unless this number is considerably raised before we begin the work of revision, we shall be obliged to abbreviate the full entry of titles more than we had wished. The price of the work, we would remind the trade, is $25 for the two volumes, of which $5 is to be paid now and $10 each on the publication of the volumes, a price which will be raised after publication, and which is low considering the great value of the work and the amount of editorial and bibliographical labor that it involves. We ask the trade generally to send us their subscriptions, and to induce others to do the same.

We continue our request to publishers to answer promptly the letters and circulars sent out from the American Catalogue department. We are aware that the requests made of them involve considerable labor, but we would remind them of the importance of this work being done once for all and in the most satisfactory shape. We are put to great inconvenience and delay by the neglect of some of the publishers to answer the queries of the department, and we urge upon all publishers, as a matter of justice to themselves and to the trade, to help and not hinder this important work.

We would caution those sending us packages of catalogues or papers as to their doing-up. Under the present ruling the Post-Office Department is very rigid in its inspection of parcels, and where these are not so fastened as to allow of examination of contents, full letter postage is assessed.

If there are any among our readers, publishing few or many books, who have not yet received "Circular of Information" from the American Catalogue Department, they will confer a favor upon us by sending name and address to this department, which will put itself in communication with them.

THE generally very ready response of the publishers to our request for catalogues and information is most gratefully acknowledged, and we hope will incite those who have so far delayed, to send in their lists at once.

The Publishers' Weekly.

APRIL 22, 1876.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry and for notice in "Books Received."

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries." Notes from librarians will also be gratefully received.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

POSTAL PROGRESS.

CONGRESS has continued what the Evening Post calls its "third class legislation upon third-class matter:" the Senate has eliminated the distance feature, which met with general disfavor, out of Senator Hamlin's bill, rejected an amendment by Senator Harvey to re-establish the old popular rates, and fixed the charges at one cent for three ounces, and one for each two ounces additional, on transient periodicals, and one cent an ounce for other third-class matter; and now the bill goes back to the House—to be defeated! The other provisions, as the measure stands at present, permit sender's name, schedule of contents, or subscription notice on third-class matter, and direct the collection of deficient postage from the sender when known, otherwise of double the deficiency on delivery; but it is scarcely worth while to give the bill in full until it assumes its final shape—if, indeed, it does not come to a finality altogether.

The petition sent to the Senate by several members of the Publishers' Board of Trade and other (miscellaneous) publishers, arguing at length against Senator Hamlin's bill, and showing that under the current rates, and still more under a distance regulation, American publishers would find it to their interest to express books and circulars to Canada for mailing through our own country (when all the returns would go to the Canadian post-office), seems to have had its effect in defeating that part of Senator Hamlin's bill considered most objectionable. The Senate has not, however, honored that part of the petition (contained in Senator Harvey's amendment) praying for a uniform rate on third-class matter, not exceeding one cent per two ounces. It has drawn a line between transient periodicals and other third-class matter, being more liberal than this rate toward the one and less so toward the other.

The difficulty with the bill as it at present stands is that it does not draw this division line rightly, as the Evening Post has done good service in pointing out. A purpose that the Post-Office theory has always recognized is the promotion of education by offering facilities for disseminating reading. If, therefore, there is to be a division of third-class matter, one side of the line might well include not only transient periodicals, but also books, book and newspaper MSS. and proofs, leaving to the other the general express business, as forwarding dry goods from Mr. Stewart's store, which the government certainly should not do at a loss, and on which there might reasonably be a distance regulation, were it not for the infinite complications thence ensuing.

If the government will give up its competition, at below cost rates, with the manufacturing stationers; see that its postmasters all attend to their business and treat citizens fairly; and adopt a simple, logical system of rules and charges that can not be misunderstood, every body will have reason to be grateful.

THE question of copyright in mere titles has come up lately in several interesting cases. The most noteworthy of these is that of Mrs. Whitney's book "Sights and Insights," published by the Osgoods, whose title had been entered at least two years ago by Nelson & Phillips as that of Dr. Warren's book, also of European travels. A letter from the Librarian of Congress on this point will be found elsewhere. The decisions referred to go to show chiefly that there is no certainty on the subject. A general title can not be held; a title which is clearly individual, the product of the author's brain, and commercially distinctive may possibly be held; but our copyright law deals generally with the subject matter of the book, and it is only because a distinctive title may be ruled to be a part of the subject-matter that copyright covers it at all. In this complication the only thing to do is to call upon the courtesies of the trade. A publisher should take all pains to inquire whether the proposed title has previously been used, and if it has been used, to avoid infringing the rights, moral if not legal, of the house which has previously made use of it. This difficulty is one of many like beauties of our copyright law, which, it is to be hoped, will some day be put in more satisfactory shape.

WE are asked again to define the term "large buyer." It was the express purpose of the last convention that the term should not be defined but made flexible to accommodate different localities. There is a difference in the trade as to the expediency of this, and we must say, for our own part, that it seems as though more than half the misunderstandings in the trade have arisen from the indefiniteness of this term. In view however of the position of the last convention we can not undertake to furnish the definition asked for. It is a question which is not unlikely to come up before the convention of this year.

COMMUNICATIONS.

"SUBSCRIBER" ON IGNORANCE AND ITS REMEDY.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

Your comment on my last article is unwittingly another nail driven into the charge of the ignorance of those who keep our book-stores. I inquired at the chief book-store in our town of 300,000 inhabitants, and was assured the three dollar illustrated edition of the "Silver Skates" was the only one now for sale in this country. My copy being an English one, I could not ascertain from that the publisher of the old plain edition. To be sure, I might have written and asked the question of the house publishing the illustrated one. But that, allow me to observe, would have been doing just what the local booksellers protest against, namely, the buyer communicating direct with the publisher, instead of accepting whatever the retailer may please to offer. The English edition, 120 illustrations, is only seven shillings. Having got the book, certainly one can read on the title page, "or, the Silver Skates." I don't know how your booksellers may be, but ours object to exchange a book, even if it proves to be the same as one previously purchased from the same store, under a different title. I remember, very many years ago, the indignation which was expressed when on sending to New-York for what was advertised as a "new book by Miss Yonge, 'Richard the Fearless,'" it proved to be her "Little Duke;" also what had become familiar as "Scenes and Characters" was published in New-York as "Beechcroft." What can be said in excuse for "Gabrielle André" in place of "In Exitu Israel?"

There was an announcement in one of your late numbers of "a new volume by Miss Yonge, 'The Christmas Mummers and Other Stories.'" More than twenty years ago I read Miss Yonge's "Christmas Mummers;" and in a late English list I saw "The Christmas Mummers," second edition. In December last, Mozley & Smith advertised as in press, Miss Yonge's "Stories for Children," in a collected form. Not at all as a new book, but as having collected into one volume her short children's stories: "The Christmas Mummers," "Ben Sylester," "Countess Kate," etc., as distinguished from her novels. There are not many private individuals whose occupation obliges them to keep up a full acquaintance with all the past and present work of juvenile writers, and I venture to say any one would be rather crestfallen on finding it was an old book he had bought, though recommended to his notice by the bookseller as a new volume by Miss Yonge. This is an instance of my charge that American readers are not fairly treated in the matter of titles. Again, "Six to Sixteen" was advertised here simply as a new book by Mrs. Ewing. In England, more honestly, it was explained that it was a reprint from Aunt Judy's Magazine.

I have been on another book-hunt for my clerical friend, for whom I secured the six-dollar volumes. But this time without success. I could not detach from his newspaper the owner of the second-hand shop where I had seen shortly before several copies of the book wanted. The man's apathy cost my friend a long journey to the library in Washington. A friend, now on a visit, showed me a letter from an English bookseller, through whom he will now get his books. The following provoking disappointment was the last straw which broke the back of his patience with our booksellers. He ordered a supplement to the Agricultural Gazette, giving publisher's name, street, and number of store. At the end of three months he was told "Can not be found." He repeated his directions, and after a delay of eight months he received the to-be-expected, though aggravating, answer to his order, "All sold."

The other day, one of the greatest scholars in this country (whose library has overtaken Mr. Bancroft's), after reading my articles smiled and said he had that day received a book ordered just two years ago. Some of his experience with the booksellers which my friend could give, would demand names to be believed. But that probably would furnish a clue to the blunderers, and our object being not to annoy, but to beget improvement, I will instead suggest a remedy. Every retail bookseller should have a catalogue of English and American books, posted in some conspicuous part of the store, with dates of publication and prices attached, to which every book published should be added day by day. Every bookseller should be a bibliographer, and know at least as much about what he sells as other tradespeople have to learn about their goods and wares. Add to this knowledge systematic attention, promptitude and energy, and you will have the ideal bookseller, which is the crying want of this country, and to the production of which we hope these articles may a little conduce.

SUBSCRIBER.

CHICAGO ENTERPRISE.

NEW-YORK, April 8, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

To-day's mail brought to a publishing house in this city a letter enclosing the price of a popular paper novel, of a popular series, asking that it be mailed to the address of the writer, who had been "trying to get the book in Chicago for the last four months, and could not."

Is it any wonder that publishers have to seek the book-buyers direct? Are all the complaints of the dealers outside of New-York against New-York publishers just? The house which received the order retails its book at retail prices only, offers them by mail only when not to be had of the local bookseller; but Chicago dealers will not even order its books for their customers.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

ELEMENTS OF GEOMETRY, by A. Schuyler, LL.D. (Wilson, Hinkle & Co.) It is not claimed that this is a wholly new treatise on geometry; it professes, however, to be progressive and also conservative, embodying all that is of worth in the present and past state of the science and anticipating future developments. Special attention has been given to the definitions and classifications of geometrical objects, much thought and research having been expended upon the matter, in order to reach what may be considered fundamental principles. The work is issued in the handsome and substantial dress adopted for all the school-books of this house, the paper and printing being unusually fine and clear. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

THE OFFICIAL GUIDE-BOOK TO PHILADELPHIA, by Thompson Westcott. (Porter & Coates.) There have been so many "official" guide-books to Philadelphia issued that it is difficult to say with certainty which is the official. This one, however, is approved of by the Mayor of Philadelphia, and is in every respect just what a guide book should be—complete and practicable. A stranger will find in it all the information he needs for his purposes as to routes of travel, places for living, descriptions of public buildings, and in fact of every point of interest in or near the city. A large space is devoted to information relative to the Exhibition, and the whole work is very ably illustrated by nearly one hundred engravings. A map of the city, showing all the routes of the passenger railways, and a new map of Fairmount Park accompany the book. 12mo, cloth, $1.50; morocco, $2.

MISS MOLLY, by Beatrice May Butt. (Henry Holt & Co.) No attempt is made at all in this novel at fine writing, the language bordering almost upon the commonplace; nor are the characters defined in an especially vivid or vigorous manner. The author's strong point seems to be her plot, which she evidently thinks exceedingly novel, portraying as it does a pretty, young, coquettish girl, constant to her love through five years of separation and misery. The hero, an officer in the British army, in a moment of passion strikes a brother officer and kills him, is tried, and sentenced to five years' imprisonment. "Miss Molly," his betrothed, is true to him through it all, seeking him out when he is at liberty, and claiming again from him the promises his sense of honor had prompted to give up. The story will scarcely be considered up to the high standard of the rest of the series—"Leisure Hour Series." 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

IN A WINTER CITY, by "Ouida." (J. B. Lippincott & Co.) A beautiful Italian city is the scene of a conflict between love and money which Miss de la Ramé describes her chief characters as taking part in, in her wonderfully rich and glowing language. Lady Hilda, her heroine, and the Duca della Rocca, her hero, are unlike any of the characterizations her readers are familiar with; their story, also, is free from the taint of immorality which has been so strongly objected to in her writings, even by her warmest admirers. The story is short, having but a single motive in it, but strongly and artistically worked out, and full of the most picturesque studies of people and scenery. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

THE ANCIENT REGIME, by Taine, translated by John Durand. (Henry Holt & Co.) M. Taine's present work is not only the most important literary event of the season, but also the most important work on France previous to the Revolution that has appeared since De Tocqueville's admirable work of the same period. The volume is divided into five books, the headings of which give a pretty clear idea of the ground gone over, as "The Structure of Society," "Habits and Characters," "The Spirit and the Doctrine," "The Propagation of the Doctrine," and "The People." Through the various conditions of the state and society Taine traces, in a brilliant and masterly manner, the gradual growth of the causes which led to the Revolution, presenting a most vivid and picturesque sketch of the habits, fashions, sentiments, politics and philosophies, and men and women of the time. To understand contemporary France it is necessary to study the changes and convulsions it underwent at the end of the last century, and realize how the new order of things came about; for this purpose nothing more critical and profound can be offered than the present work. Mr. John Durand has made a most faithful translation of it, doing full justice to the pointed, graphic sentences. 12mo, cloth, $2.50.

ACHSAH, by Rev. Peter Pennot. (Lee & Shepard.) "Achsaah" is the biblical but un-euphonious name of the heroine of this story, which is only a simple transcript of every-day life in a New-England village. The maiden has no special characteristics beyond being good and true and very pretty; her course of true love does not run very smooth, being interrupted by the wicked and spiteful machinations of an angular old maiden aunt named "Ann Vaxley." Ann Vaxley also has a history, in which disappointed love plays a part; she is arrested after many years for the murder of an old lover; her innocence, however, is proved, and she is set free, more humble in spirit and less spiteful in action. This trial is the most exciting part of the story, the rest of the book being taken up with the recital of the commonplace troubles and joys of exceedingly commonplace New-England people. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

THE STORM OF LIFE, by Hesba Stretton. (American Tract Soc.) An unfortunate woman who has been in jail for ten years, serving out her punishment for an attempt at housebreaking, is the central figure in this story. It opens with her dismissal from prison, and her going in search of her child, whom she had left in the poorhouse when arrested. The disheartening rebuffs she meets with in trying to remain honest and get work for herself and child, and her final redemption through her love for and belief in Christ, is the chief point of the story. 16mo, cloth, $1.

A FAMILY SECRET, by "Elzey Hay." [Fanny Andrews.] (J. B. Lippincott & Co.) A conspiracy to rob a young girl of her name and fortune is the main feature of the plot here. The scene of the story is laid in the South, just at the close of the war, the actors in it being almost all Southerners. There is also a strong though not offensive display of partisanship, and a graphic portrayal of Southern scenes and characters which betray the author's birthplace. The novel is very well written, the interest being sustained throughout. 8vo, cloth, $1.50.

THE INTERNAL MANAGEMENT OF A COUNTRY BANK, by Thomas Bullion. (Willing & Williamson.) Although the letters embraced in this volume were written some thirty years ago, they contain so much practical advice and sound wisdom that it has been thought worth while to reprint them. They offer an invaluable aid to the junior officers in banks for acquiring a thoroughly scientific and practical knowledge of their profession. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

HOW TO SEE NEW-YORK, by Robert Macoy. (Robert Macoy.) Macoy's "Centennial Illustrated" guide-book is arranged on a novel plan, giving on alternate pages views of the city of New-York representing prominent localities as they were some two hundred and fifty years ago, and as they are now. This will be found very interesting both to a stranger and residents; besides, there is a great deal of information of a general sort about public buildings, railroads, hotels, etc. 25 cents.

THE NATION AND THE CHURCHES, by Rev. J. A. McCauley, D.D. (Methodist Episcopal Book Depository.) The above sermon was delivered before the ninety-second session of the Baltimore Annual Conference, and is essentially a "Centennial" sermon, as it reviews in a very able manner the history of Methodism, its past work and present standing, and its influence upon the nation during one hundred years back. 15 cents.

HOMŒOPATHY IN ITS RELATION TO THE DISEASES OF WOMAN, by Thomas Skinner, M.D. (Porter & Coates.) Dr. Skinner was for nearly a quarter of a century an enthusiastic believer in allopathy; having recently deserted the ranks and become a disciple of Hahnemann, he gives in this little pamphlet his reasons for changing his views, and illustrates the practice of homœopathy in women's diseases by citing the treatment in a number of cases. 25 cents.

POTTER AND CLAY, by the Rev. J. Baldwin Brown, B.A. (Milton Publishing League.) A short sermon reprinted recently in a Canadian monthly from a work entitled "Misread Passages from Scripture." As it attacks rather strongly the orthodox and accepted interpretation of the Scriptures, it has been very severely criticised by evangelical ministers. 10 cents.

PROCEEDINGS AT THE CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION OF CONCORD FIGHT, APRIL 19TH, 1875. (Lockwood, Brooks & Co.) A very elegantly-printed memento of the Centennial celebration of the fight at the North Bridge on the 19th of April, 1775. It contains all the proceedings leading up to the day of celebration, and an account of the ball that followed it. There is also appended a very carefully-prepared abstract of the literature of the 19th of April, furnished by Mr. James L. Whitney, the Assistant Superintendent of the Boston Public Library; also a heliotype fac-simile of the famous diary of Rev. William Emerson. Royal 8vo, paper, $1.50.

THE QUAKER CITY; OR, THE MONKS OF MONK HALL, by George Lippard. (T. B. Peterson & Bros.) As Lippard's novels created quite an excitement in their day, the Petersons are making a hit in placing them again before readers interested in the past history of the Quaker City. This story especially deals with the crimes and immoralities which underlie the history of all great cities; it has been denounced as immoral in its tendency, and again held up as a most vivid though painful picture of real life. 8vo, cloth, $2; paper, $1.50.

THE MORNING STAR, by Luke Woodard. (Friends' Pub. House Press, New-Vienna.) This is a treatise upon the life and work of Jesus Christ, embodying what the author considers some new and striking views upon various points, and especially adapted for reading at the present time, when scepticism is gaining so much ground. 12mo, cloth.

THE ANALYSIS OF PLANTS, by Mark W. Harrington, M.A. (Sheehan & Co.) This little book of sixty blanks, the school edition of the work, is intended for the use of young pupils in botany. The blanks have printed on them the different parts of plants, with spaces for the pupil to fill in a description of a special plant. The training can not but be beneficial to the scholar, and a great aid to his memory. The blanks are especially adapted to Gay's Botany, but can be used with any other. 4to, cloth, 60 cents.

THE VICTORY WON, by C. S. M. (American Tract Society.) A story of a little girl's life, illustrating the virtue of self-denial. 12mo, cloth, $1. We have from the same publishers a letter-book in large type, "What Robbie was good for," by Mrs. M. D. Brine. 18mo, cloth, 35 cents.

GREAT EXPECTATIONS, by Charles Dickens. (Harper & Bros.) This volume is the latest addition to the "Household Edition" of Dickens' works. The edition is one of the best published for the price, and has met, as it deserved, with universal favor. Illustrated, 4to, cloth, $1.50, paper, $1.

BIBLE STUDENTS' COMPANION. (American Tract Co.) In this volume are included "A Pocket Concordance," which we noticed some time ago for its completeness and conciseness; maps of the Holy Land; lists of proper names in the Old and New Testaments, with their meaning and pronunciation, and the "Bible Text-book," containing the principal texts relating to the places, persons, and subjects occurring in the Holy Scriptures. All this matter, so arranged in one volume, offers the most valuable aid to the Bible student. 16mo, cloth, $1.50. We have from the same house, "Heaven Anticipated," by Dr. Norman McLeod, 35 cents, and "Our Daily Trials, and How to Bear Them," 50 cents.

THE HEARTH-STONE, by Samuel Osgood, D.D., LL.D. (E. P. Dutton & Co.) A new edition of a work that has long been out of print, and which in its day enjoyed quite a reputation; the essays, chiefly upon home topics, may still be read with both pleasure and profit. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

ATWOOD'S MODERN AMERICAN HOMESTEADS, by Daniel T. Atwood. (A. J. Bicknell & Co.) The architect or the man of leisure with a passion for building, will both find this a work of no little value, both for the practical plans it offers, for the opportunity of comparison it affords, and for the ideas to be derived from its pages. It contains forty-six plates of plans and specifications of American homes that can be put up at quite a moderate price—descriptions and cost of building accompanying each plan. Mr. Atwood is a well-known architect, and the author of designs for "Atwood's Rules of Proportion," "Woodward's Country Homes," etc. 8vo, cloth, $3.

SELECT WORKS OF TERTULLIAN, edited by F.

A. March, LL.D. (Harper & Brothers.) The third volume of the "Douglass series of Christian Greek and Latin Writers." Tertullian is the earliest of the Latin fathers, and his works rank in many respects with the heathen classic authors. The selections here given from his works are ably introduced by Dr. Coleman, who briefly gives their contents and also contributes sketches of the life and character of Tertullian. 12mo, cloth, red edges, $1.75.

AS TO ROGER WILLIAMS AND HIS BANISHMENT FROM THE MASSACHUSETTS PLANTATION, by Henry Martyn Dexter, D.D. (Congregational Pub. Co.) The recent action taken by a few New-Englanders to have the sentence of banishment decreed against Roger Williams in 1635, revoked by the General Court of Massachusetts, has awakened new interest in his history and his true relations with the people of that State. This treatise does not seek to vindicate his name so much as to re-examine thoroughly the whole subject, and view it dispassionately in the face of the evidence offered. Many misconceptions and prejudices are cleared away by Mr. Dexter against the staunch old Puritans, while the character of Roger Williams suffers no loss at his hands. He also gives a true narrative of the character of the Quakers, Baptists and other religious sects, which aided in agitating the Colonies during the seventeenth century. The most copious notes accompany the treatise. 4to, cloth, $3.

A LIBRARY CONGRESS.

A CORRESPONDENT writes to the London Academy: "In these days of International Congresses, it is strange that no attempt should have been made to convene a Congress of Librarians. Very great improvements have of late years been made in the arrangement and management of public and private libraries. In some the machinery for placing and shifting books, in others the binding, in others again the classifying and cataloguing of books have been brought to great perfection; but though there are journals in which these improvements, and what may in some cases be added, these new discoveries, are discussed, there has seldom been, what is so useful, an exchange of ideas by word of mouth between those who know the real difficulties that have to be met, and the success that has attended recent experiments. Let me mention one point only.

"When I was a librarian myself, I always wondered at the extraordinary waste of power in cataloguing new books. While I was writing my slip, according to the rules followed in most English libraries, I felt that there were probably a hundred people doing exactly the same work which I was doing, not only in England, but in every civilised country of the world. Yet what would be easier than to have my slip printed, and any number of copies sent round by book-post to every library in Europe? With a little arrangement, every English book might be catalogued at the British Museum, every French book at the Bibliothèque Nationale, every German book at the Royal Library at Berlin, every Russian book at St. Petersburg, etc. At a trifling expense these printed slips might be sent to every small or large library, and each of them might have three or four kinds of catalogues—an alphabetical catalogue of the authors, a chronological catalogue, a local catalogue, a catalogue classified according to subjects, etc. Even when a library is too poor to buy a book, the slip might be useful in its catalogue. The saving that might thus be effected would be very considerable. The staff of librarians might be greatly reduced, and the enormous expense now incurred for catalogues, and mostly imperfect catalogues, would dwindle down to a mere nothing.

"There are, of course, other ways in which the same object might be obtained, if only the principal libraries would agree on a common line of action. Each author might be requested to write a proper slip of his own book, and the publisher might forward copies of these slips with the book itself.

"All this and much more could be done, if a general understanding was once arrived at between the librarians of the principal libraries of Europe. If we look at the balance-sheets of these libraries, the differences are very great. The expenses are, of course, much greater where books are lent out than where they are not. But even where the expenses are lowest, the chief item of expenditure is always the catalogue. A few resolutions, carried at an International Congress of Librarians, might cause a saving of many thousands of pounds annually, and would certainly give us better catalogues than we find at present even in best administered libraries."

CENTENNIAL NOTES.

WE spoke some time ago of the fine bindings in preparation for the Centennial at the Boston Public Library. The Traveller says of them: "Probably one of the finest collections of books, showing what can be done by the nicest workmen of the bookbinding trade, is that of Messrs. J. R. Beckett and Romeo Cervi, two young men employed in the bookbinding establishment of the Public Library, in this city. The collection, valued at over $1200, comprises 35 volumes, and the work on them has been done entirely by hand. 'Fletcher's Devotional Bible' is bound in brown levant, and has outside raised panels, illuminated bevels, gilt tool border, with gilt centre. The inside has wide rich work and watered cherry silk linings. 'Picturesque America' is bound in parchment, illuminated with Turkey morocco, four colors; in the centre is a finely-wrought shield. The linings are of moire antique silk. The 'Gallery of Famous Poets' is bound in full light, crushed levant, inlaid with four different colors of Turkey morocco. On the inside of the cover there is some exquisite tooling on green, smooth morocco, and also brown silk linings, with gilt letters. 'Centennial Exposition, 1876.' The edges are of red and gilt. These works have been designed and executed by Messrs. Beckett & Cervi during off-hours, holidays, etc., and are said to be the finest specimens of the bookbinder's art to be found in America."

ESTES & LAURIAT, of Boston, will include in their contribution to the Centennial Exhibition a set of Guizot's "History of France" as far as published, 5 volumes, superbly bound by Macdonald in crushed levant. It will cause about a million violations of the tenth commandment.

THE Centennial History of A. S. Barnes & Co. is very nearly ready for issue. The work makes a handsome square octavo of nearly 700 pages, with profuse illustrations and appendices giving chronological tables arranged by the days of the month, a brief study of early school-books, and other interesting matter.

"ONE Hundred Years' Achievements of a Free People," by C. B. Taylor, a subscription octavo, 820 pages, with a hundred illustrations, is to be issued by Henry S. Allen.

COPYRIGHT NOTES.

THE death of Lord Stanhope has delayed the meeting of the Copyright Commission, but a new chairman having been found in the person of Lord John Manners, it is probable they will begin work before Easter. Lord Rosebery has retired from the commission, which thus loses a valuable member; but the members left are quite numerous enough, if not too numerous, for practical work. The literary class is not altogether satisfied with the composition of the commission, which is too exclusively official; but it matters little who helps to protect literary property as long as it gets an increase of protection. The flaw in domestic copyright which leaves the whole area of printed fiction open to be pillaged by the so-called dramatic author is one easily remedied even by the most unprofessional committee. The mass of opinion on this subject collected by Mr. John Hollingshead from writers like George Eliot, Lord Lytton, Mr. Anthony Trollope, Mr. Wilkie Collins, Miss Braddon, and others, so impressed the late Lord Stanhope that he thought it a sufficient ground for legislative action without any aid from a royal commission. It is to be hoped that the news copyright question will soon follow.—London Press News.

IN reply to an inquiry from this office as to the mooted question whether a copyright holds good of the title of the book apart from the subject and matter, so that a given title can be used a second time in connection with a book of other subject matter, the Librarian of Congress writes:

"Your inquiry involves matters which have been frequently the subject of judicial decision. The exclusive right to a certain title, apart from the original matter published under it, has been determined variously, both in England and in this country. The leading cases are assembled in J. A. Morgan's 'Law of Literature,' vol. 2. See the decisions and the points on which they turn, especially at pp. 312, 385, and 691."

A. R. SPOFFORD,
Librarian of Congress.

THE following-named gentlemen have been selected as members of the English copyright commission: Lord John Manners, the Earl of Devon, Sir Charles Young, Sir Henry Holland, Sir John Rose, Sir Louis Mallet, Sir H. Drummond Wolff, Sir Julius Benedict, Mr. Daldy, Mr. Froude, Mr. Herschell, Mr. Jenkins, Dr. W. Smith, Mr. Fitzjames Stephen, and Mr. A. Trollope.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE number for May of G. W. Carleton & Co.'s Record of the Year contains a portrait on steel of Mr. Moody.

THERE is just published in Paris the first number of Le Courrier Littéraire, a bi-monthly guide to current literature, intended to perform the same service in France that the literary weeklies perform in England.

THE Bowdoin College article in the May Scribner's contains many interesting reminiscences of the distinguished literary men who have graduated thence, with silhouette portraits of Longfellow, Jacob Abbott, etc., while at college.

THE London Academy keeps a standing notice, as to "FOREIGN REVIEWS OF ENGLISH BOOKS: The EDITOR will be greatly obliged if the Publishers of foreign Journals will send him copies of those numbers which contain Reviews of English Books."

We commend this to the attention of American newspaper publishers, this country being included under the term "foreign."

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. ALEXANDER WILLIAMS, head of the Boston house of A. Williams & Co., has just gone to Europe for three or four months. He is a steady, intelligent worker, who wisely does not intend to kill himself by overwork.

MR. WILLIAM LEE, whom every body knows as the popular head of the firm of Lee & Shepard, attained his fiftieth birthday on Monday, the 17th, and some of his many Boston friends seized the occasion to dine and congratulate him.

THE author of "Rab and His Friends," Dr. John Brown, has been placed on the pension-list for £100 a year.

IN an interesting letter on the Congressional Library, in the Graphic of April 15th, Olive Logan says of the Librarian of Congress—and let all the people say, Amen:—"I think no one who ever saw Mr. Spofford will gainsay me when I assert that if ever the right man was in the right place, it is the librarian of this library. He has held the post for fifteen years, without one day's absence in all that time except his regular thirty days' furlough in August each summer. For several years he voluntarily remained in Washington during these thirty days also, bringing order out of the chaos of copyrights as practised under the old system. However unfavorably the plan may be viewed as to public officers in general, let there be a special Civil Service bill which will keep this excellent scholar and thorough business man in the nation's service during life or the satisfactory performance of duty."

BUSINESS NOTES.

THE American News Co. has two new associated companies: the Detroit News Co., under the management of Mr. John R. Walsh, which has succeeded to the business of the late W. E. Tunis, at Detroit, Mich., with Mr. Joseph A. Marsh, formerly with Mr. Tunis, as treasurer; and the Ontario News Co., at Clinton, Ont., with Mr. Joseph A. Sturdy, late manager for Tunis & Co., as manager.

MESSRS. W. H. LEVERING & SON, booksellers and stationers, La Fayette, Ind., have been succeeded by Messrs. Spring & Robertson, who will carry on the retail business at the old stand, 82 Main street, and their wholesale and manufacturing business, corner Third and South streets, the same as formerly.

THE liabilities of B. B. Russell, publisher, 55 Cornhill, Boston, are understood to be about $40,000, nearly all owed in that city. Figured at cost, the assets will, it is stated, equal the liabilities, steel and stereotype plates costing $30,000. Unfortunately stereotype plates do not figure at cost.

AT the meeting of the creditors of Mr. Patrick Donahoe last week, Mr C. A. B. Shepard, in behalf of the assignees, reported their estimate of assets, stating that "owing to the unjustifiable attacks made upon Mr. Donahoe in the Springfield Republican, New-York Times," and otherwise, the value of the Pilot had been reduced one half. The following is the schedule: Boston Pilot, $21,000; machinery, $7,000; stereotype plates, $5,678; retail stock in store, $7,354; wholesale stock in store, $6,805; short stock, $1,500; good accounts, $10,745; worthless, $6206.23; cash on hand, $8400. It was understood that an offer of the amount named for the Pilot, from the Archbishop, would be accepted. Mr. Donahoe's offer of twenty per cent was withdrawn, by advice of Mr. Shepard and others, as it was found he could not pay that amount. The Boston Globe of April 8th contained an autobiographic statement by Mr. Donahoe, in which he stated that he commenced taking private deposits after his financial difficulties had obliged him to withdraw from the banks, and expressed a determination to earn the money to pay these accounts in full.

IT is A. S. Clark, of Peekskill, of course, and not of Poughkeepsie, as we wrongfully alleged, who has removed to 66 Nassau street, New-York.

WE are informed by Messrs. N. Tibbals & Son that the plates of Murray's Park Street Pulpit, put down to Welch, Biglow & Co. in our report of the Osgood sale, were purchased by them together with the balance of stock. They are prepared to furnish them in such (moderate) quantities as the trade may want.

STATIONERY NOTES.

IT is to be hoped that those who have signified their intention to subscribe to the Ned Irish fund will send the amount immediately. Those who have already placed their names on the list will please remit amount as soon as convenient to C. S. Plummer, 55 Pennsylvania avenue, Newark, N. J.

HOMER LEE & Co., 62 Liberty street, have just issued a fine engraving of the late Alexander T. Stewart, copied from the only portrait ever made of Mr. Stewart. It will be sold to the trade at 60 cents per doz.

THE new game of "Illustrated Star Authors" is just published by McLaughlin Bros., New-York. It consists of sixty-four fine illustrated cards with fancy backs. The title of Star Authors derives its name from the numerous ways of playing, making counts, etc. The counts are called books, star books, sequences, and star sequences, each having their different values. This is a handsome and neat article, and is put up in cloth case at 40 cents; wood case, 50 cents; morocco case, 75 cents retail, with usual discount to the trade.

MR. MAX ILLFELDER, with Messrs. B. Illfelder & Co., New-York, has gone to Europe for the purpose of selecting novelties for the fall trade.

MR. GEO. W. MCGILL has made permanent arrangements for the sale and manufacture of his patented fasteners, suspending rings, braces, and other devices, with Messrs. Holmes, Booth & Hayden, 49 Chambers street, New-York, to whom all orders should be forwarded.

THE Centennial Hydroscope, or Weather Indicator. It is one of the handsomest as well as most useful novelties out. It represents the front of the main Centennial building, with a column in the centre on which is a neat thermometer. Each side of the column is an arch, in which are represented General George Washington and an English officer. In fair weather Washington appears; if a storm, the English officer appears. Also a column of liberty representing Washington on the right-hand side, and an Englishman on the left with a carpet bag labelled "For London." On either side of the column is the American flag above the English. In the column is a thermometer, and above is the American eagle. The arm of Washington points upward in clear weather, and hangs down in foul. The indicator is also made with Gambrinus seated on the head of a barrel with glass of beer, etc., a garden scene, Chinese pagoda, cottage, and various other designs, that retail from $1.50 to $2.00 each. They are manufactured by G. Tagliabue, 302 Pearl street, New-York.

THE Perfect Mucilage Bottle manufactured by the Richards' Manufacturing Co., is among the latest novelties out, and is a bottle with a tubular sponge and cap. The cap can be removed while using, and if placed over the sponge afterwards will always be found ready for use. The bottle is of such a shape that it can be used the same as a brush, and by reversing the bottle the sponge becomes saturated with gum, and can be applied to the paper or whatever is to be gummed. For cleanliness it can not be surpassed, and there is no danger of spilling the mucilage, either when using or lying upon the desk. There is no drying up of brushes, and you can apply as little or as much gum as desired. In case too much gum is put upon any article it can be taken up again by the sponge, thereby avoiding the oozing out of the mucilage beyond the edges of papers when pasted together. The cap will not stick fast to the sponge and dry; on the contrary, it will always keep the sponge moist. It is very economical, as there is no waste by spilling, applying more gum than is needed, or crystallizing on the brush, and one bottle will go as far as four times the mucilage used in the old style of brush and bottle. They retail at 25 cents, with liberal discount to the trade.

MR. JOHN W. MCGILL, formerly with Mr. George W. McGill, has opened a cigar-store at 130 Fulton street, and will keep a fine line of imported cigars and every thing appertaining to the retail business; also McGill's fasteners and other goods, together with a fine line of silver-plated goods. Mr. McGill has been in the stationery business for several years, and we have no doubt but that his friends in the trade will call occasionally to enjoy a good smoke and chat with affable John.

THE game of "Nations" has been revised and more handsomely illustrated with fancy-figured backs. The game is played with 52 cards, representing four nations or suits, Europe, Asia, Africa, and America, each nation having 13 cards. The game can be played by four persons divided into two parties. The cards can also be used in playing the game of "Monkey." They are put up in handsome cloth boxes, and retail at 50 cents, with the usual discount, by McLaughlin Bros., New-York.

BYRON WESTON will exhibit at the Centennial his full line of ledger and flat papers; among them will be a tub-sized, loft-dried paper 60 x 120 in., weighing 1000 lbs., put up flat. It is the largest size paper of the kind yet made.

PORTER & BAINBRIDGE have just received some beautiful colored papers. They are colored on both sides and calendared, and are intended to be used for circulars. The colors are red, white, blue, and dark green, and when printed in gold make a handsome circular.

NOTES ON THE ROAD.

BOSTON.

THERE is a perceptible improvement to be noticed in the general business of the East. Trade has been quite backward and moderate during the past few months, but the present delightful weather has caused business to present more active movements, and a tendency of a stronger feeling among the jobbers, who are purchasing larger lots than at any time previously this year.

It may be inferred that the average of commercial indebtedness must be still further reduced before business can be considered perfectly safe and healthy. Experience shows that after every period of excessive distrust and caution, when the average of commercial credits is reduced below the point of safety, that the later period precedes the general revival of commerce.

Evidently this period has not yet been reached; the extension of credits to unsound firms has not yet ceased; the bankrupts have not yet been entirely weeded out; and it is idle to hope for a general and permanent recovery of business until we can sell our merchandise on shorter time, without the possibility or probability of being obliged to renew the pernicious practice of the note system. This plan of doing ten times the business that is represented by sound capital is the general cause of the numerous suspensions, and it is to be hoped that the past experience will teach a good and lasting lesson to all.

The great "Bankrupt Sale" of books has had a bad effect on the retail trade of Boston in the book line, as the prices of works sold by the proprietor at present are far below the trade-list, and competing firms are unable to dispose of the same line without material loss. Gorgeous presents of castors, frames, and other knick-knacks are still given away to the purchaser as a premium besides.

Thompson, Brown & Co., occupying premises on Cornhill, are very busy, and their large stock, under the able management of Mr. Fred Frothingham, includes every kind of goods, notably one of the largest lines of Bibles in the East.

Knight, Adams & Co., directly opposite, are also enjoying a fine trade, and their custom to deal with all on the square-business principle has rapidly increased their list of patrons.

Lockwood, Brooks & Co., in their spacious and handsome store on Washington and Bromfield streets, have a remarkably elegant stock of goods. Their "Harvard Book-rack" is having a rapid sale, and the orders far exceed the manufacture. The ink and mucilage made by this house are gradually gaining the reputation of being among the best in the market.

The Cambridgeport Diary Company have succeeded to the business of the late Cutter, Tower & Co., and will make the following specialties the prominent features of their wholesale trade: magnesium slate-pencils, Lynch's copying-machines, letter and invoice binders, pencil-sharpeners, inkstands (patented designs), the Dove and Siberian lead-pencils, office furniture, and all lines of other branches of stationery. Mr. Maxwell is the buyer, and has charge of the wholesale department.

Nichols & Hall, who have been so long established on Bromfield street, are largely engaged in school-books and school supplies, as well as all lines of paper and stationery. They also manufacture a superior ink and mucilage. Mr. Nichols is the purchaser in the stationery department.

Ward & Gay have offered their creditors thirty-five cents on the dollar, and have resumed business.

Horace G. Tucker and E. H. Whitney, who have been associated for so many years with the late Mr. Fairbanks in J. L. Fairbanks & Co., will continue the business under the style of the old firm.

J. S. Locke & Co., formerly Locke & Bubier, Franklin street, have just issued some new designs in autograph-albums. Samples sent on application.

D. Lothrop & Co. have added to their business, in their new and handsome store, an extensive variety of fine stationery and pocket-books, and intend also to do engraving and printing. The printing department occupies the third story. Mr. Snow will do the agreeable for the travelling fraternity. No Texas buyers have called on Mr. L. very lately.

John A. Lowell & Co., 21 Exchange place, may be complimented upon their elaborate and extremely artistic new styles of engraving. This firm number numerous customers all over New-England, for whom they engrave to order.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

The Morgan Envelope Company have just issued some new and novel styles of papeteries which reflect much credit upon the designer. The Centennial line embraces the following: "I can not tell a lie," with the little hatchet with which G. W. cut the tree down; "Liberty Bell," embossed in gold; American eagle, embossed in colors; the head of Liberty, embossed in colors. Prices in colors, $50 per 100; plain, $25 per 100. "The Rose-Bud Invitations," beautifully colored and embossed, $10 per dozen, the paper being a new style of plaited white. Also, a papeterie, "Heads of Presidents of the U. S.," elegantly stamped in bas-relief. The cutting of the dies on these were by Mitchell, of Boston. Price, $25 per 100. Samples sent to all parts of the country upon application. Many other new and attractive novelties are in preparation, and will be issued very soon. The Morgan Envelope Company produce about 7000 papeteries per day and have a capacity of 700,000 envelopes. In their Job Printing Department they have eight presses, and manufacture all their own mucilage. The ruling of all writing-paper sold by the case is also done in the same building. This company originated the papeterie business, starting the initial style in 1865. The perforated sermon paper issued by this house is original and is having an extensive sale.

The Powers Paper Company are ready to present to the trade the "Clarendon"—Quaker drab and silver gray, three sizes—envelopes and paper. Each box to contain, besides paper, a penholder, pen, and bottle of ink. Retail price, 50 cents. The "Bryant"—fine picture of William Cullen Bryant on the box—paper, plaited white, retails for 25 cents. The "Milward" contains three sizes envelopes and paper, with paper of needles. Thirty cents each. The "Meredith," "Messenger," and "Ye Washington" are also just out. The "Imperial Cabinet," a double box containing two quires and six packs of envelopes, different sizes, retails for $1. The cheapest double box, and the most attractive in the market. Samples sent to jobbers on approval.

The Union Ink and Paper Company were burned out on the 28th of last month, and lost about $23,000, covered by insurance. They are selling out the damaged stock at very low prices, and the store is constantly crowded with customers. Their business will be resumed in a few days on Taylor street.

C. W. Bryan & Co. manufacture an extensive and remarkably fine line of blank books, which will always correctly correspond to the full number of sheets sold. Their job-printing department is a prominent feature of their business. C. S. P.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE "Old Corner" items bring to us interesting facts as to its chief occupants, the Ticknor-Osgood house. This firm, which first occupied the "Old Corner" in 1832 as Allen & Ticknor, became in 1833 William D. Ticknor, in 1844 William D. Ticknor & Co., under which style we believe it continued commercially till the senior Ticknor's death in 1864. The imprint on books was varied, however, with accessions and withdrawals of partners, appearing in 1851 as Ticknor, Reed & Fields, and in 1854 as Ticknor & Fields. At Mr. Ticknor's death, the latter became the style of the firm commercially, as well as in imprints. The house removed from the "Old Corner" to 124 Tremont street in September, 1865. In 1868 Ticknor & Fields, on the withdrawal of Mr. Howard M. Ticknor, became Fields, Osgood & Co.; and in 1871, on that of Mr. James T. Fields, the house took the present name of James R. Osgood & Co. We believe there has always been a Ticknor in the house. In January, 1874, the firm removed to its present position, 131 Franklin street, corner of Federal, and on May 1st it will remove thence to the Cathedral Building, on Winthrop square, with entrances from Franklin and Devonshire streets.

THE name of Mr. B. B. Crew, the Southern member of the Committee on Assemblies, should be added to the report of that committee. The signature came after the report had gone to press.

THE volume on "The Ministry of the Word," Dr. Taylor's lecture, nearly ready at Randolph's, makes a 12mo of 300 pages. The wide range of its subject may be gathered from the chapter headings, which embrace "The Nature and Design of the Christian Ministry," "The Preparation of the Preacher," "The Theme and Range of the Pulpit," "The Qualities of Effective Preaching in the Sermon and of an Effective Sermon in the Preacher," "Expository Preaching," "The Use of Illustrations," "The Conduct of Public Worship as Regards Scripture Reading and Praise and Prayer," "The Pastorate and Pastoral Visitation," and "The Relation of the Pulpit to Present Questions." There is an excellent index of eight pages and a table of passages of Scripture referred to. In his preface, Dr. Taylor says that his book is neither a treatise on homiletics nor a ministerial autobiography, but an attempt to give the younger brethren the practical hints of twenty years' experience, suggested "as well by the blunders as by the successes of my public life." Besides their delivery at Yale, some of these lectures have been given also to the members of Union, Princeton, and Oberlin Theological Seminaries.

THE Life of A. T. Stewart which D. Appleton & Co. announce will be the work of Gen. James G. Wilson, who was an intimate friend and companion of Mr. Stewart. Some years ago he prepared for Appleton's Journal a sketch of the latter's life, but on the proofs being submitted to him, Mr. Stewart desired that nothing of the sort be printed until after his death. Mr. Stewart gave much more material to Mr. Wilson in the course of frequent conversation, and the book will therefore appear with an indirect authorization that should especially commend it. It will probably be illustrated with a portrait made from the sketch of a mask taken from Mr. Stewart's face after death, and may be expected the latter part of May.

THE United Brethren Publishing House at Dayton, Ohio, have ready or will shortly publish several new books, among which the most important is "Lectures on the Rise of the Romish Church, its Results in Europe and its Designs upon the Institutions of America," by President Helwig, of Wittenburg College, Ohio, which has an introduction by the Hon. William Lawrence, LL.D., of that State. Two others are by Mrs. Julia McNain Wright, the well-known writer: "The Gospel in the River Era," an outline missionary story, and a home tale of "My Five Wards; or, Aunt Hulda's Homilies."

D. Lothrop & Co., of Boston, have just ready a handful of new books, including "Katy Did," a story for girls, by Mrs. C. M. Livingston; "Virginia: a Centennial Story," by W. H.

G. Kingston, a prolific and popular writer of books that boys delight in: "Walter Neal's Example," by Rev. Theron Brown, whose name is ample guaranty of a manly, healthful, interesting story; and three English reprints, little volumes, entitled "Nobody Cares," by Crona Temple; "Will Parsons' Adventures in the Land of the Sun;" and "The Old Brown Book."

GINN BROTHERS, of Boston, issue the second edition (but the first ever offered to the trade) of a small but suggestive book entitled, "Outlines of the Art of Expression," by J. H. Gilmore, Professor of Logic, Rhetoric, and English Literature in Rochester University. It is designed to teach scholars how to "write compositions" and to think of something worth writing.

THE "Primer of European History," by E. A. Freeman, is the new volume of the History Primers edited by J. R. Green. D. Appleton & Co. will shortly issue it.

A MAP of the island of San Domingo, by W. M. Gabb, bearing the approval of the president of the republic, has been received by B. Westermann & Co. It is six feet by two in size, and can be had mounted on cloth with rollers, or in sections and folded, or in sheets.

LOCKWOOD, BROOKS & Co., of Boston, have in press "A Living Faith," a series of religious essays, admirable in matter, spirit, and style, by Mr. George S. Merriam, whose excellent articles the readers of the Christian Union remember gratefully; "Fifty Years in Sunday-Schools," by Rev. Asa Bullard, Secretary of the Massachusetts Sunday-School Society; and Rev. Dr. Tarbox's "Life of General Putnam," which perhaps will settle definitely the vexed question, Who commanded at the battle of Bunker Hill? and will certainly kindle anew the affectionate admiration with which "Old Put" was regarded by our grandfathers.

MESSRS. JOHN WILEY & SONS have in preparation "Practical Notes on the Construction of Iron Highway Bridges, for the use of Engineers and Town Committees; together with a Short Essay on the Application of the Principles of the Lever to a Ready Analysis of the Strains upon the more customary Forms of Beams and Trusses," by Alfred P. Bolles, C.E., Member of American Society of Civil Engineers. The above title is said to cover a most practical treatise, couched in simple language free from technical terms. The book shows to all interested in bridges how to judge of a good bridge and how to determine good material. It will contain one hundred pages of text and from twenty to thirty plates, and will be put at a low figure. The author has had a practical experience in the science for many years, and started with a scientific education. He separates the book into two parts, one practical and one analytical, the latter requiring no deeper scientific attainments to understand it than the four rules of arithmetic. The work is presented as at once a popular, practical, and scientific treatise. This firm have now in the binder's hands "Architectural Iron-Work," by W. H. Freyer,—a thoroughly practical book by a practical man, giving the results of twenty years' experience, and showing how iron-work ought to be done and how it ought not, with valuable tables, many illustrations, etc.

MR. J. W. BOUTON will republish in this country immediately the recent English book on "The Violin: its Famous Makers and their Imitators," by George Hart. The work treats of the origin, history, and development of this the greatest of musical instruments, and gives interesting details concerning its prominent makers. It is illustrated by upwards of forty first-class wood engravings from photographs, which represent the exact outlines and proportions of the masterpieces of Antonius Stradiuarius, Amati, Bergonzi, and others, including the celebrated violin by Joseph Guarnerius on which Paganini achieved his marvellous success.

THE General Literature Committee of the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge has in course of preparation a series of volumes on the conversion of the chief races of the West. The Rev. F. G. Maclear, D.D., of King's College School, is engaged on three of the volumes, which treat respectively of the conversion of the Celts, Anglo-Saxons, and Norsemen. The Tract Committee of the same Society has in preparation a series of monographs on the Fathers and their writings, to be called "The Fathers for English Readers." Six of the volumes are in hand, having been entrusted to patristic scholars of Oxford and Cambridge.

HERE is a curiosity of literature: Porter & Coates' new guide to Philadelphia is edited by Thompson Westcott, and the stereotypers' imprint is that of Westcott & Thomson.

SEVEN thousand copies of the "MacLeod Life" were sold in England and Scotland within a very brief period after publication, of which Mudie's Library took one thousand. It has been one of the hits of recent years abroad.

ESTES & LAURIAT, Boston, purchased the stock of the "Kensington" Thackeray at Osgood's sale, and have arranged with the London publishers to secure future editions for the American market.

"A JEWISH Publisher" informs the London Bookseller, apropos of the fac-simile Bible, that the great majority, if not all, of the various Hebrew editions of the Mishna and Talmud published at different times and places, since the introduction of printing until the present day, are fac-simile editions. Other Hebrew works have also been published in fac-simile editions, particularly in olden times.

PROF. HARTMANN has just published, at Berlin, the first volume of a splendid ethnological work, entitled "Die Nigritier" (The Nigritians). When completed it will form an almost exhaustive monograph upon the black races of Africa. The present volume is enriched with no less than fifty-two full page engravings of high interest.

These, with the new chronological and topographical details, present the subject to the English reader in a more compact and complete form than has been attempted in any work on Indian architecture hitherto published."—Extract from Preface.

BIOGRAPHY AND HISTORY.

JUST PUBLISHED.

THE LIFE OF ALEXANDER HAMILTON.

By JOHN T. MORSE, Jr. 2 vols., crown 8vo, $4.50.

The Publishers confidently announce this work as one of the most important contributions recently made to the political history of the United States. It treats of a critical period, when the nation was in its infancy; of the beginning of the long contest between the North and South; of the circumstances which, only ten years after the close of the Revolutionary War, threatened to precipitate a new war with Great Britain and serious complications with France. Of the adoption of the Constitution, the organization of the new government, the initial financial measures, Genet's mission, and the Whisky Insurrection, it gives a full and careful account. The chapters on Hamilton's professional and private life, and on the duel in which he perished, will be found models, respectively, of keen analysis and concise narrative.

[From the New-York Tribune.]

"With a fervent sympathy with the political principles of the illustrious American statesman, Mr. Morse has followed his career through all its eventful details, presenting it in a clear and impressive light, and in the unity of purpose which is the fruit of earnestness of conviction. . . . In general he may be commended for the frankness as well as the fairness of his narrative. His manner, for the most part, is grave and dignified. He writes in a style of uncommon purity and force, and gives no sign of weariness or negligence in his composition. If he is seldom brilliant, he is rarely dull, and never flippant, never affected. His work has the merit of great condensation, and hence is well adapted to popular use."

[From the Boston Advertiser.]

"It is not only an uncommonly clear, fair, and attractive biography of a remarkable man, but an important contribution toward a better understanding of the pregnant and natal period in the political history of America."

BANCROFT'S
HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES.

CENTENARY EDITION. Vols. I., II., and III., Now Ready. 12mo, cloth, $2.25 per vol.

[From the New-York Tribune.]

"The first edition of this work was a monument of historical research, critical acuteness, and descriptive power, to which, at that time, there was no parallel in the literature of the country. It was remarkable alike for clearness of perception, sagacity of judgment, and felicity of statement. The terse simplicity of its style, relieved by frequent passages of picturesque splendor, was in admirable keeping with its profound analysis of philosophical principles. For the peculiar distinction of the work consists in its not being a superficial narrative of events, but a masterly exposition of the ideas in which they had their origin. . . . The history in its new form, while it retains the essential spirit and method of the original issue, is, in many respects, better adapted to popular use. . . . For convenience of reference, the compactness of this edition is an improvement."

[From the Christian at Work.]

"The book has more than the charm of fiction. It is easy and delightful, while yet most instructive reading. Having all the dignity which ought to mark the writer of a solid history, it is also so interspersed with incidents and pleasing descriptions, that it holds the attention fixed through all its lengthy chapters."

STUDIES IN DESIGN,

FOR

Manufacturers, Architects, Builders, Designers, House-Decorators, etc.

By CHRISTOPHER DRESSER, Ph.D., F.L.S., F.E.B.S.

Consisting of sixty original designs elaborately produced in combined colors, and in gold and colors, with descriptive letter-press and twenty chapters on the Principles of Designing.
Folio, handsomely bound in cloth. $27.50.

The American Bookseller says: "'Studies in Design' is an elaborate work on the art of decorating, by Chr. Dresser, the author of the valuable little work on 'The Principles of Decorative Design.' The new work of studies is a folio containing sixty beautiful colored plates. All the sketches are original designs of the author, except one or two by his most advanced pupils. In the text, Mr. Dresser treats in a simple, practical way of the different styles and the rooms and purposes to which they are adapted, giving many practical suggestions as to combinations and fitness, which will be of great value to the decorator. He not only shows a thorough knowledge of the art, but a faculty for teaching it and an appreciation of the wants of those who would learn. The work, both in text and plates, is thorough, and worth the attention not only of the professional decorator, but of all who take any interest in the ornamentation of their homes. It may be studied to advantage by the painter, who can turn to practical account its plates and suggestions, and by those who would acquire such a knowledge of the art as to be able to correctly appreciate and criticise it."

ISHMAEL ;

OR,

IN THE DEPTHS.

BY MRS. EMMA D. E. N. SOUTHWORTH.

With a Portrait of Mrs. Southworth, engraved on steel, from a photograph taken of her on March 22d, 1876, being a perfect likeness of Mrs. Southworth at the present time, with her Autograph under it.

In one large Duodecimo Volume of over 700 pages, uniform with Mrs. Southworth's other works.
Price $1.75, bound in Morocco Cloth, Gilt Back.

"ISHMAEL ; OR, IN THE DEPTHS," is the name of Mrs. Emma D. E. N. Southworth's greatest work, published this day in book form, by T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia. It is the best work ever written by Mrs. Southworth, and has never been published except in the "New-York Ledger," in which paper it was issued many years since, under the name of "SELF-MADE ; OR, OUT OF THE DEPTHS," but it is now issued in book form, for the first time, to the thousands upon thousands that have wanted it for years. Mrs. Southworth, in the preface to "Ishmael," says: "This story, in book form, has been called for by thousands upon thousands of readers during several years past, but the author has reserved it until 1876 as her contribution to the Centennial; not only because she considers it to be her best work, but because it is peculiarly a National Novel, being founded on the life and career of one of the noblest of our countrymen, who really lived, suffered, toiled, and triumphed in this land; one whose inspirations of wisdom and goodness were drawn from the examples of the heroic warriors and statesmen of the Revolution, and whose life is a guiding star to the youth of every land to show them that there is no depth of human misery from which they may not, by virtue, energy, and perseverance, rise to earthly honors, as well as to eternal glory." It will have an immense sale. Send in your orders at once for it.

T. B. Peterson & Brothers have also just issued a new, uniform, and complete edition of all the popular works written by Mrs. EMMA D. E. N. SOUTHWORTH, in forty volumes. This edition is in duodecimo form, and is printed in the best style, on the finest white paper, and each volume is bound in the very best manner, in morocco cloth, with a full gilt back, and is sold at the low price of $1.75 a volume, or $70 for a complete set, each set being put up in a neat and strong box. THE NEW AMERICAN STORY,

ACHSAH:

A New-England Life Study. By Rev. Peter Pennot. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

The manly, whole-souled, and devoted young clergyman is no fancy sketch; Deacon Sterne, the sanctimonious hypocrite; the plain-talking old maid sister; the sneaking, spying aunt, are life-like and real, while the heroine, ACHSAH, is a lovely character, with whom the reader is in deep sympathy. These, with the various other characters of the story, are so combined as to produce a book full of interest from beginning to end.

The New-York Evening Post says: "The author has diligently sought to present sharply and faithfully certain contrasting phases of New-England village life and character. The characters are drawn with a strong hand, the portraiture is clear and distinct, and the atmosphere excellent."

The Boston Times thinks "'Achсах' presents some of the best pen-portraits of New-England types which we have seen. A strong tragic element is infused into the narrative as it progresses, and culminates in a climax of considerable dramatic intensity."

The Home Journal says: "The story is well told, and is of the liveliest interest from beginning to end."

THE VARIATION OF ANIMALS AND PLANTS UNDER DOMESTICATION.

By CHARLES DARWIN, M.A., F.R.S. Second Edition, revised. Illustrated. 2 vols., 12mo. Price, $5.

"During the seven years which have elapsed since the publication, in 1868, of the first edition of this work, I have continued to attend to the same subjects, as far as lay in my power; and I have thus accumulated a large body of additional facts, chiefly through the kindness of many correspondents. Of these facts I have been able here to use only those which seemed to me the more important. I have omitted some statements, and corrected some errors, the discovery of which I owe to my reviewers."—Extract from Preface.

LECTURES ON ORTHOPEDIC SURGERY, AND DISEASES OF THE JOINTS.

Delivered at Bellevue Hospital Medical College, during the Winter Session of 1874-75. By LEWIS A. SAYRE, M.D. Illustrated by 274 wood-cuts. 1 vol., 8vo. Price in cloth, $5; sheep, $6.

This volume is published at the request of medical gentlemen of the highest standing, in different sections of our country, as well as many abroad, who are anxious to have Dr. Sayre's peculiar views and extended experience in this specialty given to the profession in a plain and practical manner. The book contains the substance of his course of lectures delivered at Bellevue Hospital Medical College, as well as many important cases from his note-book, and from the hospital records. He has also added a number of cases before presented by him to the profession in medical journals, or at the different medical societies, which are considered worthy of permanent record.

The work is enriched by beautiful and excellent illustrations, engraved from original drawings and photographs prepared expressly therefor. The author having enjoyed exceptional opportunities for the study and treatment of these diseases, the results of his labors can not fail to be of inestimable value to every student and practitioner, and of service to suffering humanity.

III.

LESSONS FROM NATURE, AS MANIFESTED IN MIND AND MATTER.

By ST. GEORGE MIVART, Ph.D., F.R.S. 1 vol., 12mo, cloth. Price, $2.

"It has been my endeavor to find out in the following chapters what I deem the most important lessons to be derived from 'Nature,' in the broad sense of that word, as a great whole of which the mind of man forms part. For us, indeed, the facts of mind form the inevitable starting-point from which we must set out in order to study, logically, the phenomena of irrational Nature, and to investigate, if we may, their cause and purpose."—Extract from Preface.

It is proposed later to work up the results of this prize question into a little enclosure catalogue of select fiction, which booksellers may distribute to their customers, or libraries keep for the benefit of their readers. It is proposed to print it neatly at a minimum price per hundred, and it is hoped that it will be a trade tool of no little value.

PRIZE QUESTION, No. 9.

Which are the most salable Works of Reference?

Give twelve titles, in the following order, as usual: Author, title proper, number of volumes, if more than one, size, price, publisher.

This list, excluding purely technical and professional works, also catalogues of books, should embrace only popular works of reference that ought to be found at any public library or reading room, with easy access to the general reader, such as cyclopædias, concordances, dictionaries, gazetteers, and general handbooks of literature, arts, and sciences. One or more works on English literature, courses of reading, etc., may be properly included.

Answers must be received by June 10th.

RULES FOR COMPETITORS.

1. The object of the questions is to elicit answers as to which books and editions have, independent of local or ephemeral interest, become standard or popular works in the American market, hence safe stock for investment.

2. A prize of $5 will be awarded for that answer which includes the greatest number of works on which competitors generally agree, or which, in the judgment of the editor, may otherwise be most fairly representative.

3. Every subscriber and every employee of a subscriber individually are entitled to compete.

4. The answers shall consist of a list of works on a given topic. The short title is sufficient, but number of volumes, size, price, and name of publisher must be invariably given.

5. The titles should be arranged and numbered according to the popularity each work holds in the opinion of the competitor.

6. The titles must be written legibly with ink, on one side of the paper only, foolscap preferred, each title in separate paragraph, with space between titles for cutting through with scissors.

7. The list must not contain a greater number of titles than is demanded in the question. Where there are various editions of a work, only the preferred edition should be given.

8. Each list must be headed by the number of the Prize Question, and signed with full address of competitor.

9. If several competitors should present lists of equal claim to the prize, it shall be awarded by lot.

10. The name of the successful competitor shall be published with his list, and the amount of the prize remitted immediately after publication.

11. The result of the answers will be published four weeks from publication of the question.

12. All communications should be addressed, Editor PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, P. O. Box 4295, New-York.

These rules are subject to amendment whenever the Editor finds it expedient.

The answers to Prize Question, No. 8, "Which are the most unsystematic, and therefore most unprofitable trade lists, both for publisher and bookseller?" will appear in our next issue.

THE CENTENNIAL EXHIBITION.

It is difficult in beginning any detailed description of the book department of the Centennial Exhibition, to decide what first to speak of. We gave hastily last week a brief but general review of the features to be noted in the World's Fair by those interested chiefly in books. But to do even this line of exhibits justice, seems a vain task. We shall be obliged to give what we can in this issue, and to continue more detailed descriptions from number to number, as space and occasion serve.

It is worth while to point out, first, the very great value which the opportunities of comparison offer to the American publisher and to all interested in books. The great value of International Exhibitions heretofore has been in the stimulation toward better work which they gave to manufacturers and others in the country in which they were held, and we have great hopes from the influence on American publishing in which this display may result. Even in the American exhibit alone, among our own publishers, a close comparison can not but afford useful suggestions to those who are at the bottom of the list in skill and taste, to bring their publications up to a higher standard, while by a visit to the foreign department they will note features in which the American exhibit at large will be found lacking, and the foreign visitors in their turn may learn something from us.

To the librarian and individual book-buyer, also, there is a great deal here of interest. The former, indeed, will be professionally attracted by such exhibits as that of the Boston Public Library in connection with the Massachusetts' Department of Education, whose location is the east gallery of the Main Building. Mr. Winsor has taken pains to show, as far as possible, the methods of the Library, as well as what can be done in fine bindings in its own bindery. The exhibit in the latter respect is one of the most interesting in the Exhibition, for although little fuss has been made about it, most of the binding work of the Boston Library is done in its own building, and some of its editions de luxe are finished most richly and exquisitely. Among the volumes sent will be found collections of the several catalogues, the bulletins, hand-books for readers, and other bibliographical productions, for which the Boston Public Library has made itself famous. In this gallery will also be found exhibits from Harvard University and the academies and school system of the State, the house of L. Prang & Co. furnishing one of the most attractive and useful exhibits.

In several instances the educational authorities of the various States are exhibited by themselves, as in the case of Massachusetts, and there are frequently collections of books displayed as incident to these. In this connection also, the interesting collection of works written by the Alumni of the leading colleges, Yale, Hamilton, etc., should be looked up. These individual displays have curtailed very much the opportunity of the National Bureau of Education, which attracted so much attention at Vienna. This department exhibits in the United States Government building, but its book display proper is confined almost entirely to some curious old text-books, which it has in its collection, and a few series of philanthropic publications. The educational publishers generally exhibit in the pavilion of the American Book Trade Association, so that to see what is to be seen in educational literature, one must make a tour, it may be said, of the entire grounds. We must postpone to later numbers notice of the exhibits of the individual educational publishers, who are to be found, some up-stairs and others down-stairs, in the American Book Department.

We may note, however, that D. Appleton & Co. display their educational books, 300 in number, in uniform bindings of half vellum, filling a book-case by themselves; that Scribner, Armstrong & Co. show the medal awarded to Prof. Guyot, at Vienna, for his geographical text-books, while Wilson, Hinkle & Co. call attention to the fact that their general series also received a medal of merit; that Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co. display an interesting series of examples of Spencerian penmanship, among which a copy of the Declaration of Independence is especially prominent; that G. & C. Merriam, of Springfield, show a collection of the dictionaries and other works of Noah Webster, "the school-master of the republic," which is historically as well as bibliographically interesting; that Steiger and Schermerhorn display an interesting assortment of educational helps, etc., etc. A copy of the large paper quarto of Webster is shown by H. O. Houghton & Co. in richly illuminated binding of white vellum, the front-cover being adorned with portrait, national arms, and other devices, in colors. The bindings exhibited by Appleton, Houghton, and several of the individual publishers who are located down-stairs, are very well worth the attention of all book people.

The show of Bibles is peculiarly interesting. The American Bible Society, exhibiting also the Bible publications of the British and Foreign Bible Societies have perhaps the handsomest case in the exhibition, occupying the centre of the pavilion down-stairs. They display in the first place, specimens of Bibles in 200 out of the 260 languages in which the Bible is published. These are open, and the page marked, so that there is more satisfaction in looking through the glass case than in most of the exhibits. They have also loaned from their curious library a number of old or otherwise famous Bibles. One of them dates back to 1476, just four centuries ago. Another is the quaint little Bible supposed to have belonged to John Milton. There is an early Douay of 1610, and the Mathews Bible of John Rogers, 1649. A. J. Holman & Co. have also collected in their place a number of rare Bibles loaned by the American Philosophical Society of Philadelphia and other Philadelphians. This includes the Elliott Bible, 1663, the first printed in America; Saur's German Bible of 1743, which is loaned by Mr. Charles G. Sower, his great-great-grandson, a work which is famous historically for having supplied the cartridge paper for the battle of Germantown; the Aitkin Bible of 1781, the first printed in America in the English language, and the first stereotype edition of the Bible, printed by Collins & Co., New-York, 1816. The Methodist Book Concern, and other houses, also make a display of Bibles, and the Pennsylvania Bible Society has a pavilion on the grounds for making sales. Of the other individual exhibits we must postpone full notice until later.

Passing over to the English department, the little pavilion of Bradbury, Agnew & Co., which they call Mr. Punch's book-case, is a delightful bit of work. It was designed by Mr. John Leighton, F. S. A., and is the most original and artistic structure to be found in the Main Building. This house is the publisher of the English Cyclopedia as well as Punch, and they are circulating from their little corner a superb illuminated circular, setting forth the merits of the cyclopedia. Their pavilion is about ten feet square, of a rich olive color, set off by the least bit of decoration. The sides are glass, and the gabled roof is also of a greenish glass, which softens the light and gives the interior a peculiarily pleasant effect. Around the cornice is written the Shakesperian quotation, "Come and take choice of all my library, and so beguile thy sorrow." The pavilion is protected by a railing surrounding it, but the door-way is hospitably open and the visitor entering is welcomed by the figure of Mr. Punch, who looks curiously out upon the display about him. In one corner is an exquisitely stained glass window, while the wainscoting is filled up with sets of Punch, Cyclopaedia, and other sumptuous publications. This little edifice will be in charge of Scribner, Welford & Armstrong, the American agents of the English house.

Messrs. Cassell, Petter & Galpin also make a creditable display in the English department, and Marcus Ward & Co., the publishers of toy-books, have a very handsome display case, although it is devoted chiefly to stationery goods. Other than this, the English book exhibit is very meagre.

To the German and Dutch exhibits we shall endeavor to give more full attention sometime hence. The French exhibit is still behindhand, but in the course of a week or so it also will be in order.

CENTENNIAL NOTES.

"THE Illustrated Catalogue of the Centennial International Exhibition," now being issued, in semi-monthly parts, by Gebbie & Barrie, of Philadelphia, promises to be one of the handsomest mementoes of the Exhibition, in the way of a publication, that it is possible to obtain. It opens with an illustrated history of previous international exhibitions, the first and second numbers being occupied with a record of the Vienna, Paris, and London fairs, and a reproduction of a few of the most remarkable art works exhibited. In the third number, the design of the work is perfectly marked out. Each future number is to be divided into three parts—a description and illustration of art matters, such as paintings and sculptures, of which fifty steel plates and several hundred wood engravings are promised; descriptions and illustrations of the masterpieces of industrial art—and a history, with cuts, of all the remarkable scientific and mechanical inventions to be seen in Machinery Hall, Agricultural Hall, or elsewhere. These divisions are so paged that they can afterwards be bound separately, forming three works on entirely different subjects. The value of this is apparent, as the works will in the future be sought for as most important educational aids and works of reference. Sold only by subscription, 50 cents per number.

MESSRS. A. WILLIAMS & CO., of Boston, have about ready a large 8vo, uncut, containing an account of the "Celebration of the Centennial Anniversary of the Evacuation of Boston by the British Army, March 17th, 1776; the Reception of the Washington Medal; the Oration delivered in Music Hall; and the Chronicle of the Siege of Boston," by Rev. Geo. E. Ellis, D.D. Dr. Ellis is well known as a scholar and writer, whose prolific pen has supplied more than a hundred pamphlets and nearly a score of volumes on historical and kindred subjects, prominent among which are his "Half Century of the Unitarian Controversy," and "Memoirs of Sir Benjamin Thompson. Count Rumford." The present volume has a fac-simile of Pelham's large plan of the siege, and many heliotypes from early prints, together with an engraving of the Washington Medal.

WE have received from Mr. Louis Meyer, of Philadelphia, some Centennial music, of bright and captivating appearance. The most important of the seven numbers that make up the collection is the "Grand International Medley," containing the national airs of all the great nations of the world. These are arranged for the piano by C. F. Blandner in a very telling manner. They are moderately difficult, within the powers of any average enthusiast. The arrangement begins and ends with American songs, between which are sandwiched, quite gracefully, "exhibits" from all countries. We would suggest that the time and style might be a little more indicated in the less known melodies, as some of them are left almost entirely to individual taste. The covers of all the numbers of the collection are very brilliant, displaying the flags of all nations, topped by the military and naval flags of the United States, resting upon the shield, and surrounding a portrait of Washington. The collection contains "The Grand International Medleys," "Star-Spangled Banner," "Hail Columbia," "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," "Centennial Hymn," "The Heroes of the Republic," and the "Centennial March." We trust that these pieces, published so appropriately, may meet with a large and merited success.

LIBRARY AND BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTES.

LIBRARY NOTES.

ASSISTANT-SURGEON JOHN S. BILLINGS' 'Specimen Fasciculus' of a proposed catalogue of the Surgeon-General's (or, as he prefers to call it, the National Medical) Library has just been printed in seventy-two pages large octavo, running from Aabec to Air. A few copies have been issued to elicit criticism and to determine whether the whole work, which is nearly ready for the press, should be published. It would fill five volumes of a thousand pages each. No medical bibliography of equal extent, says the Nation, has ever been published. Lipenius, Kestner, Carrère, Engelmann, Young, Puchelt, Sprengel, and a score of others, do not exceed a thousand pages. Even the six volumes of Haller's "Bibliotheca Medica" and "Bibliotheca Chirurgica" together fill but three thousand six hundred pages, each containing about one third of the matter of a page of the "Fasciculus." The voluminous works of Ploucquet and Reuss alone approach and perhaps equal the extent of the promised work. It will even be the largest of library catalogues. The Boston Public Library catalogue, with its supplement, reaches only one thousand six hundred pages, the Boston Athenæum less than three thousand five hundred, and the Advocates' Library of Edinburgh only about four thousand nine hundred.

To their general catalogue, issued in 1873, the trustees of the Public Library of Indianapolis have now added a supplement covering the accessions made since the previous publication. In this, following the usual bulletin style, but one entry is made of each work (generally under author), and these are arranged in the ordinary one alphabet—their former (main) catalogue having the triplicate entry of author, title, and subject, on the dictionary plan. The information in this Bulletin No. 1 is quite complete, reasonably full titles being given, and the dates, places of publication, and sizes, so often omitted in library lists, being also furnished. The notes which distinguish the catalogues of the Boston Public, Brooklyn Mercantile, and Quincy libraries are wanting, but the contents of essay volumes, and of series are given in full, and bracketed words often point out the character of a work or give special information as to author. Mr. Evans is librarian at Indianapolis, and the work was probably prepared under his immediate direction.

It is not easy to overestimate the services of Mr. Justin Winsor, through the medium of the Boston Public Library, to the library system of the country. His latest idea is the publication, in nine broadside pages, of large type, of a series of compact suggestions as to the best reading on English history, under the title of "Catalogue Notes in English History." They are intended for posting in the popular departments of the library and its branches, the shelf numbers in each place to be filled in. They give titles and brief characterizations of the histories "in general and for long periods," as well as by special periods, and the authorities on constitutional and ecclesiastical history, life and manners, educational matters, and travel and description. We presume these sheets can be had for use by other libraries.

THE enlargement of Gore Hall, the Harvard library building, is pressing upon that University. In 1841, when the forty thousand volumes then constituting the library were moved into it, the Hall was thought to be of sufficient capacity to hold the accumulations during the present century. Since then one hundred and nine thousand books have been added to the library. The building is in every way unsuited to its purpose, and the governors should take the bull by the horns and attempt a new building, instead of temporizing with one that is even for a small library sadly behind the times.

THE Mercantile Library Association, New-York, held its annual meeting on the 9th inst. The report made shows that the receipts for the year amounted to $34,907.02; expenditures, $34,903.65, of which $11,326.44 was expended for books. Number of volumes now in the library, 163,459.

THE valuable Bulletin No. 37 of the Boston Public Library continues the check-list for American local history (the present instalment being confined to Boston), and furnishes much bibliographical information concerning America before Columbus, and as to autographs.

MR. JOHN FISKE, Assistant Librarian at Harvard, is understood to be preparing an article on cataloguing and classification for the North American Review.

MR. W. W. GREENOUGH, recently re-elected President of the Boston Public Library, is serving his tenth term. He had for his predecessors Edward Everett and George Ticknor.

FRANCE has a Franklin Society, for the encouragement of libraries, which numbers 1300 members. It has already given to army libraries 110,000 francs, and 6000 to those of the villages created in Algeria by Alsatian emigrants. It has founded or assisted 141 regimental or hospital libraries, and 42 in Algerian villages. It has relations with 3000 local libraries out of the 4011 existing. In 1874 it distributed 44,000 volumes; in 1875, 56,000; and it will probably circulate this year nearly 70,000. Certainly a work to which America may be proud to have given the inspiration of a name.

A HANDBOOK of the prints and drawings in the British Museum, prepared by Mr. Louis-Fagan, the assistant keeper of the department, will soon be published. The volume, which will also contain careful descriptions of remarkable possessions, such as the Bellini sketch-book, or the book of drawings by Dürer, can not fail to be serviceable.

THE Shakespeare Club of Birmingham, England, has probably the most extensive Shakespearean library in Great Britain. Several valuable additions have been made to it during the past year, and a careful catalogue published, extending to 210 pages.

THE Cambridge University Press issues a "Catalogue of the Hebrew Manuscripts preserved in the University Library, Cambridge," by Dr. S. M. Schiller-Szinessy. Volume I. containing Section I. The Holy Scriptures: Section II. Commentaries on the Bible.

DR. E. HAAS, of the British Museum, Professor-elect of Sanskrit in University College, London, is carrying through the press a catalogue of the Sanskrit books in the British Museum Library.

IN the recent issue of the (English) Church Quarterly Review is an instructive article on "Sunday School and Lending Library Literature."

THE BROOKLYN LIBRARY CATALOGUE.

NEARLY 300 pages of the catalogue of the Brooklyn Mercantile Library are now in type, and will be printed and issued probably during the coming week. They cover the alphabet from A to Condé, and will make a volume of about the size of the Quincy list. Though there is but one alphabet for the triple entries of author, title, and subject, the larger subjects (classes proper) have page headings, so that they stand out prominently, and can be taken bodily from the catalogue should it be desired to print them separately. These classes are purposely made very large and comprehensive, but are alphabetically sub-classified, as in the Congressional catalogue, with cross-references in the general alphabet to these sub-headings. If the balance of the catalogue is proportionally full to this first part, it will prove one of the most valuably complete reference-books in the country. The department of biography alone (including collective and individual works) numbers some 116 pages, and arts, biblical literature, etc., are similarly large. It should be noted, however, that many of the large departments have been thrown into these early pages that they may be used before the entire volume is ready; thus, instead of entries under names of countries, the subject Countries covers them all. Following the modern general rule, the fullest information is given under the author entry, which includes author's full name, size, place, and date of publication. As in Mr. Cutter's Athenæum Catalogue, variety of type distinguishes main from secondary entries, authors from titles, cross-reference, etc.

It is, however, in his fulness of cross-reference and his thorough analysis of volumes of essays, collections, reports, and periodicals, that Mr. Noyes' work will mainly take rank. Not only are the contents of these largely given under their own headings, but wherever they throw light upon any subject elsewhere treated, they are noted or referred to. Thus the most valuable part of the biographical section are the allusions to the biographical or critical sketches contained in magazine literature, so that it forms a most valuable supplement to Poole by continuing review references from the cessation of his work (1852) up to date. It even goes farther than do such references ordinarily, for after any work of note it points out where any prominent review of it can be found.

Any comprehensive review of such a catalogue must necessarily be deferred till the publication of the entire work. The part now ready, however, shows such painstaking research and thoroughness that the appearance of the complete work may be confidently looked for as a valuable contribution to American bibliography.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTES.

THE librarian of the Börsenverein, in his report for the year ending March, 1876, gives an interesting account of the rich donation recently made to the library by A. Kirchhoff, which, to judge from the description, can not be less valuable than the collection of Lempertz mentioned above. The specialties are nearly the same. One part of the collection relates to the history of the book trade and the art of printing, including portraits, letters, autographs, medals, and other rare relics, famous prints, titles, rules, borders, culs-de-lampe, printers' and booksellers' monograms, etc. The other part serves to illustrate the history of book-making proper, including a large collection of paper samples and water-marks, from the beginning of the fifteenth century down to recent times, with historical notes; curious old bindings and samples of colored and pressed papers, manufactured for binding purposes; library monograms, etc., etc. Mention is also made of a very comprehensive collection of title-pages, donated by a Mr. Schaffert. The librarian makes a request to all booksellers, especially dealers in second-hand books, to examine their dusty shelves, and to contribute any old book or pamphlet that in any way may relate to book-making and printing.

IN commemoration of the approaching fiftieth anniversary of the Börsenverein (German Book Trade Association) two important projects have been brought before the Executive Committee. The first, recommended by Dr. Eduard Brockhaus, is the preparation of a complete history of the German book trade, to be compiled and published under the auspices and at the expense of the Association; the second, the purchase, for the already comprehensive library of the Association, of Herr Lempertz's valuable library of works relating to the book trade, booksellers, bookmaking, book-binding, bibliography, and history of the art of printing, inclusive of the rare collections of portraits, autographs, signets, medals, monograms, library vignettes, samples of paper-making (one of the year 1367), etc., etc. The most precious relic in the collection is said to be the seal of Gutenberg.

THE second reissue of Mr. Morris' "Bibliotheca Lutherana" would seem to indicate a larger denominational literature than is generally credited to the American Lutheran Church; but this is explained by the books containing not only the strict literature of that sect, but all publications of its ministry on every description of subject. The compiler enters very thoroughly into his work, no tract, magazine article, or stray paper appearing to escape his eyes; and the book shows most creditably Mr. Morris' industry and the variety and extent of his church's writings. Unfortunately his limited opportunity for reference has prevented his giving the full information as to size, binding, publisher, and place of publication, so useful; but he generally has dates and full titles and author. At the end is appended a list of periodicals formerly or now published in the interests of that religion.

MESSRS. PUTTHAMMER & MÜHLBRECHT, proprietors of the bookstore for political and legal science, 64 Unter den Linden, Berlin, send us their "Review of the Complete Political and Legal Science for the Year 1875," edited by Herr Otto Mühlbrecht. In this neat and serviceable special finding list are bound together the numbers for 1875 of their bi-monthly Review of this class of literature, giving full titles and frequently contents of the books in these departments, arranged by languages, which are prefaced by a general alphabetical index for the whole year, and followed by publishers' announcements. There are recorded in 1875, as against 2749 in 1874, no less than 3187 titles, of which 1666 are in German, 625 in French, 316 in English, 198 in Dutch, 139 in Italian, 123 in Spanish, 120 in Scandinavian tongues. Mr. E. Steiger is the chief agent for this house in this country.

SAMPSON, LOW & Co. have now ready the index volume to the English Catalogue, 1856-1875. This, the second volume of Index to English Catalogue, differs in some measure from the first volume, issued in 1858. All biographical works are found under the head of the individual or series; all works of fiction are under the title of the work; the authors' names being given in the alphabetical catalogue, the classification is of the simplest character, and it is hoped will be found useful to the general searcher or investigator. The index comprises the publications 1856 to 1875. The retail price (half-bound) is 42s.

OTTO GÜLKER & Co., Leipzig, announce a catalogue of popular German works, particularly suitable for town libraries, compiled and annotated by W. Fricke.

CALVARY & Co. have just ready the second year, 1875, of their Bibliotheca Philologica Classica, a bibliography of works, periodicals, dissertations, theses, articles in periodicals and prominent critical reviews. Hereafter the Bibliotheca will be published quarterly.

MR. QUARITCH, of Piccadilly, has just published a catalogue of works upon the East, and in Oriental languages. It contains nearly 200 pages and 3000 separate articles, among which there are books and MSS. from all parts of the world, including such rarities as Buddhist treatises written on palm-leaves in the ancient Kavi language of Java, illuminated Pāli rituals from Burma, a huge printed volume of Buddhist legends in Mongolian, etc. About a hundred languages are represented. The catalogue begins with the historical and geographical works, and those upon Eastern religions, about a thousand in number. There are 250 books in Sanskrit and the kindred Indian tongues, 150 in Persian, 250 in Hebrew, over 300 in Arabic, 170 in Turkish, 54 in Japanese, 316 in Chinese, which alone would form a very remarkable collection.

MR. J. O. HALLIWELL has privately printed, states The Athenæum, a list of the most important parcels in his extensive and valuable collections of materials throwing light on the life of Shakespeare and the history of the drama in Shakespeare's days. This little book, which is neatly printed and provided with a good index, will give some idea of the extraordinary industry with which Mr. Halliwell pursues his labor of love, besides forming a valuable guide to Shakespearean scholars. In addition to this, he has printed a list of his "study books," as a contribution to Shakespearean bibliography.

THE publication of the Sicilian Bibliography (Bibliografia Siciliana), by M. Guiseppe M. Mira, is now said to be insured. The work combines a bibliographical and biographical dictionary, giving detailed information not only on all works published in Sicily, but also on works relating to Sicily published abroad.

FIRMIN-DIDOT & Co. announce for publication the posthumous works of Ambroise Firmin-Didot, the famous publisher, equally distinguished as author and bibliophile, who died on the 22d of February. They include a catalogue raisonné of his valuable library; a catalogue of the portrait engravings of the French school, in his collection, in 2 vols., 8vo; and "Holbein and his Wood Engravings," in one volume, 4to, with fac-similes.

THE first number of Lorenz's General Catalogue of the French Book Trade (1866-1875), announced in a previous number of the WEEKLY, has just made its appearance. The Annual Alphabetical Reference List for 1875 has also just been issued from the office of the Bibliographie de la France. Price of the latter, for non-subscribers, 4 fr.

A SPECIAL catalogue of works on Drawing has just been published by J. Heuser, Neuwied.

A NEW organ for Dutch East-Indian literature has just begun to appear under the title De Indische Letterbode (J. H. de Bussy, Amsterdam). It is to contain a complete bibliographical summary of all books, pamphlets, and articles on the Dutch colonial possessions, whether published in or out of Europe. It will at first be published three times a year; subscription price, 6½ florins.

Le Conseiller du Bibliophile is the name of a new semi-monthly published in Paris, devoted to the interests of lovers of rare and curious books and fine editions. The first number of sixteen pages is dated April 1. Price of subscription 20 fr. per annum.

M. E. DUFOSSE, Paris, has issued the first number of Américana, "bulletin bibliographique trimestriel des livres relatifs à l'Amérique."

SALES.

THE sale in Boston of the first portion of the Drake library, comprising 5400 titles, was completed on Friday, the 12th instant. There was a good attendance during the eight days it continued, and some spirited bidding for the prizes of the collection. Scarce books on American history and genealogy sold notably well; Haywood's Tennessee brought $30; a fine Hennessee $27.50; a Hakluyt edition of 1589, $41; Hazard's Historical Collections, $34. The folio History of Boston, superbly illustrated by Mr. Drake, went to Cincinnati. It would have been a graceful act in the city of Boston to purchase it for its public library. The features of the second sale, which begins June 6th, are the Mather titles, seventy-two in number, and a valuable block of pamphlets on local history. There are also about fifty bound volumes of early American newspapers to be sold. It seems to have escaped the notice of collectors in general literature, that this library is quite full in early and desirable editions of English classics, voyages, travels, etc. In the competition over rare books, or tracts, the Western libraries outbid the East in nearly every instance.

AT a recent sale in Paris, which realized half a million francs, La Sainte Bible, 1789-1804, twelve quarto vols., with the 300 designs of Marillier, sold for 24,500 frs.; a MS. of the fifteenth century of the Hours in Latin, 3,050; the "Œuvres Spirituelles" of Henri Suso, the copy of Henri III., 2,050; La Fontaine's Fables, first complete edition, 3,450; the "Galerie des Peintres Flamands," by Le Brun, 4,650; the Rabelais of Le Duchat, with Picart's illustrations, bound in red morocco by Padeloup, 6,000; the Molière of 1666, 5,700; that of 1674-75, 3,350; that of Amsterdam, 1675, 2,520; the original edition of "Tartuffe," 2,250; that of the "Misanthrope," 1,700; the Racine of Didot, 1801, 2,150; etc.

THERE is offered for sale in London, in one lot, a considerable portion of Thackeray's library; an extensive collection of books, drawings, and autographs, the books containing many highly interesting marginalia and sketches in pen and pencil in his autograph; also a large collection of his original drawings, together with the autograph of one of his poems; the original autograph draft of his letter to Charles Dickens, on the subject of the dispute with Edmund Yates at the Garrick Club; and unpublished etchings, etc., by him. There are above 270 volumes to which he has added value.

MESSRS. SQTHEYBY, London, announce for sale in June, a collection of manuscripts of all ages, and chiefly illuminated. They comprise many of the finest examples which have been sold for many years past, among others the Evangelistarium of the ninth century, which fetched so high a price in the Perkins sale, and the Lctionarium of the twelfth century, which was sold in Sir W. Tite's library for 550l.

AMERICAN CATALOGUE NOTES.

WE desire to call the special attention of all libraries to the American Catalogue, which is now in advanced preparation at this office. A staff of bibliographers have been engaged on it for some months, and over twenty thousand titles are already in shape. We hope to issue the first volume before the close of the present year and to follow it with the second early in 1877. The work will include all American books in print and for sale at the present time. The first volume will include (1) entry by author, under which full bibliographical details, with price and, so far as can be ascertained, date of publication, and (2) entry by title, except in the case of actual subject titles. The second volume will be a subject index to the first (that is, to all American books in print and for sale), on the alphabet system. It will thus be seen that the work will be absolutely a necessity in every well-ordered library, a convenient tool worth four-fold its cost. The subscription price for the two volumes will be $25, and we trust to receive a subscription from every library which can afford to purchase the work. The price may fairly be called low, considering the great outlay necessitated for editorial and bibliographical labor, and we feel justified in asking for the work the direct pecuniary support of those whom it will chiefly serve. The price, we may add, will be raised after publication day. Subscriptions should be sent directly to the office of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, New York, the rule being that $5 should be paid down with the subscription, and $10 each on the delivery of the respective volumes.

THE catalogues of some two hundred and fifty publishing houses have thus far been received, and some fifty more are promised and expected shortly. Beyond this there remain, possibly, twenty-five houses which can be called publishers, and a somewhat larger number of those who, though not regular publishers, have issued one or more books. These we communicate with when known, but from their being out of the regular trade they are more difficult to get trace of, and are slower in responding to our inquiries. It would greatly oblige us, and materially hasten our work if we can be informed of such firms, and if they would make a point of immediately responding to our letters and circulars. The possibility of our obtaining information of "outlying" books will depend largely upon the interest the trade and our subscribers generally show in the matter, and we must look to them for this information.

LIBRARIES which have not sent us their catalogues, and can spare copies, would confer a favor upon us by forwarding us such copies or by communicating with the manager on the subject.

COMMUNICATIONS.

AN "AMEN."

BALTIMORE, April 28, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

Permit an appreciative man, even if he is a "rebel," to corroborate the statements of Olive Logan in reference to the Librarian of Congress at Washington, by adding his testimony to the uniform promptness and unvarying politeness and care which mark the conduct of Mr. Spofford's business, with correspondents at least, and to unite in the hope that he may be retained in office.

MORE NOTES FROM "SUBSCRIBER."

May 12, 1876.

WHY, oh! why, Mr. Editor, have Scribner, Armstrong & Co. not announced Bryant's History of the United States in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY? Why should we have been left to find out from other sources that such a book was nearly ready—quite ready. I thought I must have overlooked the advertisement, and have spent more than an hour in looking over every page of the back numbers for the year, lest I should wrong them. But I find nothing whatever, since an extract from the New-York Times, under Literary and Trade Notes, in the number for January 1.

Apropos to your catalogue prize question, do allow me to urge, with all the emphasis possible, that an indispensable requisite for a catalogue is that the price of the books be invariably given. The sale of hundreds and hundreds of books is year by year missed, simply because the would-be purchaser does not see the price when pleased with the title. A year ago a New-York house mailed me a sheet on which I found a book I would have been glad to order, had the price been given. It is yet on my desk awaiting leisure and inclination for the three letters it will cost to bring it to me. Magazine and newspaper notices of books should always give the price. I keep on hand an order list of both English and American books, and many a book fails to go on the order, when I have been pleased with a review of it, simply because the price not being given, the desire for it evaporates before the trouble it would cost to ascertain it.

SUBSCRIBER.

[There is a singular prejudice among publishers of subscription books against the record of their titles. Even the publishers of the American Cyclopedia requested positively that we should make no bibliographical record of that important work. The idea is, we believe, that agents object to having the "newness" of a book they are pushing rubbed off by bibliographical mention—certainly an unfortunate prejudice. The publishers of Bryant's History may have been influenced in like manner, as they are usually both prompt and courteous in affording information and kindly appreciative of the WEEKLY.—ED.]

BOOK-FINDING HELPS—A PLEASANT LETTER.

DAYTON, O., May 11, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: I have the pleasure of acknowledging receipt of the very handsomely bound Trade List Annual which you generously awarded me, although not really entitled to it. I will take especial pride in it as an evidence of the progress made by the book trade during even the comparatively short time I have been connected with it, a progress for which it is indebted, in no small degree, to your services. I called on a hardware dealer a few days since to get an adjustable bracket for a book-shelf. He had not the article, but offered to look it up, and then he did what I have so often done, he hunted through a great number of lists without any index, clue, or guide of any kind except vague ideas of the manufacturer likely to make them. It gave me a vivid impression of the advance made by the publication of the Uniform Trade List Annual. I hope you will not give up the annual publication of it for a biennial. We ought to have it new every year.

I have just experienced the usefulness of advertising for "Books Wanted." Over a dozen replies came the first day, and the differences in prices alone made up cost of advertisement.

With great respect, I am very truly yours,
JOHN H. THOMAS.

GOOD WORDS.

It is with great satisfaction that we record the encouraging testimony the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has just received from the foremost German authority in bibliography, the veteran librarian, Dr. Julius Petzholdt, who says, in his Neuer Anzeiger für Bibliographie und Bibliothekswissenschaft (1876, Heft 3): "At the beginning of the new year, I am again urged to call our readers' attention to this paper, which, although only a few years old, has risen to be the indispensable journal of the American book trade. I can from my own experience recommend this journal, edited with practical knowledge and ability, to those wishing to keep posted on subjects pertaining to bibliography, bibliopoly, and literature in America."

Nearly at the same time, an authority in the book trade, Aug. Schürmann, of Leipzig, the able editor of the Magazin für den Deutschen Buchhandel, a periodical exclusively devoted to the interests of the book trade, and supported by the trade without the aid of advertisements, gives the WEEKLY the following appreciative notice:

THE publications of F. Leypoldt, of New-York, are of growing organizing importance to the American book trade. The establishment of his PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, and the position it has gained in the general estimation in so short a time, is a notable success for a work so generally underrated in America. In the New-Year's summary the publisher claims that the WEEKLY is the most complete book-trade paper published anywhere. That is, perhaps, saying a little too much, because, in the first place, it supposes an organized book trade, such as does not yet exist in America; but the WEEKLY is certainly an excellently-edited production, and the existence of the A. B. T. A. is in a great measure its work. For some years, Mr. Leypoldt has combined a Christmas Catalogue with his WEEKLY. This is thinner than the English, German, or French catalogues, but in its arrangement it is a model, and typographically it is the finest of them all. Most original is the idea of his PUBLISHERS' TRADE-LIST ANNUAL, of which the volume for 1875 is before us. The "English Reference List" was suggested by the Annual. On the other hand, Mr. Leypoldt has been forced to follow the English example and add a classified index to his Catalogue, which greatly enhances the usefulness of these publishers' lists. The last Annual contains the catalogues of 155 firms. Some thirty firms are missing and also the subscription-book publishers. In addition, Mr. Leypoldt is at work upon an American Catalogue, which is to be supplemented every year. This long list of works does not by any means exhaust the useful aids to the trade projected and announced by the publisher of the WEEKLY.

We missed in our report of the Canadian Booksellers' Convention one of its, to us, most pleasant features. The following resolution was moved by Mr. S. E. Mitchell, seconded by Mr. S. E. Dawson, and unanimously carried:

"That the Convention desire to place upon record its appreciation of the valuable service rendered to the book-trade by the New-York PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, the London Bookseller, and the London Publishers' Circular, in their fearless and forcible exposure of trade grievances, by their instructive and stimulating editorials on all matters of interest to the bookseller; and we desire that every member of the Canadian Booksellers' Association should become a subscriber to these excellent trade publications, assured that a regular perusal of their contents will materially increase the dealer's interest in his business, and consequently result ultimately in his pecuniary gain."

NOTES AND QUERIES.

MACON, GA., March 11, 1876.

REV. C. W. THOMAS, M.A., published in New-York, by Derby & Jackson, a volume entitled, "Adventures and Observations on the West Coast of Africa and its Islands." He is anxious to know who bought the stereotype plates when sold at auction at the time Derby & Jackson were closed out. Can you in any way get this information? If you can, you will benefit him, and may open a way for the owner of said plates to utilize them.

J. W. BURKE & Co.

[The simplest way to obtain this information is to ask whoever of our readers is posted to reply to the query,—as we do. Ed.]

MINNEAPOLIS, May 19, 1876.

Is there any prospect of a new edition of Poole's Periodical Index? I need one every day; and there must be many others—especially librarians—who would be glad to get a copy. Can and will you do any thing to hasten the publication of a new edition?

SANS-SOUCI SERIES, edited by R. H. Stoddard. HAYDON'S LIFE, LETTERS, AND TABLE-TALK. (Scribner, Armstrong & Co.) The plan of the Sans-Souci Series is about the same as the favorite "Bric-a-Brac." It proposes to give in a condensed and very readable form the various biographies, memoirs, etc., which are constantly appearing in voluminous and expensive editions, and are thus out of the reach of many, both on account of their cost and the time they need for perusal. The series will also venture into fields which have hitherto been left unexplored, such as our own revolutionary period, certain important epochs of French and English history, all of which are best illustrated through the lives and letters of the men of the time. Benjamin Robert Haydon, who has the honor of figuring in this the initiatory volume, was one of England's leading historical painters; he aimed to bring about a revolution in art, and met the usual fate of the reformer. His life is a succession of apparent triumphs and the most real and heart-breaking failures. The want of money haunted him to his dying day, and steadied the hand with which he finally put an end to his miserable existence. He seems to have been a man of unusual intellectual power, and would probably have made a greater mark in the field of letters than as an artist, if he had directed his efforts in that direction. Charles Lamb, Tom Moore, the artist Wilkie, Scott, Leigh Hunt, and many other literary lights of his day, were among his intimates. His charming correspondence with these friends and his vivacious and witty table-talk occupy at least half the volume, and are exceedingly delightful reading. The series appears in a dress very similar in general design to the "Bric-a-Brac." The stamp on the front cover is of course different, being quite appropriate, however, and finely brought out in black and crimson. Sq. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

TRANSCENDENTALISM IN NEW-ENGLAND, by O. B. Frothingham. (G. P. Putnam's Sons.) Mr. Frothingham groups under the name of transcendentalism all the wild enthusiasms and impractical and visionary aspirations that have from time to time, since the beginning of the present century, colored the religion and literature, and shaped the thoughts and actions of so many of the prominent men and women of New-England. New-England transcendentalism seems to have been a thing of itself, differing from the philosophies of France and Germany in the singular manner in which it entered into the every-day lives of its exponents, and in the strange forms it masqueraded in, so far removed from any thing the old world had ever seen. One of its chief experiments was the community of Brook Farm, in whose success was enlisted the brightest intellects of the day. The world will probably never know the true history of this enterprise, but so far as he has been permitted, Mr. Frothingham has written in outline of this ideal phase of social life, giving its constitution in full for the first time in print, and brief sketches of its principal projectors. As a very fitting addition to his history, Mr. Frothingham has embodied sketches of the lives of the leading New-England transcendentalists in religion and literature, among whom appear Theodore Parker, the venerable Amos Bronson Alcott, Orestes Brownson, George Ripley, Emerson, Margaret Fuller, and many others. The work opens with a résumé of the teachings of Kant, Fichte, Jacobi, Cousin, Constant, and other philosophers of the German, French, and English school of the last century. No better historian of the extent of this movement and the true feelings with which it was animated could have been selected than Mr. Frothingham. He has done his work con amore, and given the world a faithful picture of one of the many strange and fleeting phases of our early history. A very fine picture of Mr. Frothingham embellishes the work. 8vo, cloth, $2.50.

VILLAGE-COMMUNITIES IN THE EAST AND WEST, by Sir Henry Sumner Maine. (Henry Holt & Co.) The six lectures which make up the bulk of this volume, and which specially dilate upon the subject of Indian law, are entitled, "The East, and the Study of Jurisprudence;" "The Sources of Indian Law;" "The Western Village-Community;" "The Eastern Village-Community;" "The Process of Feudalisation," and "The Early History of Price and Rent." The addresses to the University of Calcutta, the lectures on "The Effects of Observation of India on Modern European Thought," "The Theory of Evidence," and "Roman Law and Legal Education," all have direct bearing upon the subjects treated of in the lectures on Village-Communities. The chief object of the writer has been to point out the importance, in English juridical inquiries, of increased attention to the phenomena of usage and legal thought which are observable in the East. His work is rich in information relative to the many odd phases of Indian law. The fresh interest which attaches to this point must engross the attention of even the general reader, while the value and importance of the work to the legal mind will make it sought for in all law libraries. The very handsome typographical appearance which the volume presents is quite noticeable. 8vo, cloth, $3.50.

THE PHYSICAL BASIS OF IMMORTALITY, by Antoinette Brown Blackwell. (G. P. Putnam's Sons.) Mrs. Blackwell seeks to establish upon a secure foundation the theory of physical immortality, or rather the retention beyond the grave of the personality or consciousness that specially belongs to ourselves in this life. If it were possible to retain this personality forever, constantly growing and expanding mentally by ever adding anew to our experiences, as she affirms it is possible, bringing all the arguments and discoveries of scientists to support her position, death would be to many of us shorn of its terrors, while to others this horrible "me," that neither time nor distance is to rid us of, would be a haunting phantom of dread. No doubt the work will awaken considerable attention, much labor and many years of profound thought and research having been bestowed upon it; but it seems to be only one more of the many human speculations relative to futurity, that needs a ghost come from the grave to throw light upon, by some tangible evidence. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

THE HAND OF ETHELBERTA, by T. Hardy. (Henry Holt & Co.) Taking into consideration all the many vagaries of Mr. Hardy's imagination, it will be conceded that he presents in this novel the most original and also the most improbable plot he has yet given the world. Ethelberta is represented as the daughter of a respectable London butler, who is the unfortunate possessor of ten children and an invalid wife. Ethelberta is the flower of the flock, clever and beautiful and educated beyond her station, having the entrée, by a fortunate early marriage, into the best society. Her real history, however, only begins when left a widow with small means, and her ridiculously-large family of brothers and sisters looking to her for advice and assistance. She is supposed to live with her people, who serve her in all capacities, from "buttons" to cook, and yet retain the secret of her birth—acting the grand lady in society, and getting into no end of entanglements with the numerous suitors for her hand. Her singular life, her many perplexities, and the odd game she plays with her lovers, will carry the reader entranced to the end of the book, eager for the solution of her difficulties. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

HISTORY OF THE CIVIL WAR IN AMERICA, VOL. II., by the Comte de Paris; [translated by Louis F. Tasistro; edited by Henry Coppée, LL.D. (Joseph H. Coates & Co.)] This volume is occupied by the events of only one year of the war. It opens with the army of the Potomac before Richmond in 1862, and describes minutely the various movements which preceded and led to the battles of Williamsburg, Fair Oaks, Gaines' Mill, Glendale, and Malvern; the naval war of the same year at New-Orleans, Memphis, and Pulaski; the history of the campaigns in Maryland, Kentucky, Tennessee, and Virginia, only of this year also, in which are included full details of the struggle at Cedar Mountain, Manassas, Harper's Ferry, Antietam, Perryville, Corinth, Prairie Grove, Chickasaw Bayou, Murfreesborough, and Fredericksburg. Chapters are also devoted to an account of the blockade, our ways and means for recruiting, our financial condition, and the events which directly brought about Mr. Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation of September 22d, which went into operation on the 1st of January, 1863, with which great landmark the volume closes. It is generally acknowledged that this history will take the place of all others as the history of the war. Its calm and impartial judgments of the men and events with which it deals recommend it, as much as its carefulness and accuracy, and the clear and remarkably vivid manner in which it places the most complicated movements within the understanding of the most unlearned. The publishers are to be complimented for the generous manner in which they have issued the work, no restriction seemingly having been made as to paper, print, or binding, all being as handsome and tasteful as can be desired. The numerous maps which illustrate the work are a great addition to it. 8vo, cloth, $3.50.

DANIEL DERONDA, Vol. I., by George Eliot. (Harper & Brothers.) Though this may not be accepted as George Eliot's greatest work, it is admitted on all sides to be her most popular. It is of our own day, the characters generally being society people (a great matter with novel-readers), and deals with the most tragical elements of life. It is essentially warm and human, full of passion and force, and rich to overflowing in epigrammatic sentences and conversations. Every character in it is clear cut, as from the hand of a master, carrying out its individuality in every little detail of dress, manner, and talk, as only George Eliot's pen has power to show. This volume leaves the reader in anxious suspense. The heroine, Gwendolen Harleth, has just married the man of her choice, and has been confronted with a ghost of his past, on the very threshold of her new home; and Daniel Deronda, the hero, seems just on the eve of discovering pretty Mirah's ancestors. Of course, every body will read the book; even the novel-reader of limited appreciation will find action and incidents in it sufficient to carry his imagination to the very end, while the cultivated reader will be perfectly charmed with its wonderful display of power in every direction. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

SELECT POEMS OF THOMAS GRAY; edited, with notes, by William J. Rolfe, A.M. (Harper & Brothers.) Of the numerous editions of Gray's poems, published within the past fifty years, it is a remarkable fact that scarcely one has been critically exact, either in the text or the notes, all differing materially from the first collected edition of Gray's poems, published in 1768, under his own supervision. The task Mr. Rolfe set himself to collating every line of the present selection has been nobly carried out. The volume abounds in notes and curious information brought out by his research, the comparisons with other authors affording the teacher, as Mr. Rolfe puts it, many useful "pegs" to hang questions upon. Though the volume is intended as an aid in the study of literature, it is very beautifully gotten up, being illustrated with a number of Birket Foster's well-known sketches. Square 16mo, cloth, 90 cents.

STRAY STUDIES FROM ENGLAND AND ITALY, by John Richard Green. (Harper & Brothers.) The beauty and grace, and at the same time the soundness of style, which made Mr. Green's "Short History of the English People" one of the notably interesting histories of the day, can be traced in the present volume of essays. They relate mostly to people and places in England and Italy, which they describe in a graphic, picturesque way that has rarely been excelled by other writers. They made their first appearance in the literary world through the pages of Macmillan's Magazine and Saturday Review, but are in many cases considerably changed from their original form. It would be invidious to point out any one of these studies as exceeding others in merit, as they all bear the stamp of great force of expression, keen artistic powers of observation and description, and a freshness of thought and an originality of fancy which place the author among the very best essayists of the day. The work is unusually good in its mechanical parts, the paper being of the finest quality, the type large and clear, and the spacing generous; the binding is simple and tasteful. 12mo, cloth, $1.75; gilt edges, $2.

ANNUAL RECORD OF SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY FOR 1875, edited by Spencer F. Baird. (Harper & Brothers.) This new volume of the Record presents, like the previous ones, a historical summary of the progress made in science and industry during the past year, and brief sketches of the results of investigations by special scientists, or on special subjects, also during the past year. The latter feature is more prominently brought out in the present volume than in any of its predecessors, and it is the intention of the editor to devote special care to it in the future. A list also of the prominent scientific publications of the past year is added. 12mo, cloth, $2.

THE PRIME MINISTER, by Anthony Trollope. (Porter & Coates.) Another of Trollope's wonderfully realistic pictures of English society life. The remarkable fertility of this author's invention is only equalled by the rapidity with which he works, and the successful manner in which he year after year holds the reading public's attention. The present novel of course offers the usual complications of a love affair, but its chief merit is in its character sketches; the men and women in it are just such as are to be found in a London drawing-room; their talk, too, is often as vapid and as uninteresting; still if a lack of ideality is at times noticeable, no want of interest is allowed to cool the reader's ardor to the very end—Trollope, with his usual cleverness, holding the threads of his story in hand, and keeping the curiosity excited till the last pages are reached. 12mo, cloth, $1.25. "International Series."

PRIME MINISTER, by Anthony Trollope. (Harper & Brothers.) As we have just above given some idea of this story, we only point out this edition as coming from another house. 8vo, paper, 75 cents.

THE WAGES QUESTION: A TREATISE ON WAGES AND THE WAGES QUESTION, by Francis A. Walker. (Henry Holt & Co.) In the recent paper in the North-American Review, the answer given to the question "What has America contributed to political economy?" was "Nothing at all." This work of Prof. Walker bids fair to challenge that reply. It is certainly an original contribution to economic discussion, and it is likely to prove of decided value. Prof. Walker opposes entirely the notion of "the wages fund," an old idea of political economy, and also the idea that the laborer and the capitalist are together sufficient for production. The great point of his book seems to be to emphasize the function of a third class, the employer, or man of enterprise, upon whom both capital and labor depend for their use. He insists also on the doctrine that "if the wage laborer does not pursue his interest he loses his interest;" that is to say, he does not think that the economical forces are always just to labor. The laborer must be qualified then to maintain his rights in the distribution of the products of industry, by organized public force, which should insist at least on thorough primary education, strict sanitary administration, and the assurance of the integrity of banks of saving. He would make these exceptions to the doctrine of "let alone," which, as an economic rule, useful under many circumstances, he otherwise justifies. Any person who has given consideration to the problems of political economy, or more especially those of labor and capital, will find abundant food for thought in Prof. Walker's book. 8vo, $3.50.

BRIEF BIOGRAPHIES, edited by T. W. Higginson. VOL. IV. GERMAN POLITICAL LEADERS, by Herbert Tuttle. (G. P. Putnam's Sons.) Of the nineteen names mentioned in this volume, seventeen of them certainly are almost unknown with the general American public. With Prince Bismarck, who heads the list, and Count von Arnim, it is a mortifying fact, our knowledge of political leaders in Germany usually begins and ends. And yet, from the information which this concise and comprehensive little volume affords us, the others seem to occupy no ordinary place in the present government of Germany, both from their diplomatic powers, their fitness as leaders of a party, and for their scholastic attainments. As a basis for a just and proper understanding of the experiment Germany is making in constitutional government, this work should be put into the hands of every reader and student. The author was for a long time a resident of Berlin, and a well-known correspondent of the New-York Tribune and London Daily News. He had thus most excellent opportunities for critically observing the careers of the men of whom he writes. His style has all the ease and picturesqueness of the experienced journalist, who knows his duty too well to dare lose for a moment the interest or attention of his reader. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

FLESH AND SPIRIT, by the author of "The Odd Trump." (E. J. Hale & Son.) The author does not seek any new scenes or material in this novel, going back to the fertile theme of American life, which has served his purpose so happily in previous efforts. His salient sketches of character refute the oft-repeated remark, that it is not possible to construct a story out of purely American element, there being apparently so few distinguishing traits in our national types. The time of the story brings it up almost to the present year. It is sufficiently full of talk and incident to satisfy the most rapacious novel-reader. 8vo, cloth, $1.25.

THE FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES OF SCIENCE, by Leon Hyneman. (Colby & Rich.) This little pamphlet contains three essays—namely, "The Law of Unfoldment," "Matter and Spirit," "The Dualistic Principles in the Economy of Sex." Mr. Hyneman seems to be a spiritualist, from the tenor of his essays; and his essays seem to be a special plea for woman's rights, and the justness of placing her upon the same platform of punishment and award that man stands on. 25 cents.

HAND-BOOK FOR FRUIT-GROWERS, by F. R. Elliott. (D. M. Dewey, Rochester.) This little work was written to meet the wants of fruit-growers with limited purses. It takes the place of large and expensive works, having all necessary practical information on the subject. It can be placed in the hands of any novice, and will enable him to plant and trim a tree or vine in such a manner that it will prove a perfect success. A short history of fruits and their value, instructions as to soils and locations, how to grow from seeds, how to bud and graft, etc., with a condensed list of varieties suited to climate, will be found in it. Illustrated with about forty wood-cuts. 16mo, cloth, $1; paper, 60 cents.

MEMORIES OF FAMILIAR BOOKS, by William B. Reed, LL.D. (E. J. Hale & Son.) The essays embraced in this volume were first published in 1871 in the New-York World, and afterwards in book form under the title of "Among My Books." But as this title served to confound the book, in the minds of the public, with Lowell's work of the same name, a change in nomenclature was deemed advisable. The essays are familiarly written, but are exceedingly clever and most agreeable reading, and bear unmistakable evidences of the writer's culture and refinement of mind. Both the mental and personal peculiarities of his favorite authors are brought to light, Swift, Bolingbroke, Clarendon, Junius, with Thackeray, Scott, and a number of others of the present day, serving as themes for some very pleasant reflections. The book will be a welcome addition to all libraries, the publishers doing a good thing in putting it again in the market. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

THE COMPLETE POETICAL WORKS OF JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER. (James R. Osgood & Co.) The complete works of our representative poet are given in the handsome "Centennial" edition, which is well illustrated, well printed on good paper, and contains three hundred double column pages. 8vo, paper, $1.

REVOLUTIONARY TIMES, by Edward Abbott. (Roberts Brothers.) Brief sketches of our people and their ways, and the chief events of one hundred years ago. In the limited space of this little work, quite an amount of information is crowded—sufficient at least to awaken an eager thirst for more of the same kind, though the author calls it but a bird's-eye view of the things that were at the beginning. Among the most interesting points are the chapters on the newspapers and books and authors of the period, and the list of rare books relating to the subject. Mr. Abbott is the author of the "Paragraph Histories." Square 18mo, cloth, $1.

ARNOLD AND ANDRE, by George H. Calvert. (Lee & Shepard.) This is a new edition of a drama in three acts, published some years ago. It seems an appropriate offering to the literature of the present year, detailing as it does one of the most important events in our national history. 16mo, cloth, $1.50.

PEACE PRINCIPLES EXEMPLIFIED IN THE EARLY HISTORY OF PENNSYLVANIA, by Samuel M. Janney. (Friends' Book Association, Philadelphia.) A condensed statement of the government established and the principles maintained by the colonists who were engaged with William Penn in his noble enterprise of gaining civil and religious liberty for himself and his descendants, through peace and good-will to all men, the doctrine he proclaimed throughout the land, will be found in this book. 12mo, cloth, 75 cents.

LEAH MORDECAI, by Mrs. Belle Kendrick Abbott. (Sheldon & Co.) The scenes of this novel are all laid in the South, the characters being also Southerners, though mostly of the Hebrew faith. The heroine is persecuted by a wicked stepmother and marries a Christian, and is disowned by her father. It is evidently written by a novice, as no special power is shown in the construction or the development of the plot or the characters. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

THE HISTORICAL JESUS OF NAZARETH, by M. Schlesinger, Ph.D. (Charles P. Somerby.) This work treats of the development of the Messianic idea of Israel from its incipient stages down to the appearance of Jesus, of Jesus and his time according to the records of the New Testament, and of the foundation of Christianity, which the author attributes to Paul, and not to Jesus. Although the work is written with calm judgment and with an evident desire to only speak the truth as shown by the evidences, it is calculated to give offence to orthodox Christian believers. 12mo, cloth, $1.

THE NORTH STAR AND THE SOUTHERN CROSS, by Margaretha Weppner. The above work, comprised in two thick volumes, published in this country by the writer, can be supplied to the trade by D. Appleton & Co., the first edition having been issued in London by Sampson Low & Co. It relates chiefly to Miss Weppner's own personal experiences, and illustrates her remarkable perseverance and force of character. She came to this country several years ago, almost entirely destitute of means, but through the kind efforts of Mr. Peter Cooper and other prominent citizens, she was placed in a position to pursue her journey over the western country in the task she had set herself of gathering information that would be of use for the future guidance of any of her countrymen who proposed emigrating. From San Francisco she went to Japan and China, concluding in two years a tour of the globe. Much of her own life and strange adventures are mixed up with some very minute descriptions of places and people, and a great deal of statistical matter. 12mo, red edges, cloth, 2 vols., $5.

WASHINGTON AND HIS MEN, by George Lipard (T. B. Peterson & Bros.) This volume contains the second series of the legends of the American Revolution of 1776. The sketches are quite graphic, all embodying more or less some incident of the Revolution. 8vo, paper, 75c.

W. S. GILBERT's "Charity," and a little temperance sketch, "A Pint of Ale," are the latest additions to "The Acting Drama" and "The Amateur Stage," two series of plays published by the Happy Hour Co. 15 cents each.

Among these are "The Old Brown Book," a story showing the worth and charm of the Bible; "Katy Hunter's Homes" (heretofore announced under the title of "Katy Did"), a girl's story, by Mrs. C. M. Livingston; "Steps Downward," which sets forth the evil tendencies of certain foolish and vicious practices; "Young Rick," the moral of which is reinforced with six full-page illustrations by Sol Eytinge; and "Noble Workers," a series of biographical sketches, quite similar in general character to the "Stories of Success," recently published by this house.

OWING to the fact of Forster's "Life of Jonathan Swift" being left incomplete at the death of the author, the Harpers propose to re-issue the first volume under the title "The Early Life of Jonathan Swift, from 1667-1711. A Fragment. With Portrait and Facsimiles."

WE learn from the sixtieth annual report of the American Bible Society, recently submitted, that there are engaged in the Society's work in this country 32 district superintendents, with 18 assistants, 170 county agents, and 6032 unpaid volunteer Bible-distributors, and 85 colporteurs have been employed in different countries. The receipts for the year were $527,198.27, including $270,687.28 for publications. Of the new publications at the Bible House, four were printed in foreign languages and six in English. The number of copies manufactured at the Bible House was 675,330; printed abroad, 177,707; purchased abroad, 23,733; total, 876,770. Copies issued, 684,641 at home, 165,829 abroad; total, 850,470. The entire number of copies issued during 60 years is 33,125,766. The distribution of the Scriptures in the United States by auxiliary societies during the year, apart from ordinary sales, so far as reported, is shown by the following figures: Number of families visited, 464,816; families found without the Scriptures, 43,593; destitute families supplied, 26,684; individuals supplied in addition, 14,332; Sabbath and other schools supplied, 1520.

THE Fifty-first annual report of the American Tract Society states that the whole number of new publications issued from the Tract House during the year was 61, of which 36 were volumes. In foreign languages, six new books and tracts in German, two large and valuable books in Spanish, and several books in Italian and Danish were printed. The aggregate total of new matter is nearly the same as for last year, and is equal to one new volume of 130 pages for each week in the year. The periodical department of the Society's publication work is self-supporting. The periodicals are six in number. The aggregate circulation of the whole for the year was nearly six and a half million of copies.

DR. LANAHAN having charged the Western Methodist Book Concern, in a report to the General Conference, with insolvency and general mismanagement, the Book Committee, after a long and exciting discussion over the memorial, having examined the accounts of the Concern in detail, with all the vouchers, pronounced the report of the Concern correct and censured the memorialists. The final vote was unanimous. The purpose of the memorial was the discontinuance of the Western house. Messrs. Hitchcock & Waldon, the agents, state that, contrary to Dr. Lanahan's charges, the assets of the Western Book Concern are $503,285.73 in excess of its liabilities; its net profits the past four years were $80,686.05, and the Concern is unembarrassed.

DURING their removal, two oil paintings by J. G. Brown—"Give Me Your Hand" and "Does Grandpa Love Butter?"—were lost or stolen from James R. Osgood & Co.'s place. These paintings measure about 12x20 inches; the house offers a reward for their return.

If I could repay to any German reader any part of my limited but precious debt to his countrymen, it would give me sincere satisfaction.—R. W. Emerson."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

"ROWELL'S Newspaper Directory for 1876," just issued, contains some very interesting statistics relative to the American journalistic enterprises of the past year. It appears that the current volume furnishes the names of seven hundred and eighty-two daily, ninety tri-weekly, one hundred and thirty-five semi-weekly, six thousand five hundred and ninety-two weekly, thirty-five bi-weekly, one hundred and seven semi-monthly, seven hundred and ninety-one monthly, fifteen bi-monthly and seventy quarterly publications, making together eight thousand six hundred and seventeen. These figures show an increase of two hundred and sixty-nine papers over the number existing in the Spring of 1875, and an increase of two thousand one hundred and seventy-nine over those described in the Directory for 1871. Proportionate augmentations occurred in the intervening years. It seems that the increase in the number of publications during the past twelve months is less than in previous years, and the explanation of this fact is found in the prevalent commercial lassitude of the country. Although thirteen hundred and sixty-six papers have begun publication since May 1st, 1875, one thousand and ninety-seven have in the same period suspended. In New-York State there has been an increase of only two, while in Illinois the number received an addition of sixty-five.

WE are glad to commend to librarians, as to all book people, Mr. Crocker's Literary World, which does them real service that should be better appreciated than it is. It begins with the June issue its seventh volume, and Mr. Crocker's persistence in making so good a journal at such disadvantages is entitled to admiration. His purpose is best given by himself: "We have aimed to give monthly views of current American literature that should help our readers in the selection of books, and enable many, who are remote from the book-centres and the great libraries, to keep in a measure au courant with the flood of new publications,"—a service which even librarians may be thankful for. With the exception of an occasional "dig,"—such as his reference to "the gaudy and belauded magazine called the St. Nicholas" in this number—which gives unfriendly critics the impression of prejudice, the Literary World shows an even and clever pen, and all who take pleasure in books should give it the practical support of a subscription.

THE Chronique du Journal Général de l'Imprimerie et de la Librairie, April 29, gives a full prospectus of the International Exhibition of 1878, which is to be held at Paris. Further details will be given in a subsequent number of the WEEKLY.

L'Arène Philosophique is the title of a new French monthly devoted to philosophy, history, the sciences, and fine arts. Price of subscription, 20 francs per annum.

A NEW critical and æsthetic organ has appeared in Norway, the Norsk Tidsskrift for Literatur. It is edited by K. A. Winter-Hjelm.

A NEW organ of Protestant theological criticism is called the Theologische Literaturzeitung, and is edited by Dr. Schürer, at Leipzig. All the articles are signed.

A KNIGHT OF THE AMERICAN BOOK TRADE.

AN unusual honor has just fallen to the lot of a member of the American book trade. It gives us pleasure to state that the Emperor of Austria has conferred the Knightly Cross of the Imperial Order of Francis Joseph upon Mr. E. Steiger, the German publisher and bookseller of this city. Inasmuch as this kind of decoration has rarely been conferred upon private citizens of any foreign nation, and still more rarely upon those of a non-monarchical commonwealth, the fact of its bestowal in the present instance is significant. This act of the Austrian Emperor is evidently intended to mark his recognition of persistent devotion to a noble calling for its own sake, in which he has supplemented the action of the Emperor William of Germany, who, three years ago, testified in an equally emphatic way to the same appreciation by sending to Mr. Steiger the Knightly Cross of the Order of the Crown. Such distinctions awarded to an American citizen show that the rulers of the Old World are not indifferent to the progress of the pursuits of peace in the New, and, further, that the spirit of kindness to America is growing abroad, a feature which it is very pleasant to observe just at this time.

It may be surmised that while Mr. Steiger's exhibit at the Vienna Exhibition of 1873—we refer especially to his collection of American newspapers—first attracted attention, a further estimate of his activity, energy and bibliographical labors, and his devotion to the cause of education, has convinced the counsellors of the Austrian Emperor that it would be wise to single him out as an example worthy of imitation at home.

Such expressions as the following, from the two chief organs of the book and printing trades in Austria, have doubtless helped to point out Mr. Steiger's deserts:

"...Mr. Steiger merits our sincere admiration for the immense amount of time and money which he has devoted to his undertaking. It is, in every sense of the word, a performance calculated to heap fresh honors upon Mr. Steiger, and, through him, on the German name...."—Oesterreichische Buchhaendler-Correspondenz, Vienna.

"...Verily, men like Steiger, who shrink neither from pains nor pecuniary sacrifices, in order to evince their public spirit, merit the very highest appreciation: the more so when, as in the case here, every possibility of pecuniary remuneration for such achievements is precluded from the outset...."—Oesterreichische Buchdrucker-Zeitung, Vienna.

We heartily congratulate Mr. Steiger upon this fresh mark of appreciation.

OBITUARY.

A VETERAN GONE.

MR. MELVIN LORD, the oldest bookseller in Boston, and probably in the United States, died May 16th, at No. 37 Bowdoin street, aged 84 years and 8 months. He was born in Saybrook, Ct., in 1791, and came to Boston in the early part of the present century. He served his time with Thomas & Andrews, and in 1825 formed a copartnership with Mr. West and Mr. Richardson, under the firm name of West, Richardson & Lord, Washington street. About 1830 he retired from active business. He was prominent as a musical publisher, and in connection with Dr. Lowell Mason, printed the Bridgewater Collection, the Handel & Haydn Collection, and other books of psalmody. He was also famous for his school-books and was also the first publisher of Thomas's almanac. He was at work, up to the time of his death, preparing an elaborate history of the booksellers of Boston. Mr. Lord had also prepared several geographical manuscripts. The funeral took place on Friday.

THE STATIONERS' DINNER.

THE Stationers' Board of Trade gave their first dinner on Thursday evening at the Grand Central Hotel. About fifty sat down shortly after 7 o'clock, Mr. Willy Wallach, President of the Board, officiating at the head of the table. He was supported at his right by Mr. A. D. F. Randolph, President of the American Book Trade Association, and at his left by Mr. A. C. Barnes, President of the Central Booksellers' Association. Among the others at the central table were Messrs. Charles T. and John George Bainbridge; Mr. George L. Pease; Mr. William T. Pratt; Mr. P. Farrelly, of the American News Company; Mr. Charles H. Phelps, the Actuary of the Board of Trade; Mr. Lockwood and Mr. Geyer, of the Stationer; and Mr. Monachesi, of the Bookseller. We may mention also among those present: William B. Borum; D. W. Robinson, of J. Q. Preble & Co.; P. W. Lathan; Iwan Van Auw; Charles W. Liebenroth; William D. Porter; J. D. Shipman; S. H. Molleson; A. S. Alfred; H. J. Muller; Alexander Agar; Melvin Hard; J. F. Anderson, Jr.; F. H. Dunkinson; E. I. Horsman; Frank Baynum, representing Slote, Woodman & Co.; John C. Richard, of American News Company; E. H. Soper, representing Kiggins, Tooker & Co.

Mr. Wallach, in a few pleasant remarks, invited the guests and members to give their attention first to the delectation of the inner man, and after that important department had been attended to, he again rose to state to the goodly company the purposes and hopes of the Association. He dwelt pleasantly on the general desirability of the members of any trade meeting each other face to face, although they were rivals in their common business, and he pointed out many things which, though separately they could not accomplish, might be achieved by the united action of a Board of Trade. In particular he mentioned first the subject of credits, and showed the demoralization arising from too easy credit and the lax treatment of bankrupts, to the disadvantage of merchants who wanted to do an honest business. He hoped also that the association would accomplish a useful result as to trade-marks and the protection of original designs, and pointed out that the Board might be effective in inducing the railroad companies to make as favorable terms for goods from New York, as from other points in whose favor they were now discriminating. He referred also to the peculiar usefulness of jobbers in the stationery trade, and deprecated the underselling which had done away with all distinctions of the wholesaler, jobber, and retailer. Mr. Wallach said he feared much of this had been due to the extreme discounts offered by commercial travellers.

A voice—At the order of the house at home.

He concluded by offering the toast to the permanence and prosperity of the Stationers' Board of Trade, and called upon Mr. Randolph, President of the Book Trade Association, to speak.

Mr. Randolph responded in his usual happy vein, declaring that he was not sure that one whose particular business was to spoil good paper with printer's ink, ought to be in good standing with the stationery trade. He paid pleasant compliments to the dignity of the stationery business, illustrating his remarks with many happy hits.

Mr. Wallach then offered as the next toast, "The Trade-mark: 'tis a wise father that knoweth his own child," to which Mr. Charles T. Bainbridge responded with a discussion of the trade-mark, historically, legally, and morally, acknowledging his indebtedness to Mr. E. H. Knight for the legal points. He spoke of the trade-mark as the substitute for the autograph, which guaranteed to the consumer the genuineness of the article, and he concluded by saying that the trade-mark might indeed be called the impersonation of the dealer.

To the next toast, "The Stamp Act of 1876, almost as bad as that of 1776: may we follow the example of our forefathers," Mr. P. Farrelly, of the American News Co., was called upon to respond. He explained the bill now before Congress, on the motion of the General Board of Trade, and later in the evening a resolution was passed endorsing the bill on behalf of the Stationers' Board of Trade.

Mr. Charles H. Phelps, Actuary of the Stationers' Board of Trade, responded to a toast on credit and standing, by urging the members to give credit only to tried men, as a matter of justice to honest dealers, and suggested that the widening of the American market under a policy of free trade would be greatly to the advantage of the stationery interest. In conclusion he offered the toast, "The Stationers' Board of Trade—stationary but in name. May it book all firms of credit and standing. May the note paper we make ever be as good as gold. May our principles penetrate and envelope and twine us together in one board."

To the toast on "The Book and Stationery Trade, offspring of a common mother: may they go hand-in-hand together," Mr. A. C. Barnes, as representative of both interests, was called upon to respond, which he did in a characteristically neat and humorous speech, in which he spoke of the original Bainbridge as selling so-called stationery from his "station" in the streets of Rome.

The evening's entertainment was here varied by Mr. F. H. Dunkinson, who contributed more than one song for the pleasure of the guests.

The next toast was "The Commercial Traveller: oh! for some medicine to kill or cure him!" to which Mr. Alexander Agar responded, saying some good words for that much abused class. Mr. C. S. Plummer made a vigorous speech on the same subject later in the evening.

To the toast, "Trade Journalism," Mr. Howard Lockwood, of the Stationer, responded.

The company dispersed about 11 o'clock, after a most pleasant evening.

STATIONERY NOTES.

IN our notes of last week, we should have stated there was a trade discount on the Inexhaustible Ink sold by L. B. Thomas, Baltimore.

WE have just received Edward Todd & Co.'s

Centennial trade list of gold pens, pencil-cases, etc. This list is very complete, with illustrations, prices, etc. It is bound in stiff covers, and is very artistically printed. These lists will be sent to the trade on application to Edward Todd & Co., 652 Broadway, New-York.

NICH. MULLER'S SONS, New-York, have added to their already large line of bronze inkstands a new one, designated No. 637, representing a wreath of oak leaves with a beautiful cut bottle. The price will be $13.50, with their usual discount. They have also a new thermometer inkstand, with two cut-glass bottles with arabesque ornaments. It is one of the handsomest inks this house has produced. The price will be about $10, less the usual discount.

CHAMBERLIN, WHITMORE & Co., 45 Beekman st., New-York, have a complete stock of their new steel-wove, extra satin-finish, and artistic cream, of the same make. These papers are very handsome, and are put up in all sizes, in quarter-ream boxes. Although just out, they are meeting with great success. Samples and price-lists will be cheerfully sent on application.

P. GARRETT & Co., Philadelphia, have just published a handsome lithograph, in four colors, of the International Exhibition and grounds. It is very accurate, and is said to be the best bird's-eye view yet issued, being a reliable map as well as an attractive picture. It retails for 50 cents.

KEUFFEL & ESSER, New-York, have just issued a Centennial edition of their catalogue. It is especially adapted for the pocket, and very handsomely illustrated with cuts of drawing and mathematical instruments.

MR. FR. J. EMMERICH, 38 Maiden Lane, has in stock the Centennial Photographic Apparatus, something decidedly new and attractive, and intended for the use of amateur photographers. It is adapted for taking portraits, landscapes, views of buildings, etc., also pictures for the magic lantern and copies of other photographs. One dozen prepared plates, with chemicals for the same, and a pamphlet giving full directions for their use, accompany each apparatus. The price of this very instructive toy is so low that it places it within the reach of all—$6, with a discount to the trade.

MESSRS. KAUFMANN & Co., 362 Broadway, New-York, have just received a handsome new line of scrap-book pictures; among them are handsomely illuminated designs of the heads of General and Martha Washington, the Goddess of Liberty, and the American Eagle. The above-named firm deal very extensively in picture ornaments, and fancy and programme cards.

ROBERT BURNET, 45 Beekman st., New-York, has just completed for the U. S. Bank-Note and Engraving Co., a Ledger, Day-Book, Journal and Cash-Book in full Russia, also thirteen of his Patent Wire Lock Scrap-Books, bound in full black Russia, embossed. These books are all very handsomely gotten up, and do Mr. Burnet credit. This house makes a specialty of getting up this class of work for the trade.

MR. CHAS. F. PECK, late of the firm of S. Reed, Johnson & Co., Pittsburgh, has opened a Stationery, Blank-Book and Printing establishment at 57 North Ninth street, under the firm-name of Chas. F. Peck & Co. We wish the new firm every success.

MR. A. H. NELSON succeeds the late firm of Wasson & Nelson, Stationers, New-Orleans, La.

MESSRS. BOORUM & PEASE, New-York, are now making a line of bankers' cases. This is a new undertaking, and we hope they will meet with entire success.

E. McLOUGHLIN, formerly employed by Willy Wallach, has taken a position as salesman with McLoughlin Bros., Publishers, 71 and 73 Duane street, New-York. He will be pleased to see his old friends at the above place.

MESSRS. DENNISON & Co. are now fairly settled in their new quarters, No. 198 Broadway. Their new store is tastefully arranged and presents a neat, business-like appearance. Their Excelsior Tissue Papers they are especially proud to show. In wedding-cake boxes, they now have a large and well-assorted stock. Although this house is no longer manufacturers' agents for McGill's Fasteners, yet they can supply the trade on the same terms as formerly.

THE notable fashion in stationery is the new Dom Pedro note-paper in three sizes—namely, $6\frac{1}{2} \times 4$, $6\frac{1}{2} \times 4\frac{1}{4}$, $6\frac{1}{2} \times 4\frac{1}{2}$ inches, with envelopes of the same size, so that the sheet can be enclosed without folding. It has a rich and generous appearance, and sells at \$30 to \$40 per 100 boxes. The Antique Overland paper is also very handsome. It is used for foreign correspondence, and is made in blue and white commercial note size, with envelopes to match. The price is \$2.50 per ream, and \$5.50 per M, with a liberal discount to the trade. Myers Brothers, 62 John street, New-York, supply the trade.

MR. BEN GRAHAM, connected with D. Appleton & Co. for four years, and recently with Baker, Pratt & Co., has opened a retail stationery store corner Bowery and Grand street, New-York. He makes a specialty of printing and the manufacture of blank-books.

IN the advertisement of Shaw & Alfred, stationers, in last week's number, the correction of their address having been overlooked, we would call the special attention of the trade to their removal to 149 William street, New-York.

THE official catalogue of the U. S. International Exhibition is now published. It is very compact and neatly printed. There is much valuable information regarding foreign countries exhibiting, together with cuts of all the buildings. The trade is supplied by J. G. Munday, 114 William street, New-York.

BUSINESS NOTES.

MESSRS. A. D. F. RANDOLPH & Co. are now settled down in their handsome new store, No. 900 Broadway, at the southeast corner of Twentieth street. They occupied the old store at Ninth street and Broadway for twelve full years, having been in 1864, when they moved from Amity street, pioneers of the original up-town movement. At that day there was not a book store so far up town. The new store has the advantage of more room and more light than the old, being twenty feet wide by eighty-six deep, lighted by five large windows on the side, besides the handsome show windows in the front. The shelving, which is ten feet high, allowing space for ten rows of books, is of a novel color for book store fittings, but its pleasant grey-brown, relieved by a line of bright red (rubricated after the fashion of the prayer-books), affords a peculiarly effective setting for the books, which are, of course, mostly in strong colors, and are happily relieved by this lighter tint. A novelty of the shelving is, that there is no running counter on which the books can be piled up by careless clerks or hasty buyers. Instead of this there is a little pull-shelf, which can be drawn out as a temporary lodgment for books. The show windows are capacious, and are of course handsomely set out, and in a little corner of one, screened off from the outside, is to be a resting place for the patrons of the store. Down-stairs there is a large and convenient basement for the storage of stock, with all conveniences for the receipt and delivery of goods. The poet-publisher-president—we say it again—and his worthy partner, Mr. Bates, are heartily to be congratulated on their new move.

Still further up, Messrs. G. P. Putnam's Sons have taken possession of their new store, No. 182 Fifth avenue, on the north side, between 22d and 23d streets. This store is exceptionally large, 26 by 100, although the shelf room is not so much greater than in the old store. The shelving here is low, for the purpose of enabling buyers to reach down books, even from the top shelves, for themselves. It is fitted in dark wood with neat gilt moulding, the shelves and running counter being covered with brilliant scarlet cloth. The show-windows are handsomely made of black-walnut, relieved by French walnut, and with brilliant red covering of a military cloth, which shows off the books excellently. Here also, after the plan started originally in Chicago, there is to be a pleasant resting-place for visitors, behind the table of new publications. The publishing offices of the firm are at the back of the store, where there is abundance of light from the glass roof. Down-stairs, the storage and hoisting facilities are of the best, and the improvement over the old accommodations is very marked. The firm report an improvement in their retail trade as already discernible, although in these dull times it is not so noticeable as one might wish.

MARTIN R. DENNIS, bookseller and stationer, of Newark, N. J., has admitted his sons, Martin Dennis and Joseph R. Dennis, as partners, and the business will be conducted as heretofore at No. 739 Broad, corner Academy street, under the firm-name of Martin R. Dennis & Co.

MESSRS. RIVINGTON, Waterloo Place, London, have just issued a catalogue of new books and new editions of books they have in hand for immediate publication. Also a selected list of choice editions of their devotional works.

MESSRS. HARPER & BROS. notify of a considerable series of alterations in prices, but their circular comes too late for details until our next. They also announce that Library editions of Thackeray's and Reade's novels, in 12mo, are in preparation, from the plates formerly owned by Messrs. J. R. Osgood & Co.

JUST as we go to press we are pained to learn of the death of two leading members of the Philadelphia trade, Charles Desilver and T. B. Peterson, Jr.

THE SIXTH EDITION READY MAY 25th.

DE TOCQUEVILLE'S DEMOCRACY IN AMERICA.

Translated by REEVE. Edited with Notes, the translation revised and in great part rewritten, and the additions made to the recent Paris Editions now first translated by FRANCIS BOWEN, Professor of Moral Philosophy, in Harvard University.

2 VOLS., 8vo, CLOTH, $5.

From the N. Y. Tribune.

"The more it is studied, the more reason one will find to admire the philosophical spirit which pervades every part, without being anywhere offensively obtruded; its luminous method; the accurate knowledge of our institutions which it reveals alike in their spirit and in their details; and the accuracy, clearness, and grace of the style."

From the Washington Globe.

"By the common consent of all critics, this is the best work on Democracy, in ancient or modern literature."

From Harper's Magazine.

"De Tocqueville has written what is incomparably the best, the most thorough and comprehensive survey of American institutions, their operations, their benefits, and their prospective dangers."

From the National Quarterly Review.

"De Tocqueville has become a classic in every literature in Christendom. Yet it is a remarkable fact that the one now before us is the only edition in English of 'Democracy in America,' which is at all worthy of the author, or of the subject which he handles with such masterly skill."

BOERICKE & TAFEL,

PUBLISHERS, IMPORTERS, AND JOBBERS OF

Homeopathic Literature, and Homeopathic Pharmacentists,145 GRAND STREET, NEW-YORK.*HOMEOPATHIC MEDICINES IN BOOKSTORES.

The sale of Works on Homeopathic Domestic Practice goes hand in hand with that of Homeopathic Medicines, since most families using the latter have one or more works on Domestic Practice for reference. Many booksellers have already taken up this kindred branch of business, and do a remunerative trade. We furnish our customers with a liberal supply of printed matter, bearing their imprint, for free distribution, the judicious circulation of which, in any given town, will at once establish a fair and constant trade.

COUNTER CASE OF HOMEOPATHIC MEDICINES FOR FAMILY USE.
FOR RETAIL TRADE.*Black-Walnut Case,

WITH GLASS TOP.

Beautifully Engraved as per Wood-Cut.

Contains a selection of the most commonly used medicines, assorted as to salability, and alphabetically arranged, each vial being put up ready for the customer's hands.

Short and concise directions for use are given on each bottle label, including dose of each remedy. The cork is secured by a neat metallic capsule, giving name of the remedy, in addition to name of our firm.

Lists, with prices and particulars of contents, furnished on application.

(A stock of seventy-five to one hundred dollars will give a fair assortment to start with.)

HOMEOPATHICPharmaceutical Preparations

As a rule, can not be demonstrated by, or are unsusceptible to the ordinary chemical tests; hence their genuineness can not be determined by the usual tests or analyses applied to Drugs and Chemicals. Accordingly, their reliability, and, therefore, their salability, depends solely on the reputation, as to probity, of those preparing and putting them up. It is therefore of paramount importance that the trade supply themselves from establishments of recognized standing and reliability.

THE ENCYCLOPEDIA OF PURE MATERIA MEDICA.

A Record of the Positive Effects of Drugs upon the Healthy Human Organism. Edited by TIMOTHY F. ALLEN, A.M., M.D., Professor of Materia Medica and Therapeutics in the New-York Homeopathic Medical College; with contributions from DR. RICHARD HUGHES, of England, DR. C. HERING, of Philadelphia, DR. CARROLL DUNHAM, of New-York, DR. AD. LIPPE, of Philadelphia, and others. BOERICKE & TAFEL, New-York and Philadelphia. pp. 640, royal 8vo. Price to subscribers, in cloth, $5; in sheep or half morocco, $6. Regular Price, in cloth, $6; in sheep or half morocco, $7.

Of this important work three volumes have now appeared, the fourth is in press, and may be looked for in July. As heretofore, one volume will be published every six months, and it is expected that nine, or at most ten, will complete the work. Subscriptions should be addressed to the publishers, at 145 Grand Street, New-York.

ORGANON OF THE ART OF HEALING.

By SAMUEL HAHNEMANN. AUDE SAPERE. Fifth American Edition, translated from the Fifth German Edition, by C. WESSELHOEFT, M.D. BOERICKE & TAFEL, New-York and Philadelphia. pp. 244, 8vo, cloth, $2.

"HAHNEMANN'S ORGANON" was the first exposition of the principles of Homeopathy published (first issue in 1810), and it is to this day used as a text-book in the Homeopathic Colleges.

Former translators sought, by following the German Text as faithfully as possible, to give the illustrious author's thoughts in their truest sense, even at the expense of a fluent diction in English. This rendered the translations cumbersome and difficult of being understood. A faithful translation, rendered in fluent, terse English, was therefore a positive want, and DR. WESSELHOEFT has put the profession, and the public in general, under lasting obligations, by giving the masterly translation now submitted.

THERAPEUTICS OF TUBERCULOSIS, OR PULMONARY CONSUMPTION.

By WM. H. BURT, author of "Characteristic Materia Medica," etc., etc. BOERICKE & TAFEL, New-York and Philadelphia. 230 pp., 8vo, cloth, $2.

The author, leaving aside the pathology of this disease, confines himself solely to the treatment of the same, and while giving due weight and consideration to the exhibition and selection of the proper Homeopathic Medicine, wherever indicated, does not lose sight of the importance of accessory means, capable of assisting a cure and of alleviating distress. Minute directions are given for the preparation of many dietetic articles, such as Koumiss, or milkwine, meatjelly, etc., etc. Nor is the blood cure and the like left unmentioned. Full instruction is also given in the use of the spirometer, breathing tubes, etc.; in short, nothing bearing on the subject seems to have been lost sight of.

THE HOMEOPATHIC DOMESTIC MEDICINE.

By JOSEPH LAURIE, M.D., L.R.C.S., Edin., etc. Edited and Revised with numerous important additions, and the Introduction of the New Remedies; a Repertory and a Glossary, by ROBERT J. MCCLATCHEY, M.D. Seventh American Edition. BOERICKE & TAFEL, New-York and Philadelphia, 1876. Pp. 1044, 8vo, half morocco, $5.

The Seventh Edition of LAURIE and MCCLATCHEY'S Domestic Medicine has just been received from the press—the seventh edition since 1871. This fact alone speaks volumes in favor of this excellent work. Eschewing all technical terms as far as possible, the author and American editor strove to render the description and treatment of Diseases in such plain and concise terms as to be readily understood, by the farmer as well as the student. Wherever technical terms could not be avoided, an explanation of the same will be found in the Glossary.

Of the original English edition of LAURIE'S work, over 21,000 are in circulation in Great Britain, and this American edition bids fair to rival its English prototype.

A mahogany medicine chest, containing a full set of 106 remedies, in vials holding over fifty doses of medicine each, furnished for $12; the same in vials holding one hundred doses each, $18; or, $17 and $23 respectively, including book. May be ordered through any bookseller, or direct from Boericke & Tafel, New-York.

Retail Booksellers, News Agents, and Dealers generally, who desire a handy, cheap, and profitable advertising medium for the latest books in the market, will find

The Literary News

the best adapted to that purpose.

This publication (now in its fifth year) has reached a circulation of over 25,000 copies, and is used by hundreds of booksellers, from Maine to California.

It will be issued as heretofore, at the beginning of every month, with not less than eight pages, embracing Editorial Notes, Literary Intelligence, a full list, compiled expressly for its columns from the records of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, containing the titles and prices of the PRINCIPAL BOOKS PUBLISHED DURING THE PREVIOUS MONTH and announcements of Forthcoming Works for the Current Month, so classified as to show at a glance all the new publications in the various departments of literature, and one page of general advertisements, which will not conflict with the interest of the trade. It will be printed on tinted paper like previous editions, but of superior quality, and being of light texture, it can be sent with any book, magazine, paper, letter, circular, etc., with a small increase of postage.

It is certain that dealers who will adopt this cheap and effective mode for advertising their establishments, will find themselves amply repaid in a short time, and we have the testimony of many dealers who have not only increased the sales from their counters, but have found the orders for books not in stock highly remunerative.

Terms for Editions with Imprint, invariably payable in advance.

100 Copies for three months,	:	:	:	$6 50		500 Copies for three months,	:	:	:	$19 00
250 " " "	:	:	:	12 00		1000 " " "	:	:	:	26 00

Special terms for large quantities.

As the December issue will hereafter be published as a double (Christmas) number, regular subscribers at the above rates, who fail to send their special order, will receive only one half the quantity for this month. Special terms for the Christmas number will be announced in the Publishers' Weekly during the month of November.

Extra front headings (instead of the adopted style of imprint), with special name of paper and display, for which there is space above the rules inclosing date, are charged $1 extra per edition.

Any quantity from 100 to 1000 copies will be sent post-paid, but for larger quantities, at the reduced rates, postage or expressage will be charged.

Dealers who desire an edition for trial before subscribing, can be supplied at the following rates:

100 Copies for any month except December,	$2 50		500 Copies for any month except December,	$8 00
250 " " "	5 00		1000 " " "	15 00

Orders must be received by the 30th of the month previous to which the subscription begins.

No orders filled without payment in advance, as the numerous small amounts will neither bear the trouble nor expense of sending bills or of repeated statements, and collecting. Remittances should be made either by Post-Office Order, Draft on New-York, or Registered Letter.

All Orders should be addressed,

Ancient Art and Mythology. The Symbolical Language of Ancient Art and Mythology; an Inquiry. By RICHARD PAYNE KNIGHT, author of the "Worship of Priapus." Edited, with Introduction, additional Notes, Glossary, etc., by Alexander Wilder, M.D. 8vo, cloth, $3.

Richard Payne Knight was one of the most thorough scholars of the present century. His works display profound judgment, discrimination, taste, acuteness, and erudition, united with extraordinary candor and impartiality; and they constitute an invaluable collection of ancient and curious learning, from which the students of such literature can draw abundant supplies. In these respects they stand side by side with the writings of the late Godfrey Higgins, while they excel in respect to scope, accuracy, conciseness, and the arrangement of subjects. They are of untold value for the unfolding of more correct views of Ancient Mythology than have been commonly entertained.

The editor and publisher of the American edition have endeavored, in their respective spheres, to reproduce the work in a form which shall be convenient and attractive, and with notes and additional matter, to bring it down to the present state of our knowledge upon the subjects treated.

The Clique of Gold. Translated from the French of EMILE

. "It is strongly sensational, but the materials are managed with so strong a dramatic insight that one has not time or inclination to think of improbabilities. M. GABORIAU is without a peer in this particular style of story." — Boston Gazette.

"Gaboriau's novels increase in power as we become familiar with his style." — Trans'pt.

Woven of Many Threads. By C. V. HAMILTON, author of "Ropes of Sand," "Crown from the Spear." 1 vol. 8vo. Cloth, $1.25; Paper, 50 cts.

. "A story apparently of English origin, in its prevailing tone and certain peculiarities of style, is, in fact, the production of a lady artist in this city, whose vigorous and original portrait of Longfellow (recently on exhibition) elicited warm expressions of approval from the critics." — Home Journal.

"As at present advised, we may venture to say that this 'first novel of the season,' from the pen of an American lady, will meet with acceptance from the readers of fiction. It appears to be, as its name implies, intricate, or, rather, multifarious, in plot and scenes; sufficiently romantic in tone and situations; with sharply outlined and vividly contrasted characters. The style is free and glowing, and the author, locating her story in Italy, finds opportunities to show familiarity with the land of song and art, of which she makes incidental use to heighten the interest of the tale." — Boston Transcript.

Ropes of Sand. By C. V. HAMILTON, author of "Woven of Many Threads," "Crown from the Spear." 1 vol. 8vo. Cloth, $1.25; Paper, 75 cts.

. "A work woven as well as this in plot, character, general finish, and execution, deserves to have its writer publicly heralded upon the title-page." — Times.

"These stories show considerable ingenuity and power, cultivated, one would say, rather by the study of romances, than by observation of actual human life and character." — Worcester Spy.

Crown from the Spear. By C. V. HAMILTON, author of "Woven of Many Threads," "Ropes of Sand." 1 vol. 8vo. Cloth, $1.25; Paper, 75 cts.

. "It is a story of French domestic life and character, full of interest, and written in attractive style. The moral of the story is that the crown of happiness may be won after long struggle and suffering." — Herald.

"Coming from the pen of the author of 'Woven of Many Threads,' this story is sure of a warm welcome, nor will it altogether disappoint expectation. In some respects it is an improvement upon its predecessor, having a more compact and artistic form, and more powerful interest. But it is less natural and easy. There is more of the regulation novel, both in plot and characterization." — Phil. Inquirer.

Kate Beaumont. By J. W. DE FOREST, author of "Overland,"

"Miss Ravenel's Conversion," "Playing the Mischief." 1 vol. 8vo. Illustrated. Cloth, $1.25; Paper, 75 cts.

. "He has written a novel that is very readable, and he has given proof of being able to do more and better work. His painstaking, his careful observation and sprightliness, are qualities which will certainly achieve a more than partial success." — Nation.

"One of the chief charms of MR. DE FORREST'S writings is the quiet and delicate humor pervading them. It cannot easily be taken from its surroundings, and imprisoned in quotations, or we would fortify our opinion by examples; but it is always delightful." — Utica Herald.

"This is one of the best American novels we have ever read. It is a tale of true, genuine Southern life before the rebellion had stepped in to mar that life, and to turn its pleasant hospitalities into vague remembrances. It is written with a vigorous pen that never flags till the last word is written and the last scene closed." — People, Concord

German of E. WERNER, author of "Good Luck," &c. 1 vol. 8vo. Cloth, $1.25; Paper, 75 cts.

. "It has spirit and action, united with power and depth of feeling. The characters are well delineated and strongly drawn, and the plot is well constructed and carried out." — Transcript.

"The plot is highly interesting, and is well developed, while an art atmosphere pervades the work, that shows both refinement and æsthetic appreciation on the part of the writer. The style is strong and vigorous, and contains scenes of great power." — Gazette.

Good Luck. By the author of "Broken Chains." 1 vol. 8vo.

Cloth, $1.25; Paper, 75 cents.

. "An attractive and fascinating volume, with highly dramatic characters, clearly drawn and well sustained throughout, and containing many pages of absorbing interest. The translation is graceful and natural, one of the happy kind that makes us forget that the story was first written in a foreign tongue." — Enquirer.

"I began to read the proof-sheets last evening, and was compelled by the interest of the story to read into the small hours." — L. C. M.

Not Easily Jealous. 1 vol. 8vo. Price, Cloth, $1.25; Paper, 75 cts.

. "Some English travellers, meeting in Switzerland, form intimacies which are destined to influence their whole future lives. The author of 'Not Easily Jealous' weaves around this nucleus a tissue of romantic adventure which will pleasantly beguile many leisure hours." — Transcript.

"This 'Not Easily Jealous' has some bright and sparkling characters in it. There is not much plot or incident in it; but the interest is well sustained, and it is written in such a taking sort of style as to make it very fascinating." — People.

Jocelyn's Mistake. By MRS. J. K. SPENDER, author of "Her Own Fault," "Brothers in Law," &c. 1 vol. 8vo. Cloth, $1.25; Paper, 75 cts.

. "MRS. SPENDER'S English is unusually good, and she has learned the art of working her opinions on men and things into the web of her story, instead of merely intercalating homilies. . . . The Jocelyn of the book is very skilfully drawn. . . . It rises in type and diction far above the ephemeral stories of the season." — Academy.

"We may safely say the perusal of this book can but be productive of good." — Messenger.

The Lost Despatch. Translated from the German of Friedrich Friedrich, by L. A. WILLIAMS. 1 vol. 8vo. Cloth, $1.25; Paper, 50 cts.

. "Lovers of pen-pictures and florid writing will not find any of their favorite style. There is no padding, no burning sensation, no bigamy, nor divorce. But there is a well constructed story, well told, and also some finely-drawn characters. The interest, too, is well sustained. 'The Lost Despatch' will serve to pass a couple of hours pleasantly enough; and what is more to the purpose, in these days of filthy novels, it may be read by all without fear or hesitation." — *N. "It is one of those books the world will not willingly let die, and the publishers have shown both wisdom and good taste in republishing. The style of the book is different from that of most modern novels; there is thought enough in it to make a half dozen novels of the present day." — Courier.

. "The most unique and original portion exhibits a married man of sixty-three years of age, who falls in love with the child of his friend, on her return from boarding-school." — Phil. Age.

"The prefatory remarks by the author are certainly beautiful, and comforting to the aged. Here they are: 'For those who know themselves to be travelling down the hill of life, it may be a consolation to remember that old hearts need not be cold ones. To remember that beyond the faltering step, and fading eye, and trembling hand, and gray hair fluttering in the evening wind, and the abrupt yawning of the inevitable grave, lies the fair, free Hereafter of eternal youth, wherein all souls shall find what life and light and love so fully mean.'" — Christ. Advocate, Nashville.

. " 'Slaves of the Ring' is a remarkably interesting romance, although it finds material for some of its most interesting incidents in the daily routine of farm life. The story is well written, the characters are well drawn, and racy sketches of rural life are pleasantly interwoven with the action of the narrative. The charm of the book consists in the skill with which every-day life is made to yield material for a strikingly exciting and eventful romance, that commands untiring attention through all its details, as well as admiration for the ingenuity evinced in the delineation of the numerous characters figuring in its pages." — Boston Transcript.

NOTES IN SEASON.

ROBERTS BROTHERS send out this week quite an armful of new books and new editions, including "Happy Thoughts" Burnand's humorous story of a trip "To Buddlecombe and Back," twelve chapters of laughable enjoyment for fifty cents; "Mountains," a satchel volume containing most of the poems worth reading about mountains, and therefore a capital summer book; and Drake's "Old Landmark" volumes about Boston and Middlesex; at reduced rates that in these days, when American history is at a premium, ought to put them in all libraries, public and private. Miss Alcott's new book, "Silver Pitchers," which contains a Centennial love-story entitled "Independence;" Miss Susan Coolidge's promising volume, "For Summer Afternoons;" and the new, cheaper edition of Lear's "Nonsense Book," are positively to be ready June first.

OSGOOD'S "White Mountain" Guide-Book will be ready next week. Mr. Sweetser, author of the three previously published volumes of Osgood's Guide-Books, spent last Summer and Autumn in making an exhaustive survey of the entire White and Franconia Mountain region, ascending every mountain, and gaining every item of information that could be of use or interest to tourists in the "Switzerland of America." His book is beyond comparison the fullest and best ever prepared of this popular summer resort, and has not only maps to aid travellers, but several panoramas drawn with great skill and care, giving comprehensive views of the "mountain billows" from different stand-points. The book will be well-nigh indispensable to all intelligent visitors to the White Mountains.

S. C. GRIGGS & Co., Chicago, will publish at once Dr. Mathews' new book about Words. The subject of the book is such as Dr. Mathews' popular style is likely to make widely interesting, and the publishers have taken pains that the paper and typography shall compare favorably with the books of eastern publishers. Over 30,000 volumes of Dr. Mathews' previous books have already been sold, and they are still among the most salable books in the market. Cone's "California" and Jonas Lee's novel of "The Pilot and His Wife" will be ready next week.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co. will shortly publish the new story of Mrs. E. Lynn Linton, "The Atonement of Leon Dundas," which has been running through Lippincott's Magazine. Mrs. Linton is one of the most vigorous and generous writers of the day, and this tale has generally been received as one of the strongest things she has written. She is placed by some critics in the next rank to George Eliot.

MESSRS. HURD & HOUGHTON are pushing through, for early issue, Mr. H. E. Scudder's novel called "The Dwellers in the Five-Sisters' Court." The scene is laid in one of Boston's queer corners, and is said to possess both local and general interest. It is the first grown-up work of any length that Mr. Scudder has written, but his style is so charming and his workmanship so good that his novel may be looked forward to as a real addition to American fiction. The work on "The Two Chancellors," the most important contribution to recent political literature, will also be ready shortly.

R. CARTER & BRO. are only waiting for the illustrations to issue the new story by Mrs. Charlesworth, author of "Ministering Children," which is called "Oliver of the Mill." It is a story of older life, the sunset days, full of that lovely Christian experience of which Mrs. Charlesworth writes so helpfully.

LOCKWOOD, BROOKS & Co. have now ready Mr. Gladden's thoughtful and important book on "Working People and their Employers," and the orthodox minister's weighty discussion of the ever-timely question, "Is Future Punishment Endless?"

SHELDON & Co. will have ready at once Mr. Spurgeon's book on "Commenting and Commentaries," with his sermon on eccentric preachers, and the text index to his sermons; also the little book, by Rev. Dr. Mell, on "Prayer," in which he opposes the criticisms of the scientists.

THE trade edition of Cozzens' "Marvellous Country" will be issued very soon by Lee & Shepard. Its numerous illustrations, added to the glowing letter-press, give a vivid impression of scenery and wild life in Arizona and New Mexico.

THE AWARDS AT PHILADELPHIA.

THE question of how the awards will be made by the jurors at the Exhibition in regard to books is assuming considerable interest in the trade, and the great body of publishers object strenuously to the adoption of the provision which limited the awards at Paris and at Vienna to those publishers who manufacture their own books. Such a rule would certainly place the large majority of American publishers at a considerable disadvantage. The names of publishers manufacturing their own books, and who are likely in any way to compete for the award, can almost be counted on the fingers; aside from the Harper, Appleton, Lippincott, and Houghton houses, and the great religious organizations, like the American Tract Society, there are scarcely any who can claim to do all their own work. There are, of course, evident reasons in favor of such a rule; yet there is a great deal to be said on the other side. We suppose a discussion in the trade would have some influence in determining the jurors as to which is the proper method, and we therefore open the way for such a discussion.

It should be noted that in other departments, such as jewelry, exhibitors are actually displaying goods which they do not manufacture at all—a feature which has met with decided and perhaps justifiable criticism. But this is not the case of the publisher. The publishing of a book is an indefinite process which consists essentially not in the actual manufacturing, but in the decisions as to how the book shall be manufactured and put on the market. It is this which really constitutes publishing, even in houses which are themselves manufacturers. The selection of type, style of page, paper, etc., the arrangement of the title-page, the style of binding and stamping, and so on—all these are a part of the publishing proper, and the actual work of type-setting, press-work, binding, etc., are in this sense not publishing at all. A house which uses the presses, bindery, etc., of special printers and binders is really entitled to as much credit for a successful book as the house which may have these departments under its direct control; and frequently the former are for these very reasons more careful about the actual work of publishing, and put more thought and time into it than the house where the organization is complete and every thing goes as a matter of course.

In other words, a publisher should not be ruled out or put at disadvantage in the awards at Philadelphia because he is not also a printer and a binder. We know that some of the exhibiting houses have entered their exhibits for competition as manufacturers, others as publishers. If there are to be two sets of awards, well and good; it is even possible that one house might prove its right to both. But the two should not be confused to the disadvantage of those who are publishers only, yet who are entitled to quite as much credit for the appearance of their books as those who are also manufacturers. This is the view of those houses who do not manufacture, and they constitute, as we have said, a large majority of the trade. It seems to us that they have the right on their side, and they may certainly demand that the question should at least receive full and fair consideration.

BUT now comes up another interesting question, Upon what elements should an award for publishing be based? This is difficult to answer, but we may point out that there are two general classes, the mechanical and the literary. One publisher may issue good books in poor shape, another may issue poor books in good shape. A first award, we should say, should require both qualities of excellence, that the publisher's list should be superior, in its literary and educational relations, and that his books should be beautiful and durable.

Doubtless, all these points will be considered in the awards, as these are to be based on individual and discriminative reports, instead of meaningless notes. These reports should be among the most valuable results of the Exhibition, and we trust they may, in the book department, be so well considered as to prove of real service in pointing out the defects as well as the merits of American publishing.

AN enterprising newsdealer in Detroit has declared war upon certain periodical publishers whom he characterizes as monopolists, naming particularly Robert Bonner and Frank Leslie. Mr. Roys' claim is that the publishers named are promoting a system of exclusive agencies which give them prohibitive control of their goods through the country, to the disadvantage of the newsdealers in general. We hear as yet only one side of the case, which is one of which it is difficult to judge except from both sides. If these publishers are doing as Mr. Roys says, whether because it is their policy or because they can not help themselves, there is likely to be a lively revolt, and Mr. Roys' pluck will doubtless tell in the right direction. The trade will probably hear more of it.

It is not only American publishers, we may point out to "Subscriber," who are not as frank as they might be in reissuing old books. In the last London weeklies we find an advertisement: "Now at all the Libraries. Israel Mort, Overman, 3 vols., cr. 8°, 31s. 3d.," signed by a prominent London publisher. The inference is that the book is new; as a matter of fact, it is several years old, republished by the Lippincotts, in 1872, at $1.25. Two wrongs do not make a right, and the practice is bad, but it is not a peculiarly American vice.

There is one contrary particular in which, we presume, the trade would be glad to see imitation of our English brethren. The Academy publishes the following yearly subscription schedule:

If obtained of a Newsvendor or at a Railway Station.....	0	13	0
Including Postage to any part of the United Kingdom.....	0	15	2

Publishers of periodicals may make a note of this.

THE PRIZE QUESTION ON THE MOST IMPERFECT TRADE-LISTS.

WE present herewith, with some hesitancy; the results of Prize Question No. 8 as to which are the most unsystematic, and therefore most unprofitable trade-lists, both for publishers and booksellers. We suppose it will not be pleasant to any publisher to find himself catalogued in this list, and yet we feel that he will ultimately acknowledge that the WEEKLY has done him real service in calling attention to defects in his catalogue which definitely injure his sales. We believe that frankness in such cases is the best policy, and we take it for granted that no publisher will be so morbidly sensitive as to object to these well-meant and feeling criticisms from the trade on his publications. We know that a revision of these catalogues, and of others which are only less imperfect, will not only be received with great satisfaction by the trade, but will be of definite profit to the publishers; and it is in the hope of bringing about this desirable result that we give these critics full liberty of utterance.

Of course, as was to be expected, the number of competitors diminished, as it is an easier and more pleasant task to express satisfaction than to find fault, a feeling which, in this case, we can fully appreciate. The number of competitors was 14, as per following list:—

LIST OF COMPETITORS.

Arnold, W. H., with Flagler & Merritt, Poughkeepsie.
 Bebian, Joseph, with C. T. Dillingham, New-York.
 Dietsch, Lewis C., with Turnbull Bros., Baltimore.

 Wirth, Wm., with Dodd, Mead & Co., New-York.
 Wynkoop, James, with R. G. Wynkoop & Co., Syracuse.

The following is the list by popular vote:—

One of the competitors (d) "giving it up," the total vote received is 65, the highest possible count 41. The winner of the prize is Mr. Jas. S. Wynkoop, counting 41. The next are those of Mr. Wm. Wirth and Mr. Jos. A. Shaw, both counting 40. The lowest count of the thirteen was 25. Special mention should be made of the pains taken by Mr. Lewis C. Dietsch in trying to show "how unprofitable such catalogues are to both bookseller and publisher."

On one point all seem to agree, and it is to be hoped that publishers, in their own interest, will recognize the importance of this unanimous demand—that, no matter whether the body of the catalogue be classified or promiscuously printed, there should be appended, at least, an index in one alphabet by authors and titles, with either reference to page or price, or both.

This is easy work, and can be done in so compact a form that it will add very little to the expense, but a great deal to the value of the list. The result will pay tenfold by the securing of the orders now lost every day from oversight or lack of time for hunting over a whole catalogue, or impatience on the part of the customer.

We give next the remarks upon the catalogues, concealing, as we did before, the writers by letters; the figure in parenthesis indicates the place given, by the competitor cited, to the catalogue in question.

T. B. PETERSON & BROS.

a (4). It would be an excellent idea for the publishers to destroy all their present lists and issue a new and revised one, alphabetically arranged. As there is a good deal of reference made to this catalogue, and there is no classification at present, I think it would pay them. There are enough books published by Peterson to make a very creditable catalogue. One great fault is that it is too much crowded ; it should be spread more.

b (1). We must certainly put this catalogue first ; while it contains some good books, yet you are compelled to waste time in finding them. There seems to have been no arrangement whatever in the get-up of the list, and you are left to yourself, without any help whatever, in searching through the entire list before you find what is wanted. A very imperfect list.

c (4). Has Mrs. Southworth's works all together, as well as those of Mrs. Stephens and a few others ; but even these are lost to the trade unless the titles of all their writings are known. Otherwise there is no arrangement at all. [See also "General Remarks," c.]

f (1). This list is without doubt the worst in the trade. It is not arranged alphabetically, either as to name of author or title of book, and in some cases the prices are not given. If you wish to find a certain book or the price, you are obliged to look through the whole list, and probably go over the ground a second time, as some parts of the catalogue are quite illegible. The general appearance of the catalogue is not very good for a house of their standing in the trade. [See also remarks on Carleton's List.]

g (3). These publications are almost wholly novels. A simple alphabetical arrangement would make it easy to find any book in the list. In the present arrangement particular pains are taken to mix them up as much as possible, so making a great deal of unnecessary trouble. The pages should be numbered on the outside corners.

h (2). See "General Remarks," h.

i (1). Poorly printed. Authors and titles in too small type. No alphabetical arrangement either by title or author, and no index.

k (1). Furnishes the best and the poorest catalogue. Peterson's could hardly be made poorer. The print is abominable, and there is an utter want of alphabetical arrangement. It has only one approach to goodness in the arrangement by authors of some of the books. [See also "General Remarks," k.]

l (3). Is the most unsystematic catalogue in the trade. In some parts of it the authors are classified ; in other parts there is a general mix-up of authors. It is not gotten up in nice style. A catalogue of this class of books should be arranged alphabetically. Paper and type are very poor.

m (1). As regards Peterson's, we have to say of it that there is manifest a want of any kind of system. It appears as if separate slips had been printed and then indiscriminately put together, and, as a further oddity, it is paged at the top in an unusual place on the inside, near where the leaves are sewed together. The lack of classification, alphabetical arrangement of books either by author's name or title of work, is apparent, and prices sometimes being given at the top and again at the bottom of a list on a page ; and now at the end of title we have price of paper copy first and then of cloth copy first—all of which irregularity makes it a very unsatisfactory catalogue to consult. In doing so, let us hope the exercise of much time and patience is profitable to those who take the trouble, and where there are those who will not undergo tribulation, it must prove unprofitable to publishers. [See also "General Remarks," m.] n (4). This has a small attempt at classification in bringing the books of the principal authors together ; but it is still very "blind."

o (1). "It speaks for itself." Almost impossible to find a work in it, even if you know the name and author.

AMERICAN SUNDAY-SCHOOL UNION.

a (2). The only arrangement about this list is the prices, which commence by so many books at 10 cents, for instance, and go from that up to the highest-priced book they make. This will also stand a complete reform. [See also remarks on National Temperance Society.]

b (2). The books in this catalogue are numbered from 801 to 2776, although the books are arranged according to the prices, yet it is a very unhandy list to consult. Even if you know the price of a book wanted, it takes a long while before you find it. We think if the list were arranged alphabetically, according to titles, it would be much improved.

c (3). 1st. See remarks on Porter & Coates under this head. 2d. The books are arranged according to prices, which is a very great inconvenience. 3d. There is no index. [See also "General Remarks," c.]

c (3). Has no arrangement except according to price. Seems to be intended more for the convenience of Sunday-school committees than for that of booksellers. Has the advantage of full titles [this remark does not apply to the list in the T. L. A.], which is a great help to committees, but not to booksellers. I think it would help both booksellers and committees to have one alphabet, and the books under each letter arranged according to price. [See also "General Remarks," c.] f (3). See "General Remarks," f.

g (1). In looking over the ANNUAL, in the American Sunday-School Union I can find no system at all, except that the books are arranged according to prices. This may be convenient if one wished to select a number of books at a certain price ; but the whole arrangement is entirely impracticable and almost useless for a reference catalogue. If I want to find a book that is on the twenty-second page, and don't know the price, I must wade through twenty-two pages, which would take long enough to tire most customers, besides wasting much valuable time. The style is not attractive : the titles in the first part have too large type, while in the last part there are three columns, the rest having two.

h (3). See "General Remarks," h.

l (1). This and the Presbyterian Board of Publication would save a great deal of time if they were arranged alphabetically or according to author. People that generally buy Sunday-school books in nine cases out of ten generally have their favorite authors ; consequently there is no end of trouble in finding the books they want, which would be avoided if so arranged. Paper is very good ; so is the type.

m (5). Instead of having library books arranged according to numbers, ought to have them in alphabetical order, and give number after title, thus: Abijah, 817 ; cloth. Burden Bearing, 2017 ; cloth, 60 cents. Charlie But, 1856 ; cloth, 60 cents. This might interfere with the division of books under the heads of different prices ; but as it is not the price, and is the name of author or title of book we want to find first, it would be all the better for our purpose. The other parts of the catalogue, like Juvenile Library, No. 1 and 2, etc., to be arranged in the same way, and in two instead of three columns. [See also "General Remarks," m.]

n (3). Only being classified by prices, this is only a shade less bad than the others. [See also remarks on Presbyterian Board of Publication, and Nelson & Phillips.]

o (2). Books arranged only according to prices, so that if you do not know the price of the work you want, it will be necessary to hunt the whole list through to find it. Should be arranged alphabetically.

PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

a (3). Same as American Sunday-School Union. [See above]

c (1). Has no pretence of any kind of arrangement, except, apparently, the order of publication. In very few instances is the name of the author given, and when it is given, it is in the same type as the title of the book. [See also "General Remarks," c.]

f (5). See "General Remarks," f.

g (4). This might be a convenient list if one knew the number of the book he was looking for, or had an alphabetical list to find out by.

n (1). Has no classification at all, being arranged only by number, apparently in order of publication. I am thankful I seldom have calls for their books.

o (4). Their catalogue in the ANNUAL is arranged only in numerical order according to the number of the book, giving neither author nor size.

G. W. CARLETON & CO.

a (5). If this were as large as Peterson's it would have the same faults. It certainly needs revision.

f (2). This list is somewhat similar to Peterson's in regard to arrangement; the only difference is that the prices are annexed to each book, which is not the case with Peterson's. These lists would be greatly improved if the titles were not so crowded, and also if they were printed in large type and little better paper used.

i (2). Same trouble [as Peterson's], except author's names little more prominent, and all the works of an author under that author's name.

k (5). Is similar to Loring's, etc. [See also "General Remarks," k.]

m (4). Is a queer one. Some works are grouped together under authors' names as a heading, and some are put under "Miscellaneous," and under this list heading we find, instead of giving name of author first, to wit, Walworth, J. E. Cooke, etc., the title of work is given, which is confusing. Using larger type, or so arranging as to fill up the octavo sheet, and classifying catalogue, titles alphabetically arranged according to authors' names, would be an advantage to consulters, and, we have no doubt, also pecuniarily an advantage to publishers. [See also "General Remarks," m.] o (3). Part of this list is arranged by authors, and a part not; none of them having any description as to size or contents.

ROBERT M. DE WITT.

g (2). This list is another quite as bad [as the Am. Sunday-School Union's], having more the appearance of a show-bill than a catalogue of books. The system of prices used by the Sunday-School Union is partially carried out. There is too much space taken up, too much explanation to the titles, and too great a display of different kinds of type. Pages should be numbered at the top.

h (4). [See "General Remarks," h.]

m (2). Is not paged, wants a classification and alphabetical arrangement. While title proper is printed in large print, it would be an advantage to have the prices at end of the title, and not after the contents or notices of books. [See also "General Remarks," m.]

o (5). Not arranged according to subjects, alphabetically, or by authors.

DICK & FITZGERALD.

c (4). This list is lacking in the same particulars as Porter & Coates'. [See also "General Remarks," c.]

i (3). Same as Peterson's, but better printed, larger type, can find more easily, only no arrangement. Too much time to hunt: can hardly tell where to find any thing.

k (3). The only thing to be said for it is that it has a division of works under subjects. [See also "General Remarks," k.]

l (4). This and De Witt's catalogues are arranged according to subject, but they have no index or alphabetically arranged list of books published by them which would enable a person to find certain books more readily than by the present system. I think that a catalogue always looks neat when it is arranged alphabetically, and it also saves a great deal of time and trouble. It is a great mistake that publishers make not to arrange alphabetically.

n (5). This has a slight classification by subjects, but is very difficult to use.

PORTER & COATES.

b (3). This is a classified catalogue, and it is not arranged alphabetically. If the books under each head were arranged properly it would be a great convenience. It has no index.

c (1). 1st. Not alphabetically arranged according to (a) authors nor (b) titles. 2d. Although classified, the works under the different heads are very poorly arranged, and in no kind of order. 3d. There is no index. 4th. In order to find a book expeditiously, you are compelled to seek your information through the excellent General Index in the ANNUAL. [See also "General Remarks," c.]

e (5). Is arranged under different heads, but they are not systematized at all. One has to look almost through the catalogue before the object of the search is reached.

g (5). Has too much classification. Who would imagine that he must look for "Practical," and there under three further generalizing sub-headings, to find Cookery, Ready Reckoner, Law, Etiquette, etc.? Poets are divided into four classes, according to size, also may be found among "Standard and Miscellaneous." The name of the author and full title of book is all that is necessary for the lists contained in the ANNUAL.

i (4). Vastly better type and printing [than in Peterson's], yet not alphabetically arranged by authors or title; classified, yet with no alphabetical regard to subjects, and still without index.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Catholic Publication Society:—e (2). Has no arrangement whatever. However, has the advantage of the author's name in several cases. [See also "General Remarks," e]. k (2). May almost be said to be void of arrangement. Except in typography it does not improve upon Peterson's. [See also "General Remarks," k].

Claxton, Remsen, & Haffelfinger:—i (5). Is better [than Porter & Coates']. The one essential thing lacking is a full index properly arranged, and by properly we mean alphabetically from A to Z. We fail to appreciate a classified index.

Estes & Lauriat:—c (5). This list is lacking in the same particulars as Porter & Coates. [See P. & C., also "General Remarks," c].

m (3). We say singularly arranged, peculiar classification, requiring amendment. It begins with History, next Globe Edition of Poets, then History, Historical Biography, etc. Under "Miscellaneous" heading, at end of catalogue, we notice "Mind and Words of Jesus," by Macduff, which should have been under the "Religious" heading. Besides not being paged, prices are added directly after description of book, which is not as distinct as if extended at end. To instance in one way in which the catalogue may be unprofitable to them: by referring to Macduff in Index of ANNUAL, we do not find their catalogue referred to for the book mentioned, but Carter's, who also publish it. [See also "General Remarks," m].

Henry Hoyt:—b (5). Part of this catalogue is arranged alphabetically. The books advertised as just issued are put in the catalogue any way, and it makes a person lose valuable time in finding what is wanted. It contains no index whatever.

A. K. Loring:—c (2). This list, although supposed to be arranged according to author's name, is not in alphabetical order, and is, therefore, quite impracticable. It has no index. [See also "General Remarks," c]. k (4). Has a division by authors. The print is better than many others, but might be greatly improved. [See also "General Remarks," k].

McLoughlin Brothers:—[See "General Remarks," h].

National Temperance Society:—a (1). There are no good points about this catalogue whatever. If a price is wanted in the list, you have to commence at the beginning and go all through it. This list ought to be thoroughly revised and arranged, alphabetically at least. f (4). [See "General Remarks," f].

Nelson & Philips:—n (2). This has the theological books arranged by title, but the Sunday-school division is as bad as the Presb. Bd. list.

Chas. P. Somerby:—b (4). There seems to have been very little care taken with this catalogue when it was published. Although a small list, yet it should receive some attention. It is very convenient in its present shape.

GENERAL REMARKS.

a. It is rather a more difficult thing to get a good list of bad names than there was of good ones, as the former exceed the latter so much, and I have picked these few out as being some of the worst. There seems to be an idea going round that these Prize Questions will be the means of getting for us (the book clerks) something better in the way of Trade-List Catalogues, and I hope that such will be the case.

c. In the TRADE-LIST ANNUAL I have noticed a goodly number of very unsystematic lists. Setting aside the host of minor catalogues which are generally not only poorly arranged, but wretchedly printed, I would place as the most unprofitable lists to the trade: 1st, Porter & Coates; 2d, A. K. Loring; 3d, Am. Sunday-School Union; 4th, Dick & Fitzgerald; 5th, Estes & Lauriat. I have placed these, as I believe, in the order of their importance, and not altogether as to their comparative lack of system; for is not the most unprofitable list that one, badly arranged, of which a bookseller makes the most frequent use?

d. I give it up—this list of the five worst Trade Lists—because four of the great Sunday-school publishing houses—namely, American Sunday-School Union, National Temperance Society, Presbyterian Board of Publication, and Presbyterian Committee of Publication—also eight of the shorter lists—namely, Authors' Publication Society, Claremont Manufacturing Company, E. Cumiskey, E. J. Hale & Son, J. S. Locke & Co., Moss & Co., A. H. Pounsford & Co., and N. Tibbals & Co.—also two great Catholic houses—namely, Murphy & Co. and Catholic Publication Society—all have no alphabetical arrangement whatever. Then there is J. E. Potter & Co., whose list has apparently been prepared with two objects in view—namely, to fill as many pages as possible, and to be arranged so that nobody can find any thing in it. It is a complete success in both respects, yet has never appeared in the TRADE ANNUAL, and is even ignored in its list of non-contributors.

Now, seriously, all of the above are consulted comparatively little by the ordinary bookseller, I suppose. They are undoubtedly the worst catalogues, but are not the most serious offenders, and (I offer this as a suggestion) should you decide to exclude them on the same ground that you did Dickens' works, etc., in previous Prize Question—namely, that reputation is too well established—you will then leave us ten or more annoyingly arranged but prominent lists which, because they are constantly referred to, are therefore the cause of vastly more anguish than the foregoing, and, it seems to me, deserve to be allowed every possible facility for receiving the criticisms of the trade.

e. In submitting list in answer to "Prize Question No. 8," I have selected those lists over which I have had most trouble in finding prices and titles. I have confined myself to those lists in the ANNUAL, as I understand the question applied only to them. There are other catalogues in the ANNUAL which are not arranged systematically, among which I might mention R. M. De Witt, Dick & Fitzgerald, Estes & Lauriat, Milton Bradley & Co., McLoughlin Bros. However, as the last three mentioned hardly can be called regular book catalogues, I will say nothing about them here. Of the others, Dick & Fitzgerald being specially in a certain line, and having uniform prices for so many of their books, it is comparatively easy to learn their prices. The other two I have very little occasion to use, except for Paper Novels, which have the prices printed on them in most cases. However, they are all badly arranged lists.

f. The American Sunday-School Union, National Temperance Society, and Presbyterian Board of Publication are three of the leading Sunday-school publishing houses in the trade, but their lists are utterly devoid of any systematic arrangement whatever. It would be admissible for them to have at least the titles of books arranged alphabetically so that the prices could be found easily. American Sunday-School Union's list is admirably arranged for those ordering Sunday-school libraries, as it is classified according to prices.

g. Question 8 is a difficult one to answer. If there were to be ten or fifteen instead of five, my answer would be more satisfactory to myself, at least. . . . Would like to have included many other lists, such as American News Company, Catholic Publication Society, G. W. Carleton & Co., Robert Clarke, Dick & Fitzgerald, Estes & Lauriat, Hoyt, and Lothrop's side-saddle lists, the latter without paging, etc. But I have trespassed too much on our valuable time.

h. The following are contributed by me, as the five poorest catalogues to find any thing in: No. 1, McLoughlin Bros.; No. 2, Peterson & Bros.; No. 3, American Sunday-School Union; No. 4, De Witt; No. 5, Murphy. No. 1 is the worst of any catalogue published; then comes No. 2, which is about as poor, to tell the truth. I have done more cursing over these two catalogues in trying to find the prices of different books and "Games" than over all the other lists put together.

i. I enclose the above list for Prize Question No. 8, and if by this means the several publishers may be induced to arrange their several lists, I think all will feel amply repaid.

k. The whole five lists are radically bad, and the sorrowful thing is that it might be increased five-fold without being much improved in quality. All Sunday-school lists are omitted, as the arrangement (certainly not the best for the bookseller) may be the best for the publisher, the ordinary buyer of these publications being generally governed more by price than any thing else.

m. In selecting these catalogues, you will find that while they are all alike in regard to answering the question, they are yet in their general make-up dissimilar, but each representative of a certain class of defective catalogues.

. . . To sum up: "Time is money." In consulting these poor catalogues we have to use considerable of it in finding what we want, and sometimes don't find it. Meanwhile the customer "can't wait" until you do, and leaves, remarking, "Never mind." You can see how unprofitable such catalogues are to both bookseller and publisher.

If a customer is given a catalogue arranged according to a system, so that he can see at a glance that it will be of service to him, he is apt to preserve it for reference, that he may at any time procure what he wants. It is not likely that he would keep unsystematic ones; so you will see again how such catalogues are unprofitable to booksellers and publishers.

Again, a customer wants a cheap or the best edition of a particular work, whilst often, thanks to your good memory, you know readily where to find it in a catalogue; yet if occasionally your memory don't serve you, and on consulting the Index in the ANNUAL you find that the failure of the publisher to page his catalogue has been one of the causes of its being there overlooked, so that you don't find the book, you nonplus your customer. And as you get no order on that account, you are yourself, and the publisher likewise, nonplussed. So once more the poor catalogue has proved unprofitable to all parties.

We hope that the result of your Prize Questions 6 and 8 will be the improvement of all unsystematic catalogues, and that in the next TRADE-LIST ANNUAL all the catalogues, besides being published of a uniform size, will present some uniformity of system.

n. I was very much surprised at Appleton's and Macmillan's lists getting so many votes, as I find them very annoying to use, there being no clue to a book unless one knows the author. I still stick to my original list.

CORRECTION.

THE great labor required for arriving at the count of the Prize Question in Novels, and the subsequent rush to the press at the eleventh hour, caused the following annoying errors, which can not be passed without publishing correction. The count of Mr. C. E. Cunningham, winner of the second prize, should read 895, not, as misprinted, 859; Harland's "From my Youth up," given twice, counting in one place 4, in the other 2, should, of course, have been given as counting 6. As the work did not appear on any of the lists recorded, the count given remains the same.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

THE PLEASURES OF ANGLING, by George Dawson. (Sheldon & Co.) According to old Isaak Walton, "no life so happy and so pleasant as the life of a well-governed angler;" and to read of its enjoyments, as one may in the charming volume before us, it does indeed seem to be an ideal existence. One gains from the description herein of the pastime in many waters, and the abundance of personal experiences, a sense of calm pleasure and amusement, and an appreciation of the woods and streams that is very delightful. The sketches which make up this volume were first published in the Albany Evening Journal, and were read by many who keenly enjoyed them, both for their evidence of culture, and for their love of sport. The prowess of a number of noted anglers, men well known in public and private life, is written of in detail. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

THE POETICAL WORKS OF ALFRED TENNYSON. (James R. Osgood & Co.) This edition, the "Centennial," contains every thing that Tennyson has ever published—all the poems which appear in his collected works, his "Queen Mary," and a number of short poems that appeared in former editions, but which have been omitted in later ones. The edition is a very attractive one for the price, is really very well illustrated, and altogether very well gotten up. 8vo, paper, $1.

CARMINA PRINCETONIA. (Martin R. Dennis.) In this the third edition of the songs of Princeton College, every thing has been inserted that is new and in favor with the students, while many old songs that are no longer sung or cared for by them, have been left out. The volume is very nicely and compactly gotten up, the music accompanying the songs throughout. 8vo, cloth, $1.50.

THE CONDUCT OF LIFE AND SOCIETY AND SOLITUDE, by Ralph Waldo Emerson. (James R. Osgood & Co.) Two volumes of Emerson's well-known essays, in the pretty red-edged sixteen mo edition. The Osgoods are issuing his works complete. $1.50 per volume.

BROOM-CORN AND BROOMS. (Orange Judd Co.) A little treatise on the culture of broom-corn and the making of brooms, containing an epitome of all that can be said on the subject, having been compiled from articles in the American Agriculturist. Practical and full of useful suggestions. 12mo, cloth, 75 c.; paper, 50 c.

THE MIDDLE STATES. (James R. Osgood & Co.) This is a Centennial edition of one of Osgood's well-known handbooks for travellers; the plan of it, based upon Baedeker's celebrated European handbooks, has been noticed by us before. The present edition differs from former ones by an addition of sixteen pages and a map relative to the great Exhibition. 16mo, cloth, $2.00.

EPOCHS OF MODERN HISTORY, edited by Edward E. Morris, M. A., and J. Surtees Phillpotts. — THE FALL OF THE STUARTS, by Rev. E. Hale. (Scribner, Armstrong & Co.) This is merely an outline of one of the great epochs of English history, intended to be filled in and supplemented by reference to larger and more expansive works. Such as it is, however, it will assist the student wonderfully in his studies, as it gives him a key, as it were, to all the situations, and within a small space all the salient points of the history of Western Europe from 1678 to 1697. 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

FORTY YEARS' MISSION WORK IN POLYNESIA AND NEW-GUINEA, by the Rev. N. W. Murray. (Robert Carter & Brothers.) The years from 1835 to 1875 are embraced within the present record of mission work. It is a volume full of interest, describing minutely the personal experience of one who is a veteran in mission work. Rev. N. W. Murray belongs to the London Missionary Society, and has been a lifelong worker in this field. This book offers a world of valuable suggestions and information to young students who are desirous of venturing into the noble but arduous undertaking of preaching the word of God to the heathen. Besides the direct information relative to the successes of the missions, the work contains very interesting descriptions relative to the characteristics and ways of living of the people of the country. 12mo, cloth, $2.50.

REAL LIFE, by Madame Mathilde Froment, translated from the French by Miss Newlin. (Kelly, Piet & Co.) In the form of a diary this work gives the history of the sorrows and struggles and little daily trials of a young lady from her wedding day till she is quite an old married woman, surrounded by her children. It attempts to picture life just as it is both at home and in society, and succeeds in giving a very faithful and interesting portraiture of the interior of a French Catholic family. It offers assistance to those young in life or in sorrow, by its numerous wise counsels and pious reflections. It is very charmingly written, the story being quite natural, and the style full of grace and tenderness. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

We have received from Kelly, Piet & Co. three little books of a religious nature intended for young readers: "The Queen of Hungary," 50 cents; "The Matron of Israel," 50 cents; and "The Lily of Portugal," 60 cents. Also a little volume of prayers, "Meditations and Considerations for a Retreat of one Day in each Month," 60 cents.

LAWS RELATING TO RELIGIOUS CORPORATIONS, by Rev. Sanford Hunt, D.D. (Nelson & Phillips.) This book is not designed for lawyers or courts of justice. It is intended for laymen having the custody of church property, and gives in a condensed form such statutes now in force, which it is advisable trustees of churches and camp-grounds should know of for the security of property and the maintenance of order. It also presents an address on "Laws affecting Religious Corporations in the State of New-York," by Hon. E. L. Fancher, LL.D., remarkably clear and able, and very rich in practical suggestions. 12mo, sheep, $1.50.

THE SILENT HOUSE, by E. P. Tenney. (Congregational Publication Society.) This volume embraces five meditations upon the subject of death, and is intended as a reminder to the living, and as a little manual of consolation to be used at the bedside of the dying. The essays are named: "Building in the Dust," "Near Home," "The Dark Days," "Searching for the Light," "The Light." 12mo, cloth, red edges, $1.

OUR WORK AND OUR BLESSINGS, by Frances Ridley Havergal. (A. D. F. Randolph & Co.) A little volume containing a very beautiful collection of verses, all manifesting a strong religious tendency in their choice of subjects; $1. Also two little pamphlets from the same publishers, "Great Questions Answered," being two colloquies between D. L. Moody and W. S. Plumer, 5 cents, and "What is it to Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ?" by Rev. Marvin R. Vincent, D.D., 4 cents.

GOWAN'S BIBLIOTHECA AMERICANA. (J. Munsell.) This consists of five pamphlets of Gowan's Bibliotheca, formerly published separately, and now stitched together with a portrait and memoir of Mr. Gowan. The works are all reprints of rare old books and pamphlets relating to the early history of North America; they are: Denton's, Wooley's, and Miller's New-York; Budd's Pennsylvania and New Jersey; and Alsop's Maryland. Each book is reprinted accurately and carefully from the original text, with historical introductions and copious notes, etc., etc. 8vo, paper.

OBITUARY.

CHARLES DESILVER.

CHARLES DE SILVER died May 18th, aged sixty-one years. He was the senior member of the firm of Charles De Silver & Sons, publishers and booksellers, whose establishment was in Chestnut street, between Twelfth and Thirteenth.

Mr. De Silver was a member of a family which has been connected with the publication and sale of books in this city for nearly seventy years. The house was established by Robert De Silver and Thomas De Silver, booksellers and bookbinders, as early as 1812. These brothers were not in business together. Robert being established in Walnut street, between Fourth and Fifth, and Thomas in Market street, between Sixth and Seventh. Robert became well known in after years as publisher of the "City Directory." Various bookselling firms were connected with this family in after years, as, for instance, De Silver & Thomas, De Silver, Herst & Lindsay, Thomas Cowperthwait & Co., and Cowperthwait, De Silver & Butler—which firm was dissolved in 1855, Charles De Silver continuing the business alone until near the date of his death.

Charles De Silver was a son of Thomas De Silver, and was for many years in business as a merchant and publisher in Market street, between Sixth and Seventh. He subsequently removed his store to Chestnut street, between Seventh and Eighth, afterward to his late place of business, Chestnut street, near Thirteenth. Mr. De Silver was one of the pioneers of the book trade, and won for himself an enviable reputation by his courtesy and upright dealing. Having spent his life in Philadelphia, he was known to most of the citizens of the old school, and his demise will be regretted by a large circle of acquaintances, as well as the entire book trade.

The business will be continued by his two sons, Harry and Joseph T. De Silver, at 1420 Chestnut street, under the firm name of Charles De Silver & Sons.

T. B. PETERSON, JR.

MR. T. B. PETERSON, JR., the eldest son of Mr. T. B. Peterson, of the well-known publishing firm, died May 17th, 1876, aged twenty-four years. He seems to have been a young man of more than ordinary promise, and to have been loved by all who knew him. We can not better express the estimation in which he was held than by quoting the words of his friend, Mr. L. Clarke Davis, editor of the Philadelphia Inquirer:

"The uncertainty of life and the apparent cruelty of death never seemed more clearly shown than in the demise of Mr. Peterson, who only a year ago gave every evidence of living long, happily, and usefully. Large of stature, strong and peculiarly endowed with manly beauty, he seemed like a sentient image of health. He had a most keen enjoyment of life, for he was one of those sweet and gentle souls who attract quickly and hold strongly the affection of men and women. There was in his manner, face, and voice an ever frank and generous manliness which made people fond of him at once. He was one who might have lived a hundred years without making a single enemy among men who could honor worth and genuineness such as his. He made hosts of friends where others made but acquaintances, and none who ever knew him, no matter how slightly, but will deeply deplore his early death. He was one of those who should have died hereafter, for his mere presence in the world seemed to brighten and warm it, so bright and warm was his nature, so fine his manner, so pure and manly his daily life. It is not easy to believe that all that was mortal of it is ended; that we never shall see again in our walks about the streets, or in the houses that his presence gladdened, his frank, smiling face, nor hear again his voice, which was cheery and sincere always, denoting the rare sincerity of the man. But, living or dead, the love that he won will follow him, and in that better, fuller life to which he has gone so early, he will know that his memory is revered and kept green by hosts of loving friends. A very manly man, a very gentle gentleman was he, and, though dying so young, few men, even of far advanced age, will have more sincere regret given to their going home.

BUSINESS NOTES.

THE firm of S. C. Abbott & Co., booksellers, stationers, etc., Omaha, Neb., has been dissolved, John S. Caulfield having withdrawn.

MR. AMBLER, of the firm of Victor & Ambler, booksellers and stationers, Lynchburg, Va., has purchased his partner's interest, and will continue the business under the firm-name of John J. Ambler & Co.

A. W. LOVERING, of Boston, has left the marble-front store in which his gift enterprise was born and buried, and has opened a store in the rear of the archway under the Marlboro Hotel. We wonder if, under the prevalent fashion of the day, his credit is better than ever.

STATIONERY NOTES.

McLOUGHLIN BROS. are now putting up a new style of paper dolls called Centennial Belles. They are dressed in paper, imitation of silks, satins, and ornamental lace. They are put up in boxes of 12 kinds assorted, at 75 cents per dozen, and retail at 10 cents.

HENRY C. A. GIBBS, with Willy Wallach, New-York, has issued a circular to the trade stating that he will call early in the autumn as a representative of Willy Wallach. This circular Mr. Gibbs was compelled to issue on account of some jealous travellers spreading the report that he had again left Mr. Wallach's employ.

J. O. SMITH & SONS, 158 William street, N. Y., have just completed a sample jewel-box. It is a ten-inch banded tin box; the bands instead of being bronzed are gilded. It is lined inside with puffed satin; has a partition tray also lined with satin, and an extra lock. It will be found very useful, and will cost $12, net. They will be made only to order.

KOCH SONS & Co., New-York, have patented a new scrap-book with endless guards. The manufacturers claim for it great durability and neatness. They are manufacturing them very extensively. This firm are making very great improvements by building an extension to their already large building, which, when completed, will give them 110 x 25 feet in depth and six stories in height. The work is progressing rapidly.

MR. FRED HAFELEY, with Pott, Young & Co., has gone to Florida. He goes on account of ill health.

HAMBLIN & CELESTINE have opened a jobbing stationery business at No. 131 William street,

New-York. They are both energetic and hard-working young men, and have had considerable experience. Mr. Hamblin is from the house of Alexander Agar, Mr. Celestine from Henry Bainbridge & Co. We trust that they will meet with success in their new enterprise.

THE petition of Tuttle & Co., of Rutland, and others, for such legislation as will relieve them from injurious competition by the government in the manufacture and sale of envelopes, postal-cards, etc., was recently presented in the House of Representatives by Col. Joyce, the local representative, and was referred to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post Roads.

THE EDWARD IRISH FUND.

Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

The following-named gentlemen have contributed towards the fund raised for the benefit of the family of Edward Irish. The amount has not reached much over two hundred dollars, and although this has been of great assistance to the afflicted family, it was hoped by the originators of the fund that the stationery trade would have taken more interest in assisting the distressed, and contributed more liberally. However, I am authorized to thank the friends who have contributed, and to assure them that the kindness will never be forgotten.

Very Respectfully, C. S. Plummer.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

Dr. HAMMOND'S new book on "Spiritualism and allied Causes and Conditions of Nervous Derangement," with some illustrations, has just been published by G. P. Putnam's Sons. The book is an amplification of his previous smaller work on the subject, and is now a thorough review of the phenomena of spiritualism and religious ecstasy. The cases cited cover the entire ground of these manifestations, and Dr. Hammond shows that the most remarkable are produced without any claim of the interposition of supernatural forces. He does not in any way oppose science to religion, but his view is that he simply exposes the mistakes of those who take hysteria for religion. The same publishers have also nearly ready for issue the Japanese novel, previously mentioned.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will issue next the Earl of Albermarle's interesting "Reminiscences of Fifty Years of my Life;" a valuable work on practical botany, by Dr. Koehler, Professor of Botany in the College of Pharmacy, which gives a practical key to all the flowering plants of the eastern part of the United States, that will enable any novice to place any new specimen he may find; and many additions to the popular Leisure Hour Series, bringing the series up to the orthodox number of three score and ten volumes. Among them are: "John Brent," by Winthrop; "A Story of Three Sisters," by Maxwell; "Rejected Addresses," by H. and J. Smith; "Edwin Brothertoft," by Winthrop; "Ida Craven," by H. M. Cadell; "Canoe and Saddle," by Winthrop; "Giannetto," by Lady Margaret Majendie; "Life in the Open Air," by Winthrop.

THE second volume of the Sans Souci Series, "Men and Manners One Hundred Years Ago," compiled from many sources by Mr. Horace E. Scudder, is in advanced preparation. It will be especially timely.

J. R. OSGOOD & Co. will publish in June two additional volumes from Hawthorne's pen. One will contain "Fanshawe," the story Hawthorne published anonymously in 1832, and some short sketches; the other, the noble fragments of the "Dolliver Romance," and a large number of pieces never before collected. Many of these were ferreted out by the late Mr. Babson ("Tom Folio"), who had an unerring scent for any thing written by Hawthorne or Charles Lamb.

THE third and concluding volume of Vice-President Wilson's excellent "History of the Slave Power," which he had finished with the exception of three or four chapters, has been completed by Rev. Samuel Hunt, of Natick, and will probably be published by Osgood & Co. this summer. Mr. Hunt was Mr. Wilson's assistant in the preparation of the two volumes already issued, and had the great advantage of knowing precisely how Mr. Wilson wished the close of the story told.

"LANGE'S Commentary" and the "Speaker's Commentary" each advance a step at the Scribners'; the first by the issue of the volume covering Exodus and Numbers; the last by the publication of that including Ezekiel, Daniel, and the Minor Prophets. In the "Speaker's Commentary" the Old Testament portion is now complete in six volumes. In "Lange's Commentary" ten volumes complete the New Testament, nine have been issued in the Old Testament, and there remain five to complete the work.

HARPER & BROS. will publish next week, or soon after, several books of scholarly importance. Dr. Charles Rau's entertaining and informing papers in Harper's Magazine will be reprinted, in a handsome and finely illustrated volume, under the title of "Early Men in Europe;" there will be the promised two-volume edition of Prof. Draper's great book on the Intellectual Development of Europe, and Mr. Gladstone's work on Homeric Synchronisms.

G. W. CARLETON & Co. have just published "A Comic History of the United States," by Livingston Hopkins; a novel, said to be very clever, "Seen and Unseen," by a new author; a complete edition of the amusing works of "Josh Billings," and a new volume of the thrilling detective stories by Allan Pinkerton.

THE annual exodus of the publishers is commencing. Mr. James Robertson, of T. Nelson & Sons, and Mr. Frederick Macmillan sailed last Saturday for Europe. Mr. G. H. Putnam sails about the end of the month.

THE Catholic Publication Society are to publish shortly, by special permission of Cardinal Manning, The Glories of the Sacred Heart, by His Eminence Henry Edward, Cardinal Archbishop of Westminster.

LOUIS MEYER, music publisher, of 1413 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, is the fortunate publisher of the latest success in the popular song and chorus line. The name of the song is "Little Stars are Brightly Shining." Music by Von Thilo. This really pretty song, although but a few weeks out, has been sung in Philadelphia at six different places of amusement, among them the Chestnut-street Theatre, by Miss Lizzie Harold, in the play of Saratoga, and by Mr. Harley, at the Arch-street Opera-House. It was sung every evening for two weeks, receiving encores each time. This is a new departure for Mr. Meyer, who has mostly popularized music of a high standard. Yet even in his popular music he offers better than generally published, as the above song fully shows.

We learn that Fenimore in his "Centennial Hymn," published by the same house in his Centennial Music Collection, has struck the right note, and that it is gaining great popularity, particularly with the church-choirs and glee-clubs.

We have in pamphlet form the Eleventh Annual Report of the National Temperance Society, from which it appears that they have published during the past year fourteen books and a number of pamphlets, amounting to ten million pages, besides other periodicals and tracts. The receipts for books, tracts, etc., were $24,591.62, counting every thing. Sixty-two new publications have been issued during the year, making a total of 454 since the organization of the society. It is expected to issue next autumn the prize essays on temperance, of which the first, winning the $500 prize, was "Alcohol: What it is, and what it does," by William Hargreaves, M.D., of Philadelphia; and the second, winning $300, "Alcohol: Some new Points. A Sketch of its Scientific Features," by A. F. Kinne, M.D., of Ypsilanti, Michigan.

AN Albany paper says of the "Book Butcher:" "He buys entirely for cash, and through his keen sagacity he can scent out a distressed publisher, even though he were a thousand miles away." A Troy journal adds: "He has sold out almost his entire stock in Albany, and is now in the markets driving 'big jobs' for his Troy opening." Possibly other reasons for "ability to undersell" may be found before this gentleman's business career is finished, twenty cents on the dollar having been the usual rule. But how do the "distressed publishers," like their ticketing?

MARK TWAIN'S new book, "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," which Mr. Howells, in The Atlantic Monthly, classes with "School Days at Rugby," "Tom Brown at Oxford," and "The Story of a Bad Boy," will be issued as soon as simultaneous publication in London can be arranged.

WE have received from W. W. Whitney, Toledo, Ohio, three pieces of new music, entitled "Give Us Elbow-Room," song and chorus, by C. C. Case, 30 c.; "Sunny Day Polka," by F. Opel, 50 c.; and "Mountain Echoes Rondo," by Frank M. Davis, 30 c.

A NEW and important work entitled "Richard Wagner's Leben und Wirken," by Carl Fr. Gla-senapp, is announced for publication by Carl Maurer, of Cassel and Leipzig.

A CURRENT English weekly, Church Bells, qualifies its admiration of a recent edition of Shakespeare by the saving clause, "Supposing Shakespeare is decent reading for a Christian man, which we somewhat doubt."

A GERMAN biography of Ferdinand Freiligrath, by Dr. Schmidt-Weissenfels, is to appear shortly.

"CARMINA CLERICORUM" is the title of a collection of students' songs of the 12th and 13th centuries just published in Germany.

O. TH. WINKLER, Leipzig, has just issued the first part of a practical work on book-binding, entitled "Aus der Buchbinderwerkstatt" (from the book-binders' workshop).

THE third and last volume of Bougeault's "History of Foreign Literatures," embracing Italy, Spain, Portugal, and Greece, has just been published by E. Plon & Co., Paris. Price of the three volumes, 8vo, 15 fr.

THE "twelfth edition" has been published in London, of "A Treatise on Razors; in which the Weight, Shape, and Temper of a Razor, and the Manner of Using it, are particularly considered, and in which it is intended to convey a knowledge of all that is necessary on this subject. By Benjamin Kingsbury, Razor-Maker" ("to the Queen" seems to be omitted). It is announced that the first edition of this little work was commended by the Monthly Review for May, 1798, and that it is still "sold by the author," who must by these figures be easily a centenarian.

GLEANINGS FROM THE PRESS.

WE learn that, since the beginning of the new year, the flood of manuscripts offered for publication has greatly swelled in volume, so that publishers are almost overwhelmed by the rising literary tide, and reject the supplicating brain-children, wholesale and heartlessly. This sudden increase in literary activity is a legitimate result of these pinching times, when, among the thousands who enjoy a little literary culture, the cry goes up—

"Let those write now who never wrote before,
And those who always wrote now write the more;"

for a popular superstition prevails that writing books is a money-making operation. Let us try to dispel this error, and save many from vain labor by publishing the facts that the proportion of books accepted by publishers is not more than one in twenty-five of those offered; and that, of those which get into print, not one in ten pays the author laborer's wages. We know of one accomplished lady who, when her book had been on the market more than a year, received from her publisher, as her royalty, the sum of one dollar and a quarter. Never before, we may add, were the probabilities so adverse to the young aspirant to the honors of authorship. Publishers feel poor, and are loath to embark in new enterprises; the shoulders which they oppose to the importunate manuscript-vender exemplify an extreme arctic temperature. It is a bad year for books; and we can see no possible recourse for the great army of scribblers but the acquisition of sinecures under the coming administration, with which certain perquisites are agreeably connected.—Literary World.

COMMENDATIONS OF THE TRADE.

The attention of the trade is invited to the following extract from a private letter from Mr. Albert Eyrich, of New-Orleans:

"NEW-ORLEANS.

"... You should call the attention of Booksellers to the fact that by distributing the Literary World among their Readers, they will not only be doing a good turn to the Literary World (which it is their interest to sustain), but by so doing they will increase the sale of books.

"We think we have made at least one dollar on every copy so given away. We distributed twenty copies last month, and we think that as soon as our 'out-of-town' population returns, we shall try one hundred. We know we have sold books upon the strength of the Reviews in the paper, and are therefore benefited.

"If retailers over the country would try it, they will soon come to the same conclusion, viz.: that it pays."

"MACON, GEORGIA.

"S. R. CROCKER: Please send us regularly every month, fifty copies Literary World. We intend to give it to our customers.

Yours truly,

"J. W. BURKE & Co."

This unsolicited testimony as to the value of the Literary World to the retail book trade, is forcibly confirmed by the declaration of Messrs. J. M. Cooper & Co., of Savannah, Georgia, who have distributed eighty copies of each number of the paper among their customers, for six years, and have found this practice "the very best method of advertising" they have ever employed.

A salesman in one of the largest bookstores in New-York writes to us:

"There is no question but that it is the best paper of the kind published. I have the greatest confidence in recommending any book that it recommends. I have done so, and have had my recommendation verified by customers telling me of it. Thus a book clerk gets a reputation for his recommendations at a trifling expense and very little time, and which is of great value to him. The Literary World gives such a concise statement of the nature of the book, and such candid, unbiased criticisms, that the salesman has all the necessary information to speak intelligently of the books to be sold. Every person in the book business, whether proprietor or clerk, should consider it to be a duty to support such a valuable journal by subscribing for it."

Publishers' Trade-List Annual

For 1876.

THE TRADE-LIST ANNUAL for 1876 is intended to be of more importance and more permanence than any preceding volume, and is expected to be ready by the middle of July.

To the American Catalogue, now in advanced preparation, in two volumes, this will form a third or supplementary volume, which will be generally bound uniform with the others, and kept with them on the shelf as a permanent work of reference. The three volumes will enable the bookseller or bookbuyer to trace a book from any possible clew, by author, title, subject, or publisher. They will also make a complete record of American publications at the date of the centennial year, which will be generally sought by libraries, to the publishers' benefit.

As the American Catalogue will this year furnish a complete index in place of the imperfect one of last year, that feature will be replaced by others of equal and more permanent value. The chief feature of this volume will be a full analytical index to publishers' specialties, which will be of great assistance to the trade. We propose to present, also, a list of bibliographical and trade helps, a key to valuable addresses, and several like features that we are sure will be practically appreciated. But in recognition of the Centennial Exhibition, the most notable feature will be a detailed description, probably with maps and views, of the book exhibits from different countries—a record which, by its interest and instructive usefulness, would alone assure permanent value.

TERMS.

1. The price will be One Dollar per copy, bound in cloth. The price of the volume will be raised after close of subscription.
2. No single subscriptions can be taken into account that have not been paid up when the number of copies to be printed will be determined upon, as the small amounts will neither bear the trouble, nor the expense or risk, of numerous accounts, bills, statements, and subsequent collections.
3. Remittances should be made by money-order on New-York, or registered letter, as we can not be responsible for any losses. Receipt for remittance, with attached order for delivery, will be sent by return mail.

Booksellers, in their own interest, are requested to call the attention of librarians and large bookbuyers to the ANNUAL.

NEW BOOKS FOR SUMMER READING.

Will be Published Saturday, June 10 :

A Summer Book for Grown Folks, by the Author of "Hans Brinker."

THEOPHILUS AND OTHERS.

By MARY MAPES DODGE, author of "Hans Brinker," "Rhymes and Jingles," Editor of "St. Nicholas," etc. 1 vol., 12mo, $1.50.

Wit, wisdom, and fun alternate in the sketches and stories which are for the first time brought together in this volume. All of the papers included in it have survived the test of magazine mortality, and they are here preserved because the constant demand for some one or other of them proves that they have pricked a sham, exposed an abuse, or appealed to some pathetic or humorous sentiment, neither limited nor ephemeral. The book, although specially adapted for grown folks, will be enjoyed in an almost equal degree by young people, who will find in it some admirable material for evening readings.

Also Just Ready, by the same Author, a New and Superbly Illustrated Edition of HANS BRINKER ; or, The Silver Skates.

1 vol., square 12mo, $3.

The Second Volume of the SANS-SOUCI SERIES (a Companion to the "Bric-a-Brac Series").

Men and Manners in America One Hundred Years Ago.

Edited by HORACE E. SCUDDER. 1 vol., 12mo, with four illustrations, tastefully bound in extra cloth, crimson and black, $1.50.

There are here gleaned from the contemporary literature of the Revolutionary period, a large number of anecdotes, incidents and general gossip, throwing into bold relief the character of many of the men who were most prominent in those days, and illustrating most effectively the manners and customs of the times.

Now Ready, in the same Series, a New Edition of The Life, Letters, and Table-Talk of Benjamin Robert Haydon.

Edited by R. H. STODDARD. With Portraits of Wordsworth, Keats, Haydon, and Wilkie, and fac-simile of a letter by Haydon. 1 vol., 12mo, tastefully bound in extra cloth, black and crimson, $1.50.

. A Prospectus of the "Sans-Souci" Series will be sent to any address, upon application.

EARLY ORDERS SOLICITED FROM THE TRADE.

SCRIBNER, ARMSTRONG & CO., PUBLISHERS,

743 and 745 Broadway, New-York City.

THE HISTORY OF INDEPENDENCE HALL, PHILADELPHIA.

By F. M. ETTING. 1 vol. 8vo. Illustrated with many Wood-cuts and Heliotypes. $5.

No building in America appeals more powerfully to the patriotic regard of all good citizens than does Independence Hall. The birthplace of the nation, all its associations possess peculiar interest at all times, but especially this year, when the thoughts of the people turn with reverent tenderness to the events, the hopes, and aspirations of a century ago. To meet the popular demand for information respecting Independence Hall, Colonel F. M. Etting, of Philadelphia, has prepared with great care a full and highly valuable history of the famous building, indicating the changes it has undergone, describing the stirring events and notable men that have given it celebrity, and all matters that in any way relate to it. This volume is generously supplied with heliotypes and fac-similes of great interest, which serve to illustrate and emphasize the engaging story of Independence Hall.

THE WHITE MOUNTAINS.

Volume four of Osgood's American Guide-Books. With Six Maps of the White and Franconia Mountains, Western Maine, and the Lake country around Winnepesaukee; also Six Panoramas of views from Mt. Washington, Mt. Kiarsarge, Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Prospect, Mt. Hayes, and Jefferson Hill. $2.

The White Mountains have been most carefully surveyed by the Editor of Osgood's previously published Guide-books, with scientific colleagues, and the result is a Guide-book in all respects greatly superior to any yet prepared of the scenery and attractions of the White and Franconia Mountains, and the Lake country of New-Hampshire. It states the distances, times, and fares on the railway, steamboat, and stage lines; and gives lists of the hotels and boarding-houses, with their situations, accommodations, and prices. By this aid, the tourist can readily estimate the cost of a tour or sojourn among the White or Franconia Mountains, and can pass an enjoyable summer of travel with the greatest possible economy of money, time, and temper. This volume is, beyond comparison, the fullest and most complete Guide-book of the mountain region yet produced, and is indispensable to any one who wishes to make a pleasant and intelligent tour in the "Switzerland of America."

OSGOOD'S MIDDLE STATES.

Revised Centennial Edition, with Map and Supplement describing the great Exhibition. $2.

Every visitor to the Centennial Exhibition should have this Guide-book. It describes fully and minutely all the lines of travel in New-York, New-Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and Northern Maryland; all the cities, towns, mountains, rivers, lakes, picturesque and historic attractions lying near or on these travel-lines; contains an amount of accurate information respecting these States never before gathered into a single volume.

BÆDEKER'S PALESTINE AND SYRIA.

With 18 Maps, 43 Plans, a Panorama of Jerusalem, and 10 Views. $7.50.

Bædeker's hand-books have been well called the "Concentrated essence of guide-book lore." His new volume on Palestine and Syria has been compiled by the learned Orientalist Professor Albert Socin, of Bâle. The descriptions—especially of Jerusalem, with its perplexing topography still more perplexed by contending theorists—are marvels of completeness, while even during the preparation of the English translation of the German text, the unwearying editor has contrived to incorporate in the book more than one new route, and latest news from the Palestine Exploration Society. The volume is not only indispensable to travelers in Palestine, but is peculiarly rich in information, maps, plans, and panoramas that render it very serviceable to Clergymen, Sunday-School teachers, and Bible Students.

NOTES IN SEASON.

MESSRS. GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & SONS, having purchased the right to the American market direct from George Macdonald himself, will publish next week his new story of "Thomas Wingfold, Curate." The style of the book is after that of Macdonald's earlier and very popular books, the "Annals of a Quiet Neighborhood," etc.; its motive is to challenge any anti-religious tendency on the part of the new scientific school. The Messrs. Routledge have paid a large sum for their exclusive privilege, and expect a wide sale for the book.

J. R. OSGOOD & Co. publish this week an armful of books, including two additional volumes (10 and 11) in the library edition of Hawthorne's works, "The Wonder Book" and "Tanglewood Tales," between which the "True Stories in History and Biography" are divided; "The White Mountains," fourth in Osgood's series of American guide-books, of which full mention was made in this column last week; Col. Etting's very timely "History of Independence Hall," beautifully supplied with heliotypes and fac-similes; and Baedeker's "Handbook of Palestine and Syria," one of the best pieces of work ever produced by this guide-book genius. It is a cyclopædia of all kinds of information respecting Palestine and Syria—topography, history, flora, fauna, inhabitants, and whatever can interest the traveller or the student. It contains 18 maps, 43 plans, 10 views, and a large panorama of Jerusalem. Its price ($7.50) seems high, but Herr Baedeker is said to have expended $40,000 in its preparation.

D. LOTHROP & Co.'s next instalment of new books comprises "The Cooking Club of Tu-Whit Hollow," a series of bright and practical sketches from Wide Awake, by Mrs. Ella Farman, editor of that good juvenile magazine; Rev. Theron Brown's new story, "Walter Neal's Example," which is said to be a healthy story that boys will find so interesting that they will not "jump" the moral; and "The Wentworths," a New-England story, by Susan Cooper Pindar, a lady living in the neighborhood of Boston, who has before proved her capacity for writing stories both readable and worth reading.

E. J. HALE & SONS will have ready June 10th a new society novel by the popular magazine poet, Edgar Fawcett, "Ellen Story," which is said to be very brilliant, will be published uniform with the "Odd Trump" Series.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will commence at once a series of "Condensed Classics," in which Mr. Rossiter Johnson, who made such a hit with "Little Classics," proposes to acquaint the hurried public with those standard works of English fiction "that every body talks about and nobody reads." It is proposed to begin the series with Scott's "Ivanhoe," Dickens' "Our Mutual Friend," Bulwer's "Last Days of Pompeii," and, if these shall meet with success, to reduce in size the leading works of Fielding, Sterne, Marryat, Lever, Warren, and others. "The attempt is not to supersede the complete works, but to meet the question whether they shall be read in this fashion or not at all. The plan of condensation will be much like that of the dramatist, who preserves the plot of a story and its most characteristic and important points. Nothing is to be omitted which is a part of the development of the story or essential to the delineation of the characters, but that only which the hasty reader would naturally skip, could he look forward to its connection with, or disconnection from, the work. Except in a few connecting clauses, the author's words will be untouched." These books will be of about half the size of the originals, and will be published at the price of a dollar, in handsomely-decorated 18mo volumes, which the house means to make the most tasteful books it has yet produced.

THE second volume of the Sans Souci Series can scarcely miss a wide popularity. It has a capital subject and a capital editor to work it up. In presenting pictures of "Men and Manners in America One Hundred Years Ago," Mr. H. E. Scudder has culled from a score or more of early books, of which he gives pleasant notices in his charming preface. The book is divided according to the localities of which the reminiscences are given, and it is one of the most readable books we have seen for many a day. It has also a capital index.

THE AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY'S NEW BUILDING.

THE American News Company has nearly completed the excavations for its new building on Chambers street, for which Griffith Thomas, the architect, has prepared a distinctive design, contemplating an expenditure of $200,000.

The building will be Romanesque in style, the material being iron for the first story, and above this Concord granite and Philadelphia red brick, pointed with black cement. It will have a front of 75 feet on Chambers street, and another on Reade street, the building to be 151 feet deep between. The Chambers street front will show four stories above the pavement, surmounted by a massive bracket, pediment, and balustrade, decorated by a statue of a New-York newsboy crying his papers. Bronze ornaments will be used to decorate the corner piers. The Reade-street front will embrace essentially the same features of ornamentation, especially as to the cornice and the statue of the newsboy. The basement of the building will have an open frontage on Reade street, which is lower than Chambers, and here undoubtedly the deliveries will be made. Here also are to be four elevators running from the cellar to the fourth story, two for passengers and two for freight. There will also be a back stairway for employees. The vaults of the company will be in the cellar and basement on the Chambers-street side.

The offices of the company will probably be in the second story on Chambers street. The first story will be used for displaying the company's books and publications, and two broad stairways will lead to the floor above. There will be no partitions, the ceilings being supported by iron columns and girders; iron strips will be used to fur the ceilings for the support of the plaster. The cellar will be 9 feet deep; the basement, 12 feet 8 inches on Reade street; the first story, 18 feet 6 inches on Chambers street; the second story, 16 feet 6 inches; the third story, 15 feet 6 inches; and the fourth story, 15 feet 6 inches. It is expected to have the building ready by January 1st.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE series of papers on "The National Health," by Dr. B. W. Richardson, F.R.S., author of "Hygeia: The City of Health," "Diseases of Modern Life," etc., will be begun in Good Words for June.

THE forthcoming number of the Belgravia Magazine (London and New-York) is to contain an article, by John H. Ingram, on "The Unknown Poetry of Edgar Poe," which will give a large amount of unknown verse, including five complete poems, by the author of "The Raven."

It is stated in the preface to the index of the first ten volumes of Scribner's Monthly that the illustrations of these volumes have cost nearly $100,000, and that a very much larger sum has been paid for literary contributions and editorial work. More than $125,000 was paid to the printers, and nearly $250,000 for paper. These volumes contain 2745 engravings, or an average of 550 per annum. One hundred and thirty-three stories, long and short, have appeared, and from these and from essays and other material have already been published fifteen books, while others are in course of preparation.

MACMILLAN & Co. publish half-yearly "The Journal of Philology," edited by W. G. Clark, M.A., Fellow of Trinity College, John E. B. Mayor, M.A., Fellow of St. John's College, and W. Aldis Wright, M.A., Trinity College. No. 12, for May, 1876, is just ready. Price, $2.

A. WILLIAMS & Co., Boston, have just ready "Journal of Social Science," No. VIII., for May, 1876, containing the Transactions of the American Association.

BUSINESS NOTES.

WILLIAM F. GILL & Co. have moved to 26 Hawley street, Boston, where they have better quarters.

SHELDON & Co. fall in line with a reduction in prices: The Annotated Paragraph Bible, $8 to $6; Paley, $1.75 to $1.50; Long's Classical Atlas, $4.50 to $4. Next?

MR. F. B. PATTERSON, now of 16 Cedar street, proposes to make a specialty of attending to the making of books, printing of literary matters, society addresses, advertising pamphlets, etc., for others, on commission. His taste qualifies him excellently for this sort of work.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. WESLEY JONES, of Burlington, Ia., is mentioned as a candidate for Congress on the Liberal-Democratic ticket. The Burlington Gazette heartily endorses his name, saying: "Among Burlington business men none stand higher for public enterprise, generous liberality, and strict integrity than Mr. Jones; and if we are to take a new a new departure in the selection of members of Congress, take merchants instead of politicians—a plan which meets with a good deal of favor—we could not select a more popular one than Wesley Jones. We do not know whether he could leave his large business to enter politics, but he would be splendidly supported should his friends prevail upon him to make the race."

MR. W. W. APPLETON has returned from Europe in good health and spirits.

The Publishers' Weekly.

JUNE 3, 1876.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry and for notice in "Books Received."

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries." Notes from librarians will also be gratefully received.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

THE CENTENNIAL TRADE-LIST ANNUAL.

THE circular to publishers in relation to the TRADE-LIST ANNUAL for 1876 has been sent out, and we are already in receipt of many schedules and replies. Several hundred pages have been promised at the date of writing, although as yet there has been no direct canvass of the field, and most of the replies are in cheerful acquiescence with the suggestions put forth. It is to be regretted that any personal canvass should be required in this work, for it is, after all, not so much to our own profit as to the profit of the trade. Yet very many of the leading houses who are quite sure to contribute to the ANNUAL when personally applied to, still take no notice whatever of our communications by circular. May we not say frankly that it is these large houses which should set an example to the smaller in promptness and readiness to contribute to trade purposes?

A number of exceptions have been taken here and there, however, in curiously contradictory form, to the suggestions which it is desired shall be generally carried out in this ANNUAL. Some few publishers, notably the English houses doing business in New-York, regret that the ANNUAL is to be published so early, as it will make it difficult or impossible to furnish their lists. Opposed to these letters are those of houses promising to contribute promptly if we will, on our part, be prompt in publishing the ANNUAL. Between these two fires there is but one thing to do: to adhere with still more insistence to our original plan of publishing promptly in July. The opinion of those who make most use of the ANNUAL is unanimous that to give it any thing like its full value it must be in their hands before the opening of the fall season. With that opinion we ourselves heartily agree, and we trust that the houses in question will prove that "where there's a will there's a way," by making endeavors to get catalogues for the purpose ready in time. The ANNUAL is now so universally used as a trade tool that it is fair to say the loss to any publisher whose catalogue is not represented will fall chiefly upon that publisher himself. Our own interest is little; that of the trade is much: but that of the individual publisher is greater still.

There is some exception, though but little, taken to the proposed uniformity of paper. It seems to us this is one of the most desirable points. It is true that for any one publisher's purposes his list is better off if it stands out from those of the rest of the trade by its difference of paper, or, for that matter, its distinctive ugliness. But let us suggest that the advantage is an unfair one at best, and that if this idea should be carried out by many houses, it would result in an unpleasant confusion that would make each catalogue less prominent and less useful. Indeed, publishers will accommodate the trade by co-operating in the uniformity of the ANNUAL. Let us add again that this office has no interest whatever in the sale of the paper, and that as far as pecuniary results are concerned, the matter makes not the slightest difference to us. But we do desire to see the ANNUAL in the best shape, and that means a uniformity of paper as well as the best cataloguing possible.

There is one difficulty about hurrying through the ANNUAL—namely, that the publishers whose lists are not up to the standard in their bibliographical methods have but little time to avail themselves of the suggestions and criticisms given by those who answered the recent prize questions. But we suggest that they should make every endeavor to bring their catalogue into the best shape; it will certainly pay them manifold to be thus enterprising, and the work is not likely to be less well done because it is not delayed over several months. In fact, the very shortness of time will be an inspiration to those who wish to put a good catalogue before the trade, to hurry it through now. If in any case it is absolutely impossible to make a catalogue what it should be, the publisher will do well to add at least an alphabetical index on the plan suggested for the second part of the model catalogue. This would not do away with the difficulty in such catalogues as held the place of honor in the last prize question; but it would do useful service as a key to their labyrinthian mazes.

We have postal-cards from several minor houses, saying that their lists are so small that they need no pages in the ANNUAL. This is the greatest of mistakes. It is these small publishers who are least known to the trade, and whose lists, therefore, should be represented, if they take but an eighth of a page. The dealer who has an order for a book on their lists has no other means whatever of finding it, and if such small houses desire to be assisted by the trade, representation in the ANNUAL is the one way to bring it about. We are bringing out these points publicly, because they have reference to a most important trade matter. It is very desirable that the trade importance of the ANNUAL should be fairly understood. We believe that the publishers who take exceptions to the suggestions mentioned will find on investigation that their best service to the trade will be in carrying out the plans put forward for cataloguing by the trade through the WEEKLY, and we have only to ask that they will take means to test this assertion. Many indications we have received justify us fully in saying that the trade unanimously desires that every publisher, large and small, should be represented in the TRADE-LIST ANNUAL, that his catalogue should fulfil the conditions suggested, and that it should be forwarded promptly, so that the ANNUAL may be issued by July.

It has been our endeavor in every way to collect the fullest information for our weekly lists. For this purpose we have, among other things, sent blanks to all publishers who desire them, which make it a most easy matter to fill out the particulars of any book for bibliographical record. Messrs. William Wood & Co. return one of these blanks with the following note:

"All this information can be obtained by sending your reporter, as formerly, to copy the titles. It may be to our interest to do this work ourselves, but we do not, and some others are equally shortsighted (?). Consequently the 'List of New Publications' is not so reliable in completeness as it used to be."

We may say, in answer to this note, that we for a considerable while sent a competent person to obtain titles (sometimes at more inconvenience to the publisher than though he supplied them himself), always in the hope that one day the publisher would take it into his own hands and give us the proper data by authority. It is not possible for us to reach all the houses in this way, nor is the result so satisfactory as the simple expedient of uniform blanks. The writer of the note is mistaken in thinking that the lists are less complete than formerly: they are much more so. If this criticism should hold in the specialty of medical books, it is in the publishers' own hands to remedy it. It is usually peculiarly difficult to reach the publishers of specialties, and it is impossible, except at great waste of cost, to reach any one house as an exception, when the general system of blanks is working much more effectively.

A CONTRIBUTOR to the prize question on works of reference says that he does not mention Appleton's and Chambers' Encyclopædias, because they are subscription-books and not in the hands of the trade. This is just enough, from the trade point of view, and yet, as we desire to make these lists thoroughly indicative, we should say that the lists should include even subscription-books. In other words, we do not think it best to follow the policy of the subscription publishers, who desire that their publications should be ignored as much as possible by bibliographers. Competitors may therefore include subscription-books. We may hope that the subscription publishers will some day change their policy in this particular, and give the trade a chance. The correspondent in question adds to his letter: "The book most used as a work of reference is the TRADE-LIST ANNUAL, and I should like to rate it A 1." Modesty forbids that we should permit him to do so. This work, we may state, should not be entered. To tell the truth, we are so sure, even in our modesty, that it is tolerably useful, that we consider it included as a matter of course.

It is of course a regret to the trade, we may add, that the regular publishers are going more and more into subscription publishing. It is too often forgotten that the reason subscription-books have a better immediate sale is that the local dealers in them are so thoroughly protected by the publishers, and if half the precautions were taken in the general trade to encourage vigorous work by the local bookseller, we should hear less complaint about the retailers. In fact, we fear the publishers often misinterpret their experience as against the trade when it is really the best argument for dealing with the trade itself. It is also to be remembered that the subscription method gives a book but a short life at best.

We are also asked, "Do Commentaries on the Bible come properly under the head of 'Works of Reference,' for Prize Question No. 9?" Such works will, of course, not be excluded, should any competitor judge them to outrank in sales the more general works. We presume our correspondent uses the word "commentary" in a very broad sense, to include dictionaries and concordances, which would naturally be among the most prominent works of reference.

WE are glad to see the idea of our Prize Questions so well received that it has made its way into Germany, the land of bibliography. The German Suchblatt devotes a considerable part of its space to a report of our Prize Question in biography, and itself offers a prize of twenty marks for lists of the most salable works in literary history. We notice that the editor proposes to add the feature of numbering each work upon each list, and making the award on the reckoning of position as well as the frequency of mention. This is a plan which we tried at the start, but finding it too complicated for record, we insist on Rule No. 5, for the purpose of rendering a decision in the case of a tie.

SEVERAL expressions of satisfaction at the proposed change of base as to the Convention have been received from the trade, and there seems to be little doubt that the change will be made. The Judges' Hall has been offered to the committee as a place of meeting, and if proper arrangements for hotel and evening meeting accommodations can be arranged, announcement will be made in the next issue of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. We are requested to say in this connection that the proprietors of the Cataract Hotel and others concerned at Niagara have acted very handsomely as to this change of base, and it is to be hoped that the trade will not forget to make such individual recompense as they have opportunity for.

COMMUNICATIONS.

THE CATALOGUE QUESTION.

PHILADELPHIA, May 30, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: Allow me a word on the Catalogue question in answer to the objections to our own. First. No business can be carried on without considerable labor, and no general information obtained about books without considerable study and thought on the part of clerks and others who do not possess it. Secondly. It is hardly to be supposed that intelligent men would continue to furnish catalogues without some good reason for the arrangement thereof. In our case our numerical ordering catalogue is classified, and is arranged according to date of each class of publications, and is just what we want so far. We have had for years a full descriptive catalogue with an alphabetical arrangement in front, which fully meets the want so far as that is concerned. We have also a full descriptive list of our Sabbath-school stock, and are now preparing a separate alphabetical list of our entire publications. With the exception of the latter all would have cheerfully been furnished to any one.

Yours truly,

JOHN A. BUCK, Bus. Supt.

P. S. Let me say that the alphabetical arrangement does not give all the information required in a catalogue. We and our customers find the numerical arrangement very desirable, and in larger lists the only way I know is to have several kinds and study them.

[The criticisms in question were made upon the catalogue sent to the trade (through the ANNUAL) and from the trade point of view.

They had therefore no reference to the other catalogues of the Board, nor to their usefulness in the Board's own business economy. Study and pains are of course necessary in all work, but it is desirable to reduce the necessary amount of both as much as possible, and a good catalogue from the Board for trade purposes would be most gratefully received by the trade. —ED.]

THE CONVENTION.

WHILE it is yet uncertain whether the next Convention of the trade will be held at Philadelphia or Niagara, the time of the meeting is fixed and the day is near at hand.

Will there be a large representation, or will a dull trade or a feeling of indifference limit the attendance?

Here and there is found a state of feeling which is surprising and disappointing. Some who were expecting the millennium have suffered a cloud no bigger than a man's hand to blacken their whole heaven. A single underseller in a town or city has taken the heart out of a dozen of regular dealers, or the occasional violation of a rule by a single house is set forth as a sufficient reason for giving up the whole scheme of reform. Gentlemen retailers, do you wish to go back to where you were three years ago? If so, you have but to distrust each other, and on the report, true or false, that some one somewhere has broken a rule, put down all your prices twenty per cent; and because you may have lost fifty dollars on one sale, thenceforth give away one half or two thirds of the profits of your entire business! Gentlemen publishers, do any of you wish to weaken the ability of your customers to pay one hundred cents on the dollar? You have only to give the cold shoulder to the reform, and "break" on the prices of your own books. Your hearty support is essential to the success of the movement. Remember that the retailer can not be weakened without impairing your own strength. The spasmodic purchases of an underseller or the occasional sale to a public library at a special rate will not compensate for the losses that may thereby arise to the many who are your daily customers and the constant distributors of your books.

This is the year of reforms. The air is filled with the doings of committees and conferences seeking to correct the abuses of our political life. Shall our much-needed reform fail? I think not. It has struggled into a life more vigorous than its fathers dreamed. It has had to encounter the scoffs of some, the suspicions of others, the indifference of many, and yet it still lives! It should have had from the start the intelligent support of every member of the trade. There is no profession in the arts and sciences but has its association for the advancement of the mutual interests of its members. Is there any sufficient reason why the booksellers should not so combine, and are there any good reasons why any should stand aloof?

Let there be then a full representation of all classes at the Convention. May it not be hoped that some of the older members of the trade will be there to help on the good work with their presence and their experience? And why shall not our trade fittingly celebrate the Centennial with a new general departure in the right direction and in the interest of honorable dealing all around? The American book trade has been no minor factor in all that is good and true and permanent in the Republic, and its work is only just begun. It has a duty to perform in connection with every effort to reform the evils in the State, and it must begin by reforming those within itself. Has not good progress already been made in this direction?

Let no man stay away from the Convention under the plea of dull times and the cost of travel. That would be an unwise economy. There are better and brighter days ahead, better for the general trade than any we have seen for a decade of years, if the trade is only true to itself and the vital principles which underlie the reform.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

WORKING PEOPLE AND THEIR EMPLOYERS, by Washington Gladden. (Lockwood, Brooks & Co.) No new or profound theories in political economy are broached in this work, only the most simple and fundamental principles being touched upon. Its aim seems to be more instructive as to the relative duties of employers and workmen, being chiefly written for the benefit of the latter. It points out the dignity of work, its duties and principles; the difference between labor and capital; tries to account for the present hard times, and offers some valuable suggestions towards bringing about a better state of things; advises the workingman relative to his home, to society and societies, how he shall rise in the world, and reprobates the great waste of money and strength that the laborer suffers from indulging in strong drink. It is very plainly written in a familiar and simple manner, to be perfectly within the comprehension of those who are addressed. It will be found an excellent elementary work to put in the workingman's hands, that he may better understand more profound questions. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

SPIRITUALISM AND NERVOUS DERANGEMENT, by William A. Hammond, M.D. (G. P. Putnam's Sons.) Dr. Hammond gives an outline of the various physical causes which lead to the many hallucinations and seemingly miraculous phenomena which, under the name of spiritualism, have taken possession of the minds of the credulous in the present age. His book is full of the deepest interest, and must carry conviction to all who read it with a desire of finding the truth. It is a calm and straightforward recital of facts as they have come to him through study and investigation, substantiated by the experience and testimony of some of the greatest medical scientists of the day. No phase of this question but what is touched on, from the ad force of Reichenbach to the impositions of "Katie King" and the phenomenon known in the Catholic Church as "stigmatization." No attack is made throughout the work on any religion, nor is any sort of irreverence shown in handling the most delicate question, the sole object of the writer being to explain, from his knowledge as a medical man, the causes whence spring the seemingly miraculous effects which so strongly influence the minds and lives of the superstitious. 12mo, cloth, $2.25.

LIFE OF ISRAEL PUTNAM, by Increase N. Tarbox. (Lockwood, Brooks & Co.) Mr. Tarbox has written this history, as he says himself, "by the light and with the evidences of the last century, and not by the false lights of 1875." His aim having been "not to report any new historical discoveries, but simply to bring back to its old anchorage ground an important piece of American history, which, for a quarter of a century, by a subtle undertow, has been drifting from its place." In the preparation of his work he has consulted a great mass of literature relating to the subject, making apparently a most earnest and honest effort to find out the whole truth about "Old Put" and his connection with the Battle of Bunker Hill. The work is a valuable addition to Revolutionary literature, and will be read at the present time with great interest. 8vo, cloth, $2.50.

ALL AROUND THE MOON, by Jules Verne, translated by Edward Roth. (Catholic Publication Society.) Mr. Roth's own words, which we quote, give the best explanation of the motives which impelled him to make a new translation of Verne's works. He says: "I resolved to make the best translation I could of works so undeniably meritorious, a translation which, whilst strictly following the spirit of the author and trying to make the most of his strong points, would throw his weak ones into shade, soften off his extravagances, give his names a familiar sound, correct palpable errors—unless where radical, and then say nothing about them—simplify crabbed science, explain difficulties, amplify and naturalize local coloring, clear up strange allusions, omit blunders, put a little blood and heart into the dramatis personæ; in short, a translation which should aim as near as possible at that natural, clear, familiar idiomatic, but rather exaggerated style which Verne himself would have used if addressing himself in English to an American audience." Whether Mr. Roth has succeeded in all he has attempted the reader must judge for himself. There can be no doubt that he has put the work into a form which makes it more easily understood by young readers than does any previous translation. It also offers a great amount of perfectly reliable information. The appendix contains the famous "Moon Hoax," by R. Adams Locke. Illustrated, 12mo, cloth.

SELF-RAISED; OR, FROM THE DEPTHS, by Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth. (T. B. Peterson & Brothers.) This is the sequel and conclusion to "Ishmael; or, In the Depths." It traces out Ishmael Worth's (the hero) career, onward and upward, to fortune and fame. It shows the result of Claudia's apparently great marriage, and her failure, when a widow, to regain Ishmael's allegiance. His love for "Bee" is fully tested, and the reader leaves them on the very pinnacle of happiness and success. This is considered the best of all Mrs. Southworth's numerous works, and as such she has contributed it to the literature of the Centennial year. Its incidents are taken from real life, its hero illustrating the character of one of our own public men, who, born in poverty and amid humiliating circumstances, rose to one of the highest positions in the government. The volume is embellished by a view of Mrs. Southworth's home, "Prospect Cottage," on the Potomac. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

TO BUDDLECOMBE AND BACK, by F. C. Burnand. (Roberts Bros.) "Happy Thought" Burnand seems to have sunk his individuality in this little sketch. Scarcely a trace is to be found of his peculiar style. The sketch is an amusing one, however, the hero being a young man particularly fond of practical jokes. His adventures are related in a very entertaining and racy style. 18mo, cloth, 50 cents.

VACCINATION AS A PREVENTIVE OF SMALL-POX, by W. C. Chapman, M.D. (Brown & Faunce.) In the above pamphlet several points relative to vaccination are considered and investigated—that is, if vaccination protects the system from contagion of small-pox; why the protective power of vaccination becomes so impaired as to render re-vaccination advisable; what causes have prejudiced the public against the operation of vaccination, and what measures should be instituted to enforce a due appreciation of its benefits. 50 cents.

THE MOUNTAINS. (Roberts Brothers.) Every poet, almost, of modern fame has contributed a sonnet or poem to this collection of verses eulogistic of the mountains. Some charming tributes are to be found among them: many old favorites and many pieces of rare merit which have been forgotten or overlooked in hasty reading. It is pleasant to find them thus brought together, and interesting to note how many master-minds have sung of the beauty of the mountains and of mountain scenery. The little volume is uniform in size with "Little Classics"—the favorite size at present. 16mo, cloth, red edges, $1.25.

THE STORY OF A VOCATION. (Catholic Publication Society.) This little story relates the incidents which led a lady into a religious life, and the good resulting from her numerous noble deeds as a sister of charity. The story is translated from the French, and is very cleverly written, and inculcates a most excellent moral. It will interest young readers, as its plot turns upon the adventures and struggles of a poor little boy rescued from starvation. 16mo, cloth.

RUDIMENTS OF THEOLOGY, by John Pilkington Norris. (E. P. Dutton & Co.) This work, although specially prepared for the use of theological students, can be placed in the hands of almost any one with benefit, it offers such a clear insight into the fundamental truths of religion. The fundamental doctrines of the creed are considered in the first part—that is, God's Existence, the Second Person and the Third Person of the Trinity, the Atonement, and the Sacraments. The second part is called "The Soteriology of the Bible," and is devoted to bringing together and explaining the teachings of the Old and New Testaments, so as to show that they are the basis of the Church's creed. 16mo, cloth, $1.

LECTURE ON THE RISE OF THE ROMISH CHURCH, by the Rev. J. B. Helweg, A.M. (United Brethren Publishing House.) The spirit in which these lectures were conceived is antagonistic to the doctrines and progress of the Roman Catholic Church. They profess to investigate the rise of the Church in this country, and what the writer considers its encroachments upon the liberty of the people, and the true nature of some of its teachings, which the author reprobates as contrary to the Christian religion. The lectures are prefaced by an introduction by the Hon. William Lawrence, of Ohio. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

IS "ETERNAL" PUNISHMENT ENDLESS? by an orthodox minister of the Gospel. (Lockwood, Brooks & Co.) This is rather an inquiry into the facts relative to eternal punishment as set forth by the Bible, than any metaphysical or scientific discussion of the matter. The conclusion the reverend author comes to is that we are left by the evidences of the Bible in a state of uncertainty relative to the future of the wicked. It seems from all that can be gleaned that his punishment is to have an ending, but how or when can not be affirmed. However, this hopeless condition of "the lost," upon which not a ray of light can be shed, seems to be sufficiently full of woe, to the writer's mind, to hold the wicked as fully in check as any precise or clear disclosure of his fate could do. 16mo, cloth, $1.

THE MODEL TOWN AND THE DETECTIVES, by Allan Pinkerton. (G. W. Carleton & Co.) The stories embraced in this volume belong to the very sensational class of literature. They are all founded upon facts brought to light through Mr. Pinkerton's ability as a detective, and therefore of course relate to crimes of various sorts, and have only criminals for their heroes. To those who care for such stories, they will prove very interesting, as they are exciting and full of incident. 12mo, cloth, illustrated, $1.50.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN, by John S. C. Abbott. (Dodd, Mead & Co.) This volume is the twelfth of the series of "American Pioneers and Patriots," and will probably close the collection. It gives a vivid picture of our country one hundred years ago, Franklin having figured conspicuously in all its great events. The story of his career is both valuable and entertaining, and offers as amusing reading matter as any other volume of the series. 12mo, illustrated, cloth, $1.50.

FAMILIAR TALKS TO BOYS, by the Rev. John Hall, D.D. (Dodd, Mead & Co.) These "talks" were first delivered to the pupils of Mr. Charlier's institute, where Rev. Dr. Hall was engaged to speak to the students. They are only four in number, but embrace a great deal worth knowing to the youths of this country. They are frank and familiar in tone, but deal gravely with many points of morals and religion that should be strongly impressed upon the boys and girls growing up around us. They are within the understanding of even very young persons, and make up an excellent little manual for daily study and reference. 12mo, cloth, $1.

A COMIC HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES, by Livingston Hopkins. (G. W. Carleton & Co.) Considerable wit and humor are displayed by both the text and the illustrations of this little work. Some of the hits in it are exceedingly happy and provocative of laughter. Any one wanting amusement for an hour or so should not fail to get it, certain of finding just what they need. It begins with the discovery of America and finishes with "the present incumbent," dealing blows right and left at the prejudices and weak spots of the various States and our different representatives at the White House. 16mo, cloth, $1.50.

LAKE GEORGE, and THE ADIRONDACKS, by S. R. Stoddard. (Van Benthuysen Steam Printing House, Albany.) These are new editions of two remarkably interesting guide-books. They are far above the ordinary guide-books in the quality of their matter, the descriptions being quite vivid and minute. They tell all that is necessary to know about all the routes to or from the places named. Fully illustrated, and with a number of maps. Lake George, 12mo, cloth, $1; paper, 50 c. Adirondacks, 12mo, cloth, $1.25; paper, 50 c.

SEEN AND UNSEEN, by Algatchie. (G. W. Carleton & Co.) There is not a very great amount of stirring incident in this novel. It is a dreamy, quiet story of a young lady's love, which seems at one time likely to be brought to an untimely end by her lover's impatience at the fancy which grows upon her to communicate with her brother's spirit. A number of pages are devoted to an exposition of what she calls her faith (the book is written in the form of a diary) and to her sentimental cravings and aspirations. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

AGAINST FATE, by Mrs. M. L. Rayne. (Keen, Cooke & Co.) A "true story" is the indorsement that this work bears, and we have not a doubt but that it is taken from life. It tells of a young girl leaving her country home and going to a great city for employment, where she is beset by the usual temptations which lay in wait for the young and beautiful. Her sad fate is most graphically pictured. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

STATIONERY NOTES.

MILTON BRADLEY & Co., Springfield, Mass., are offering to stationers and printers a very novel and elegant line of design cards in the new black Bristol now so popular. The cards are ornamented with unique designs in assorted shades of bronze, and are afterwards printed to order from type, the designs being so ingeniously arranged that a little taste on the part of any printer is sufficient to produce business cards rivalling in elegance of design those from engraved plates. The same firm are also publishing a new line of chromo business cards in floral and national designs, which are both cheap and tasteful. The assortment at present consists of one set of five floral designs and two sets of flag cards (six notions each), all entirely new and original. A specialty in all these cards is the accuracy in the engraving and cutting up, so that all of one set register perfectly to the same form in printing. Net prices to the trade, 75 cents per 100, with usual discounts in large quantities. A complete set of samples, 23 cards, by mail to the trade for 15 cents.

F. H. DUNKINSON & Co. have re-established themselves at No. 26 John street, New-York, as importers of fine writing-papers and manufacturers of envelopes. They were the first to introduce in this country the celebrated Royal Irish Linen Papers. F. H. Dunkinson & Co. have been prompted, by the increasing demand for fine linen papers, to have a special line made to suit the market. They will be known as pure Irish linen, and manufactured of pure linen stock, every sheet bearing the water-mark of Pure Irish Linen (copyright secured). These papers will have an ivory finish as well as rough, and are especially adapted to the fashionable stationery trade. The above firm will keep a full supply of fine papers and envelopes in all sizes and styles.

VEXILLO, the new modification of croquet, of which a cut will be found elsewhere, is commended as a decided improvement over the old way. The game is made more interesting by the introduction of flags upon the arches. Each player has a flag to play which may be taken from him by his opponent. When a player reaches the home stake he places the flag upon it, and he is then a rover. His object then is to try and capture his opponent's flags or assist his side in getting their flags. The side that secures the greatest number of flags wins the game. The arches are set out somewhat differently from the ordinary croquet, and the home stake is made with sockets to receive the flags when they are taken from the arches.

THE Centennial Eagle Fan, patent allowed, is something new in the fan line. The eagle has movable wings, and by pulling a ring in the middle of the handle the wings are made to flap. The fan is printed in five colors, is well made, and presents a pleasing appearance. It is the only mechanical fan in the market, and is just the thing to sell this summer. They are sold at $7.50 per 100, or $1 per dozen; samples will be sent by mail on receipt of 15 cents. G. K. Cooke & Co., 92 Chambers street, New-York, are the manufacturers.

S. S. STAFFORD is having a good run on his combined Copying Carmine Ink. This ink is very brilliant in color, and much better than carmine inks generally.

PORTER & BAINBRIDGE are sending samples to the trade of their Royal Blanks, Printers' Blanks, Acme Tinted Bristol, thin and medium. These boards are very handsome and cheap, and the trade would do well to send for samples and prices.

A. DOUGHERTY, New-York, has added some elegant new designs for the backs of his triplicate cards. They are a horse and dog's head, and will cost $84, gross list. This house is also putting up their triplicate cards with gilt edges; they cost $96 per gross.

JAMES M. LENT, Buffalo, N. Y., has moved into a new store near Martin Taylor.

WE learn from our correspondent that business is improving in Chicago. The trade generally will welcome all such news.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

MESSRS. MACMILLAN & Co. have just ready or in the Custom-House a number of important and interesting volumes, among which are a "Manual of Comparative Philology," as applied to Greek and Latin Inflection, by Mr. Papillon, and a new edition of "Typical Selections from the Best English Writers," from the Clarendon Press; also a valuable historical work by Prof. Thorold Rogers, a record of "The Protests of the Lords," with historical introductions, an important factor in the constitutional history of England; a Shakespeare Manual by Rev. Mr. Fleay, and the eighth revised edition of Trench's "Synonyms of the New Testament." They will shortly issue also "Sketches from Travel in History and Architecture," by the historian Freeman, with architectural drawings by the author; and the Hulsean Lectures for 1875, "Some Reasons of our Christian Hope," by Rev. Mr. Vaughan.

THE new revised edition of Draper's "Intellectual Development of Europe," just ready at the Harpers, is in two compact and handy volumes, easy of reading. Dr. Rau's "Stone Age in Europe" is an excellent summary for those readers who have little time or inclination to study the more extended works on prehistoric man. Mr. Gladstone's book, which accompanies these, is issued by the American publishers under the better title of "Time and Place of Homer."

THE Japanese novel, Chi—etc, is now ready at the Putnam's. It is a curiosity of literature that should find a place in museums as well as libraries. The binding, it seems, is not of cloth, but of the strong bark paper made by the Japanese. The price of the book is $3, the edition being small.

A SECOND edition of Mr. G. A. Baker, Jr.'s clever social satire, "The Bad Habits of Good Society," is being published through Mr. F. B. Patterson, now of 16 Cedar street. Of "Mr. Baker's "Point Lace and Diamonds" a couple of thousand copies have already been sold—a very good success for vers de société by a new writer.

PORTER & COATES have now in press the second edition of their "Guide to Philadelphia," which has met with decided favor. They have also now ready the first four numbers of the "American Centenary," by Benson J. Lossing, illustrated with fine steel-engravings. This will be completed in 30 numbers, and will be sold only by subscription.

"ONE Summer," published anonymously last year, has quietly passed through ten or fifteen editions, and Osgood & Co. hardly receive an order of any amount that does not require from twenty to fifty copies of this delightful summer story.

"CHRISTMAS BOOKS" has just been added to the standard illustrated library edition of Dickens' works, issued by J. B. Lippincott & Co. This is the thirtieth volume, and completes this handsome edition.

"ISHMAEL; or, In the Depths," by Mrs. Emma D. E. N. Southworth, has already passed to a seventh edition, and "Self-Raised; or, From the Depths," the sequel to and conclusion of "Ishmael," has passed to the fourth edition. They promise to prove among the most popular books even written by this author.

WE have before us specimen pages of "The Illustrated Catalogue of the Centennial Exhibition," which is the only work of the kind authorized by the Centennial Commission or permitted to be sold on the grounds—under arrangement with the general catalogue company. The work is in large quarto shape, and many of the engravings are excellent. They are all fresh and of articles on exhibition. If the selection made is good, and the advertising element is not given too full swing, the work will be an exceeding valuable record, and both Messrs. Gebbie & Barrie's independent illustrated work and this will be the better for the competition. The catalogue is published by John Filmer, 293 and 295 Broadway, New York, but Mr. H. W. Kelley, successor to Duffield Ashmead, Philadelphia, is sole selling agent. The work will be issued in parts, with wood-cuts and chromos, of which three are in preparation, and will be afterwards bound in handsome styles.

MR. A. R. WALLACE's important work on "The Geographical Distribution of Animals, with a Study of the Relations of Living and Extinct Faunas, as Elucidating the Past Changes of the Earth's Surface," will be published very soon by Macmillan & Co.

W. J. WIDDLETON will publish in September a new life of Edgar A. Poe, by Eugene L. Didier. It claims to be the most complete, correct, and authentic life of Poe that has yet been written. Many fresh and interesting facts have been obtained from old classmates of the poet in Virginia, and from members of the family in Baltimore. Persons having unpublished letters from Poe, or any valuable and interesting information, will please communicate with Mr. Didier, No. 185 Madison avenue, Baltimore.

SEVENTY-SIX thousand copies of the Lippincott's "Centennial Guide" have been already sold.

THE 11th, 12th, and 13th thousands of the "Home Cook-Book," Chicago, was issued May 8th, and the 14th, 15th, and 16th thousands have just gone to press.

PORTER & COATES send us two new catalogues—one of their choice retail stock, the other of their own publications, both alphabetically arranged. They write: "We notice that some of your correspondents complain of difficulty in finding books in our usual trade catalogue. We will send our alphabetical catalogues to any address on application."

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish in this country the new Library Waverley, announced by A. & C. Black.

A NEW work on Dutch Guiana, by W. Gifford Palgrave, will soon be published by Macmillan & Co., under the title of "Surinam; or, A Creole Eden."

MR. J. W. BOUTON, 706 Broadway, New-York, has in his store a remarkable series of extra illustrated works, the material for which has been gathered at a cost of nearly $50,000. They include a Boydell Shakespeare and Milton, Irving's Washington, the Waverley Novels, etc.

A NEAT "Catalogue of Queer Books," curious odds and ends, is just published by R. Clarke & Co., Cincinnati, who appreciate the commercial advantages of good catalogues better than most people.

"A MADRIGAL, and Other Stories" is the title of a new volume by the author of "The Rose Garden."

THE very valuable series of papers on "The Bible in the Public Schools," states the Independent, contributed by the Rev. Samuel T. Spear, D.D., to the columns of that journal, are about to be published in book form.

MR. G. S. LATHROP's critico-biographical work, which is nearly ready for publication by Osgood & Co., is to be called "A Study of Hawthorne." It will be a volume approaching 400 pages, uniform with the "Little Classic" edition of Hawthorne's works.

A LETTER by Mr. Swinburne in the Athenæum on Charles Lamb's letters to Godwin, suggests that Godwin's tragedy of "Faulkener" is the scheme on which the two authors consulted in this correspondence.

A GERMAN house, says the Börsenblatt, announces "The End of the World for August 28th, 1876." Nevertheless it states that it will take back all unsold copies at the end of the year.

WE are asked as to the date of the next Book Fair. Next September, we presume, although there is talk of a Fair, for school-books only, in July.

THE exportation of books, music, and pictures from Leipzig to the United States in the first quarter of the year reached $70,339, gold.

THE large serial publication, "History of the Painters," under the editorship of Mr. Ch.

Blanc, begun in 1848, has been brought to completion with the Nos. 628 to 631, just published by Renouard, Paris. The work embraces 14 volumes in 4°, containing 3180 engravings on wood. Price, 630 fr.; fine paper edition, 1000 fr. Each school is sold also separately.

BROCKHAUS, Leipzig, has just published a work on "Town-Life and Society Sketches from North-America," by Friedrich Ratzel.

ACCORDING to the report of the Baptist Publication Society, at the recent meetings, the total issues of the year up to March 1st, 1876, were equal to 222,246,628 pages 18mo. The total number of publications on the catalogue March 1st, 1876, was 1174. The ordinary business receipts of the year amounted to $310,161.06.

THE Pall Mall Gazette says it is reported that the copyright commission has decided not to raise the question of international copyright at all.

A NEW BOOK BY THE AUTHOR OF "GETTING ON IN THE WORLD."

WORDS;

Their Use and Abuse. By WM. MATHEWS, LL.D. 1 vol., 12mo, 384 pages, $2.

CONTENTS.—The Significance of Words.—The Morality in Words.—Grand Words.—Small Words.—Words Without Meaning.—Some Abuses of Words.—Saxon Words, or Romanic.—The Secret of Apt Words.—The Fallacies in Words.—Nicknames.—Curiosities of Language.—Common Improperities of Speech.—A Full Index.

This work contains a mine of valuable information, which no person can afford to do without. Almost any chapter in the book will be found worth more than the cost of the whole, while in mechanical execution it is one of the most elegant and perfect books Chicago has ever produced. It is not a dull, dry book on words, but, while scholarly and reliable, it possesses the charms of an exciting romance, and its fascinating pages will hold the reader's attention as closely as an Arabian tale.

The Chicago Times says: "It is almost impossible to convey to the reader a fair conception of the real worth of this publication. The labor and learning embodied in its pages are things that have to come to each one before meeting with due appreciation. . . . Beautiful and important is the subject chosen by the writer, but beautiful and important as it is, there are few who could so skilfully have elaborated it into a poem surging with the grand thoughts of the wise men who have lived in all ages; and, as here presented, it is a poem of this description. The book is not for the student only, but for all who would learn the true importance of language and be entertained."

Over THIRTY THOUSAND volumes of Prof. Mathews' former books have already been sold, and the demand still continues.

SELECT ORATIONS OF LYSIAS.

The author has bestowed much time and labor in the preparation of this work. It was begun at the suggestion of the late Professor Hadley, and a large portion of the work received the benefit of his critical revision. The publishers now offer it to the public, believing it worthy to rank with the eminently successful works of Boise, Jones, and D'Ooge, recently published by them.

CONDENSED CLASSICS.

Prepared by ROSSITER JOHNSON, Editor of "Little Classics."

MESSRS. HENRY HOLT & Co. are about to begin the publication, in a condensed form, of a series of Standard Works of English Fiction whose authors are no longer living, and which, not being impressed upon popular attention by the appearance of new works from the same writers, are gradually being crowded into the background.

It is not intended to raise the question whether such works shall be read in this edition or in a complete one, but to meet the question already existing—whether, in many instances, they shall be read in some such edition as this, or not read at all. The list of "books that everybody talks about and nobody reads" is growing with a rapidity that implies wide-spread ignorance regarding much of what is best in our literary heritage. It is in the hope of diminishing this ignorance, not of increasing it—of securing for the condensed editions many readers who would never attack the complete ones—that this series is begun.

Very few actually read every paragraph of a long novel, and of those who do, many might be glad to reread, in a condensation which preserves every dramatic element, romances which once gave pleasure, but are now forbidden fruits, because of the serious consideration of time.

This edition is not, of course, to be criticised as if it professed to be an improvement of the novels, but rather as a species of dramatization. Every word, with the exception of a few connecting clauses, is the author's own, and nothing has been consciously omitted which helps on the story, or is necessary to the delineation of a character or the graphic portrayal of a scene.

Though the elided passages are by no means worthless, yet, for the purposes of the rapid reader who desires only the story and an uncritical knowledge of the author, they can well be spared, and the dramatic interest is intensified by reducing the amount of matter. The aim has been to cut out every thing that a skillful novel reader would skip, and every thing that he might skip if he knew what were coming. This condensation leaves the novels, on the average, about half of their original bulk.

The Initial Work of the Series will be

IVANHOE. By Sir Walter Scott.

This will be speedily followed by

OUR MUTUAL FRIEND. By Dickens.

Which will be succeeded by

THE LAST DAYS OF POMPEII. By Bulwer.

Reasonable encouragement will lead to the completion of the editions of these authors, and to the similar publication of the works of Fielding, Sterne, Marryatt, Lever, Warren, and others.

Each Novel will be in one small 18mo volume, handsomely decorated. Price, $1.

NEW LEISURE-HOUR BOOKS. $1.25 each.

A STORY OF THREE SISTERS. By Cecil Maxwell.

"A simple story, prettily told. . . . There is a quaint flavor of poetry and Pre-Raphaelitism about the scenes and descriptions. . . . A very sweet and tender charm of thought and expression. . . . We are glad to welcome the advent of a novelist who, if not promising supreme genius, bids fair to be a pleasant and wholesome worker."—Saturday Review.

JOHN BRENT, and CANOE AND SADDLE. By Theodore Winthrop.

Miss Molly.
The Hand of Ethelberta.
Cecil Dreeme.

COMMUNICATIONS.

THE TRADE-LIST QUESTION.

KNOXVILLE, TENN., June 9, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

DEAR SIR: In making my weekly perusal of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, I find in your editorial of June 3d, on the "Centennial TRADE-LIST ANNUAL" for 1876, that several of the smaller publishing houses declined furnishing their lists upon your solicitation, on the plea of their mediocrity and consequently supposed worthlessness to the trade. As a fellow-member of the profession, I am quite astonished, and compelled to express my deepest regret upon this (you will pardon the expression) seemingly absurd presumption.

It is quite true that the smaller catalogues are of less importance in approaching to a perfect Trade-List Annual, and, as every one must confess, more easily dispensed with than the more extended lists.

Nevertheless, all booksellers, more especially the retail, can confidently assure the publisher, no matter how small his list, that it would be to his decided advantage, and promote the mutual interests of both publisher and seller to have his catalogue appear in the ANNUAL. In proof of this statement, the writer, in his own limited experience, can safely affirm that there have been but few, if any, of the lists that have been inserted in the past Annuals for '74 and '75 that have not received the patronage of his attention, and upon questions of more or less importance. And to substantiate this statement still further—the advertising cards have not unfrequently supplied the long-wished-for information, and produced the sale of the desired volume, which save for this would have been lost.

The above simple statements of facts are only given in order to impress the duty and obligations resting upon all publishers, small as well as large, that I trust will be faithfully discharged. I am well aware that the general tone of this communication will meet with the hearty approval of all professional booksellers that give it a kind reading, and furthermore, should it happen to greet the eyes of any of the parties under discussion, I most sincerely hope that they will give the subject a second thought from this stand-point, and act accordingly.

And in conclusion allow me, with the "trade" at large, to urge and impress upon all houses, however miniature their lists, the importance of forwarding them immediately for publication, that by this means the TRADE LIST ANNUAL for 1876 shall come forth as an unblemished paragon.

Yours,

J. R. S.

THE LISTS OF NEW ISSUES.

NEW-YORK, June 7, 1876.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

DEAR SIR: In your issue of 3d inst. you print, with comments, a note we recently sent you, informally written on one of your "blanks." It was not intended for publication, but since you give it publicity, we wish to say further: Our objection to your blanks is simply that, alone, they are not reliable means of obtaining the information your list of new books professes to give. You speak of "other things" in your method of collecting titles; we have no idea what these things may be. The blanks you say are sent to "all publishers who desire them;" how about those who do not desire them? They probably serve a good purpose so far as they are used, but unless the WEEKLY supplies the omissions, they are "expedients" only in the sense of makeshifts. How, too, about the titles of books published by authors, printers, and others, in which publishers have too little interest to induce them to give you the particulars called for? When a competent person was sent formerly to get the titles you wished, we recognized an effort toward completeness which cost you something, and took pains to assist in any way we could. But when for this was substituted the mechanical work of an office-boy, and dependence placed wholly, we take it, upon the good-nature and supposed interest of publishers to whom the blanks are sent, our interest in the matter ceased. If our criticism holds, as we know it does, in the "specialty of medical books," we have no doubt it will, to a large extent at least, in other branches of book publishing, which, excepting with some few large houses, has been very much narrowed into specialties, the difficulty of reaching which we think you exaggerate. We see the number of titles published weekly in your list is larger than formerly, but with your method of collecting them who can tell how much of this is due to an increased number of books issued by known publishers, and how much to the completeness you claim? Respectfully,

WILLIAM WOOD & Co.

The Publishers' Weekly.

JUNE 17, 1876.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry and for notice in "Books Received."

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries." Notes from librarians will also be gratefully received.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

THE OSGOOD REDUCTION OF PRICES.

THE announcement of Jas. R. Osgood & Co., on another page, is one of the events of the year. They will, from the first of July, reduce the retail prices of their most important lines to the extent of from 16 to 33 per cent, with a corresponding limitation of trade discounts to 25 per cent on ordinary sales, and 33 as the maximum discount to jobbers.

This is a most important step in the progress of the reform, and we are glad that the Osgood house has led off in it. There have been several reductions of prices on other catalogues within the current year, but this is so large and comprehensive as to be virtually a new departure. It will of course be variously received by the trade, with criticism as well as with approval, but we believe it will be generally recognized as a good thing.

And first let us say that the change has been made at the right time—before the trade began to stock up for fall sales, and when the book business needs a stimulus of the sort—and in the right way. If retail prices had been reduced without a corresponding limitation of discounts, there would have been serious injustice to the jobbers and retailers who had stocks on hand, and who would have had to meet the unbalanced competition of purchasers under the new scale. As it is, the reduction is fairly distributed. The first price (the publishers' trade rate) is reduced somewhat, but not greatly. The stocks on hand are thus not reduced to any dangerous extent in their replacement value. The retail price is lowered, but it is more sure, while the margin between small and large orders—that is, the jobber's margin—which is not reduced to great extent, makes this branch of business also more certain.

If the Osgood house adhere strictly to the limitations they have set—and we understand that they will—the movement can scarcely fail to be beneficial to the trade. The firm were happily placed to lead off in this direction: their clearance sale of last spring left them a commanding catalogue of books that every body must have, and within the bounds of easy handling. Their lines, with steady and large sales, were such as especially admitted of this reduction, and so important that any who were not far-sighted enough to see the wisdom of this act could nevertheless scarcely hold off from buying, as they might in the case of smaller houses. But with this lead, we may hope other houses will follow, and especially those whose enormous discounts, up to 50 and 60 per cent, have made their goods the chief stock-in-trade of the undersellers.

The relation of this reduction to underselling is of very great importance. It was one of the first declarations of the reform that retail prices ought to be reduced where possible, and this reduction is the logical outcome of the reform movement. The 20 per cent rule did the service, among others, of calling attention to the fact that on some books, as juveniles, the discrepancy between wholesale prices and nominal retail prices was too great. Conscientious booksellers felt that they could not ask this artificial price from their customers, and the travellers of some juvenile publishers were told that if they wanted to make sales they must reduce retail prices. Underselling was, perhaps, not directly caused by extravagant nominal discounts, but it was certainly promoted by them, and they gave such a margin between the underselling price and the published price as to prove a considerable bait to the public. The reduction of prices will of itself tend to the establishment of a fair, uniform price to the latter, who will now begin to see that the "booksellers' ring" is giving them, as was promised, cheaper and not dearer books. We trust those who have been prominent in opposition will acknowledge this. The new departure will thus make the 20 per cent rule of less importance, because it will make more evident the fact that a dealer who "cuts under" is a reckless merchant, who is rendering himself unworthy of credit and must fail. Even then the difference such can make will be so little as to prevent its balancing the better service and other attractions of the regular stores. This is certainly good.

But this point also must be remembered by the public. It is not possible to reduce retail prices except on certain lines of books—namely, those of large popular sale. Neither publishers nor booksellers have made much money since the war, scarcely enough in the general to equalize the remuneration of like capital and ability in other callings. The reduction is of benefit to them because a sure small profit is better than a nominal large one. And on books of limited sale the price ought to be rather increased than diminished: they do not now pay. New and copyright books are very much cheaper here than in England, as it is, and it is because our people will not pay the fair price for an important American book of, say, 500 copies' sale, that publishers hesitate to publish such. In a word, it should be remembered that a reduction of prices must be discriminative—a point which should be especially brought out in the discussions of the Convention, which are now likely to turn in great measure upon this pivot.

WE print elsewhere a rejoinder from Messrs. Wood & Co. to a recent editorial paragraph as to their refusal to fill out blanks for the title-lists. The letter criticises us from a mistaken position. The WEEKLY does not depend "alone" upon these blanks, and does "supply the omissions" in ways too numerous to mention. Most of the regular publishers courteously send us their books or title-pages (and we have before given notice that we are willing to return any books when required) or return these blanks, agreeing with us that this is the best way. But if dependence were placed "wholly" (as our correspondents take it) "on good-nature and supposed interest of publishers," our lists would fall far short of their present approximate completeness, while for the considerable proportion of books issued by authors, printers, etc., we watch newspaper mention and every other avenue of communication. Of course, if any publisher, as the house in question, declines to furnish information in this way, we must seek for it in any way they will give it to us, and incur the great waste of cost in pursuing a different plan for every such exception. That is to say, we will send a competent person to Messrs. Wood & Co., in the event of their declining to fill our blanks: it is our business to make the list as complete as possible, without offence at difficulties thrown in our way. But it is a little unsatisfactory to find, at this late day, any publisher putting himself in the position of regarding the work of the WEEKLY as merely an individual speculation of rather more bother than value.

Our first number in July will be prepared with a view to affording to those coming to the Convention the information which will be especially of value to them, as in our "Book Fair Number" of last July. This will also be our Exhibition number, our plan having been to offer to the trade, in the number of opening week (May 13th), a brief general summary of the book features of the Exhibition, as we did, some weeks before any other book journal; then to give current notes; and then, previously to the opening of the Convention, to give a full review of the exhibits, as completed, that would be of practical use to the visiting trade. This number will be made especially valuable by many plans and illustrations, and this Centennial matter will also be a feature of the Centennial ANNUAL.

WE call attention to the announcement elsewhere of the American Educational Catalogue, now in its seventh year, for 1876, which will be sent to our subscribers as one of the later numbers in July, and also be sold in imprint editions to booksellers. The usefulness of this issue, both for publishers' advertisements and for distribution by booksellers, has now been thoroughly tested, and we need scarcely do more than call attention to its value as an investment at this opening of the annual school-book campaign. It is to be remembered that publishers' names, in the catalogue proper, are given by initials, so that its circulation, while it helps the publisher, is directly promotive of local sales.

ORDERS will now be received for the little enclosure catalogue of novels, giving the answers to the prize question on that subject and a list of new novels issued during the year. Enclosed with letters or in parcels, or distributed otherwise to customers, it will give a good many hints as to what to buy for summer reading, although it is in no sense offered as a comprehensive guide. Being something of a curiosity in its way, it will attract the more attention. The terms, which are quite low, will be found elsewhere.

"THE Book Butcher" at Troy, who is understood to be a Mr. McDonald, though we do not know whether it is under this name that he buys, is issuing various little circulars, with illustrations more forcible than elegant, proclaiming that he is "doing the people of Troy some service," and observing that the "booksellers know all about" the little hatchet "with which he has cut down the prices of every book published in this country," "having felt its ragged edge." It is he who "can scent out a distressed publisher quicker than any man in the country." This is braggadocio which it is to be hoped pleases those who sell to him. We are asked, Who are they?

MR. J. A. ROYS, of Detroit, has issued his circular No. 6 against "The Monopoly Breeders in the Book and News Trade, Chapter IV." He claims that the news company which has obtained exclusive jobbing control of certain Eastern papers through the Detroit section, is endeavoring to undermine the other jobbers generally by underselling local papers at less than the cost of handling. He suggests that business can not honestly be done for nothing, or next to nothing, and that such attempts, in defiance of the safety of creditors, are "black-ing almost every page of our commercial history."

PRIZE QUESTION ON WORKS OF REFERENCE.

EXCEPTING the Question in Fiction, for which extra prizes were offered, none has met with so much and comparatively harmonious response as Question No. 9, on Works of Reference. The number of answers was 38, falling only one behind the former. The following list will show several names which have enlisted for the first time :

The answers included 456 votes, twelve titles having been required for each list. The winner of the prize, with flying colors, is Mr. A. J. Jenkins, with Cushings & Bailey, Baltimore, with the highest possible vote—345. Close upon him is our sharp contestant, Mr. W. S. Parker, of the St. Louis Book and News Company, carrying 341. Next is W. S. McQuillan, with J. B. Lippincott & Co., counting 333. The lowest count of the 38 was 191. Mr. Parker misses in giving Chambers' Literature, counting 14, in place of Taine's, counting 18; Mr. McQuillan, in giving Worcester's Dictionary, counting 13, in place of Appleton's Cyclopædia, counting 25.

In order to show the list by popular vote in its proper light, we quote the limitation given under this question to the term Works of Reference :

"This list, excluding purely technical and professional works, also catalogues of books, should embrace only popular works of reference that ought to be found at any public library or reading-room, with easy access to the general reader, such as cyclopædias, concordances, dictionaries, gazetteers, and general handbooks of literature, arts, and sciences. One or more works on English literature, courses of reading, etc., may be properly included."

Twenty-four books received one vote each.

It will be seen that there is some confusion as to the qualities on the strength of which the book is entered. Allibone, for instance, though one of the most valuable, is, from the nature of the case, not so salable as some books below it. Yet it is certainly one of the books that every bookseller should have in stock, as well as for consultation. Appleton's Cyclopædia, being sold (alas!) chiefly by subscrip-tion, does not get as large a vote for trade salableness, therefore, as it might. We are pleased to note that many competitors stated that, had they been permitted to name the TRADE-LIST ANNUAL, they should have put it first, although, as in the case of Allibone, the quality would be of usefulness rather than salableness.

IN reply to inquiries relating to Prize Question No. 10, we would state that works on horses and dogs, which are to be the subject of a special prize question, should be omitted. With this exception, the widest latitude may be given to the term "Summer Sports," which may directly include works on field-sports, out-door games, or any other summer pastime. In view of this re-statement, answers to this prize question will be received until July 1.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

TWO YEARS IN CALIFORNIA, by Mary Cone. (S. C. Griggs & Co.) No detailed account of journeys or of sight-seeing is given in this work; it is rather devoted to general information and deductions about the history, climate, geography, and other points which are of interest to those intending to visit California or to settle there. It seems to be written in a spirit of unusual fairness, and with great judgment and clearness of perception of matters and things which do not generally come within a woman's province. "A Chapter for Settlers," relating to fruit and cotton raising, the culture of rice, coffee, and tea, sheep-raising, dairy business, etc., contains information that is to the point and of great value. Other chapters are especially devoted to the climate, rain-fall, a description of the wealth and the productions of Southern California and the Great Valley, Northern California, "A Rancho in the Upper Sacramento Valley," "A Fruit Rancho on the Sacramento River," "The Chinaman in California," and "A Trip to the Yosemite." The illustrations—some eighteen or nineteen full pages—are very fine, and give views of points of special interest. As may be seen, the book is one to supplement the numerous works of travel published, and for continual reference. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

SANS-SOUCI SERIES, edited by R. H. Stoddard. MEN AND MANNERS IN AMERICA ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO, edited by H. E. Scudder. (Scribner, Armstrong & Co.) No more charming volume than this has yet been produced relative to the Revolutionary period. Although scarcely more than a compilation, the editor has gone to so many generally unknown sources for his material, that the happy reader, not a bookworm, or too recondite, will dip into his pages with a fresh pleasure one would scarcely think it possible to feel upon a subject that has been so much aired as our country one hundred years ago has during this past year. Mr. Scudder frankly owns that he has not been guided entirely by literary merit in his selections, but wherever, in travels, reminiscences, letters, forgotten annals, or the most unpretentious books of the period, he found a page or a paragraph or an anecdote, amusing or characteristic, he made it his own. The result is most delightful, as every reader will admit when he closes the volume with a lingering smile over the quaint sayings and doings, manners and customs and costumes of our respected ancestors. The volume will be a most popular one, widely read and eagerly sought for. Square 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

ONE NIGHT'S MYSTERY, by May Agnes Fleming. (G. W. Carleton & Co.) This story opens with a bright glimpse of schoolgirl life in a pensionnat in the town of Petit St. Jacques, Canada. The two heroines are here introduced, and their future lives somewhat shadowed forth. One of them leaves school to marry, at her father's orders, a playfellow of her youth; the other decides to give up the love and happiness within her grasp, to obtain the wealth of an old maiden aunt, who is her guardian, and who has planned out a marriage for her. The young ladies' stories are told with considerable vim, and with an abundance of witty conversation, sensational situations, and striking incidents. They both meet with numerous adventures, which the author has the gift of presenting in a most natural manner. To the numerous admirers of this lady this will be one of her most readable and absorbing works. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

EDITH LYLE, by Mrs. Mary J. Holmes. (G. W. Carleton & Co.) A secret marriage, made when the heroine is a mere child, is the somewhat commonplace and worn-out expedient by which the author gains the basis for her story. Starting with this mystery, quite an interesting story is eliminated, the scene of it changing from England to this country, and the characters being equally divided between the two nationalities. Edith Lyle's second marriage and the finding of her child, supposed to have died when a baby, are the main points of the plot. It would not seem possible from these slender materials to construct a readable book, and yet, with nothing new in the way of characters or incidents, the author has presented a novel which will engross the ordinary novel-reader's attention till the very last page is reached. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

NONSENSE SONGS, by Edward Lear. (Roberts Brothers.) These "Nonsense Songs" are perfect gems in the way of nonsense, mounting to the very heights of absurdity. We do not know which they will please the most, the children or the grown folks, but we do know they will both glean the heartiest amusement from their perusal. The "Nonsense Stories," "Nonsense Cookery," "Nonsense Botany," and "Nonsense Alphabets," which complete the little volume, are rich in odd ideas and funny fancies. This volume has been in the market before, and is known in many a home as a household treasure; it is now issued with the same matter and illustrations, at a cheaper price than formerly. The illustrations are about one hundred and fifty in number, and exceedingly laughable and characteristic. No juvenile library should be without the work. Sq. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

PHILADELPHIA AND ITS ENVIRONS. (J. B. Lippincott & Co.) This is a "Centennial" edition of one of the best and most attractive guide-books to Philadelphia and its surroundings that is published. The additions made to it embrace views of all the points of interest in the Exhibition grounds, and the new adornments that have been made in Fairmount Park. The illustrations throughout the book include every public or private building of note in Philadelphia, and views of all the many lovely bits of landscape to be found outside the city. The illustrations are very numerous and noticeably fine, rendering the work attractive enough to place alongside of many more pretentious works. 8vo, paper, 50 cents.

ROADSIDE POEMS FOR SUMMER TRAVELLERS, edited by Lucy Larcom, (James R. Osgood & Co.) Lucy Larcom says, "The book begins and ends like the journey of a summer traveler; for it lingers by brook and river, among mossy rocks and wayside blossoms and underhanging trees, and climbs and descends the hills of our own land, and the countries across the sea." It will be approved of as charming reading taken from all the very best sources; even the stay-at-homes will welcome it with its glimpses of mountains and sky, and its fragrance of field and woodland. 16mo, cloth, red edges, $1.

SILVER PITCHERS, by Louisa M. Alcott. (Roberts Brothers.) "Silver Pitchers" is only one of nine stories embraced in this volume; it tells how three pretty young girls formed themselves into a society to do what they could in a modest way to stem social intemperance, and make the young men with whom they associated strong to withstand temptation. The badge of the society was a silver pitcher. The chief story is the last one in the book, written especially for this our Centennial year. It is called "Independence," and is a thorough love-story. It portrays in a very vivacious way how "John" and "Dolly" are brought together in a number of bright, piquant scenes, which all have a dash of old times in them, and a smattering of history and a show-up of "relics;" then their course of true love is interrupted, and "Dolly" is about being given away by an obdurate aunt to a rich and ancient admirer; the young folks make a declaration of independence, and, one fine morning, elope, making a bridal tour to the Exhibition. The story will be numbered among the best and brightest things Miss Alcott has written. The other stories in the book make up a volume of special interest. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

FOR SUMMER AFTERNOONS, by Susan Coolidge. (Roberts Brothers.) A collection of short stories and poems that have appeared from time to time in different magazines, and are now first brought together in book form. They are very pretty and readable, and offer just the sort of light mental food one needs for hot afternoons in summer. 16mo, cloth, red edges, $1.25.

A STUDY OF HAWTHORNE, by George Parsons Lathrop. (James R. Osgood & Co.) Mr. Lathrop does not offer his work as a biography of Hawthorne, but only as a "study," as he has named it, drawn by the light thrown on his character by the revelations of his works, his early letters, and the surroundings and events of his childhood. So little is known of the childhood of our greatest writer of fiction that the information here placed before the public by Mr. Lathrop, for the first time, will be read with the most intense interest. The essay covers the whole of Hawthorne's career, and will be a valuable and welcome volume to his friends and admirers. 16mo, cloth, red edges, $1.25.

NARROW-GAUGE RAILWAYS IN AMERICA, by Howard Fleming. (Howard Fleming.) This narrates in a popular form the rise, progress, and success of narrow-gauge railways in America, besides giving valuable statistics as to grades, curves, weights of rail, locomotives, cars, etc., and also a directory of narrow-gauge railways in North-America. This is the second edition of the work, and contains a new chapter on construction, in which the formulas for earthworks and for laying out curves will prove very useful and acceptable. 8vo, illustrated, cloth.

THE CENTENNIAL GUIDE AND PURCHASERS' DIRECTORY OF PHILADELPHIA, 1876. (Sibole & Stellwagen.) Besides being a very good little guide to Philadelphia and the Exhibition, this is a very excellent directory for those desiring to make purchases in Philadelphia, as it gives the most important stores for various goods under special headings; other information of a miscellaneous nature is also embodied in it. 25 cents.

MONOPOLY IN NEWSDEALING.

FROM circular No. 7 of Mr. J. A. Roys, Detroit, received since our editorial paragraph on No. 6 was written, we copy the following letter:

"FORT HOWARD, WIS., June 1, 1876.

"MR. J. A. ROYS:

"DEAR SIR: I notice by the editorial columns of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, May 27th, that you have declared war on certain publishers, naming Bonner and Leslie; and I think others are just as bad; but what recourse have we retail dealers? I do not see that we can do any thing; and now that the American News Co., with the Western, have gobbled up the Wisconsin News Co., and the company at Detroit, they have everything their own way; and Scribner & Co. tell me that they know of no news company in New-York City that is not in some way connected with the American. I thought the New-York News Co. was an independent concern.

"If the retail dealers could get together somewhere, and talk the matter up, and adopt some plan for all to work on, perhaps something might be done; but as it is, we will be ground down until there will finally be nothing left; as it is, it's a hard struggle for a retail dealer to get his money back on his papers. Do you know of any one in our business who needs a man who has had over ten years' experience in the business, and would be willing to work for a moderate salary to get himself established?

"Let me hear from you.

"Yours truly,

"H. E. WHITNEY."

Mr. Roys also prints the reply, in answer to his protest, of Messrs. Scribner & Co., over whose magazines the news companies, according to Mr. Roys, also have prohibitive control: "They wrote back promptly, and with some detail, explaining their position, closing their letter in these words: 'We do not make the condition of things we find in the news trade, and we do not like it; but we can not reform it, and so we do the best we can,' taking things as they air," as Rev. Mr. Snow did in Seven-oaks.'"

Mr. Roys' circulars are stirring up much feeling in the West, and there is a tendency to bring up this subject at the Convention of the book trade, which is so largely identical with the news trade.

STATIONERY NOTES.

JOHN D. EMACK, 114 William street, New-York, has patented a slate which he calls the "Only Noiseless" slate. The frame is made of wood of an oval shape, and the entire surface is covered with a soft felting, puncturing the groove of the frame to a sufficient depth to encase the entire edges of the slate in the soft material, and prevent its rattling. The corners are cemented in the usual way, and are made additionally strong by iron brads through them. The felting is in different colors, and the slates are very attractive.

G. A. RAISBECK has returned from the East, and reports having had a good trade. He will start in a few days on a fishing excursion to the Adirondack Mountains.

WILLY WALLACH, 4 Beekman street, New-York, has got up a very fine quality of oil-board, which is claimed to be much stronger than that heretofore in use. It is meeting with great success. The size is 23 x 36.

DEY's cement and mucilage combined is a remarkable chemical triumph. The advantages of this cement are that it is manufactured in compact dry cakes, and is used without a heating process; its sticking qualities are said to be unequalled. It resists the action of force, heat, or moisture, and is used without a brush by simply moistening with the lips, and applying to the paper or article to be cemented. It is adapted for any thing where cements, mucilage, or glues of various kinds have formerly been used. It also mends glass, china, or earthenware. The cement is put up one cake in a box, and retails at 25 cents, with a liberal discount to the trade. Dey & Gouge, 131 Varick street, manufacture and supply the trade.

THE Japanese Papeterie is one of the most novel and elegant boxes of paper and envelopes offered to the trade. The box is made of teak-wood and is elegantly lacquered, and on the cover of each box is a very handsome Japanese design. The box contains two quires and two packs of the handsomest tinted paper, and sets in a tray of the same material. The box can be used for handkerchiefs or gloves. They are sold at $21 per dozen, net, to the trade, by James G. Mundy, 75 John street, New-York.

MR. WHITMORE, of Chamberlin, Whitmore & Co., New-York, has just returned from a successful trip as far as San Francisco. Mr. Whitmore will sail for Europe on the steamer City of Richmond on Saturday, the 17th inst., on a trip combining business with pleasure.

MONTGOMERY WEST, of the firm of West, Johnston & Co., Richmond, Va., has, to the great surprise of his friends, taken unto himself a wife. The happy couple are on a tour through Washington, Philadelphia, New-York, and the mountains of New-Hampshire. We congratulate Mr. West heartily.

CAMERON, AMBERG & Co., of Chicago, have established a branch house at 60 Queen street, Cheapside, London, for the sale of Amberg's patent file and binder, and we understand it is having a successful run there. Mr. D. R. Cameron, of the above firm, has sailed on the steamer Cythia for England and the Continent. He expects to be gone until September.

MESSRS D. R. CAMERON, Chicago, Montgomery West and wife, Richmond, Va., Marcus Ward, London, and William Patton, Waterbury, Ct., are in town.

MR. CAMERON, of the firm of Anderson & Cameron, has just returned from the West.

CRANDALL'S "Little All-Right" is one of the latest and funniest low-priced toys of the Orange Judd Co. As shown in the illustration, the lively little fellow throws himself into a variety of undignified but comical positions as he whirls around the wheel. This toy can not conveniently be sent by mail, therefore local dealers will have the advantage of sales. The price is $2 per dozen, and the Judd Co. is now ready to supply all orders.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE issue of the American Bookseller for June 1st gives a sectional view of the A. B. T. A. structure, covering three pages, which is very excellent, though the artist, who otherwise deserves credit for his distinct lettering, even of things "that were not" at the date of the photograph, left the case of the WEEKLY, the Bookseller's nearest neighbor, whose lettering is much larger than several signs carefully worked up, quite in anonymous darkness. The view is redrawn from a photograph, and reproduced by photo-lithography. The Bookseller devotes several pages also to descriptions of the book and stationery exhibits, and, by force of habit, adopts the WEEKLY feature of a Reference-List of Centennial books, adding a reference-list to patriotic music. The Bookseller takes the WEEKLY to task for saying that the first edition of Sauer's Bible was used for cartridges at the battle of Germantown. It misquotes by not quoting fully; we said that "the work" was so used, and simply did not specify that it was the third edition, as the information before us stated. The Bookseller, we fear, has been straining at a gnat in giving us fatherly correction for this ambiguity.

DURING the continuance of the Centennial Exhibition, the American Unitarian Association will, through the favor of the church in Philadelphia, establish a certain place for communication, in the Unitarian Church there, with a depository for the sale and distribution of their books. Their publications find fair and steady sale at moderate profit, and are sent freely on request to colleges, libraries, and reading-rooms, in many of which the rules forbid the purchase of sectarian or denominational literature.

THE French Book-Trade Journal publishes the programme of the International Exposition of 1878, and its classification seems to be rather more satisfactory than at our own Exhibition at Philadelphia. The Department of Education is the second general division, of which printing, book-publishing, and binding make Division B, and periodical publications and libraries are included in Division D. The Paper Trade goes under Subdivision C, of General Division 5.

J. R. OSGOOD & Co. announce for the 24th the two new Hawthorne volumes, mentioned recently. These are virtually entirely new, though all their contents have been printed before, but in periodicals long since deceased, in annuals, and in newspapers to which only antiquarians turn. One volume contains "Fanshawe," the first story of Hawthorne, a tale of 174 pages, which was printed, but which he never republished, or rather never published, so few copies were ever out of his own hands. There will naturally be great curiosity among Hawthorne's admirers to see what this suppressed story is like. The remainder of the volume comprises biographical sketches of Mrs. Anne Hutchinson, Sir William Phips, Sir William Pepperell, Thomas Green Fessenden, and Jonathan Cilley, who fell in the notable duel with Mr. Graves. The other volume gives, in 60 pages, all that Hawthorne had written of "The Dolliver Romance," an exquisite fragment; sketches of travel; a curiously interesting article on "A Book of Autographs;" "Times Portraiture," a New-Year's address for the carrier of a Salem paper, and other pieces well worth saving. These volumes will be substantially uniform with the 16mo edition of Hawthorne's works.

J. H. COATES & Co. have been made the sole agents in this country for the Rev. Alexander B. Grosart, who is about publishing for private sale, by subscription only, new editions of the works of Edmund Spenser and Samuel Daniel; portions of the Towneley MSS. never before published, being "The Spending of Robert Newell" a book illustrating Lancashire and Yorkshire family history, and, according to Mr. Grosart, "full of American family names, including Washington;" and a collection of "English Jacobite Ballads, Songs, and Satires." New lives of both Spenser and Daniel, based on original researches, with notes and illustrations, will accompany the works, the life of Spenser being illustrated by steel portraits of Spenser, Sir Philip Sidney, and Sir Walter Raleigh—the last from an original never before engraved. Mr. Grosart will have associated with him in his editorial work a number of eminent scholars and critics, as Prof. Henry Morley, Francis T. Palgrave, Aubrey de Vere, William Aldis Wright, Prof. Angus, Prof. Child (of Harvard), and Prof. Edward Dowden. The works, of course, will be very elegantly gotten up, and as the editions will be limited, no subscription can be guaranteed unless received prior to July 1st.

"NARROW-Gauge Railways in America," by Howard Fleming, a work of special interest to engineers and the general public, previously referred to, will be found advertised in another column.

THE National Educational Association will hold its sixteenth annual meeting in the Academy of Music, Baltimore, Maryland, on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, the 10th, 11th, and 12th days of July, 1876.

THE Congregational Publishing Society propose, if sufficient encouragement by subscription is given them, to issue a "Centennial Edition" of the works of the most important of the New-England theologians. Their plan embraces sixteen volumes, which they will sell for the very low price of $20. They will also receive subscriptions for single sets of an author or single volumes, at $1.50 per volume. The works are those of Dr. Joseph Bellamy, in two volumes; Thomas Shepard, pastor of the First Church in Cambridge, 3 volumes; Dr. Samuel Hopkins, 3 volumes; "The Great Awakening," by Joseph Tracy, 1 volume; "The Atonement," discourses and treatises by Edwards, Smalley, and others, 1 volume; and the works of Dr. Nathaniel Emmons, 6 volumes.

MR. G. W. CARLETON is doing the good thing of sending each of his clerks in turn off to the Centennial for a day, and paying their expenses.

A NEW book by Dr. M. L. Holbrook, editor of The Herald of Health, extending to about 150 pages, will be issued shortly. It is on "Liver Complaints, Nervous Dyspepsia, and Headache," and is intended rather for patients than physicians.

WE are pained to note the death, by consumption, of Mr. Riley, of G. W. Carleton & Co., one of the most pleasant gentlemen of the trade. We hope to give a brief sketch of his life in the next issue.

AT the recent annual meeting it was reported that the receipts of the Universalist Publishing House last year were $43,220, the disbursements $42,796. Rev. Dr. A. A. Miner was chosen president.

THE American Tract Society (Boston) has elected W. C. Chapin president, and Arthur Gilman secretary and treasurer. The expenses last year were $10,063—$5 above the receipts.

ENCYCLOPEDIA BRITANNICA.

VOLUME IV.

This volume, in amount, variety, and accuracy of information, surpasses any similar compilation of equal dimensions ever made. It might be said without exaggeration that whatever valuable learning is possessed by man on all important subjects embraced between the alphabetical boundaries Bok- and Can- is presented in this volume in clear and intelligible form.

The contents comprise 812 double-columned quarto pages, together with thirty-six full-page plates and maps. The number of subjects treated is about one hundred, to the most important of which ample space is allowed: the article on Botany alone fills eighty-nine pages, the text of which is supplemented by sixteen beautiful full-page plates.

Biography is, perhaps, the most conspicuous specialty in the volume, being represented by elaborate sketches of sixteen men distinguished in art, literature, politics, theology, science, etc., besides many shorter notices of less famous personages. Here the reader will find comprehensive and impartial analyses of Brougham, by Henry Reeve, C.B.; Buckle, by Prof. Flint; Bunsen, by G. Von Bunsen; Burke, by John Morley; Burns, by Prof. Nichol; Butler (Samuel), by G. Saintsbury; Byron, by W. Minto; Calderon, by R. Garnett; Camoens, by F. W. Cosens; Lord Campbell, by W. C. Smith, etc., etc.

Geography, a branch of investigation in which the recent advance has been marvelous, has also a spacious place in the work. Keith Johnston, the most accomplished practical English geographer of the day, contributes exhaustive articles on Bolivia and Brazil; Prof. J. D. Whitney, one on California; Rev. Daniel Wilson, one on Canada. Prof. Whitney will be recognized as the eminent geologist of California. Rev. Dr. George E. Ellis, of Boston, writes an admirable account, historical and descriptive, of that city, and a pleasing sketch of Cambridge. To Mr. E. S. Drone, of New-York, is due the paper on Buffalo; and the biography of Cabot is the work of Mr. Samuel Adams Drake, of this city. The recognition, by the editor of the Encyclopedia, of the claims of American talent, is a graceful acknowledgment of the partnership of the two nations in the cause of learning and discovery, and should specially commend the work to the people of this country.

The student of Natural Science will find ample information and entertainment in the papers on Botany, Brachiopoda, Butterflies, etc. Subjects of more practical character have not been neglected; various trades and industries are fully described; and representatives of all forms of effort, not only in intellectual, but also in material enterprises, will find in this volume valuable instruction and suggestive hints.

Thus information on any branch can be obtained at a glance.

The names of the Publishers will be indicated by initials, to which a separate key will be supplied for the special use of Dealers.

The American Educational Catalogue, having been recognized as the most complete and practical guide to Educational Literature, is distributed every year by most of the leading firms, who have realized the fact that it pays them to buy editions from 100 to 2000 copies each, with their own imprint, and to circulate the catalogue among their educational customers, for the purpose of soliciting orders, and saving at the same time much troublesome correspondence.

In making up special orders for the Educational Catalogue, Booksellers should bear in mind that it possesses not only temporary value, but will serve its purpose during the whole year.

TERMS FOR EDITIONS.

Cash remittance must invariably accompany each order.

WITH SOLE IMPRINT OF ORDERING FIRM, AND STITCHED.

100 Copies, - - $5.00 | 1,000 Copies, - - - $40.00

The last page will be left blank, unless a stereotyped or electrotyped page, uniform in size with the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, shall be sent before going to press. If we are to make the plate, it will be charged extra at the mere cost of composition and electrotyping, viz., $6.15. These rates are charged uniformly for any page that does not contain more matter than can be set up in nonpareil. Copy should be sent with the order.

Mode of shipping must be stated with order.

NOTICE.

As numerous orders for editions are received every summer, after the issue of the Educational Catalogue, we again call attention to the necessity of being in possession of all orders on or before July 15th.

All communications concerning the EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE should be addressed to F. LEYPOLDT, Publisher, 37 Park Row, New-York.

THE Publishers' Trade-List Annual
For 1876.

THE TRADE-LIST ANNUAL for 1876 is intended to be of more importance and more permanence than any preceding volume, and is expected to be ready by the middle of July.

To the American Catalogue, now in advanced preparation, in two volumes, this will form a third or supplementary volume, which will be generally bound uniform with the others, and kept with them on the shelf as a permanent work of reference. The three volumes will enable the bookseller or bookbuyer to trace a book from any possible clew, by author, title, subject, or publisher. They will also make a complete record of American publications at the date of the centennial year, which will be generally sought by libraries, to the publishers' benefit.

As the American Catalogue will this year furnish a complete index in place of the imperfect one of last year, that feature will be replaced by others of equal and more permanent value. The chief feature of this volume will be a full analytical index to publishers' specialties, which will be of great assistance to the trade. We propose to present, also, a list of bibliographical and trade helps, a key to valuable addresses, and several like features that we are sure will be practically appreciated. But in recognition of the Centennial Exhibition, the most notable feature will be a detailed description, probably with maps and views, of the book exhibits from different countries—a record which, by its interest and instructive usefulness, would alone assure permanent value.

TERMS.

1. The price will be One Dollar per copy, bound in cloth. The price of the volume will be raised after close of subscription.
2. No single subscriptions can be taken into account that have not been paid up on day of publication, as the small amounts will neither bear the trouble, nor the expense or risk, of numerous accounts, bills, statements, and subsequent collections.
3. Remittances should be made by money-order on New-York, or registered letter, as we can not be responsible for any losses. Receipt for remittance, with attached order for delivery, will be sent by return mail.

☞ Booksellers, in their own interest, are requested to call the attention of librarians and large bookbuyers to the ANNUAL.
